KAKAS BROS.
BEDFORD ST. FUR STORE

Honest Furs at Honest Prices

By Honest Furs we mean
Furs sold by their correct names and strictly as represented.
Furs made in our own workrooms, from selected skins, by the same workmen and with the same care, whether the article is sold for $5 or $500.
Furs whose quality of material and workmanship make it impossible for us, if we would, to offer them below the prices of standard grades, under the pretence of "opening," "special," or "mark down" sales.

By Honest Prices we mean
Prices based upon the cost of materials and manufacture, and therefore representing fair market values.
Prices which give purchasers a full equivalent for their money.
Prices which, on investigation, will be found to be as low as other dealers name for goods of equal quality, and in many cases lower.
Prices which will remain the same until there is a decided change in the cost of production.

Muffs which we sell for $8 are worth $8, and not advertised as worth $12. Garments for which we charge $125 are worth $125, and not advertised as worth $200.

We offer a complete line of all that is fashionable in furs this season, and cordially invite comparison as to quality, styles, and prices.

Information Wanted.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30, 1901.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Will you allow me to make use of the columns of your paper that I may ascertain, if possible, the address of the lady who on the 6th of last Sept. was kind enough to loan a nickel to the lady who found herself in the Boston subway without her purse.

Possibly my perturbed state of mind at the time made me forget the address given, but on Sunday, Sept. 8th, I wrote enclosing the borrowed nickel. Imagine my discomfiture when on Nov. 30th I received my note returned from the dead letter office marked "No such number."

My object in trying to find the correct address now, is not that I am anxious to return the nickel, as that I would like to prove to the lender that I am not the fraud that I appear.

I will consider it a great favor if my unknown friend will send her address to me at my home.

Very truly yours,
H. A. B.,

Another Rumor in Regard to McKay Plant.

Rumor is again current that the McKay plant is to leave town. When investigated there appears to be no one who is willing to back up the story. Every once in a while a similar report crops out. They do not come from the managers of the company whom we know from past experience are very reticent in regard to their plans. There was a well grounded report from Beverly over a year ago that the consolidated plant was to be located there, but this resulted in nothing. A large branch is already located there employing about as many men as in Winchester. This much is known, that many of the reports are traceable to the men employed in the factory, and whether they are right or wrong in their surmises, time alone will tell.

It has been known for some time that plans were being prepared for a large building to be located somewhere, but whether the proposed new structure is to accommodate the entire business or not is not known. This probably was the basis for the origination of the story that the plant was to leave town. It hardly seems likely that the modern buildings here will be abandoned.

A Deep Mystery.

It is a mystery why women endure backache, headache, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, fainting and dizzy spells when thousands have proved that Electric Bitters will quickly cure such troubles. "I suffered for many years with kidney trouble," writes Mrs. Phebe Cherley, of Peterson, Ia., "and a lame back pained me so I could not dress myself, but Electric Bitters wholly cured me, and, although 73 years old, I now am able to do all my housework." It overcomes constipation, improves appetite, gives perfect health. Only 50c at Grover's drug store.

Illegal Town Meetings.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

It is generally the lawyers who do the most illegal business at our town meetings.

At the last November town meeting the Moderator allowed a vote to create an appropriations committee. It was not offered under any article and there was no article in the warrant under which it could have been offered, and then the legal gentleman who was Moderator announced the names of the committee in the STAR, of course after the meeting had closed. He ought to know that all authority of the Moderator ceases with the dissolution of the meeting and even the meeting by vote could not extend his authority. The whole proceeding is illegal.

At the last town meeting when the school question was under discussion, the Moderator was entirely out of order when, while occupying the chair, he remarked that as the school committee were present it was very queer that they did not explain these matters, and when I objected to a vote which was offered to borrow money, the Moderator although he agreed with me, had no right to make remarks or express opinions except on parliamentary points of order, and has no right to show favors or to invite a minister to open the meeting with prayer who is not a legal voter.

The Water Board caused an article to be inserted in the last town warrant to borrow money for water purposes. The Selectmen ought to have known enough not to have put such an article in the warrant, but none of them did. The Water Board discovered after the warrant was in print that no money could be borrowed under the article and offered a vote, which was carried, authorizing an expenditure of $3000 this year to be taken out of next year's appropriation. In the first place it was not properly admissible under the article and in another place even if the article had been so framed to allow the vote, parliamentary, it was clearly illegal. When illegal appropriations are made and certain people do not pay their taxes and the Collector undertakes to sell the property for taxes, it is the easiest thing to prevent the sale for taxes because the Collector can not give a legal tax title.

Under the school article to raise money, the vote passed to instruct the school committee to continue the kindergartens was clearly illegal and I have the opinion of some good lawyers who are favorable to kindergartens to that effect.

The only legal action at the last town meeting was the election of the Moderator, and he was out of order at least three separate times.

HENRY F. JOHNSON.

High School Dramatics.

The most successful public entertainment ever given by the pupils of the High school took place Thursday evening, December 26, in the Town Hall. The entertainment consisted of two plays given by the Senior and Junior classes before a large and appreciative audience. The play which the Junior class presented was a popular one-act farce entitled, "An Obstinate Family." The cast was as follows:

Mr. Harwood, Harford's father-in-law, Webster W. Wyman
Mrs. Harwood, Harford's mother-in-law, Emma Punchard
Henry Harford, Harold V. Hovey
Jessie Harwood, his wife, Marguerite E. Barr
James, Harford's servant, James A. Newman
Lucy, servant, Grace Herrick

The leading parts, "Henry Harford" and "Jessie Harford," his wife, were well carried out by Harold V. Hovey and Marguerite E. Barr. "Mr. and Mrs. Harwood," the father-in-law and mother-in-law, as portrayed by Webster W. Wyman and Emma Punchard, showed great skill and care both in the acting and in the making up "James" and "Lucy," two servants, played by James A. Newman and Grace Herrick, made one of the many hits of the evening. As the characters were well suited to the persons who presented them, the acting was especially spirited and full of life. The entire farce showed great thought and work and much credit is due to those who took part in it.

The Seniors staged a well known farce called "Thirty Minutes for Refreshments." The play was presented with the following cast:

John Downley, a bachelor, Clarence Fultz
George Fitts, his colored servant, Timothy O'Neil
John Foxton, a young married gentleman, Charles R. Main
Major Pepper, U.S.A., Bremer Pond
Mrs. Foxton, Elinor C. Barta
Miss Arabella Pepper, a maiden lady, Florence Perry
Polly, waiting maid at Highland Station, Eliza Twombly

The character of "John Downley" was taken by Clarence Fultz, who made his fourth appearance in amateur dramatics. His work was clever and caused much laughter in the audience. Timothy O'Neil was seen at his best when he took the character of "George Fitts," a colored servant of "John Downley." The parts of "Mr. and Mrs. John Foxton" were well worked up by Charles R. Main and Elinor C. Barta, "Major Pepper, U. S. A." as presented by Bremer Pond was greatly enjoyed by the audience. One of the most animated and natural presentations was "Miss Arabella Pepper," a maiden lady, by Florence Perry. "Polly," a waiting maid at Highland Station, was very gracefully acted by Eliza Twombly.

The success of this entertainment was not only due to those who took part but also to Mr. Ernest L. Collins, one of the sub-masters in the High school, who acted this as well as in previous years as stage manager.

After the plays, dancing was enjoyed until twelve o'clock.

Among those who were present were: Mr. Fred Abbott, Mr. Fisher Dwinell, Miss Charlotte Dwinell, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Barr, Mr. and Mrs. William Herrick, Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Herrick, Mr. Charles Newell, Miss Helen Hall, Mr. Harris Cole, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Barta, Mr. Edwin Rooney, Mr. Lawrance, Mrs. Henry Emerson, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Kreutz, Mr. Julian Garrett, Mr. and Mrs. Edward O. Punchard, Mr. Herbert Dutch, Mr. Ernest L. Collins, Miss Roma Nickerson, Miss Elise Belcher, Mr. Donald Belcher, Mr. Harry Gray, Mr. Henry Kellogg, Mr. Fred Horne, Miss Marguerite Horne, Miss Mabel Corey, Mrs. George A. Fernald, Mr. Peter Skillings, Mr. James Baldwin, Mr. James Russell, Dr. and Mrs. Albert F. Blaisdell, Mr. Frank Ripley, Mr. Palmer, Mrs. William French, Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. White, Miss Marion Lawson, Miss Dorothy Lawson, Miss Ina Atwood, Mr. and Mrs. Handel Pond, Mr. Charles F. A. Currier, Miss Eva Palmer, Mrs. Charles E. Pond, Mr. and Mrs. William G. Bean, Mrs. Frank A. Cutting, Mrs. Shaw, Mr. Speacer Cutting, Mr. Edwin N. Lovering, Mrs. R. C. Fultz.

A Good Recommendation.

"I have noticed the sale on Chamberlain's Stomach & Liver Tablets is almost invariably to those who have once used them," says Mr. J. H. Weber, a prominent druggist of Cascade, Iowa. What better recommendation could any medicine have than for people to call for it when again in need of such a remedy? Try them when you feel dull after eating, when you have a bad taste in your mouth, feel bilious, have no appetite or when troubled with constipation, you are certain to be delighted with the prompt relief which they afford. For sale by Young & Brown, Druggists.

Strength for Overworked Women Is Found in Dr. Greene's Nervura.

Early and late, morning, noon, and night, never ceasing her labors, always worrying because something is left undone; four, six, and eight in the family; no one to help! Is this woman working too hard? Is she a frail-looking body, colorless and thin? Or is she strong limbed and vigorous? It makes little difference, she can't stand it unaided. Not one man in a hundred works like these home keepers, whose labor is taken as a matter of course.

Are you one of these overworked women? Are you on the point of breaking down? Are you forcing yourself to keep going by living on your nerves? Does your back ache and your head throb with pain? Take warning. Get the help of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy which helps Nature provide strength and builds up every weak spot.

Mrs. Kate Austin, 40 Jenny Lind Ave., Somerville, Mass., says:

"I had a pain in my side for seventeen years. I also suffered with terrible backache and headaches. I cried with pain from womb trouble, and was pale as a ghost. I was terribly nervous. I could not sleep for a long time, and had rheumatism in my shoulder and arm. I weighed 128 lbs.

"A friend recommended Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy and I commenced to take it. After taking the Nervura I never had a pain in my side, nor any headache, and I sleep well and have a good appetite. I don't believe there is any medicine in the world so good as Dr. Greene's Nervura. It did me good right off, and I have had no return of my womb trouble. I had leucorrhoea, but since taking Dr. Greene's Nervura that has disappeared.

"I feel strong and last summer was able to do the work for fourteen in the family and I weigh 163 pounds. I recommend Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy to everyone."

Get the honest aid of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy and keep your health intact. Dr. Greene, Nervura's discoverer, advises women free of charge. Write or call. His office is 34 Temple Place, Boston, Mass.

THE MISSION OF THE W. C. T. U. IN JAPAN.

So far as close observation goes, there is wide scope for the operation of W. C. T. U. methods in Japan, and if this ready field could be entered now in a few years, the result would tell in national life. Next to the work of educating public sentiment, nothing brings so large a return as effort put forth among the children. There is no country in the world where more attention is given to child-life, or where greater sacrifices are made by parents for children. The care for children is little understood, when viewed from a western standpoint, and many of the practices common among mothers deter physical development, but for real desire to promote the best interests of children, these mothers have no peers—the responsibility of the rearing of children falls upon them. Fathers have no part in the matter.

The very fact of the great interest in the well being of children, would make it an easy matter to establish a temperance movement that would soon include thousands in its ranks.

There are numerous institutions for children that might be captured bodily for the Loyal Temperance Legion. In one city there is an Orphan Asylum of three or four hundred children; doubtless many of them are there because of strong drink. These little ones are bright as can be. This entire institution could, beyond doubt be gathered into juvenile work. We have sent missionaries here to work among the older ones. The work has been started, and is well grounded. Clara Parrish has written her name in temperance history and better still, in many lives. The young women are coming slowly into active service, and today the battle cry is, "Capture the children!" This is the greatest mission for the W. C. T. U.

Let some young woman arm herself with the undaunted faith of our first missionaries, and enter heart and soul into this work, and it is safe to predict that in 5 years a million children will be marching under the Loyal Temperance Legion banner.

A Cure for Lumbago.

W. C. Williamson, of Amherst, Va., say: "For more than a year I suffered from lumbago. I finally tried Chamberlain's Pain Balm and it gave me entire relief, which all other remedies had failed to do." Sold by Young & Brown, druggists.

An Excellent Historical Sketch.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I was very much pleased and enlightened in reading the history of the Common and public plots in this town printed in your last issue. Naturally a dry subject, this matter was served up in a most readable, instructive and entertaining manner, and reflects much credit on the writer, whoever he may be. The Common and plots, although established before taking up my residence here, possess a new interest to me after reading the article as it shows the early struggles and interests taken by the inhabitants to beautify the town and give to it its present beautiful aspect and standing among the communities in the Metropolitan district.

Would that all historical matters could be put together as correctly and as interestingly as this has been.

Hair Falls

"I tried Ayer's Hair Vigor to stop my hair from falling. One-half a bottle cured me."
J. C. Baxter, Braidwood, Ill.

Ayer's Hair Vigor is certainly the most economical preparation of its kind on the market. A little of it goes a long way. It doesn't take much of it to stop falling of the hair, make the hair grow, and restore color to gray hair. $1.00 a bottle. All druggists.

If your druggist cannot supply you, send us one dollar and we will express you a bottle. Be sure and give the name of your nearest express office. Address, J. C. AYER CO., Lowell, Mass.

The Argument Relative to Vaccination.

A practice so thoroughly established everywhere in civilized countries as vaccination, ought not, under ordinary circumstances, to require a public statement of its raison d'etre; but the fact of the extremely spasmodic occurrence of smallpox, and its almost entire absence from many communities for considerable periods of time, together with the consequent neglect of vaccination among the people; these facts prevent a large share of the younger members of the profession from acquiring a clinical acquaintance with the disease, and often from recognizing the importance of, or learning the reasons for employing vaccination as a measure of prevention. A majority of the medical profession, at the present time, have never had an opportunity to become familiar with the disease.

The argument in favor of vaccination may as a matter of convenience, be stated as follows: Comparison of populations at different periods of time before and after the introduction of vaccination The mortality from smallpox has been enormously reduced since the introduction of vaccination at the beginning of the nineteenth century.

For example: In Boston in the eighteenth century, in 6 epidemic years, 1721, 1730, 1752, 1764, 1778 and 1792, there were 2,405 deaths from smallpox, in an average population of only 13,250 inhabitants. In 1721, when Boston was a town of only 11,000 people, 6,000 of its population, or more than half the whole number, were taken sick with smallpox, and 850 of these died, or nearly 8 per cent. of the whole population. Again, in 1730, 4,000 were taken sick with smallpox, and 500 of them died. In 1752, 7,669 were taken sick, and 569 died, etc. What would be said if there were 275,000 sick with smallpox in Boston today, with 30,000 or 40,000 deaths from the same cause? Yet this is no more than might occur under the same conditions as prevailed in 1721 and 1752.

In Sweden, where accurate statistics have been kept for more than a century and a half, the deaths from smallpox per million inhabitants, before the introduction of vaccination, rose to 7,200, 5,800 and 5,100 successively in 1779, 1784, and in 1800; but at no time since 1810 has the smallpox mortality risen to more than 700 per million. Similar instances might be cited from the history of almost every civilized country in the world.

The only great epidemic of smallpox which Massachusetts has experienced in the nineteenth century was that of 1872 and 1873, when the smallpox mortality amounted to less than one tenth of one per cent of the living population, a mere fraction only of the mortality which was suffered in the previous century.

Wernher says in his work, "Zur Impffrage": "Before the introduction of vaccination smallpox had become a permanent disease, which never entirely ceased in 1 year, and every 3 or 5 years became a great epidemic." In non-epidemic years one-tenth of all mortality was from smallpox, and in epidemic years one-half. Very few men escaped smallpox till old age. Almost every one sickened at least once in his life of this horrible murderous disease."

"Countless mortals, who escaped death, were maimed by loss of sight. Of newborn children, one-third died of smallpox before their first year, one-half before their fifth year of life. There was no family which had not heavy losses to deplore."

The most convincing argument in favor of vaccination is comparative immunity of the entire German nation from smallpox at the present day as compared with neighboring countries. In Germany, by a strict law enacted in 1874, each child must be vaccinated before the September of the year following its birth; and all scholars in public and in private schools must be revaccinated in their twelfth year, if they have not had the smallpox.

As a result of the strict enforcement of this law Germany is, while occupying a central position in Europe, far more free from smallpox than any of the neighboring countries.—[Medical and Surgical Journal.

Cost and Efficacy.

Unquestionably cost and efficacy must be considered in buying anything. A cheap article, which does not do what is claimed, is expensive to use, whereas, if by a greater initial outlay one purchases an article which will accomplish the work and in the end go farther, the latter is the cheapest to use.

Sulpho-Napthol, although a little higher priced, is capable of greater dilution than any similar article on the market and its efficacy for cleaning and disinfecting, as an antiseptic and for its many other uses, has always remained unquestioned—it has the highly prized confidence of the professional fraternity and the public. It is destined to become "the treasure article of the household."

The U. S. Civil Service Commission will hold examinations at several places in each state during March and April, to secure young men and women for the government service. 9,889 persons secured positions last year through these examinations. Probably 10,000 appointments will be made this year. All appointments are for life and for most positions only a common school education is required. Salaries at appointment vary from $660 to $1200 a year with liberal promotions afterward. Politics is not considered. This affords a good opportunity for people between 16 and 45 years of age. Those desiring places of this kind can get full information about them, free, by writing to the Columbian Correspondence College, Washington, D. C., and asking for its Civil Service catalogue, number three.

Be Sure You Read.

The man who would like to know something about astronomy must lay out a little scheme of study for himself, get the books which are necessary and have them at hand the moment he is at leisure. The man who wishes to familiarize himself with political economy, with politics or with industrial questions, which are now of such importance, must find out what textbooks he ought to have, secure those textbooks and keep them by his side.

The man who wishes to know literature does not need to lay out an elaborate plan which fills him with discouragement by its very magnitude, but he does need to decide what author he is going to read next, and he does need to get the book and keep it within easy reach.

Almost all the great classics are now published in such portable forms that a man can carry a play of Shakespeare, the essays of Bacon, the poems of Tennyson or of Browning, a translation of "Faust," Matthew Arnold's criticisms, Emerson's essays or John Burroughs' charming transcriptions of nature in his coat pocket and substitute them for the newspaper which is thrust in his face by an eager newsboy and which he buys because he has nothing else to read.—Success.

Vaccination.

On first page is printed an article on vaccination taken from the Boston Medical and Surgical Journal, which the careful attention of all who have not been vaccinated is called to. Because the smallpox scare appears to be over, and but little is seen in the Boston papers regarding the disease is no reason to suppose it is abating to any appreciable extent. There will doubtless be cases of it throughout the winter, and as vaccination is recommended by the most eminent physicians the world over it should be resorted to.

Rivalry in the Fire Department.

Rivalry will never cease to exist so long as there are fire departments in towns. As far back as we can remember the ambition of the men of every fire company was to reach the scene of a conflagration ahead of any other company, and this has always been true of the Winchester fire department. This spirit of rivalry is perfectly justifiable, nevertheless the claim that the company which reaches a fire first is the best in the department is not always correct. It is the work accomplished at the time of a fire that gives a standing to a company. In the series of communications printed in our columns during the past three weeks on the fire department, this latter point has not been touched upon, presumably for the reason that the several organizations have done such good service, that there has been no opportunity for one company to claim superiority over another. In regard to reaching the scene of a fire the conditions are apt to be so dissimilar that no standard of superiority can properly be claimed.

Winchester has a good fire department and the men have always done excellent work at time of fires and the citizens have not been slow to appreciate it. Where an infrequent error has been committed it has always been because of haste in reaching the scene of a fire.

In view of the good work done, the firemen should "cut out" the boasting as to which particular company reaches a fire first, in the interest of harmony and good feeling, and also because of the strain that is apt to be put upon the horses and the wear and tear of the apparatus.

Lack of Accommodation for High School Pupils.

We understand that the School Committee are discussing again the matter of more ample accommodations for our High School pupils. It seems that the question has at last reached an acute stage when some temporary expedient will have to be devised. During the last term every seat in the High School was not only occupied but some twenty temporary chairs were put into the room used for chemical experiments, and known as the laboratory, and each one was occupied by a pupil. It was never intended, of course, that such a room should be ever used for the general seating of pupils, but it was thus used last term rather than to turn away those who had a right to attend the school.

The High School attendance, as is generally known, has steadily increased during the last few years and everything indicates a still larger increase for the next five years or more. From present indications, even after the present senior class graduates, there will be next fall more than twenty-five pupils who will be unable to obtain seats.

If it is true, as is generally conceded, that the taxpayers of the town will not be willing to appropriate, for five years at least, the $80,000 to $100,000 necessary to build the right kind of a High School building, then it is high time that the School Committee recommend some temporary makeshift. The old building is certainly not one of beauty and a joy forever and it would seem that it had outlived its usefulness for a High School building. It has been suggested that one of the wings could be extended and seating capacity for some thirty or forty pupils obtained for a comparatively small amount. Such an addition could not be well recommended from an architectural point of view but only from a common sense standpoint. It would accommodate for the present the sons and daughters of citizens who certainly have a right to grumble if their children were obliged to be seated in some "laboratory," the halls, to say nothing of the possibility of the basement.

We understand that certain citizens who usually take a liberal and broad-minded view of educational matters are giving the question a great deal of thought. It is not at all unlikely that an attempt will be made at the next March town meeting to start the ball rolling by recommending the appointment of a committee of five to seven representative citizens who shall during the coming year formulate some practical plan to hasten the time when a High School building shall be built which will harmonize better with the present social and financial standing of our town than does the useful but antiquated building which is plainly inadequate to accomodate nearly three hundred pupils who now attend the school.

The pains in the chest indicated an approaching attack of pneumonia which in this instance was undoubtedly warded off by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It counteracts any tendency of a cold toward pneumonia. For sale by Young & Brown, druggists.

FOR INVESTMENT.

There is no investment which is more satisfactory than a good building lot acquired at a price which will assure the purchaser of an immediate appreciation in value, the result of first-class development. I am able to offer such an opportunity through the purchase, by Mr. A. Wilbert Starratt, of what was formerly known as the Bacon Estate, off Highland Avenue in Winchester. This properly consists of 264,000 sq. ft. of land situated on a side hill with a South and Westerly exposure and protected on the North and East by a precipitous cliff. The tract is about seven minutes walk from the centre of the Town and four minutes from the electrics; it is adjacent to the Middlesex Fells and a stone's throw from the Mystic Valley Driveway, the main entrance to the Fells. The development is being carried out under the direction of Ernest W. Bowditch, the well known landscape architect, and under his supervision there is now, in the process of construction, a forty foot macadam roadway, with paved gutters, loam spaces and gravel sidewalks, which has been laid out in such a manner as to preserve the many large shade trees on the place. Sewer, water and gas pipes are laid through the entire roadway. There are 21 lots varying in size from 7,500 to 10,000 sq. ft. and of this number 12 have already been sold, upon which there have been already built, or are now in the process of construction, altogether ten houses which comply with suitable restrictions, and are a distinct benefit to the whole development. The nine lots now in my hands for sale are offered at a remarkably reasonable figure which cannot but prove attractive to the home seeker or investor.

It is the opinion of practical men that Woburn ought to borrow $100,000, hire an educated road builder, and have some highways that her people would not be ashamed of. Miss Marjorie Cutting and Miss Barbara Fernald gave a dancing party in Lyceum Hall on New Year's eve to about one hundred of their friends. Two remarkably pretty features were a Japanese german and a "hurdle" german. The New Year's social held on Tuesday night was a very successful affair. The entertainment was composed of music, vocal and instrumental, and readings. Mrs. Lefavour and Mrs. A. B. Saunders appeared for the first time before a Winchester gathering. Mr. Lafavour rendered two delightful tenor solos and a feature of the evening were Mrs. Lafavour's piano solos. Mrs. Saunders captured everyone with her rich and sweet soprano voice. The reader and entertainer was Miss Francis Beckwith of Wollaston. She is an especially bright and attractive reader for social gatherings. A feature of the evening was an exhibition of 1902 calendars of all kinds and descriptions. A large number of very beautiful ones were displayed. Swifts and the Equitable took the prizes, and awards were made to Miss Emma Newth and Miss Emily Blank. Refreshments were served by a special committee of young ladies.

Uniting on Carpets.

Recently there was noted in these columns the prevalence of a rumor that the entire carpet business of Boston—of wide extent and importance—is soon to be gathered into the hands of one corporation.

We now hear the plan spoken of with even more certainty than hitherto, and it seems likely to prove an accomplished fact.

The story—not yet fully confirmed, however—connects the old-established Pray firm with the control of the new enterprise.

We ought to do better.
In many respects the new year will be like the one that is past.
Some people will keep right on buying pianos on the grab-box principle and pay exorbitant prices for brilliant cases.
Locke talk will continue to point out the pitfalls of the piano purchase.

A BURNING QUESTION
At this time is: "Are you getting the best out of your coal?" If not, perhaps you are wasting Heat in the cellar which is needed elsewhere. It has been shown that a single foot of naked two-inch pipe carrying high pressure steam all the year round will condense more steam than a dollar's worth of coal will make, and the loss is in proportion for lower pressure and shorter time. Do you wish to stop this loss? If so, now is the time when it can best be done. Perhaps it will cost less than you think. At any rate it will cost you nothing to get figures.

A Generous Santa Claus.

A real Santa Claus is a boon to any community. A spurious S. C. is no good anywhere, and is to be avoided. Mr. George H. Gilbert of Sunnyside, Winchester, was duly commissioned years ago as boss Santa Claus for this section of Middlesex county, and right worthily has he won the honor. Christmas after Christmas he has faithfully and generously discharged the duties of Charity's Almoner and thus won the affection of the poor. How kindly he remembered the Journal's old editor and his helpmate last Tuesday! There was a big package of good things, but those that warmed the cockles of the editor's heart the most were the fragrant Pine Pillow from Oldtown, Maine, and mysterious articles that gurgled when moved, and bore "The Seal" of purity on its pleasant face. We heartily thank Mr. Gilbert for his kind Christmas thought of us, and his handsome holiday presents.—[Woburn Journal.

The editor of the Journal and his wife are not the only ones indebted to this gentleman for pleasant reminders of his whole souled generosity, for there are many people in Winchester, including the editor of the STAR and his wife, who received a visit from this modern Santa Claus, who is never so happy as when engaged in bringing good cheer and sunshine to others.

Mrs. Achsah T. Sanborn.

That courtly, genial and charming old lady, Mrs. Achsah T. Sanborn, familiarly known to all the older residents of Winchester, passed away at the Home for Aged People Sunday. Mrs. Sanborn was taken ill thirteen weeks ago with pleurisy, brought on from a cold contracted while on a visit to Woburn a few days before. She had recovered from this disease when a gradual breaking up incidental to old age set in and she peacefully passed away.

Mrs. Sanborn was born in Wilmington, this State, 84 years ago, where her early childhood was passed. She was the second wife of Mr. Sherburne T. Sanborn, and after her marriage resided in Chelsea for some years. With her husband she moved to Winchester about fifty years ago. Mr. Sanborn was instantly killed in Wilmington about 23 years ago at the railroad crossing by an express train, while he and his wife were riding in a carriage. At that time she narrowly escaped death and was badly injured. She had been a member of the Congregational church here since its organization, and was one of the first inmates of the Home for Aged People. She had no children of her own, but was stepmother to W. D. Sanborn, C. E. Sanborn and H. L. Sanborn, all deceased.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at the Congregational church, Rev. D. A. Newton officiating. There was a large attendance of friends and relatives. The display of flowers was profuse—tender and mute reminders of the love in which the deceased was held. The interment was in the family lot at Wildwood.

YOUNG PEOPLES' RELIGIOUS UNION.

Last Sunday evening Mr. Lewis Parkhurst spoke before the Young Peoples' Religious Union on the subject, "Some Lessons from the Woods."

Mr. Parkhurst said that to understand nature one must study her, not in books, but in the woods. And that when one is in the woods, one should not go through them talking and laughing, but quietly, so as not to startle the animals and birds that live there. He told of sitting quietly and watching a wood-mouse come out of its home and look around to see that none of its enemies were near. He told many interesting stories of the deer that he had seen early in the morning standing knee-deep in the lake, and of loons at play. He said that the fellow feeling the animals have for each other is quite wonderful to one who has never seen them in their own haunts. He read an article from one of Rev. William J. Long's books.

Altogether his talk was most interesting and instructive. Those who heard him must have a clear idea of the woods and the stories that nature tells to one who has camped out in the forests, as Mr. Parkhurst has done.

The leader of the meeting was Mr. Curtis Nash and Dr. D. C. Dennett was in charge of the music.

Next Sunday evening Mrs. Pleasantine C. Wilson will speak on "The Old Year's Last Will and Testament." Mr. George Spurr will be the leader of the meeting and Miss Anne F. Witherell will be in charge of the music. All are cordially invited to these meetings.

The Lily Valleys caught the Hen Theives with most of their men away Saturday afternoon, and in spite of the fierce resistance of Capt. Lane and his lone guard, they captured three straight games. Both Burnham and Wilson had in succession the spare of 4-5-7, and made the 4 and 5 without getting the 7; following them came the Judge who also had it, and although he too made 4 and 5, 7 still was up, whereupon the Judge, being more intimate with the game than his predecessors, hit up a lively jig, and 7 gave up the ghost. NOTE.—Braintree and Milton alone had a larger number of kindergartens, in proportion to population, than has Winchester; but Braintree forms an apparent rather than a real exception, since it has only three independent kindergartens, for in two small schools one teacher has the first primary grade as well as the kindergarten, and without any assistant.

The fourth column gives the whole number of different pupils, which is naturally larger than the average attendance.

By the fifth column it will be noticed that only one town has as small an enrollment per teacher as Winchester's, which is a trifle more than one-half the average enrollment per teacher for the State.

The State Board of Education does not tabulate the cost of kindergartens separately, and this can be learned only by examining each town and city report. The condensed newspaper account of the special town meeting last week was slightly misleading in one respect. No one has claimed that kindergarten expenses are larger in absolute amount in Winchester than any where else, or that individual salaries are the highest here of any place in the State. But what is maintained, and what no one has been able to refute, is that, so far as can be ascertained, only one town, and no city, in Massachusetts exceeded Winchester in 1900 in the percentage of kindergarten expenses to total school expenditures, and that no town or city equalled it in per centage of kindergarten salaries to all teachers' salaries.

Kindergarten.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Manifestly the kindergarten part of the school system of Winchester is to be continued as it has been for the balance of the school year, as the result of the recent town meeting.

The School Committee made an excellent argument why kindergartens should be omitted in January, February and March if they had not previously engaged the teachers therefor, and it was at this point the committee disastrously failed in their argument.

Out of their own mouths they stand convicted of unreasonable extravagance in hiring too many kindergarten teachers last summer, and we have them on our hands and must keep them until the end of the year.

With the new blood that has been put into the School Board we may reasonably expect that the kindergartens will be a part of the school system, but that they will not be run as a hobby as they have been, and we may further expect that the grammar school, which is the most important, will receive a good share of the committee's attention, and that it will not be considered the least important as it has been.

If ministers and lawyers can be kept from being elected to the office of School Committee perhaps the standard of our schools can be raised to the level of those in the towns and cities which are near us.

HENRY F. JOHNSON.

Mr. Suter Should Not be Included.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

At the town meeting last week I made a statement which did injustice to one of our most public spirited citizens. I stated that the present chairman of the School Committee had made more visits to the public schools since his election in March than any other member had made during the last five years. Certainly Mr. Suter should not be included in this remark. No man has done so much for Winchester schools as Mr. Suter. His labors have been untiring, intelligent and progressive, and the town owes him a debt of gratitude for a distinguished service which has been prompted solely by a desire to serve the town.

In Memory of Mrs. Achsah J. Sanborn.

As fades the leaf, one whom we loved hath faded;
Thro' Summer late, thro' Autumn's ling'ring close;
Falling at last where Winter hath invaded,
To slumber peacefully beneath its snows.

We may not weep for this bright spirit's flitting,
We who have heard her speak of dear ones gone;
Of all in youth around her fire-side sitting,
Not one was left to cheer her pathway lone;—

Yet not all lonely; faith in Christ doth render
That peace which comforteth when griefs assail;
Tho' oft she dreamed with vision rapt and tender
Of those awaiting her beyond the vale,—

Still friends and kindred prized in goodly measure,
In kind remembrance gladdened oft her sight;
And loving messages were hers to treasure,
And life still yielded her serene delight.

And one there was, on whom her fond hopes centered,
Dear beyond words, one of her house and name,
Who, when her heart was sore bereft, had entered;—
And tender solace with his presence came.

The sweet, late tendrils of her love clung round him,
And he became as of her life a part;
By ties of gentle comradeship she bound him,
And left her soul's fair imprint in his heart.

Tho' distant far, his message lay beside her,—
His prayer that great might be her Christmas joy;
O, strange, sweet joy, so swiftly to betide her!
Heavenly Father, comfort Thou her boy!

The rare, sweet rose, with fragrant heart o'er-flowing,
Breathes fragrance still when petals withered lie;
The rare, sweet soul doth bless us e'en in going,
And bid us follow to its native sky.

Rest, gentle spirit, rest in peace forever!
O, not in vain was thy pure radiance shed;
Rest thou in Christ! Thy faith hath faltered never
For dear ones living, or for dear ones dead!

Sewerage Pumping Station Burned.

The vacant building just south of Wedgemere station and for many years used by the City of Boston as a sewerage pumping station, was totally destroyed by fire Tuesday evening. The fire was discovered by the engineer of a passing freight train who announced the fact as he was passing through the centre. A telephone call was sent to the Central fire station and from there an alarm was rung in for box 27. When the department reached the scene of the fire the long low building was a mass of flame. Connection was made with a hydrant near Bacon's mill nearly 1000 feet from the fire, but the force of water was found to be extremely limited because of the smallness of the street main. After the steamer was attached to the hydrant the flow of water was more abundant, but the great headway attained by the flames before the sounding of the alarm and the high wind made it impossible to do anything toward saving the old building. Stored in the station was a large quantity of hay and this was also consumed. The attention of the department was directed mainly to protecting surrounding property, the sparks from the fire being carried long distances by the wind. The cause of the fire is a mystery, but as the interior of the building was a comfortable rendezvous for tramps, it is possible that they may have been responsible for the fire.

The building was owned by the Boston & Maine railroad, they having purchased it together with the land from the city of Boston. It was the intention of the company to move the building and fit it up for uses connected with the railroad. The structure was not of much value.

It is lucky there were no other buildings close to the fire for had there been the delay in announcing the fire, the high wind and the scarcity of water would all have contributed to their destruction.

It Girdles the Globe.

Observations.

In an article of interest, printed in another paper upon the military history of individuals, it says, "John C. Park lived in Winchester and was Capt. of the Artillery Company in 1853." This was an error. He never lived in Winchester, but lived in Woburn about 1848, in a house owned by Elijah Wyman on Main street just north of Kilby street. He came to Woburn as the friend of Albert H. Nelson. He was an able lawyer with a large practice in the municipal and police courts of Boston, and by his skill and tact pulled many clients out of the meshes of the law. He was a handsome man; a sweet voiced and eloquent orator, and did great service on the stump in the Harrison campaign of 1840. He was a whig member of the House of Representatives in 1842-3, and a senator in 1844—both from Boston. He lived in Woburn but a short time. He wore a long cape, and was called the "Chevalier" of the House; he had a dashing military air, and in conformation a splendid specimen of a soldier.

Nearly 20 years ago I spent a week in N. Y. City with Edward Everett Hale, at the house of a mutual friend. I shall never forget his instructive conversation around the table, and at evening gatherings by the fireside. I knew personally his venerable father fifty years ago, Nathan Hale, editor of the Boston Daily Advertiser, a staunch whig of the old school. Nathan Hale married a sister of Alexander H. Everett and Edward Everett, the brilliant scholar and fluent orator. Editor Hale was contempory with Joseph T. Buckingham, editor of the Boston Courier, Charles G. Green of the Boston Post and Statesman, and Richard Houton of the Boston Atlas, who died so suddenly just after the whigs came into power in 1840—one of the most prominent and able editors that moved a pen.

Three well known men, born in Wincester, of middle life today: Arthur E. Whitney, born in 1848, George G. Stratton, born in 1849, Henry F. Johnson, born in 1850. The first, a clear headed thinker and writer, with an inventive mind, well up in mechanic arts, cultivated and inherited from ingenious ancestors. The second a business man, who, by careful management, is well established and respected. The third, very familiar in town affairs, diligent in what he undertakes, a thorn in the flesh of those who do not toe the line after his standard of municipal government.

Mr. Whitney is a good representative of a long line who have made skillful advances in labor saving industry, where mind and body have united to perfect work and increase profit. Mr. Whitney has been a selectman, is one of the mainstays of our library, and often selected as a member of the most responsible committees to regulate town affairs. He is a good scholar and an extensive reader of standard and special works.

Mr. Stratton's father was an early hero in the war of the Rebellion; he laid down his life that liberty might dwell in our land; brave to go, patriotic to die, mournful never to return. Mr. Stratton's mother belonged to the earliest and most efficient of Woburn's first settlers, and when the last page of Winchester's history is written their names will hold no second place in her records.

Mr. Johnson has a long lineage, coeval with 250 years of the local history of Woburn and Winchester which he must cherish with pride. In early manhood he was employed by the B. & L. R. R., where he was faithful and attentive to his duties, "never letting his angry passions rise." At times he is brusque, in a storm of words, but calms away, is polite and greeting at the next interview. He is a good financier and can place his stocks where "thieves cannot break through and steal," or even the assessors find their hiding place. The above three gentlemen were educated in our town school and their intellects never illuminated with the light of a kindergarten candle.

Town officers: Messrs. Carter, Newell, Spurr and Bell will draw their rations from the old crib for another year. Car and parlor caucusing will soon be booming to hatch a board of Selectmen. Let the sovereign people be heard in the selection, they are the source of all power, let them take the helm and pilot the ship without cut and dried cards, engraved before hand.

It is good and agreeable to go into the town house. The janitor is pleasant, the town clerk at his post, ready to give information and open the books to the public eye; the auditor, like a well trained watch dog, (without growling) keeps all departments within the line of appropriations and holds the balance in the hollow of his hand. The treasurer, portly in body, suave in manners, with his fist full of that which eases the wheels of life, to fill up the ruts with daily bread. The collector, whose duty is not always lovely, but an act of dire necessity; his soft words turn away wrath, and his affable ways open the pockets of many callers.

The selectmen, once a week, hold secret council and weigh the wants of the town in the balance of judgment and justice; possibly talk over the horoscope of an other year, and lay a pipe to fill the old canteen with the fruitage of another term.

Alvah Buckman, who died in Woburn last week, aged 78, was a citizen of unblemished character in all the walks of life. He was born in South Woburn, on Cambridge street, in the house now occupied by Varnum P. Locke. His father soon after moved to Richardson Row, into what is now the Joseph Stone house. Alvah was a son of Willis, a twin brother to Dennis, both born in Lexington, and came to Woburn with their father, Jacob, in 1800. Alvah was a nephew of Bowen Buckman, who, in Woburn, was selectman, town clerk and treasurer, postmaster for 20 years, both a Representative and Senator, and for 40 years kept the largest store in town. As I have said, Dennis and Willis were twin brothers, and so much alike in form and speech that one was often taken for the other. In 1830 they, with their wives, attended an evening prayer meeting in the neighborhood. After meeting, on going home, the wife of Dennis took the arm of Willis and the wife of Willis took the arm of Dennis, and went home. Both of the husbands kept silent, their wives not having discovered the mistake until they were about to retire to bed. This statement is an absolute fact, over which the two brothers often laughed. Dennis Buckman was the father of the wife of the late Alanson Winn, his wife an aunt of the writer.

Damages Allowed by State Commission, $10,000. Allowed for Same Damages by the Court, $32,087.51.

The following item from the Boston Herald would tend to prove that it is better to settle cases against the state or county out of court where it is possible to do so, rather than to be too exacting and compel settlements by jury trial.

Damages amounting to $32,087.51 were assessed by a second session jury of the superior court, before Judge Richardson, in the cases of Amos Stone et al. vs. the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and Joseph Stone et al. vs the same defendant, for the taking by the metropolitan sewerage commissioners in 1893 and 1895 of about 12,000 square feet of the plaintiffs' land, and damages to about 60,000 square feet of their remaining land for the purpose of erecting the pumping station in the Charlestown district, near Malden bridge.

The land then consisted of upland and flats, together with an easement to lay, load and unload vessels. The expert evidence for the plaintiffs tended to show damages amounting to about $50,000, while that for the respondent tended to show the damage as about $10,000.

The verdict in the first case was $24,065 and in the second $8021.

R. M. Saltonstall and Thomas Punt for plaintiffs, Asst.-Atty.-Gen. Hammond for respondent.

Diaries for 1902 can be had at Wilson's stationery store, Pleasant street.

Emergency Hospital.

The following taken from the Woburn Daily Times of last week was crowded out of our last issue:

For the past week, preparations have been made to open a hospital in Woburn, known as Middlesex County Emergency and General Hospital. The site chosen is the Champney house, corner of Summer street and Warren avenue.

Dr. A. T. Wells, who is the prime mover in the venture, has established two hospitals of this kind the past six months, one in Taunton, the other in Newburyport and both are now working successfully.

The support of the new hospital depends entirely upon subscription. Certificates are issued and agents canvass the shops of the city with a view of selling them at $1.00 each. Prominent men have interested themselves in the movement and the sale of the certificates is assured. The Boston Emergency Hospital is run on the same plan. The certificate when purchased for $1.00 entitles the holder to medical advice and surgical treatment at the hospital for one year from date at any hour of the day or night, Sundays or holidays; the doors are never closed. Competent doctors will be in charge at all times. In case of accidents patients are allowed bed treatment. If husband and wife both buy certificates all children under fourteen years of age are given the services of the hospital free.

The hospital will have an operating room with all the improvements for surgical work. The scope of the territory to be covered will be Wakefield, Stoneham, Winchester, Lexington and towns bordering on Woburn. Telephone connection will be had to facilitate prompt service of an ambulance to any place within the city limits; outside the city a livery stable keeper of each town will be promptly notified and carriage service furnished to any party meeting with an accident. The ambulance and other service for bringing patients to the hospital will be free, the $1.00 certificate paying all.

The hospital at present has fourteen beds in large, well lighted rooms and a dispensary is being fitted up to furnish medicines to patients at low rates.

Verdict Set Aside.

The verdict of $21,100 rendered against the Lynn & Boston street railway company by a jury in the Middlesex civil court at East Cambridge, Oct. 25, has been set aside by Judge Sheldon.

The case was an action of tort brought by Edward F. Murray of Stoneham to recover damages for personal injuries received on the company's car by his 9-year-old daughter, Bertha.

It was alleged that while the girl was standing on the platform of the car the trolley rope was pulled up violently and coiled around the left arm of the girl, pulling her to the roof of the car. The girl was alleged to have received a severe shock. She was brought into the courtroom on a stretcher.

The jury awarded a sister, Nellie, $100 for slight injuries, Mr. Murray $6000 for medical expenses and loss of services, and the child $15,000 for personal injuries.

The Murrays formerly resided in Winchester, and at the time of the trial several of the witnesses were from this town.

Stop the Blight

It is a sad thing to see fine fruit trees spoiled by the blight. You can always tell them from the rest. They never do well afterwards but stay small and sickly.

It is worse to see a blight strike children. Good health is the natural right of children. But some of them don't get their rights. While the rest grow big and strong one stays small and weak.

Scott's Emulsion can stop that blight. There is no reason why such a child should stay small. Scott's Emulsion is a medicine with lots of strength in it—the kind of strength that makes things grow.

Scott's Emulsion makes children grow, makes them eat, makes them sleep, makes them play. Give the weak child a chance. Scott's Emulsion will make it catch up with the rest.

This picture represents the Trade Mark of Scott's Emulsion and is on the wrapper of every bottle.

REMARKABLE CURE OF CROUP.

A Little Boy's Life Saved.

I have a few words to say regarding Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It saved my little boy's life and I feel that I cannot praise it enough. I bought a bottle of it from A. E. Steere of Goodwin, S. D., and when I got home with it the poor baby could hardly breathe. I gave the medicine as directed every ten minutes until he "threw up" and then I thought sure he was going to choke to death. We had to pull the phlegm out of his mouth in great long strings. I am positive that if I had not got that bottle of cough medicine, my boy would not be on earth today.—JOEL DEMONT, Inwood, Iowa. WORTH $300,000,000.

The President of a certain big Oil Company is said to be worth $300,000,000. A tidy bit of money and no mistake. And yet he isn't happy. In an address to a Bible class he spoke of trials and troubles of the rich and the loads they have to carry. A young lady whispered to a friend that he might wear a Benson's Porous Plaster on his back or, better still, divide the money among the members of the class. I don't know why her idea about the plaster makes me want to laugh, but it does. All the same I have seen plenty of people laugh after putting Benson's Plasters on their backs or chests, or on any other spot where there was weight, heaviness, weakness or pain. It may be the sharp stabs of neuralgia, the aches and wrenches of rheumatism; it may be colds in muscles or bones; it may be those kidney or lumbago thrusts that make you yell as at a dog bite; or it may be a strain or cramp, anything that wants quieting and comforting. Dont bother with salves, liniments, lotions, etc., or with any of the stupid and useless old style plasters. Clap on a Benson's. It relieves at once and cures quickly. It stops the pain and makes you laugh for the very ease and good feeling of it. But watch out against imitations and substitutes. An electric light when hung quite high is necessarily wasteful for the reason that it is a matter of considerable inconvenience to turn off the current. Of course in such instances a wall switch button may be used, but this entails, says The Scientific American, more or less elaborate wiring and more expensive attachments in the lamp socket. The thumbscrew with which most of the lamp sockets are fitted at present is the most simple and economical arrangement which can be devised and answers all purposes where the lamp is within easy reach. It is, however, inadequate where it is found necessary or desirable to hang the lamp beyond the ordinary reach, because in order to turn it off after use it is necessary to secure a chair or ladder.

With the chain pull just brought out this matter is solved in a very simple manner. The socket is supplied with a make and break attachment of the sliding kind, operated by means of a chain of any desirable length. One pull of this chain extinguishes the light, and the next turns it on.

A 184 Mile Power Arm.

The longest electric power transmission line in the country and probably in the world up to two and a half years ago was probably that from the San Bernardino mountains eighty miles to Los Angeles, Cal. Now there has been opened a line from the upper Yuba river, in the same state, to Oakland, a distance of 140 miles, while by a temporary connection to San Jose power is actually carried 184 miles.

Lighting Carriages by Electricity.

Carriages lighted by electricity promise to be used in the near future, says Electricity. The lights will illuminate the interior of the vehicles in addition to the ordinary carriage lights at either side of the coachman's box. Three small batteries are placed under the coachman's seat. At the side of the box is a small switchboard by which the coachman can illuminate the interior of the carriage at will. In the center of the top of the carriage is a small electric bulb which casts a light of one candle power.

Harnessing the Ocean.

The wave motion of the sea is utilized to run an electric lighted buoy at the mouth of the river Elbe in the North sea. The least motion of the water is sufficient to generate the electric current, which when not needed passes to storage batteries. The success in this case and in the generating of electricity by means of floats off the shore of Los Angeles, Cal., says Electricity, is encouraging to the belief that the power of the waves will later be made valuable to coast towns.

Odd Fuel For Locomotives.

Pressed and dried peat for locomotive fuel is being experimented with on the Vislanda-Bolmen railway of Sweden. In a late test, though the engine was built for using coal only, an experimental train of fifteen freight and one passenger car made the twenty-two mile trip ahead of the regular time schedule.

A new system of steel roofing has been patented which may displace galvanized iron for roofing purposes. The system of manufacture consists of steel strips bent cold in the press, the covering being formed of plain galvanized sheets bent back on the edges and locked into tubular rafters.

Books of Every Material.

The British museum has books written on bricks, tiles, oyster shells, bones and flat stones, together with manuscripts on bark, leaves, ivory, leather, parchment, papyrus, lead, iron, copper and wood—in short, pretty much every substance was used before the invention of paper.

Spider Silk.

Experimenting, M. Cachot, a French scientist, expected to find ten or twelve species of spiders that would supply silk for textile purposes, but thus far the Madagascar spider seems to have proved his main dependence. The attempt to use the cocoons was abandoned after a year's trial.

A Mastodon's Tooth.

Messrs. Holmes and Gill, government scientists, unearthed near Afton, I. T., a number of bones and teeth belonging to mastodons, mammoths and other prehistoric animals. One of the teeth was the largest of the kind ever found, being sixteen inches long—that is, fore and aft.

LESSON I, FIRST QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, JAN. 5.

Text of the Lesson, Acts i, 1-14—Memory Verses, 6-8—Golden Text, Acts i, 8—Commentary Prepared by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1901, by American Press Association.]

1, 2. "All that Jesus began both to do and teach." Thus Luke speaks of the things which he, by the Spirit, had written in his gospel. This book gives an account of the things which Jesus continued to do and teach by His Spirit through His disciples, and He is still doing and teaching by the same Spirit through His willing ones. We could scarcely have a more appropriate or helpful lesson with which to begin the year than the lesson for today, for in it we have the secret of power in His service, even the same power which wrought in Him in all His words and works and concerning which Paul wrote, "He that wrought effectually in Peter, the same was mighty in me" (Gal. ii, 8).

3. "Being seen of them 40 days and speaking of the things pertaining to the kingdom of God." At least 10 or 12 times between His resurrection from the dead and His visible ascension He appeared to individuals or companies of His disciples, and it would seem that He was always speaking about the things of the kingdom of God. Since this was the great topic of His preaching and conversation, can there be anything more important for us than to be sure of an entrance into the kingdom, to walk worthy of it while here and to live to hasten it? (John iii, 3, 5; I Thess. ii, 12; Math. vi, 33.)

4, 5. "Ye shall be baptized with the Holy Ghost not many days hence." Although they had been with Him almost constantly for two or three years, the greatest and best teacher that ever lived, for "who teacheth like Him?" (Job xxxvi, 22) they were not qualified to go forth as His witnesses till specially endued, as it is written in Luke xxiv, 49, "Behold, I send the promise of My Father upon you, but tarry ye in the city of Jerusalem until ye be endued with power from on high." Since our Lord Jesus Himself did not begin His public ministry till the Holy Spirit came specially upon Him (Math. iii, 16, 17; Acts x, 38) and these privileged men could not go forth without a special enduement, are we not wrong if we think we can serve Him without being filled with the Spirit? (Eph. v, 18.)

6-8. "Lord, wilt Thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?" The kingdom which the God of heaven will set up (Dan. ii, 44), God being the author of it and heaven the character of it and therefore called in the gospels both the kingdom of God and the kingdom of heaven, will be a kingdom under the whole heaven or on the whole earth (Dan. vii, 27), with Israel as a righteous nation in their own land as the center and the whole earth filled with the glory of the Lord (Isa. lx, 21; xi, 9; xxvii, 6; Rom. xi, 15). The Saviour did not call their expectation carnal or earthly, as many do today, and tell them that their thoughts of the kingdom were all wrong and that it was to be a spiritual kingdom in the hearts of men, but He simply told them that it was not for them to know the time and their present business was to be filled with the Spirit and in His power to be His witnesses unto the ends of the earth. His message to us is in this respect the same as to Israel: "Fear not, for I have redeemed thee. I have called thee by thy name. Thou art Mine. Therefore ye are My witnesses, saith the Lord, that I am God. This people have I formed for Myself. They shall show forth My praise" (Isa. xliii, 1, 10, 12, 21).

9. "And when He had spoken these things, while they beheld, He was taken up, and a cloud received Him out of their sight." In Luke xxiv, 50, 51, it is written, "And He led them out as far as to Bethany, and He lifted up His hands and blessed them, and it came to pass while He blessed them He was parted from them and carried up into heaven." Among His parting words were the assurance that all power was given unto Him in heaven and in earth, that He would be with them all the days until the end of the age and that they were to go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature, proclaiming repentance and remission of sins in His name (Math. xxviii, 18-20; Mark xvi, 15; Luke xxiv, 47). He was the first risen from the dead to be received up into heaven, and by virtue of His death and resurrection all His redeemed shall take part in the first resurrection (Rev. xx, 6). It is probable that those who rose from the dead after His resurrection (Math. xxvii, 52, 53) are with Him in glory, a first fruits of the first resurrection.

10, 11. "This same Jesus shall so come in like manner." It is just possible that the two men in white apparel were the same two who appeared with Him on the Mount of Transfiguration and there spake of His decease which he was about to accomplish. The steadfast, heavenward look of the disciples makes us think of Stephen and to desire that, like him, we might be able to "look up steadfastly into heaven and see the glory of God and Jesus" (Acts vii, 55). The great truth in this passage is the one we have quoted, and we must not for a moment consider the coming of the Spirit at Pentecost nor the destruction of Jerusalem nor any other event nor death as the coming of Christ. When He comes, He will be "the same Jesus," and He will come "in like manner," and Zech. xiv, 4, says He will come to the same Mount of Olives on the east of Jerusalem. On His way His saints will meet Him in the air in glorified bodies (I Cor. xv, 51, 52; I Thess. iv, 16-18) and then in due time return with Him in glory (I Thess. iii, 13; Col. iii, 4; Rev. xix, 11-14).

12-14. They returned to Jerusalem from Olivet with great joy and were continually praising and blessing God (Luke xxiv, 52, 53). They also continued with one accord in prayer and supplication. What a contrast to their feelings after His death when they, not looking for His resurrection, were filled with sorrow, and He had to rebuke them for their unbelief! It is His resurrection and His coming again that gives joy and peace. This is the last mention, I think, of His mother, Mary, and we find her with those who are engaged in prayer. How good to find His brethren also at this gathering for prayer, for there was a time when they did not believe in Him! (John vii, 5.) May we go on into this year, if He still tarry, and continue us in these mortal bodies, filled with His Spirit, His faithful witnesses, ready for any manner of service and waiting for His return, praying without ceasing.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper.

...SE BICKERDYCK

A HEROINE OF THE CIVIL WAR PASSES AWAY AT 86.

Incidents In the Life of an Old Army Nurse—How She Caught the Thieves—She Hated Red Tape.

Mother Bickerdyke, the famous old army nurse who has lately died, was the heroine of many amusing adventures during the war. While she was tenderness itself to the wounded soldiers, she was a terror to evil doers.

When she was in charge of the hospital at Cairo, Ill., the delicacies and comforts sent in for the soldiers were stolen continually by the hospital attendants. Mother Bickerdyke caught a ward-master dressed in a shirt, slippers, and socks that had been sent her for the wounded, and, seizing him by the collar in his own ward, she disrobed him without ceremony before the patients, leaving him nude save for his pantaloons. To ascertain who were the thieves of the food, she resorted to a ruse. Purchasing a quantity of tartar emetic, she mixed it with some stewed peaches that she had openly cooked in the kitchen, telling Tom, the cook, that she wanted to leave them on the kitchen table over night to cool. Then she went to her own room to await results.

She did not wait long. Soon the sounds of suffering from the terribly sick thieves reached her ears. Then, like a Nemesis, she stalked in among them. There they were, cooks, table-waiters, stewards, ward-masters,—all save some of the surgeons,—suffering terribly from the emetic. "Peaches don't seem to agree with you, eh?" she said, looking on the pale, retching, groaning fellows with a sardonic smile. "Well, let me tell you that you will have a worse time than this if you keep on stealing! You may eat something seasoned with ratsbane one of these nights." Her complaints to General (then Colonel) Grant finally secured the dismissal of the thieves.

When she was in charge of a field hospital at Missionary Ridge, a terribly cold spell of weather came on accompanied by an arctic hurricane and a freezing rain. All night Mother Bickerdyke worked like a Titan to save her bloodless, feeble patients from being frozen to death. She had log fires built until the tents were surrounded by a cordon of immense pyres, that roared and crackled in the stinging atmosphere. But before midnight the fuel gave out. Mother Bickerdyke, with her usual scorn of red tape, persuaded the Pioneer Corps to tear down the disused breastworks near them, made of logs with earth thrown up against them, and to haul the logs to the fires. Meanwhile she ordered barrels of meal to be broken open, and mixed with warm water, for their mules. Immense caldrons of hot drinks were renewedly made under her direction, and layers of hot bricks were put around every wounded and sick man of the entire fifteen hundred as he lay in his cot. From tent to tent she ran all night, in the icy gale, hot bricks in one hand, and hot drinks in the other, cheering, warming, and encouraging the poor, shivering fellows.

As day was breaking the officer in command of the post was informed of Mother Bickerdyke's unauthorized actions, and he hastened down where the demolished breastworks were being rapidly devoured by the flames.

"Madam, consider yourself under arrest!" was the Major's address to the ubiquitous Mother Bickerdyke.

To which she replied, as she flew past him with hot bricks and hot drinks, "All right, Major! I'm arrested. Only don't meddle with me till the weather moderates, for my men will freeze to death if you do!"

There was some little official hubbub over her night's exploits but she defended herself to the officers who reproved her, with this indisputable statement: "It's lucky for you, old fellows, that I did what I did. For if I hadn't, hundreds of men in the hospital tents would have frozen to death. No one at the North would have blamed me, but there would have been such a hullabaloo about your heads for allowing it to happen, that you would have lost them, whether or no!"

After the war she never lost her interest in "her boys." Mrs. Mary a Livermore says:

"One summer she came to Massachusetts for a brief visit with her old friends. She arrived at my home at the close of a dismally rainy day, wet and exhausted. She had spent the day in Boston, searching for an old soldier from Illinois, who had served out three terms in the house of correction for drunkenness. I remonstrated, 'My dear friend, why do you, at the age of seventy-three, waste yourself on such a worthless creature as B——?' Turning to me with a flash of her blue eyes, she answered: 'Mary Livermore, I have a commission from the Lord God Almighty to do all I can for every miserable creature who comes in my way. He's always sure of two friends—God and me!'"

Mother Bickerdyke believed in equal suffrage. She spent her last years in Kansas, and had the pleasure of being able to vote at municipal elections. Indeed, her own history furnished a strong argument for woman suffrage. It was not until after seventeen yea s of effort that her friends succeeded in getting her a pension of $25 per month from the government to which she had saved thousands of dollars besides thousands of lives more precious than money. But that she resolutely forbade it, the old soldiers would have surrounded her with every luxury, even if they had impoverished themselves to do so. "The boys have all they can do to make a living for themselves and families," she said, "and they shall not be burdened with the care of me." It was appropriate that her death should have taken place at a town in Kansas bearing the brave name of Bunker Hill. She was buried at her old home in Galesburg Ill., beside her husband.

"Our little boy, Harry, had spasms for 3 years and we feared the disease would affect his mind. Though we doctored continually he grew worse and had ten spasms in one week. THE SCIENCE OF SLEEP.

Various Theories Advanced to Account For Its Causation.

It is a curious fact, but one by no means astonishing, that until of late days a satisfactory explanation of sleep and its causation was hardly to be met with within the bounds of physiological science.

Anæmia of the brain was regarded as the origin of our slumbers, but it became clear that this bloodlessness was to be regarded rather as a result of some other and more primary process than as itself a true or direct cause of sleep.

The theory has been revived that sleep is due to the liberation into the blood of certain substances which are manufactured by certain glands—these are not defined, by the way—with the result that our brain cells are sent dozing.

Alongside this view may be placed that other which supposed that a greater amount of carbonic acid gas being produced as the result of bodily work—or a want of elimination of this product being represented—we went to sleep because our brain cells were thus numbed by the gas.

I think, says a writer in the London Chronicle, that these "poisoning" sleep theories will not hold water. Far more rational is the simple view that fatigue of our brain cells is the real cause which sends us into the arms of "the drowsy god."

Self Extinguishing Gas Burner.

An invention which saves life by removing the danger of death is always welcome. There has recently been patented a gas burner so constructed that the gas may be blown out without any serious results following. Like many another useful device, the principle is exceedingly simple. Every one knows that heat expands metals and cold contracts them, but no one had previously thought of applying the principle to a gas burner. With this arrangement, however, the gas may be blown out and within a minute the absence of heat will cause the metal of the burner to contract and thus close a valve, which shuts off the gas completely.

A Wonderful Clock.

To the list of remarkable clocks in the world that just completed by a Bohemian in Chicago who has been at work on it for nineteen years will have to be added. It is more than 18 feet high and is 15 feet square at the base. A miniature earth circles round the dial and turns on its axis every twenty-four hours, while the sun, moon, Venus, Mars, Saturn and other planets are represented in their proper relative places. When the clock strikes, a door opens and a procession of all the presidents of the United States issues, followed by figures which symbolize its growth.

Progress In Taxidermy.

Of recent years great progress has been made in the reproduction of the naked skin parts of certain bird forms and mammals. This is done by the use of special preparations into which may enter wax, various pigments and other materials. By the use of these and much else employed by the skilled artist in taxidermy the wattles and combs of fowls, the practically naked heads of turkeys, vultures and condors, are reproduced so as to have every possible appearance of the structures referred to as they appear in life.

Longest Street Railroad.

To the Argentine Republic belongs the distinction of having the longest street railroad in the world. It runs from Buenos Ayres to San Martin, a distance of eighty-two kilometers, and horses furnish the motive power.

WORK THAT PAYS.

The Best Way to Advertise a Town Is to Beautify It.

It costs little more to make a city pleasing to the eye than to make it ugly, and a beautiful city attracts residents of a desirable sort and is a standing advertisement. It is not mere sentiment that is leading the railways to begin the beautifying of their stations and grounds; it pays. It is not for sentiment that railway and steamship lines advertise the natural beauties of their routes; beauty represents cash to them.

Clean streets, tasteful buildings, charming prospects, are valuable assets for a city. To keep still to the utilitarian side, cleanliness makes for health. The sanitary value of the American cleansing of Cuba is only an extreme instance of what is true everywhere. Cleanliness begets cleanliness, and the people in a clean, well ordered city are more likely to live clean, well ordered lives.

In many other ways such a general striving for betterment is profitable. It stirs civic pride. It makes better citizens. The more people possess to be proud of in their home city the more they are willing to do for it. Moreover, there is a strong moral uplift in good surroundings. An inspiring environment, whether of nature or of art, reacts irresistibly upon the individual.

And beyond all this is the fact that beautiful surroundings beautify and enrich life. None of us would wish to be condemned to the dull monotony of a sand bank in place of the splendid panorama of hills that girt this city or to the ignoble squalor of a row of 1,000 cheerless factory tenements, all precisely alike and grim with the smoke of factory chimneys. Our natures crave something better, and the more beautiful and varied the surroundings the richer and pleasanter is life.

A Healthy Jersey Town.

Hackensack is one of the most enterprising of the Jersey towns. It has now nearly 12,000 inhabitants, with well managed water service, gas and electric light systems and its own health board, and so successful has been its work that the town is now the healthiest in the state. The cost of its local government, by reason of its peculiar charter, brings the tax rate lower than any section of the Greater New York. The town is governed by a commission, the members of which serve without pay.

A Good Recommendation

"I have noticed the sale on Chamberlain's Stomach & Liver Tablets is almost invariably to those who have once used them," says Mr. J. H. Weber, a prominent druggist of Cascade, Iowa. What better recommendation could any medicine have than for people to call for it when again in need of such a remedy? Try them when you feel dull after eating, when you have a bad taste in your mouth, feel bilious, have no appetite or when troubled with constipation, you are certain to be delighted with the prompt relief which they afford. For sale by Young & Brown, Druggists.

JUSTICE FOR THE EDITOR.

A Man Who Is Not Afraid Tells a Few Truths.

"No man in the community does more for the public and receives less for it than the country editor," said Senator H. Clay Heather of Palmyra, Marion county, in the Missouri state senate when the bill reducing the price of publishing the Australian ballot was under consideration. "If all the space he employs in booming the town, in helping individuals, in making statesmen—sometimes out of pretty raw material—were paid for even at half the legal rate, he would be the richest man in the county.

"Few country editors are rich, but they are of more service to the communities where they live than the wealthiest man. They are in the forefront of every movement for progress. They do the work and leave the emoluments to others. A good, clean, honest newspaper—and most country newspapers are good and clean and honest—helps on every worthy cause and deserves every encouragement. It fights the party battles, holds up the hands of the reformer and makes the scoundrel afraid. I am opposed to this bill. No paper in my county would print the ballot at the pitiful price named. They are not paupers. But for the amount of splendid public service they render they ought to be millionaires."—State Tribune, Jefferson City, Mo.

A Word For Signs.

To an advertiser advertising should be a means of indicating to all the people, at all times, in all places, in every locality, the presence of his goods. Every unit of advertising matter should act as a seller. At every store where his goods are sold he should install a salesman of his own choosing, confined to the sale of his goods exclusively. What better than the store front sign? Something pleasing to the eye, intelligible to the thinking, an eye opener to the unthinking! What can fill all these requirements of the advertiser and the buyer of his goods as an individual sign placed inside of a store where the eye readily turns to it or on the outside where it reminds you to step in as you pass? With individual sign advertising he becomes an advertiser of individuality of his own.—Profitable Advertising.

VENTILATOR FOR WINDOWS.

Device of an Oregonian For the Comfort of Travelers.

A simple ventilator for car windows or other windows, which affords convenient means for adjustment to graduate the opening of the ventilator so as to open it partially or entirely, is described by The Scientific American. The inventor is David E. Werts of Grants Pass, Or.

The sash is held to slide vertically in the window frame, and the improved ventilator is placed in the lower rail of each sash. This lower rail has a horizontal slot leading outwardly and downwardly. On the inner side of the sash rail a recessed guard frame is secured, which frame is slotted to register with the slot of the sash rail. The exterior opening of the slot is covered with a woven wire cloth.

Slidable in the recess of the guard frame is a gate, upon which a plug bears. The plug projects from the free end of a flat spring secured by one end in a cavity in the sash rail and through a perforation in the guard frame. It will be seen that the impinging of the spring pressed plug on the gate will retain the gate at a desired point of open adjustment. The relative position of the plug is such as to adapt it to project its free rounded end through the perforation in the guard frame for a short distance, so as to support the gate when elevated sufficiently to close the sash slot completely.

The improved ventilator is of special value as a means for ventilating passenger cars.

Would Always Advertise.

Lou J. Beauchamp, the noted temperance lecturer and writer, who is also in the photographing business, in signing an advertising contract with the Hamilton (O.) Democrat, writes as follows:

"I find that photographers rarely advertise, but I'm too old a newspaper man not to believe in it for everything. I'd advertise if I was running a cemetery—quiet rooms, clean beds and plenty of free heat."

Silken raiment has a standing among the oldest garments in the world. Robes of that material were worn by men and women alike 2,500 years before the birth of Christ.

First Concert and Ball a Success.

The first annual concert and ball of Court Pride 196, Foresters of America, which took place in Lyceum Hall Thursday evening, Jan. 2, was a most flattering success. Much credit is due the different committees for their attention to all the minor details, which taken as a whole, made the evening so enjoyable to the large number present. A feature of the event was a handsome souvenir program, printed in the STAR office, which, in addition to a generous advertising patronage, gave copious extracts from the constitution of the court showing its many benefits to the well, the sick and the distressed.

Many persons from out of town were present to assist in making Court Pride's first concert and ball a success, and it is safe to say that they will all be present on the second occasion, a year hence. The hall was beautifully decorated in a garb symbolic of the order, a well known decorator being engaged for this purpose. The grand march was participated in by about 100 couples, and thence throughout the evening the hall was one of animation and brilliancy. Previous to the opening dance there was a concert, and during the intermission a vocal and instrumental concert. The committees having charge of the ball were: Floor manager, Alfred F. Forten; floor director, Robert H. Sullivan; assistant, Thomas R. Tobin; aids, Charles Thomas, chief, Thomas Francis, P. O'Melia, P. J. Maguire, James McClellan, H. J. Lyons, A. McElheny, George Morrill, Thomas Keane, George Osborne, N. Osborne, J. Kennedy, E. F. Cunniff, D. King, D. Kennedy; reception committee, J. Davey, D. G. C. R., Dr. C. J. Allen, A. J. Mullen, D. Lyons, J Murray, J. McLaughlin, Dr. C. F. McCarthy, J. F. McNelly, J. F. O'Connor, William Chandler, C. Flaherty.

Electric vs. Steam Roads.

The new policy of competition with the electric lines, which is being established by the new management of the Albany road, whereby fares are being cut, and trains added in the vicinity of Worcester, as a means of increasing the local passenger traffic which has greatly diminished since the advent of electric railways is significant. It is said that the Newton Circuit line of the Albany road may soon be equipped with electricity, and if so, frequent and cheap trips would undoubtedly be made. The question of how to hold suburban passenger patronage is a difficult one for the railroad companies to solve, but the Albany, and the Fitchburg division of the Boston & Maine, each have an exceptional opportunity to equip the circuit lines which they now own with rapid and frequent trains, and grant a low fare, as an experiment under favorable conditions in this direction. As the suburban population increases so rapidly there will be patrons enough for the street railways, even though trips take longer as population increases. But the steam roads have a clear track and but few stations comparatively, and it seems to the common observer as though an increased number of trains, with reduced rates, would attract some of the business which has been diverted by the electric lines.—[Watertown Enterprise.

A Cure for Lumbago.

W. C. Williamson, of Amherst, Va., say: "For more than a year I suffered from lumbago. I finally tried Chamberlain's Pain Balm and it gave me entire relief, which all other remedies had failed to do." Sold by Young & Brown, druggists.

Beware of Pedlers.

Pedlers or agents who come into a town canvas and sell all sorts of goods, cut into every line of local trade, and are the bane of the home merchant, who pays rent, pays taxes, helps support the churches, and other beneficent local institutions, is a prominent factor in the social, moral, industrial and political organism in the town, and in fact is a good citizen and worthy of encouragement and support as we are able to give it. We know that these slick-tongued strangers often are able to sell their goods from sheer over-persuasion when the buyer never had a thought of purchasing it, and too late the victim frequently finds that he himself has been "sold" along with the goods he bought. When an article is bought of a local dealer, one who has the best right to the patronage of his fellow citizens, if not as represented, or if the customer wishes it changed for something else in the merchant's stock, the chances are that everything will be made right and satisfactory to the purchaser, who finds it worth much to have a responsible dealer to come back upon instead of a irresponsible stranger who may never be seen or heard from again by the buyer of his wares. Think of these things when the next talking machine comes along. Shut him up and send him about his business. Likewise when tempted to send your money out of the town and buy goods in any other than the home market, remember that you owe a certain allegiance to the local merchant whose prosperity is the prosperity of others, and whose adversity would be more or less of a misfortune to the community. Let the money that you spend, circulate as far as possible in the town where you are enabled to earn it.—Exchange.

A Deep Mystery.

It is a mystery why women endure backache, headache, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, fainting and dizzy spells when thousands have proved that Electric Bitters will quickly cure such troubles. "I suffered for many years with kidney trouble," writes Mrs. Phebe Cherley, of Peterson, Ia., "and a lame back pained me so I could not dress myself, but Electric Bitters wholly cured me, and, although 73 years old, I now am able to do all my housework." It overcomes constipation, improves appetite, gives perfect health. Only 50c at Grover's drug store.

Mr. Murphy Takes an Icy Bath.

Mr. Hermann D. Murphy is about equally at home on water, ice or land, and an occasional plunge into the water has no more effect in dampening his ardor than would a mis-step on dry land. Last Sunday he was flying over the ice on Mystic Lake with his Norwegian skate-sail at the upper end of the lake, near Libby's Island, when he ran upon thin ice in the narrow gut which leads into Bacon's Pond, and went in up to his neck. The shores were sloping and near at hand, and the skater made his way to safety without assistance from any of the assembled delegation.

About the same time a young man named Harold Spurr of Arlington left the well-worn track over which skaters made their way from the main part of the upper pond to the smaller pond on which the Winchester Boat Club house faces, and was through thin ice in a twinkling. A young man was skating near him, but whose name could not be learned, made his way close to the edge of the opening, stuck out a polo stick, and thus aided Spurr ashore.

All day long there were friendly hockey games in one part of the lake or another, and about the players knots of spectators stood and watched till the chill north wind made it seem wise to bestir the muscles and put the blood again into circulation.

A Tiny Newsy Publication.

Lloyd, son of the well known Boston banker, George A. Fernald, is eleven years old. In partnership with Julius Hovey, who is 13 years old, he has for nearly a year published the Winchester Reporter, a tiny yet newsy, publication that makes its appearance each Saturday unless dearth of news or a broken press or pied type prevents. Fernald & Hovey are enthusiastic regarding their newspaper which is about the size of a small handkerchief.

The Reporter is essentially a society paper, yet it has the knack of covering about all the important news happening in Winchester, where it is published in Mr. Fernald's residence. The press is a small affair. Lloyd usually feeds the paper into it, and Julius operates the lever that gives pressure for an impression. The ordinary edition is 100 copies, nearly all of which are sold at 2 cents each. When the Reporter first made its appearance it was printed on a $1.50 typewriter, but the slow process was too tiresome for the energetic boys, and the diminutive press was purchased and installed.—[Boston Herald.

A Veteran Conductor.

Padilla Beard of Stoneham, a veteran Boston & Maine passenger conductor and well known to many in Winchester, was 81 years old last Sunday. He retired from active service some years ago, after more than 30 years' duty. Mr. Beard was born in Wilmington, and early in life was a stage driver between North Reading and Boston. Later he owned a stage route between Stoneham and Melrose Highlands, and when the Boston & Lowell railroad built the Stoneham branch he was employed as a conductor. Mr. Beard is in fairly good health. A son, Willis, is a passenger conductor on the southern division of the Boston & Maine.

No Such Ruling, Says Congressman McCall.

The third assistant postmaster general recently made a ruling it is said which if adhered to will cripple many suburban papers and affect all seriously. It is to the effect that subscriptions to any publication, entered as second class matter, must be discontinued when the time, for which they are paid in advance, has expired. Any violation of this order will deprive the publisher of his pound rate.

The Woburn News wrote to Congressman McCall protesting against this ruling which would prove of great hardship to all publishers of suburban newspapers. In reply Mr. McCall wrote:

"In reply to your favor I would say that I have just received a notice from the Post Office Department denying that there has been any general ruling that subscriptions must be paid in advance. I am very glad to send you this word."

The Care of the Hands in Cold Weather.

Any extreme temperature, or either very hot or very cold water, is not good for the hands. Warm water is more cleansing than cold water. A dozen drops of the tincture of benzoin added to a basin of warm water is beneficial to the hands. Castile or one of the fine toilet soaps should be used. A generous lather should be made and the hands thoroughly rubbed with it. A rubber flesh brush is a great comfort. A little bran or oatmeal if put in the water has a softening effect, and makes the skin velvety and pliable. Almond meal is also excellent for this purpose. Care in drying the hands is essential to their good condition, especially in winter. A soft towel will gather up all the moisture and should be used in between the fingers of each hand so that every part may be thoroughly dried. After drying the hands it is a good plan to rub in a little cold cream or almond oil, after which, if they are particularly sensitive powder may be dusted over them.—December Ladies' Home Journal.

Wm. C. Bates, superintendent of the Fall River public schools says: Indirectly, the kindergartens are having beneficent influence upon all grades of the common schools. The kindergarten spirit is abroad; it is the spirit that would know the child as he is; that would lead him on from step to step along the lines of his natural development; that would give him power to do; that would educate his heart as well as his hands and his head. This spirit now has its most complete manifestations in the kindergarten itself and in the primary grades that are most closely connected with the kindergarten.

EXCITEMENT

If your nerves are beyond control Dr. Greene's Nervura is the help you need.

Hysteria doesn't kill. It is close to insanity, but seldom reaches it. Hysterical attacks are followed by melancholy. Excitement turns to depression as the tension relaxes. How do you expect to get relief? Does your doctor laugh at you? Does he tell you that "hysteria needs an audience," implying that you work up the attack for effect? Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is the positive relief and cure for this frightful condition. It has done wonders for many women so afflicted.

Mrs. Nettie Richards Berry, So. Livermore, Me., says:

"For two years I had hysterics and was fearfully nervous. I was in a terrible condition. My limbs were cold all the time. I could not sleep nights and had no appetite. My nerves were in a frightful state, and I was very weak. I tried medicines and doctors, but they did me no good.

"One day a friend wished me to try Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. I did so, and after taking this wonderful medicine for a short time I was in perfect health. I think Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is splendid, and would advise everybody to try it."

Get help where your trouble is understood. Dr. Greene is a specialist in nervous troubles. His Nervura is their sovereign cure. Try to believe this, for it will save you from misery. Write to the doctor or call for free counsel at 34 Temple Place, Boston, Mass. Don't wait. Write to-day.

The Local Paper.

Prices of commodities of nearly all kinds are higher than they have been for years, and the purchasing power of a dollar is therefore less.

The cost of paper, type, machinery and everything entering into the making of a newspaper is greater today than five or even two years ago, and the publisher who prints a country weekly of the usual size and containing a large amount of home news, prints it at cost and considering the numerous incidental expenses even below cost, so far as the subscripition price is concerned.

The "National Printer-Journalist" says:

"Any good local weekly paper that devotes itself industriously and effectively to advertising all local interests and giving all the local news is worth $2 a year and ought to receive this amount, with sincere thanks thrown in, from every loyal subscriber. Any intelligent citizen ought to recognize not only the value to a community of a good local paper but also the fact that the circulation must of necessity be limited, while the gathering and printing of the news costs almost as much for 2,000 as for 40,000 copies. It is not right to expect a local paper to compete in price with a great metropolitan weekly that uses its matter from its daily edition and has a circulation of 50,000 to 100,000."

Boston Carpet Consolidation.

It turns out that the hint given in these columns lately, in respect to a rumored consolidation of the great carpet interests of Boston, was well founded.

It is now learned that the old and large firm at present styled the John H. Pray & Sons Company, which has been doing business at the Hub for well nigh 100 years, has latterly acquired the business of that other strong carpet firm known as Joel Goldthwait & Co., and by so doing consolidates in one establishment practically all the carpet business of the New England metropolis.

The Pray Company has long occupied the front rank as regards the extent of its sales of both foreign and domestic floor coverings, and henceforth, as a result of the new consolidation, its supremacy will be even greater.

Our correspondent, who sends us this information, called at the extersive Pray store, 646 to 658 Washington street, opposite Boylston street, and inquired what effect, if any, the consolidation would have upon the purchasing public.

"A beneficial one in all respects," was the reply. "Many economies will be made possible through the consolidation, the result being that our assortment of patterns will be wider, and prices somewhat lower, than has hitherto been possible. The gathering of practically the entire carpet business of New England into the Pray hands will prove of unquestioned advantage to every carpet purchaser."

Has No Pet Scheme.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I believe that the more the kindergarten school question is looked into by the citizens the more firmly they will be convinced that the matter should be settled with a due regard to the facts in the case, and not merely according to sentiment or theory. It is not believed the school committee has any pet scheme of its own to advance, but on this subject, as on all others, seeks only what is for the best interests of the entire school system.

Ice Yachting Near Home.

Winchester is furnishing royal iceboating sport, the upper Mystic lake being the scene of interesting brushes almost daily. Saturday during the heavy northwester a half-dozen boats were on the lake, and they attained high speed. The upper Mystic is a trifle less than a mile in length, and for that distance along its easterly shore and close at hand the main line of the southern division of the B. & M. is in plain view. Passenger trains, many of them running on express schedule, pass frequently, and the skippers of the iceboats have learned to regard the trains as the best possible pacemakers. On many occasions the iceboats have outstripped the express locomotives.

Lyman Sise of Medford owns one of the most up-to-date boats on the lake. It is very lightly built, and carries a square foot of sail for every pound it weighs. The construction is rendered rigid by a system of trusses and braces. Charles P. Price, superintendent of the Fells reservation, owns a very swift boat, Leonard Tufts has another crack boat, which is certain to make a good showing during the season. A number of others are being built, and it is proposed to hold a series of races for the lake championship.

The Winchester Boat Club members are much interested in iceboating, and several new boats will be placed in commission within a few days. At least 25 local skaters have equipped themselves with sails, and are becoming quite proficient in handling them, after the manner of Norwegians.—[Boston Herald.

A Former Resident Passes Away.

Funeral services were held at the Congregational church Wednesday at 1.30 o'clock over the remains of Mr. Elmore Johnson a former resident of Winchester, and at the time of his decease living in Topsfield. He was cousin to Mr. Warren Johnson and previous to 1860 left Winchester and went to Burlington, Vt. He was a carpenter and builder by trade and many of the stately older houses in Winchester today were built by him, notably the Mason house on Hillside avenue, the Harrison Parker house, since moved onto the parkway, the Sanborn house on Church street, the Wyman and Washington schoolhouses, the Congregational parsonage, etc. For many years he was the leading builder in Burlington, moving from there about four or five years ago to Topsfield. He was about 75 years of age and is survived by a widow. The interment was in Wildwood.

WON'T LET MUD LEAK.

Improvement In Dredging Shovels Which Will Be Welcomed.

The shovels ordinarily used in connection with dredging and ditching machines open at the bottom and for that reason invariably leak. A considerable loss of the shovel load is occasioned in traversing the distance from the point of excavation to the point of discharge. A new form of shovel which when working in water will not spill any portion of its load until the dumping point is reached is the invention of Mr. Hiram Head of Helena, Mon.

Mr. Head's shovel, says The Scientific American, is in the form of a can, open at its upper end and closed at all of its sides. The shovel is pivoted on the dredge beam by a pin, braces being employed to strengthen the pin and the beam. At the upper side of the dredge beam a bracket is secured, comprising two parallel cheek pieces, between which a spring pressed dog is pivoted. The dog serves to engage the upper edge of the shovel, holding it in the position shown in our illustration. The dog is operated by a tripping mechanism, comprising a rod, the lower end of which extends below the beam and which is joined to an arm pivoted on the underside of the beam. By pressing upon this second arm the rod is raised, the dog lifted and the bucket allowed to tilt into its dumping position.

The beam with the shovel attached is operated in the usual manner. At the dumping point a post is located, upon which the beam is lowered, so that the tripping arm beneath the beam may be pressed upwardly to release the dog and to permit the shovel to drop. The load when once in the shovel cannot possibly leak out and can be discharged only by the releasing dog.

New Way to Glaze Crockery.

In view of the agitation regarding the use of poisonous white lead glazing in the crockery industry, it is interesting to note that the Rorstrand Porcelain factory in Sweden and a factory in Dresden, Germany, have solved this important technical problem by mixing the white lead in the glazing with certain substances converting the lead into an insoluble and thus harmless silicate of lead.

Limnology, a New Science.

At a recent meeting of the American Microscopical society a commission was appointed to study the limnology of North America. Limnology, by the way, is the study of lakes, and the newly appointed limnological commission aims to institute an exhaustive biological and physical investigation of the American lakes on the plan already carried out with such success in Switzerland.

New Work on Boulevards and Parks.

According to Gov. Crane's recommendation there will be no new park or boulevard work undertaken this year. He is right when he insists that the municipalities in the Metropolitan District begin to reimburse the State for its expenditures before taking up new work. This means a postponement of the Woburn - Winchester boulevard and that from the Fells to the Charles river, besides other contemplated work.

Chief Has Added to His Record.

As Chief of Police McIntosh looks back on his work of last year he must certainly feel imbued with a certain amount pride in that he has done good work and added to his record as the head of one of the best police departments of any of the towns in this part of the State. Winchester has been comparatively free from lawbreakers, and those who have attempted to ply their vocations here have found the Chief and his officers hard men to circumvent. The result has been that the town has been found a difficult field to work in.

Public Has to Pay in the End.

Over in Wakefield some of the citizens seem to think that because the Boston & Northern Street Railway Company has asked for permission to lay double tracks on Main street it should be compelled to widen that street at a cost of $10,000 or more. As the double tracks are to be alike beneficial to the public and railroad, there should not be too much insistence in this matter. In cases of this kind the fact is generally lost sight of that in the end the public has to pay for such exactions in poor cars and indifferent service.

Kept Public Informed on Wedge Pond Way.

The Committee on the street to Wedge Pond have completed the task assigned them, and a summary of their work will appear in the Town Reports. The committee throughout the entire series of meetings have taken the public into their confidence by publishing in the STAR the business transacted from time to time so that all have been informed at every point. There is nothing that the citizens like better in committees of this kind or in fact all town departments, than to be kept posted on what is taking place. The public is appreciative of the work of committees when it is given an opportunity to know what they are doing, and so it will be found of the work of this Committee on the street to Wedge Pond. The street has been built, the adjoining land greatly improved and no matter what may be the legal status of this street, all who have visited the locality must admit that a great improvement has taken place over the old conditions.

Question of Grade Crossings.

That portion of the Governor's message relating to abolishing grade crossings is of interest to Winchester as here is situated one of the most dangerous crossings in the State. The Governor recommends an appropriation by the Legislature of $5,000,000 to be spent $500,000 annually principally on the crossings used by the electric cars. He also suggests that the electric companies pay a portion of the expense, and also that a commission determine what crossings shall be abolished first. According to this, it will not be many years before this town will know just what form the abolition of the crossing will take. Already the State has paid as its proportion of the cost, $7,500,000, and that is only 20 per cent. of the whole. In a few years, in one way or another, the people have paid about $40,000,000 in these great improvements. The State pays 20 per cent., the local community 10 per cent. and the company pays 65 per cent. Of course the whole sum comes out of the pockets of the people in the end. Some of it is paid in taxes, some in betterments and some of it in rates of fare and freight on the lines.

Newsy Paragraphs.

Miss Blanche M. Plummer and Miss Ida M. Hutchings leave Saturday for North Londonderry, N. H., where they will pass a week as guests of Miss Hutchings' aunt, Mrs. Dr. Wm. Richardson.

Mr. Andrew Carnegie has given $25,000 to Melrose for a public library. The conditions are that Melrose shall find a site for the new building and appropriate $2500 yearly for its support.

It is reported that new vestibule cars will make their appearance on the Arlington-Winchester electric road by the end of the month. There is now said to be sufficient power to propel the large eight-wheelers, which was not the case a month ago. Improvements have been made at the power station.

The vacancy in the Wyman school caused by the resignation of Miss Kimball has been filled by the appointment of Miss Alice J. Busiere, a graduate of the Bridgewater Normal school. She came to Winchester from Taunton.

Dr. Henry A. Reynolds, the originator of the "Red Ribbon" temperance crusade of 1876, is now a resident of Boston. He is in good health.

Mr. Arthur W. Hill will please accept the regards of the STAR for a copy of the Ingleside Almanack. The book is handsome, useful and entertaining.

The large ad. on second page headed "For Investment" is worth the careful reading of all persons who have money to invest, that will be certain to receive good returns. The land offered is some of the best in Winchester on the most beautiful part of Highland avenue, where excellent families are making their homes at the present time. The advertisment gives all the particulars.

A Sunday car for Medford leaves the square at 8.15 a. m.

The series of stormy Sundays was broken last Sunday by one of the most perfect days of the winter—cold and bracing.

The annual meeting of the parish Society of the Congregational church takes place Monday evening.

The Winchester Savings Bank is now open every afternoon also Saturday evening for business. The change is much appreciated.

It is never too cold to play golf. Snow may prevent playing, but it is believed if it was firm enough to support the weight of a player the game would go on merrily. Last Saturday afternoon a number of players were on the links, and the weather was exceedingly cold, too. All things considered good scores were made.

Col. N. A. Richardson drives a pretty frisky horse, but he knows the animal like a book and succeeds in keeping the spirits of the animal down pretty well by a spin to Cambridge or Lexington or some other distant point.

The engagement is announced of Miss Elsie Norman of Brooklyn, N. Y., formerly of this town, to Mr. Bert Newton of that city.

Mrs. Viola Richardson went on to New York this week to attend the funeral of a daughter of Mrs. Zanoni Richardson—daughter-in-law of Col. N. A. Richardson and widow of Mr. Zanoni Richardson.

In the old waiting room of the Boston & Maine Railroad in Boston is the private postoffice of this great system. A fair idea of the amount of business done here is seen from the fact that three clerks are constantly employed in handling the incoming and outgoing official mails which are entrusted to the conductors. Probably more mail passes through this office than in the Winchester office.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Gage of Clematis street had their first born confirmed at the Church of the Epiphany last Sunday.

The Arlington-Winchester electrics made pretty good time Tuesday during the snow storm. This was in striking contrast to the lie-down-and-die policy of the previous superintendent whenever it showed signs of snow.

A very profitable hour was spent one afternoon this week in listening to the experiences of the veteran Mr. John Hemingway as a ship carpenter, common seaman and mate on various sailing craft when he was a boy. Put into book form the yarns, as he told them, would prove interesting and exciting. He has seen troublesome times on the seas, as a result of storms and mutiny, but none of them, he says, would compare with a number of stirring incidents connected with his crusade against liquor dealers in Woburn and Winchester, particularly at the time when he was nearly murdered.

At the time of discovery of a fire in Stoneham last Saturday, Mr. W. F. Edmands, employed by the Winchester Laundry, gave timely assistance in removing the goods from the burning house.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Russell of Mt. Pleasant street gave a house party to about 200 friends last Saturday evening. As a society event it was the largest of the local season in town, and was most enjoyable in every particular.

Mr. George H. Hicks of Prince avenue won the handicap candlepin championship at the Boston Athletic Association, by defeating Dr. Abbott last Saturday evening. It was a very interesting game, both gentlemen getting high scores, Mr. Hicks being 478 and Dr. Abbott's being 470.

The Highland Bethany Y. P. S. C. E. held a special business meeting last Friday evening for the election of officers. The new officers for the next six months are as follows: President, Bernard Berry; Vice-president, Sidney Snow; Corresponding Secretary, Viola McClellan; Recording Secretary, Bessie Kelley; Treasurer, Clyde Bell. The chairmen are as follows: Lookout committee—Miss Delia Gurney; Prayer meeting—Amos Mills; Social—Mrs. Wetherbee; Missionary—Evelyn Parker; Flower—Ethel Buckley.

Miss Elizabeth McDonald is visiting friends in Roslindale.

Mr. Alvah Bates and family of Washington street, Highlands, will move to the center.

The Misses Stone have returned to their school in Baltimore, Md.

Newsy Paragraphs.

A lady who lost a gold watch, advertised the fact in the last issue of the STAR. Before it was hardly dark Friday evening, or three hours after the paper was issued, Mr. Bernard J. Rogers, had placed the watch in the lady's hand. "Barney" is not only honest, but he is an exceedingly all-round good fellow. Also the lady who lost a fur collar had it returned to her Saturday evening. Incidently, this shows that the STAR is a good advertising medium.

Hon. A. B. Coffin has improved to the extent that the trained nurse has been dispensed with. Although able to be up, he is yet quite weak, but is progressing toward health as rapidly as could be expected.

Waterfield Lodge, I. O. O. F., visited Crystal Fount Lodge of Woburn Monday evening to witness the installation of officers. About 25 members attended.

This is the time of year when the town departments are in a state of innocuous desuetude, as ex-president Cleveland would say.

Mr. Henry C. Miller has gone to California, where he has large interests.

The engagement is announced of Miss Annie E. Stinson and Mr. Roland E. Simonds.

There is talk on the part of a number of gentlemen in Winchester of building a house boat on the Upper Lake. As the plans are formulated the craft will be about 30 feet long, 10 feet wide and of the flatboat type. Nearly its entire length will be covered by a house, and this will contain accommodations ample for at least six people. If plans fail not the boat will be tested on the lake next summer and after that will be taken to Hull and other places along the coast. [Medford Mercury.

In speaking of the license vote in Woburn, the Journal of that city says: "It took only 4 mismarks in each Ward to accomplish the sad result. That there were many more than four has been demonstrated by investigation. Woburn is in reality a No License city, but purely by mistake in marking ballots on Dec. 10, went wrong this year. Mark this: Woburn is just as sure to go No next December as she is to vote."

FOR INVESTMENT.

There is no investment which is more satisfactory than a good building lot acquired at a price which will assure the purchaser of an immediate appreciation in value, the result of first-class development. I am able to offer such an opportunity through the purchase, by Mr. A. Wilbert Starratt, of what was formerly known as the Bacon Estate, off Highland Avenue in Winchester. This property consists of 264,000 sq. ft. of land situated on a side hill with a Southerly and Westerly exposure and protected on the North and East by a precipitous cliff. The tract is about seven minutes walk from the centre of the Town and four minutes from the electrics; it is adjacent to the Middlesex Fells and a stone's throw from the Mystic Valley Driveway, the main entrance to the Fells. The development is being carried out under the direction of Ernest W. Bowditch, the well known landscape architect, and under his supervision there is now, in the process of construction, a forty foot macadam roadway, with paved gutters, loam spaces and gravel sidewalks, which has been laid out in such a manner as to preserve the many large shade trees on the place. Sewer, water and gas pipes are laid through the entire roadway. There are 21 lots varying in size from 7,500 to 10,000 sq. ft. and of this number 12 have already been sold, upon which there have been already built, or are now in the process of construction, altogether ten houses which comply with suitable restrictions, and are a distinct benefit to the whole development. The nine lots now in my hands for sale are offered at a remarkably reasonable figure which cannot but prove attractive to the home seeker or investor.

When the special session of the Legislature was prorogued we all regretted that the dean of the House—S. W. Twombly of Winchester—was not to be with us another year. I have used this remedy in my family for the past seven years and have never known it to fail," says James Prendergast, merchant, Annato Bay, Jamaica, West India Islands. The pains in the chest indicated an approaching attack of pneumonia which in this instance was undoubtedly warded off by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. A Little Experience In Bed Warming Well Burnt In.

A bright Winchester boy, who is at home from school for the holidays and is fond of trying new experiments, tested a new electric bed-warmer last Saturday night with disastrous results to the apparatus, also to his bed clothes and hair mattress, although he added somewhat to his knowledge of the amount of heat which can be obtained from a small amount of electric energy when properly covered up and protected from the air.

Our would-be-Franklin attached an electric wire to his room fixture which supplied light and consequently a small amount of heat to a movable electric bulb at the end of the wire. As it was a cold night, the nameless experimenter tested his apparatus by putting the built into the bed and covering it well with the bed clothes while he took his Saturday night bath. On his return to his room he discovered an overpowering smell of burnt blankets and hair and upon uncovering his bed he found a hole two feet in diameter burnt downward into the hair mattress and up through blankets, comforter and spread. An application of the cold water cure soon settled the smouldering fire but did not put out the smell which forcibly reminded the youngster as well as the whole household, that all new things are not necessarily improvements simply because they are new. The glass bulb was heated to such a degree that the glass melted on one side and collapsed, settling inward, owing to the vacuum which exists in electric bulbs. Strange to say the bulb did not break or crack and now the young glow-worm has it as a trophy to remind him of his defeat as an expert electric bed warmer. It is needless to say that he slept in another, unwarmed bed that cold night and used a kerosene lamp during the remainder of his visit when retiring for the night. He now owns up to a great respect for the unknown dormant possibilities for good or evil stored up in electricity and is willing to advise other boys to warm their bed on extra cold nights by the old-fashioned hot flat iron method rather than to set fire to them by trying electric heating.

Town in Darkness.

Wednesday afternoon Mr. Larivee, who owns a lot of land on Main street near the Woburn line, gave permission to two men to cut down a tree close to the street line. Not understanding the nature of the task before them, of preventing the tree from falling into the street, they set to work with the result that the tree did fall into the street, completely wrecking the wires. Three poles came down with a crash and the result was a tangle of wires, included in which was the feed wire of the Woburn electric road. The current was shut off at the power station, and Winchester was in darkness until nearly six o'clock when temporary connection was made by a gang of linemen. Men guarded the wires throughout the night and Thursday forenoon the damage was repaired.

The business men in the centre suffered great inconvenience until the lights were finally turned on.

In addition to a husband she leaves one daughter and they have the sympathy of all.

School Committeeman.

It having been annouuced that Mr. S. S. Symmes would in all probability not be a candidadte for the School Committee this year, there is some speculation as to who will be his successor. This gentleman has done long and honorable service on the Board and no doubt now feels as if some other man should assume the responsible position. Residents at the Highlands are particularly friendly to Mr. Symmes for the part he took some years ago in acquiescing in the desires of the people in that section in preventing the closing of the Washington school on Cross street as had been recommended by the then Supt. of Schools. It may be mentioned, that since that important meeting took place to prevent the closing of that one room school house, a four-room building has been erected and every room occupied at the present time, with the prospect of a doubling up in the present number of children during the next five years. It is for this action on the part of Mr. Symmes, that he has the esteem of the residents of the Highlands.

As successor to Mr. Symmes there has been mentioned particularly Edgar J. Rich, Esq. This gentleman, we are informed, does not care to accept a position on the Board, particularly this year, for the reason that he cannot give the necessary time to the duties of the office. Two other names mentioned are Mr. Allen Chamberlain and Mr. C. E. L. Wingate. Whether the former could be induced to accept of a nomination is a question that the STAR cannot solve. He possesses all the requirements for this responsible position and would make a first class committeeman. Mr. Wingate was spoken of as a likely man a year ago, but for some reason, apparently, his name did not come before the caucus. Mr. Wingate takes a deep interest in the Schools of Winchester and in a great measure has made a careful study of the whole system, and we can state from personal knowledge that he is progressive, and yet conservative and that his aim, if elected, would be to give to the town the best schools to be found in the State.

We hear it intimated that an attempt will be made by some ardent supporters of the kindergarten schools to bring about the defeat of Dr. Blaisdell whose term will expire in March. Any movement of this kind will result in defeat at the caucus for the reason that a large majority of the citizens recognize the fact that the town has an exceedingly able Board, and also that they are not hostile to kindergarten schools but simply striving to keep the number of schools and expenses down to the actual requirements of the town.

He is a Good Friend.

It is a mighty good thing to have "Tom" Lawson, the Copper King and multi-millionaire, for a friend. Although not a resident, as he once came pretty near being, he loves Winchester, and Winchester loves him. This last Christmas he remembered the poor of the town in princely style, as he has on many former Christmases. According to the STAR he sent here and had distributed 150 boxes, each weighing 150 pounds, of turkeys and other choice materials for Christmas dinners. That would be over 11 tons—a big story, but just about the size of Tom's heart. His wife too is a warm friend of our town and is always doing something noble and generous for it. Well, she is able to. They say that "Tom" not long ago invested property for the sole use and control of his wife the annual income of which is $65,000! May both of them live long and be happy. Echoes.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Now let reports of all special committees and matters referred to boards calling for reports be made at the annual meeting. Let them be called for at least.

A town meeting certainly has the right to appoint a committee of investigation, when no money is asked for without an article in the warrant. If the "Mayor" wanted the committee announced why did'nt he ask for it? An instruction to an elected board has only the force of a sense of the meeting. In many cases they act as public officials representing the legislature and not as agents of the town. Again, they take an oath of office to act according to their best judgment, etc., and they have no right to pay any attention to such votes even when acting as agents of the town unless they agree with their sense of duty.

Why doesn't the Tree Warden set out some maple sugar trees and make his department in part self sustaining?

The Appropriations Committee might consider the following questions: Amending sewer act so that that debt would come outside the debt limit. Discontinuing fire insurance on town property. Having Auditor send out unpaid tax notices. The town buying tax titles at collector's sales. Charging town departments for water used.

"Observations" must have been feeling in good spirits when he wrote last week's column. The "fast" company he has been keeping lately must agree with him.

'Tis said the negro question in this country is a very broad one, but it strikes me that it is a fine one, not being a question of color at all but of crinkly hair and that the first man who invents a process of straightening curly hair will solve the negro question. There's millions in it, as well as fame.

Why don't some of the numerous clubs in this town get some arc lights at the ponds for night skating? Are they not willing to do the first thing for the general public?

We ought to appoint a committee on town improvement to report from time to time with suggestions for action. There is much that might be done at small or no expense to improve our town if somebody would take the initiative, and then there are more important and expensive matters but where the net results would be on the right side.

'Tis said the reason the Educational Ass'n hold no meetings is because it is so well satisfied with the work of the present School Committee.

We have not at any time, nor do we now need more than three kindergartens and perhaps two would be sufficient. Citizens generally are just finding out what some have known for sometime, that this department has been very extravagant from every point of view and comparison, and that other schools have been neglected while the kindergartens have been pushed ahead in every way.

The appropriations committee ought to make a fuller report than in the past, giving reasons as well as figures, so that the town meeting may have it in print for its guidance instead of the chairman simply giving the reasons from the floor.

Whatever the caucus may be, the town meeting bids fair to be so interesting and lively that there should be a big registration before it as none but voters will be allowed in the meeting, so if you desire to take part see that your name is on the voting list in time.

The Water Registrar is now sending out bills for the first half of the year and the amount agrees with the estimate of the special committee on reduction of water rates which recommendations the annual meeting of last year adopted. The receipts for the year will be ample to take care of maintenance and interest on the water bonds and that is all water rates should pay.

Blown to Atoms.

The old idea that the body sometimes needs a powerful, drastic, purgative pill has been exploded; for Dr. King's New Life Pills, which are perfectly harmless, gently stimulate liver and bowels to expel poisonous matter, cleanse the system and absolutely cure constipation and sick headache. Only 25c at Grover's drug store.

REMARKABLE CURE OF CROUP.

A Little Boy's Life Saved.

I have a few words to say regarding Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It saved my little boy's life and I feel that I cannot praise it enough. I bought a bottle of it from A. E. Steere of Goodwin, S. D., and when I got home with it the poor baby could hardly breathe. I gave the medicine as directed every ten minutes until he "threw up" and then I thought sure he was going to choke to death. We had to pull the phlegm out of his mouth in great long strings. I am positive that if I had not got that bottle of cough medicine, my boy would not be on earth today.—JOEL DEMONT, Inwood, Iowa. For sale by Young & Brown, druggists.

A New Year's Vaudeville—A Unique Entertainment.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Hicks of Prince avenue entertained in a charming and unique manner last Friday evening, the party being given especially in honor of some of the number who were soon going away.

The guests were bidden to a New Year's vaudeville and the "continuous performance" idea was the scheme of the evening each one present contributing to the enjoyment of all.

The variety, originality and sociability thus developed were delightful, causing the late hours to come all too quickly.

Among the many "acts" were a book party, given by a group of five, my lady's work basket, a steeplechase, the Hillcrest Club, original queries concerning guests, telegrams, a most enjoyable reading by one of the gentlemen, and a novel musical number, the latter arranged by the hostess and appropriately named "The Human Attachment" or the "Ghost Choir."

A choice spread was served, the table decorations being asparagus fern and violets, the latter designed for the ladies present.

Every member of the congregation should come to the parish meeting next Tuesday evening. Voters may be men or women of 21 years or over, who have been resident six months. The following is one of the articles in the warrant calling the meeting:

To consider and act upon the matter of new buildings for church and parish work; to determine whether the parish will proceed to the construction thereof or any part thereof; to determine the limit of expense to be incurred in such work and methods of procuring funds therefor; to appoint a committee to procure and submit plans for such church or parish buildings; and to determine the amount to be expended by such committee; and generally to do, transact and determine any matter or thing deemed expedient in relation to the subject matter thereof.

Elmore Johnson, a contracting builder well known to the older residents of Woburn, was buried at Winchester Wednesday.

Observations.

Rev. John W. Suter, scholarly in his profession, instructive in his sermons, urbane in his intercourse with society, at all times pleasant and polished, but a little over wrought on the kindergarten subject. As most men would like to have been, he was born with a silver spoon in his mouth.

Abijah Thompson, with an inborn love for historical facts, who has collected a vast amount of information to be utilized when the full history of Winchester shall be written and the biography of her citizens compiled, is a genial gentleman of marked personality; in his veins flows the blood of an eminent ancestry, with a record of patriotism and fidelity ever to be cherished.

T. W. Lawson, formerly of this town, a free giver with honey drops in his generous heart that never turn into icicles, and sharp as a two edged sword in speculation, the fruits of which he scatters with princely liberality.

I often meet Edwin Ginn driving into Boston behind a pair of fine chestnut beauties, in a comfortable turn-down buggy well protected with fur robes, his head full of business and pockets full of greenbacks. His heart is large and his hand open to give. In his new book palace on Beacon street is gathered the learning of ages, bound in volumes of taste and usefulness, and here assemble school teachers and pupils to find fountains of learning.

Good enough! Gov. Crane's recommendation to abolish some and consolidate others of the many commissions of the State, which, if done, will save an expenditure of money as large as the whole tax levy of the town of Winchester. Stop—he says—spending more money for boulevards and parks until we pay something towards the great outlay now existing.

Last year there was collected $35,000,000 duty on imported sugar, and thereby brought up the cost on all sugar consumed $50,000,000 more, making $85,000,000, all from the pockets of the people, and this when the treasury is plethoric with money which it cannot use without waste. "Alas, alas, is reform too late?"

The public like meat! Swift & Co. sold last year $200,000,000 worth of slaughtered produce, and now ask to have their capital increased from twenty to twenty-five million. Think of the brain and labor required to run this industry.

Last year the people of this country used 1,349,000,000 gallons of spirits, wine and beer. This would have drawn Wedge pond dry three times in the year, and given nineteen gallons and a half to every man, woman and child in the United States.

Sick of life! Over seven thousand people committed suicide in this country last year. What an age of self destruction.

By the report of the Metropolitan Water Board the water used in the district last year was 127 gallons per day for every inhabitant; no one ought to wear dirty linen or go with a dirty face. Probably one-third of this quantity was a complete waste.

Copper down to 12 cents per lb. Now have your wash boilers and tea-kettles new bottomed. Don't stop leaks with putty any longer.

A few days ago a golden pheasant, with long beautiful plumase, came down from the Fells to the farm of N. A. Richardson, wandered about a spell, and then took wing and flew back to its forest home in "Turkey Swamp." I am going to write something about this location, which is not a classic name, but a historic one. The great grandfather of the writer of this article was born in 1720, and when 20 years old (1740) he bought 50 acres of woodland—the real Turkey swamp. It was covered with an immense growth of upland oaks and the swamp full of giant pines, with limbs so thick as to shut out the sunlight by day and the moonlight by night. Beneath these limbs wild turkeys used to come nightly to roost and find shelter from the cold of winter, flying away by day further into the forest to find berries, nuts and other scattered food left upon the bushes in the fall. My great grandfather and other neighbors used to go up to the swamp before daylight and wait for the coming day, when the turkeys began to flap their wings to fly away and they could be seen, when pop went the guns and down fell the game. Each gunner would drop one which be could gather up and take home, some of the turkeys being of great size but poor in flesh. From these adventures the region received the name of Turkey Swamp. This tract of land descended to the heirs of the owner, and was purchased by the Winchester water commission of them in 1881. It now constitutes the northern portion of the South Reservoir, and is all in the Fells reservation. Seventy years ago my grandfather pastured some of this land. On going after his cows one night one was missing. For four days the hunt was kept up, when she was found in the swamp sunk deep in the mud, her neck and head visible. Help was obtained and she was got out alive, but so weak she could not stand, and was left on the ground and fed for two days, when she was driven home. From the higher portion of this land 60 years ago, were taken hundreds of loads of ship timber, which was hauled to Medford and used in ship building, also great pine trees from the swamp, a hundred feet tall, with no limbs for forty feet from the ground, these were hauled to various saw mills and turned into clear board and plank.

Speaking of my great grandfather (not to boast, only to put the matter on record) let me say that he lived at the corner of Washington and Forest streets, and had a home farm of 100 acres, including the region all around the Highland depot, and running up into the Woburn mountain. He also owned 1200 acres of land on the Kennebec river in Maine. In 1760 he was ploughing with oxen upon the west bank of the Aberjona river, Woburn, when he saw a large bear come out of the woods and go down to the river to drink. He left his oxen, and with his goad stick tackled the bear, and with a heavy blow between the ears stunned him, continuing the blows until he finished him up. For many years he had the skin as a trophy of his courage. He died in 1804 with a malignant cancer. So fated, he was fed with a spoon for months, in an opening to his throat under his ear.

The Gypsy Moth Again.

In their annual report the State Board of Agriculture has the following to say of the gypsy moth in this section of the State:

The committee has visited the infested region. At the close of the work on Feb. 1, 1900, no large colonies of the moth were in existence. For two years the moth has been allowed to multiply unchecked, the report says, and the increase has been of a most serious nature. The straggling moths, which might have been found and destroyed in 1900, have multiplied to such an extent that in nearly all of these colonies from Lexington to Lynn large numbers of egg clusters can now be seen. Through Melrose, Medford, Malden and Everett egg masses of the moth are conspicuous. We are led to fear that soon, unless preventative action is taken, scenes of the historic outbreak of 1889-90 will be repeated on an even larger scale.

Nothing is said in the report in regard to Winchester.

It Was a Period this Time.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE STAR:

In the article in last week's STAR on illegal town meetings, I regret that I did not put a period in the middle of the second paragraph, then the good minister who offered prayer at the last town meeting would not have thought that I referred to him as the man who had no right to the floor of the house.

HENRY F. JOHNSON.

Mr. Thomas Quigley lost a valuable horse this week through sickness. The animal was taken sick while at work on the old Bacon place on Highland avenue. Mr. Quigley has made some noticable changes in this property, and at the present time is just completing a cellar there blasted from a solid ledge.

Winchester Unitarian Church

YOUNG PEOPLES' RELIGIOUS UNION.

Mrs. Pleasantine C. Wilson spoke before the Young Peoples' Religious Union last Sunday evening on the subject "The Old Year's Last Will and Testament." She spoke of the large sums of money that had been left to colleges and other institutions of learning during the past year, and said in just the way that money should be used to best advantage, so ought whatever of good had been instilled into one's mind during the year just gone to be used to one's best advantage. She referred to the good work that had been done by the various clubs of the Unitarian Church and said that all these things should help to make a fine foundation for future work. Her talk was a very practical one and should help everyone who heard it. Mr. George Spurr was the leader of the meeting, and Miss Anne F. Witherell was in charge of the music.

Sunday evening, Jan. 19, Mr. T. G. Stanton is to speak and will take for his subject, "The Ascent of Vesuvius, with Digressions." Miss Sophia Wilson will be the leader of the meeting, and the music will be in charge of Miss Bertha L. Russell.

All are cordially invited to these meetings.

Help... Nature

Babies and children need proper food, rarely ever medicine. If they do not thrive on their food something is wrong. They need a little help to get their digestive machinery working properly.

SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL

WITH HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME & SODA

will generally correct this difficulty.

If you will put from one-fourth to half a teaspoonful in baby's bottle three or four times a day you will soon see a marked improvement. For larger children, from half to a teaspoonful, according to age, dissolved in their milk, if you so desire, will very soon show its great nourishing power. If the mother's milk does not nourish the baby, she needs the emulsion. It will show an effect at once both upon mother and child.

50c. and $1.00, all druggists.

SCOTT & BOWNE, Chemists, New York.

A BURNING QUESTION

At this time is: "Are you getting the best out of your coal?" If not, perhaps you are wasting Heat in the cellar which is needed elsewhere. It has been shown that a single foot of naked two-inch pipe carrying high pressure steam all the year round will condense more steam than a dollar's worth of coal will make, and the loss is in proportion for lower pressure and shorter time. Do you wish to stop this loss? If so, now is the time when it can best be done. Perhaps it will cost less than you think. At any rate it will cost you nothing to get figures.

ONCE IS ENOUGH TO SEE

Gustave Dore's portrait of Dante is worth seeing—once. But once is enough. Some such look you notice on the faces of those who have suffered, and still suffer, much physical pain; people subject to rheumatism, gout, neuralgia, periodic headache, lumbago, or pain from some old lesion. This pain-habit puts its marks on them, as the custom of handling ropes crooks a sailor's fingers; or as too much riding of a bicycle stamps a worried expression on certain faces. No wonder people said of the Italian poet as he passed along, "There goes

THE MAN WHO NEVER LAUGHS."

The complaints above named all yield to the action of Benson's Porous Plasters, and quickly too. Not only those, but colds and coughs, kidney and liver affections, all congestions and muscular strains, diseases of the chest, asthma and all ailments which are open to external treatment. It is frequently said that Benson's Plaster is Pain's Master. It cures when others are not even able to relieve. For thirty years the leading external remedy. The old-style plasters, as well as salves, liniments, oils, etc., have little or no efficacy as compared with it. Use it. Trust it. Keep it in the house. Ask for Benson's Plaster; take no other. ORION KELLEY, D.D.S.,
DENTAL OFFICE,
WHITE'S BUILDING, WINCHESTER
Office Hours: 8-12 and 2-5.

Dr. A. Phillips of California, who has invented an electric bathrobe, claims that it is more efficacious than either the Turkish or Russian bath and that the electric current which passes through the body not only imparts a healthy glow to the skin, but cleanses the pores more thoroughly. The bather, he says, is strengthened.

The bathrobe consists of a heavy corded quilt six feet long and wide enough to enwrap the bather. This is filled with 300 feet of German silver wire, which is attached to a coil in a controller. The controller in turn is connected with an ordinary incandescent light.

When a switch is turned, the electric current passes through the blanket, and the latter is heated to a certain temperature. The bather, who is placed in a lying position, is wrapped also in flannel blankets. Profuse perspiration results from the high temperature.

Towing by Electricity.

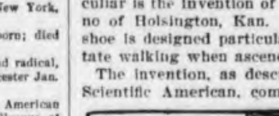

Towing by electricity along the river banks in England is quite a novel application of electric power. No electrical apparatus whatever will be used on the barge itself, which is to be connected by rope with an electrically propelled vehicle on the path working on the overhead trolley system, somewhat like the system recently put in operation on one of the Belgian canals.

Increased Use of Telephones.

The increased use of telephones in our large cities is worthy of note. San Francisco now has one telephone for every sixteen inhabitants, Boston one for every twenty-four, Cleveland one for every twenty-six, Detroit one for every twenty-eight, Cincinnati and Pittsburg one for every thirty-five, New York one for every forty-eight, Chicago one for every sixty-one and Philadelphia one for every ninety-six.

Electricity In Siam.

Bangkok, Siam, has now an electric light plant and a tramway six miles long and is laying a second line of equal length. The service is fairly good. The telephone system, however, is said to be decidedly bad. It is owned by the government, and there are some 200 instruments of German make.

A form of shoe which is rather peculiar is the invention of John E. Fenno of Holsington, Kan. Mr. Fenno's shoe is designed particularly to facilitate walking when ascending hills.

The invention, as described by The Scientific American, comprises a vertically extensible heel portion arranged to elevate the heel so that the sole of the foot will be in a horizontal position in advancing up hill.

The inventor believes that hill climbing by means of his invention will be a far easier matter than formerly, since a more erect and comfortable attitude will be preserved with less fatigue.

The Kress Airship.

The airship upon which Herr Kress has been working for the past twenty-five years was recently tested at Tullerbacher, lower Austria. The idea which the inventor has been trying to evolve is that of a machine to be run upon water until it developed a certain speed, which, when attained, would raise it into the air. This speed was fixed at thirty-five feet a second. In the trial the speed was reached, and the airship rose in the air, but when only a few feet from the surface of the water it was struck by a terrific squall, which turned it over, and it went to the bottom of the lake. Herr Kress had a life belt and so escaped drowning.

Lead Enamel on Iron.

A new and successful process for applying a coating of lead enamel to iron surfaces by mechanical means, invented by M. A. Dormoy, was recently described in La Nature. The articles to be coated, after being heated to redness, are placed in a double hermetically sealed chamber with glazed sides. Each half of the chamber can be worked alternately, and the surplus enamel powder, dusted over the metal by means of a sieve, is removed from the chamber by the draft from a high chimney.

Briquettes From Garbage.

One problem which municipal authorities of all countries have been seeking to solve is how to best dispose of the city's garbage. A process has been discovered in France by which garbage is converted into briquettes. It consists of mincing the refuse from abattoirs, fish markets, etc., straw, paper and the like, and adding tar and naphthalene. The whole mass is then mixed in a kneading apparatus, dried and pressed into briquettes.

1. "And when the day of Pentecost was fully come they were all with one accord in one place." This day, called Pentecost, or "fiftieth day," is mentioned again in chapter xx, 16, and I Cor. xvi, 8, as a day to be remembered and observed and is foreshadowed in Lev. xxiii, 15, 16, in the new meal offering of first fruits fifty days after the sheaf of first fruits, the former representing the resurrection of Christ on the day after the Passover Sabbath and the latter, fifty days later, suggesting the event of our lesson in connection with the beginning of the gathering of the body of Christ from all nations. The leaven in the fiftieth day offering sets forth the sin even in the believer, for leaven is always a type of evil, but it is met by the blood of the sacrifice (Lev. xxiii, 17-21). Christ is the first fruits; we are a kind of first fruits (I Cor. xv, 23; Jas. i, 18). While the disciples of Christ waited for the promise of the Father they continued in prayer and supplication (Acts i, 4, 14), but whether the election of Matthias to fill the place of Judas was of the Lord or of Peter is a question. Some disciples still find it difficult to pray and wait without the transaction of some other business. We may possibly find Paul and not Matthias as the twelfth. See the one accord of the Lord's people in i, 14; ii, 1, 46; iv, 24; v, 12; viii, 6; xv, 25; just seven times; the one accord of Satan's followers in vii, 57; xii, 20; xviii, 12; xix, 29; just four times, the worldwide number, suggesting the whole world in the wicked one hating God (Rev. vii, 1; I John v, 19, R. V.; John xv, 18, 19). The word is only used once elsewhere (Rom. xv, 6), and teaches us with one mind and one mouth to glorify God.

2-4. "They were all filled with the Holy Ghost." When the Holy Spirit came upon Christ at His baptism, He came in the form of a dove, for there was no need of a purifying or consuming fire, but saved sinners need the Spirit as a fire. The saying in Isa. lxiv, 2, "The fire causeth the waters to boil to make Thy name known," taken in connection with the water as the word (Eph. v, 26), and the Spirit as fire helps us to understand why some people who know much of the word of God seem to have no power or go in them. The water is not boiling; they need the fire of the Holy Spirit. The Spirit came as the Lord Jesus said He would and took possession of these redeemed ones, His temples, and at once they began to speak, or rather the Spirit who filled them began to speak through them. See in Acts iv, 31, how when they were filled on another occasion they spake the word of God with boldness. While yet with them in His mortal body Jesus had told them, "It is not ye that speak, but the Spirit of your Father that speaketh in you" (Matt. x, 20). Neither the thoughts nor the words were theirs; but, as in the case of the sweet psalmist of Israel, the Spirit of the Lord spake by them, and His word was in their tongue (II Sam. xxiii, 2?).

5-11. Jews from all nations were gathered at Jerusalem, and quickly they came together and heard these unlearned Galileans talking in the languages of all lands concerning the wonderful works of God. The Holy Spirit had taken full control of these men and was telling through them the things of God and of Christ as Jesus said He would (John xvi, 13-16). He who first gave different languages to people (Gen. xi, 7) can as easily cause others to speak these languages when He sees fit, and, although we do not hear of missionaries in our day acquiring a foreign language in that way, yet I am acquainted with missionaries who, in reliance upon Job xxxvi, 4, were able to speak in a foreign tongue in a very short time. One whom I know passed an examination in six months that would ordinarily require a year of study. The Spirit does not talk of the works of man, nor does He honor man, but He loves to honor God. Like the servant of Abraham when he went to obtain a wife for Isaac, He tells of the only Son and how the Father had given all things into His hand. The messenger of the Lord is not expected to think out his message and tell the people his thoughts, but he is expected to receive it from the Lord and deliver it as the Lord's message (Ex. iv, 12; Jer. i, 7; John xii, 49; I Pet. iv, 11).

12-15. This supernatural occurrence was to these devout Jews wholly incomprehensible, and they tried to explain it by saying that these men were full of new wine, about as silly an explanation as is given by some of the wise and professedly devout men of our day of some of the wonderful works of God. The natural man, however educated or religious he may be, cannot receive the things of the Spirit of God, for they are foolishness unto Him (I Cor. ii, 14), and these devout, religious Jews needed just what Nicodemus needed, a new birth, the gift of God, which many of them a little later received. That the wisdom of this world cannot comprehend or explain the things of God is repeatedly shown in the book of Daniel, a book which some of the wise men seem to wish out of the Bible, perhaps because therein is shown the utter inability of the wisdom of Egypt to explain the things of God. The wise of this world are drunken, but not with wine (Isa. xxix, 9). Consider also Eph. v, 18, and some similarity between a man filled with wine and one filled with the Spirit.

16-21. Peter does not say that this was the fulfillment of that part of Joel's prophecy which he quotes, but that it was a sample of it or, if you prefer, a fulfillment, for one has truly said that prophecy may have a germinant accomplishment while the complete fulfillment is yet in the future. That Joel's prophecy has not yet had its fulfillment (if you will suffer the word) or its final fulfillment is seen in the context, for Israel is still ashamed and humiliated among the nations, and Jerusalem is not holy, for strangers still possess her, and the Lord has not yet returned to dwell in Zion (Joel iii, 17, 21). The judgment of nations (Joel iii, 1, 2), of which our Lord spoke in Matt. xxv, 31-46, has not yet taken place, for He has not yet come in His glory. When He thus comes, we will come with Him to be associated with Him in judging the nations (Col. iii, 4; I Cor. vi, 2; Rev. ii, 26-28). Let us be filled with the Spirit and be His faithful witnesses till He come.

Over-Work Weakens Your Kidneys.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes.

The kidneys are your blood purifiers, they filter out the waste or impurities in the blood.

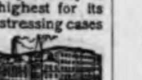

If they are sick or out of order, they fail to do their work.

Pains, aches and rheumatism come from excess of uric acid in the blood, due to neglected kidney trouble.

Kidney trouble causes quick or unsteady heart beats, and makes one feel as though they had heart trouble, because the heart is over-working in pumping thick, kidney-poisoned blood through veins and arteries.

It used to be considered that only urinary troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all constitutional diseases have their beginning in kidney trouble.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

WOMEN ELECTED.

Many Women Chosen to Educational Places in the Western States.

In Colorado, at the recent election, Miss Emma Herey was re-elected County Superintendent of Schools for Arapahoe County (Denver). She received the joint nomination of six political parties, and her candidacy was endorsed by a long list of prominent citizens.

The fitness of women for educational positions seems to be generally conceded in the equal suffrage States. In Colorado, women were elected superintendents of schools for seventeen other counties.

In Utah, Margaret Snow was elected city treasurer of Provo; Harriet L. Brown, city auditor of Ogden; Harriet Smith, city recorder of Logan; Mrs. Ellis Day, city treasurer of Mt. Pleasant; Mrs. Adelphia Teasdale, city recorder, and Mrs. Martha E. Paxman, city treasurer of Nephi (Mrs. Teasdale is a Republican and Mrs. Paxman a Democrat); Luella Hayward, city treasurer of Springville by a large vote; Sarah T. Evans, city recorder of Lehi; Mrs. B. N. Walter, city treasurer of Pleasant Grove; and Alpha Elquist, city treasurer of Grantville.

In both Colorado and Utah, the men outnumber the women; so if women are chosen to these offices, it is because the men want the women to hold them.

The Salt Lake Tribune, the leading Gentile paper of Utah, reports that the election was as quiet as a funeral. The day after election the Tribune said editorially: "The women! We all love them. But we love them a little better this morning than usual. They can always be relied upon to keep the ship of State in the channel."

Do Women Corrupt Politics?

The charge that women have increased the corruption of politics in the equal suffrage States is generally made either by corrupt politicians, who hate the woman vote because they cannot control it, or else in anonymous letters, which of course are entitled to no weight. The opinion of persons who have been prominent opponents of political corruption is worth much more as evidence. Of such a character is the testimony of Mrs. A. J. Peavy, the first woman ever chosen in Colorado as State Superintendent of Public Instruction. The Denver Herold, a paper published in German, said of her administration:

"She not only attended to overseeing the teaching in the schools, but insisted that the business of the boards to which she belonged should be handled in a proper manner. In her school lands commission work, she prevented many a bad swindle by her energetic investigation, and always protected the poor people against the greed of the more powerful. Our readers know that we have never been in favor of women in politics, and are not to-day; nevertheless, if the women of the State can put such officers in the field as Mrs. Peavy, to whom we can point as an example of immovable official integrity, then the women will be most welcome comrades in the fight against the corruption that disgraces our republic."

Mrs. Peavy writes, in answer to certain anonymous accusations against equal suffrage in Colorado:

"Corrupt politicians do not like women in politics. They are afraid of the woman vote. They do not know how to cope with it. Very few good men oppose equal suffrage, for they have nothing to fear and much to hope for, if they desire better conditions. The bitterest enemy of equal suffrage dares not deny that all parties feel they must put up as candidates good men, because they are afraid of the woman vote. If we have honest and clean candidates in all parties, is equal suffrage a failure?"

A Monarchy or a Republic.

The general argument for woman suffrage is the same as the argument for having a republic rather than a monarchy. It is fair and right that those who must obey the laws should have a voice in making them, and that those who are obliged to pay taxes should have a voice as to the amount of the tax and the way in which the tax money should be spent. Roughly stated, the fundamental principle of a republic is this: In deciding what is to be done, where everybody's interests are concerned, we take everybody's opinion, and go according to the wish of the majority. Since we cannot suit everybody, we do what will suit the greatest number. That seems to be, on the whole, the fairest way. A vote is simply a written expression of opinion, written down and put into a ballot box so that it may be counted.

In thus taking a vote to get at the wish of the majority, certain classes of persons are always passed over, whose opinions, for one reason or another, are thought not to be worth counting. In most of our States, these classes are children, aliens, idiots, lunatics, criminals and women. There are good and obvious reasons for making all these exceptions but the last. It is clear that no account ought to be taken of the opinion of children, lunatics or criminals. Is there any equally good reason why no account should be taken of the opinion of women? If not, it would seem that they ought to have a vote, on general principles of fair play.

Alice Stone Blackwell.

This year the names of 5,037 women have been added to the list of new voters in Boston. These, added to the names already on the list, make the total registration of women 15,545. For years the number of women voters in Boston has been steadily growing. When school suffrage was first granted, in 1879, only 934 women voted, and for the first seven years the average was only 940. Since then there has been a large increase of interest. In 1898, 5,201 women voted; 1899, 7,090; in 1900, 9,542; and this year there are 15,545 on the register.

kills, not necessarily suddenly, but SURELY. It preys upon the intellectual powers more than we realize. It consumes the vitality faster than nature can replenish it, and we cannot tell just what moment a temporary or complete aberration of the mind will result. Headache and pain should be promptly removed—but properly. Many pain cures are more harmful than the pain. Beware. If you would be safe, take

The largest cameras are small when compared with one capable of taking a negative 8 feet by 10 feet, or 96 by 120 inches. A camera of this size was required by the Pullman works for taking some special train photographs.

Some details of construction of this huge camera are as follows, according to The Scientific American: The bed is composed of four 2 by 6 inch cherry beams and is about 20 feet long when fully extended. The bellows was made with an outside covering of heavy rubber, each fold being stiffened by a piece of whitewood a quarter of an inch thick. It was then lined inside with heavy black canvas and an additional lining of thick, black, opaque material used. In the construction of this bellows over forty gallons of cement, two bolts of wide rubber cloth and 500 feet of quarter inch whitewood were used. The bellows is divided into four sections, and between each section is a supporting frame mounted on small wheels, which run on a steel track. The back supporting the plate holder is operated as easily as in an ordinary camera.

The instrument has double swing front and back, and at the rear is a small track on which two focusing screens are moved back and forth like a sliding door. The plate holder is of the curtain type. This curtain contains about eighty square feet of ash, three-eighths of an inch thick, and is lined with three thicknesses of lightproof material. Over ten gallons of cement were used in the construction of the curtain, which is mounted on a ball bearing roller. Ball bearing rollers are also mounted at every two inches in the grooves in which the edge of the curtain slides, thereby reducing the friction to almost nothing. The weight of the camera is 900 pounds, and the weight of the plate holder when loaded is 500 pounds, or a total camera weight of 1,400 pounds.

A Tricycle Street Sweeper.

A Boston man, Andrew J. Reynolds, has invented a street sweeper which is decidedly interesting. It is a tricycle, ridden by a man in ordinary fashion, and carries at its rear end a box to hold the sweepings. As the machine progresses a large toothed wheel inside of the box engages a smaller wheel that causes a cylindrical brush to revolve, and the debris loads itself automatically into the receptacle provided. The tricycle may be run by footpower or by motor if desired.

Animals in the United States.

The department of agriculture has recently published an estimate of the animal population of the country. It comprises 13,537,524 horses, about 2,000,000 mules, about 28,000,000 cattle, 16,292,360 milk cows and 81,883,065 sheep. As automobile traction is introduced the number of horses and mules will gradually diminish, and the effect is already evident.

Novel Use For Carrier Pigeons.

Carrier pigeons have been put to novel use by a physician of Rockland, Me. On one occasion he was called to an island some twenty miles distant to attend a patient who was seriously ill. Before he returned to the mainland he gave the family of his patient six homing pigeons which were to be used as messengers to inform him of the patient's condition.

Sand Cure For Dyspepsia.

William Bybee, a pioneer of Jacksonville, Or., has eaten sand for his health the past twenty years and seems to thrive on it. He thinks sand is the only medicine in the world for stomach troubles and is not at all backward about recommending it to his friends who are suffering from dyspepsia or any other affection of the digestive organs.

A High Balloon Ascension.

MM. Siering and Berson of the Meteorological institute of Berlin have lately ascended in a balloon of 8,000 cubic meters capacity to the great height of 33,800 feet. Success was possible only because the aeronauts began to breathe pure oxygen at an elevation of about 24,000 feet.

A Good Recommendation.

"I have noticed the sale on Chamberlain's Stomach & Liver Tablets is almost invariably to those who have once used them," says Mr. J. H. Weber, a prominent druggist of Cascade, Iowa. What better recommendation could any medicine have than for people to call for it when again in need of such a remedy? Try them when you feel dull after eating, when you have a bad taste in your mouth, feel bilious, have no appetite or when troubled with constipation, you are certain to be delighted with the prompt relief which they afford. For sale by Young & Brown, Druggists.

SAFETY STOP FOR AUTOS.

Inventor Hopes to Prevent Machines From Running Away.

As accidents arising from a runaway automobile are not uncommon, an automatic appliance invented by Arthur L. Stevens of New York city for their prevention is of considerable importance. It consists, says the Philadelphia Times, in an arrangement by which in case the occupant is thrown out the power is immediately shut off and which can also be used as an auxiliary means of stopping the carriage when the ordinary controlling gear becomes disarranged.

In an electric vehicle the wires leading from the battery to the motor are conveyed through an automatic switch situated under the seat occupied by the driver. The switch remains inoperative while the driver is seated, but opens the instant he rises. To accomplish this the seat is hinged at the front and provided with a spring at the rear, and to its under surface there is attached a rod which runs to and operates the switch, so that when the driver rises the power is at once automatically interrupted. In a gasoline or steam carriage the rod can be connected with a valve and thus shut off the power supply.

New Way to Use Sun's Heat.

Knut C. Wideen of New York has devised a new method of collecting and utilizing the heat of the sun which he proposes to employ for melting metals and refractory ores. His apparatus consists simply of a large concave mirror composed of a great many small mirrors, all of the latter being so arranged as to reflect and concentrate the solar rays upon a second mirror opposite. This second glass returns the rays and focuses them upon a spot in the center of the first group of mirrors, where is located a smelting furnace. The heat thus produced is so high that iron or gold or silver soon becomes molten.

For Cleaning Ships' Hulls.

The newest idea in the way of a contrivance for cleaning the bottom of ships at sea so as to avoid the expense of docking is the invention of a Florida man. It is a long tube of canvas, with a sort of bag at the end of it. The tube is lowered by ropes over the side of the vessel, and the operator slides down inside of it until he reaches the bag. The bag is weighted at the bottom to hold it down and keep it steady, and near the upper end of it is a glass plate, through which the diver can look and see what he is doing while removing the barnacles and seaweeds which have collected on the hull of the ship.

Mass. Press Club Meeting and Banquet.

The 29th annual meeting and banquet of the Massachusetts Press Association took place at the United States Hotel, Boston, Monday and like its predecessors was a grand success, being attending by nearly a hundred newspaper men and their wives and daughters. This hotel is, perhaps more than any other, the rendezvous of newspaper men. It is here the most courteous attention is given and the menu all that could be desired and at a price that no one would or could find fault with.

After the business meeting at which officers were elected and also delegates to the National Editorial Convention to be held at Hot Springs, Ark., April 15, of which Mr. Theo. P. Wilson was one of the latter, the sumptuous banquet was served.

As guests of the association there were present, Rev. Daniel W. Waldron, Chaplain of the Massachusetts House of Representatives; Charles H. Adams, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee; Charles Follen Adams, creator of Leedle Yawcob Strauss; Rev. A. E. Winship, President of the Republican Editorial Association, Albert Vittum, President of the Suburban Press Association and Hon. George A. Marden. The Apollo Quartet furnished most excellent music, every number meeting with a hearty reception.

In the evening the association attended the performance of "Way Down East" at the Boston Theatre, Manager Lawrence McCarthy having extended a special invitation. This excellent play is the hit of the present season and is filling the house at every performance. The party were quite enthusiastic over the play.

A Deep Mystery.

It is a mystery why women endure backache, headache, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, fainting and dizzy spells when thousands have proved that Electric Bitters will quickly cure such troubles. "I suffered for many years with kidney trouble," writes Mrs. Phebe Cherley, of Peterson, Ia., "and a lame back pained me so I could not dress myself, but Electric Bitters wholly cured me, and, although 73 years old, I now am able to do all my housework." It overcomes constipation, improves appetite, gives perfect health. Only 50c at Grover's drug store.

The public is today taking a more comprehensive view of the value of proper sanitary measures for the prevention of disease and the maintenance of healthy conditions in the home life. If every family, no matter what its station in life, felt its responsibility to the public in this regard, epidemical diseases would be less frequent and virulent. Very few realize how much individual cleanliness has to do with preserving public health; conditions. In this respect a great good has been accomplished by the proprietors of Cabot's Sulpho-Napthol in educating the public to the proper use of an article which today stands at the head of all germicides and cleaners. The ready adaptation of Sulpho-Napthol to the routine work of cleaning in the household has won for it an enviable reputation, as it not only cleans more thoroughly than soaps and powders, and at less expense, but from its germicidal action it overcomes those conditions which are a menace to public health.

VICTOR M. PLACE.
[From National Sportsman]

We publish below an extract from the current number of The National Sportsman giving a short sketch of the college career of Victor M. Place Captain of the Dartmouth eleven for next season. Place is well known to the boys of this town where he resided some time, and more than once he helped the old High school eleven with the aid of Brine, Ham and Crawford to win a victory. The National Sportsman says:

Victor Morton Place, '03, right guard of the Dartmouth football eleven, has been elected captain of the team for the coming season.

Place was born in New Salem, Mass., Nov. 26, 1876. He fitted for college at the Occidental college preparatory school in Los Angeles, Cal.

He entered Dartmouth first in the class of 1900 and played substitute left guard on the varsity in the fall of '96. In the fall of '97 he played in two games at right tackle, half of the Exeter game and all the Harvard games. Obliged to leave college the same fall, he played for two seasons on the Winchester, Mass., Y. M. C. A. team.

Last fall found Place again at Dartmouth in the class of '03 and a sure man for the varsity. He played at left tackle and right guard and made a most creditable showing for himself, winning his "D" in both the Wesleyan and Brown games.

This fall he has played throughout the season, first at right tackle and later at right guard. His work has been steady, clean and conscientious and he has won the universal praise of the college. He won his "D" this year in the Brown game.

Place is a member of the Kappa Kappa Kappa society and the Theta Nu Epsilon sophomore fraternity. He is 25 years old, weighs 185 pounds and is 5 feet 10 3-8 inches tall.

An Eminent Citizen Passes Away.

Mr. Jacob C. Stanton passed away at his home on Washington street last Friday night from pneumonia after an illness of only about one week. As the STAR went to press last Friday morning there was a slight hope that he might recover, but during the afternoon he grew worse and at midnight passed peacefully to sleep. For many years, in fact dating from the time of his discharge from the Union Army at the time of the War of the Rebellion, he had not been in the enjoyment of robust health, although able to build up a lucrative business and give it his whole attention.

Mr. Stanton was born in Roxbury 67 years ago, and in early life came to Winchester, where he was apprenticed to his uncle, H. K. Stanton, a house painter, which trade he followed up to the time of entering the grocery business. He was enabled to start in this business through the efforts of Mr. James Houston and Mr. Frank Stone who were both his warm personal friends. The store was then situated in the building on Main street adjoining White's Block. The trust imposed in Mr. Stanton by the above gentlemen in his integrity and energy was well born out in later years, as he not only repaid them for their kindness but prospered to an unusual degree, and so well was he liked and his business dealings so honorable that many of his first patrons were his regular customers up to the time of his death. Many men might have been more successful in a business way, but his failing to become more prosperous, was more of the heart than of the head. He was a generous giver, and but few knew this trait outside of those benefitted, who will hold him in grateful remembrance.

In 1879, he moved his store into the present building, then the handsomest business block in town. It was he and Dr. Geo. P. Brown who built the block that at present bears their names, the Doctor occupying the present drug store on the corner, up to within a few years ago.

When the war broke out he enlisted as a member of the Fifth Massachusetts Volunteers, and was assistant to Dr. Ingalls, who was surgeon in the regiment and at the breaking out of the war a practitioner in Winchester.

Mr. Stanton was one of the original members of William Parkman Lodge of Masons, and was a member of the Odd Fellows, having been affiliated with this order in Charlestown. As a member of the Unitarian Church he did a great deal to forward its influence. At one time he was an Assessor, the only office he ever held, although deeply interested in town affairs he might have been, had he desired, prominent in the official life of Winchester. His nature was such that he shrank from publicity and during our acquaintance with him extending over a period of more than 20 years, he was always the reserved genial gentleman that we knew him when we first met him. The town is poorer for his loss. The ranks of the older residents are last thinning and in a few years the last of the men who were so active in the life of Winchester and who did so much to place the town in its present proud position will have passed away, and their memory will have become a tradition.

Mr. Stanton was married twice, his second wife, Sarah Symmes, survives. He left no children.

Funeral services were held at the late home Monday afternoon and were attended by nearly 300 persons. Rev. W. I. Lawrance officiated, and the interment was in Wildwood. The display of floral tributes was beautiful and profuse. The flag on the common was displayed at half mast and during the funeral services the stores were closed in respect to the memory of the deceased.

The Oldest Sign.

The very oldest sign in Boston yet displayed on a business establishment if the writer is not greatly mistaken, is that on the front wall of the great store of Jones, McDuffie, Stratton Co., on the corner of Federal and Franklin streets. The nearly obliterated words are these, Norcross & Co. This ancient relic for many years was displayed on the old store of the firm in South Market street. When the firm removed to the present location, over a generation since Mr. Jerome Jones, the junior partner, placed the revered old sign in a conspicuous position over the Federal street entrance for good luck, —a sort of mascot, besides he had a good stock of reverence in his composition, which he loyally displayed in preserving this memorial of that grand old merchant, the late Otis Norcross. At any rate, the firm doing business under that old sign has enjoyed a phenomenal success in trade. [Hingham Journal.

An Expert at "Old Sledge."

Town Clerk Carter of Winchester is an expert at "old sledge" or "all fours," a game known to the laity as "high, low, jack," or "seven up." Some time ago he compiled a little treatise on the game for the benefit of his less skilful friends. The appendix is especially interesting, as it contains rules and suggestions not found in Hoyle or other writers. Here are some of them:

Claim for low is not allowed when your opponents have the deuce and tray.

Claim for high or low, no matter how emphatically declared, will not be allowed when it is shown you did not have a trump.

Continual claiming of more points than made is not allowed except by players in the third class.

It is good judgment to give on seven and eight spot, provided it turns out well.

Good players have the ability to make points, though they play half their hands without trumps.

There is a time to beg and a time to stand. This cannot be fully understood until you reach the first class.

The claim "I thought" certain cards had or had not been played is no excuse against egregious blunders, even by players in the second class.

Peaches and cream or other indulgences had better be omitted until the close of the session. Though you may be ahead and think you have a "soft snap" you can't most always tell how the session will end.—[Medford Citizen.

A Cure for Lumbago.

W. C. Williamson, of Amherst, Va., say: "For more than a year I suffered from lumbago. I finally tried Chamberlain's Pain Balm and it gave me entire relief, which all other remedies had failed to do." Sold by Young & Brown, druggists.

A Gem of Boston.

I'm in a meditative mood today. The more I think of it, and the wider grows my mental range, the more firmly am I convinced that Winchester is soon to be the star and gem of Boston's suburbs. It is pushing ahead with long and rapid strides, and the additions to its population are of the most desirable character. There are no better roads in this State than ours; our parks, boulevards and parkways are numerous and unsurpassed; and our people are progressive. With its hills and valleys, its ponds and streams; its hills and dales, the natural scenery is perfect, and every year adds to its artistic embellishments. Only 7 or 8 miles from the State House, with innumerable steam trains, and a plethora of electric lines, the business and social relations with Boston are close and cordial. Why, then, should not Winchester become the gem town of Boston's environs?—[Woburn Journal.

A Certain Cure for Chilblains.

Shake into your shoes Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder. It cures chilblains, frostbites, damp, sweating, swollen feet. At all Druggists and Shoe Stores, 25c.

Should Not be Allowed in Winchester Town Hall.

The Mayor's recommendation that the tramps be cared for outside the police station, agrees with public sentiment often expressed. It ought to be one of the first duties of the new year. The fine City Hall building ought to be fumigated and cleaned and the tramps given a lodging place outside. We agree that the tramps must be taken care of and given comfortable lodging, but not in the most costly building owned by the city.—[Melrose Journal.

CRUEL

Heartrending Story of Nervous Wreck. How Dr. Greene's Nervura Came to the Rescue.

Mrs. P. HORAN, 1879 Third Avenue, New York City, says:

"I had a constant bearing down pain that made me feel dreadfully nervous, and the pain in my back was something awful. I suffered terribly every month. I also suffered from inflammation and had an unnatural discharge that kept me tired all the time. My kidneys and stomach were affected and I was always constipated. Every little thing excited me, and I was so nervous I didn't feel a bit like seeing or talking to anyone. I was really in a dreadful condition. No one knows what I suffered. Every morning I would feel so weak and tired I could hardly get up, and during the day I would get faint and feel as though I should fall. I doctored continually, trying first one thing, then another, but nothing seemed to do me any good. I was so discouraged and downhearted I didn't care much what happened, or if I ever got well.

"Finally, some one told me to take Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and said so much about the good it did women who suffered from female weakness that I decided to try it. I cannot say enough for this medicine. Dr Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is the best medicine on earth for nervousness and female weakness, and every woman who suffers from these troubles ought to get Dr. Greene to cure them. I took four bottles of Nervura and my pains are all gone. My periods are regular every month, without the slightest pain, my backache is all gone and there isn't the slightest discharge any more. The folks who see me now, who see how contented and happy and strong I am, think it is a miracle."

Get Dr Greene's Nervura to-day for your trouble, and write to Dr. Greene for advice. Address 34 Temple Place, Boston, Mass.

White Ribbon Clippings.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union will meet in the vestry of the Congregational church, Friday, Jan. 24, at 3 o'clock.

AUSTRALIA—THE WORK IN VICTORIA.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union has much reason to thank God, that by His guidance and protection they have been enabled to continue their work. The fourteen years have been marked by steady progress and continual expansion. Never has the work been more consolidated, and never has it made so marked an impression upon the public mind as now.

A grand demonstration was recently held in the Melbourne town hall, every seat of the large auditorium being filled by a vast and appreciative audience. Rev. Edgar presided and in a forcible address commended the women for the work they were doing for temperance and purity reform. Only by the combined efforts of every Christian man and woman could these evils be destroyed. The State convention opened with a pleasant reception, which gave opportunity for the delegates and friends to meet socially. A large number of delegates were present.

This has been an important year in the history of Australia, as it has seen the birth of this great nation, youngest of all the nations comprising the British Empire. The President, in her annual address, referred with tender words to the loss sustained by the American nation in the death of President McKinley. She also quoted some words of our beloved Frances Willard which, in the light of recent events, may be deemed a prophecy. Miss Willard said: "It is a thing unparalleled for a man of the prospects and education of Hon. Theodore Roosevelt to accept the office of chairman of the police commission. No act of patriotism in these modern days could be cited to equal it, if we except the act of Dr. Parkhurst. For my part I should like to see one of these new men President of the United States, and the other Secretary of the Treasurer." Part of Miss Willard's desire has been fulfilled. The various superintendents of departments presented good reports, and helpful suggestions. Special prominence is also given to the L. T. L. work, which numbers 1,830 members.

Three Popular Concerts by Sousa.

It has been the good fortune of John Philip Sousa to make a complete musical conquest of great Britain where he already enjoys a popularity greater than any other conductor or composer before the public. His music has been generally admired and for his more serious compositions he has received the warmest praise, so much so indeed that the Glasgow Evening News hailed Sousa the composer, as the "Berlioz" of the military band. A London critic writing of the strength, vigor and nerve of the Sousa marches spoke of the "March King" as the "Kipling of Music." The Sousa band broke the record of Albert Hall at their first London concerts, and at Liverpool, Newcastle, Leeds, Sheffield and Manchester their success has been equally pronounced. Sousa has now returned to London, where the variety performers are imitating him at every music hall, to give a second series of concerts at the Empire Theatre and the Royal Opera House, Covent Garden.

The last three Sousa concerts in Boston for two years will be given at Symphony Hall on Sunday evening Jan. 19th and Wednesday afternoon and evening Jan. 22.

Correct and to the Point.

Speaking of the renewed agitation in Melrose for a return to the town form of government the Boston Record well says that it is not the form of government that is strangling the little cities around Boston but the spending of too much money. They are burdened with too much sewerage, too much metropolitan commission, too much school house, too much police, too much fire department, considering the money they have to meet the bills with. When a town becomes a city it seems to think that in some miraculous way its income is going to be increased enough to warrant the putting on of municipal fine airs which it would never think of assuming as a town.

Cost of a Small Pox Patient.

The town of Andover has been presented with a bill for $498 00 by the city of Somerville for expenses incurred in connection with a small pox case. The patient was William A. Physician	$200 00

Sheets and towels	5 86

A Timely Word.

Our readers will doubtless remember that we referred two weeks ago somewhat at length in our editorial columns to the urgent need of an inexpensive addition to our old High School building. We claimed that it was not sound business policy to neglect so important and so urgent an educational matter. Again, we maintained that it was high time that a committee of representative citizens should be appointed at the March meeting to consider without delay the nearest time it would be expedient for the town to vote to erect a suitable High School building. Since our editorial comments, we understand on the best authority that over twenty-five pupils of the High School are now obliged to take seats in the physical laboratory or go without seats. Of course, such a room was never intended for seating purposes. It is certainly complimentary to the parents of these pupils that they prize the privileges of the school and thus far have not grumbled at something that cannot be helped. If the pupils are forced at the opening of the fall term to take seats in the basement, it is not at all unlikely that some parents will make a vigorous protest.

Our words must have been timely for it has been a real pleasure for us to hear a goodly number of our best citizens whose opinion in educational affairs command general approval, speak in hearty commendation of the position of the STAR in its forecast of a matter so important to the highest interest of our public schools. It is always a pleasure as well as a duty for us to jog the memory of our busy men and women on the needs and wants of our public schools. If what we have said shall bear some sort of fruit at the next town meeting we shall feel repaid.

Teachers' Meeting for January.

All the teachers of the public schools, except those of the High School, together with Superintendent Walradt, met the members of the School Committee last Friday afternoon, in the High School building, for the second Teachers' Meeting of the school year. Every teacher, except one answered to the roll call. After a brief address by Professor Currier, chairman of the committee, Dr. Blaisdell took charge of the meeting. Several topics connected with the discipline and course of study in our schools were informally discussed. Among those who took part in the discussion were Mr. Fiske and Miss O'Sullivan of the Wadleigh School; Miss Lyons of the Chapin; Miss Spurr of the Gifford; Miss Levitt of the Highland; Miss Riley of the Rumford; Miss Brown of the Washington; Miss Mason of the Wyman, and Supt. Walradt. As no formal papers or discussions have thus far been undertaken, the teachers have been doubly interested and stimulated to take an active part in the informal discussion. Several topics for discussion at the next meeting in February were given out. All the teachers are delighted at the interest shown at these meetings, and say that the hour is profitably spent. Seven new teachers who have been recently added to the force from other towns than Winchester are expected to take a leading part at the February meeting.

McKay Relief Association.

This association was organized Oct. 5, 1901, the object being the mutual relief of its members in case of sickness or accident which would prevent them from attending to their daily duties in the factory. The association has paid sick benefits amounting to $592.50. They will give their first annual concert and ball in the Town Hall, Friday evening, Jan. 31, 1902, and the committee in charge of the ball have engaged Harry E. Brigham's famous orchestra of Marlborough, and the concert preceding the ball will alone be worth the price of admission. The stage decorations will be in charge of Geo. F. Arnold the florist. The committee in charge consists of Geo. W. Keys, Geo. H. Costain, Geo. B. Glidden, which is a guarantee that everything will be done to make this, the first concert and ball, a brilliant social and financial success. An excellent caterer will furnish the refreshments.

An Historical Correction.

The only correction thus far received by the Park Board in regard to the recent article on the history of our Common and Public Plots is by Mr. Henry Johnson and relates to the plot at the junction of Washington and Main streets. Mr. Johnson states that the prime mover for securing this plot was Mr. Charles E. Redfern, and that Mr. Moses A. Herrick personally superintended the work of grading the land. He also says that this plot is more generally known as the "Johnson Plot," in memory of its former owner, Deacon Johnson, one of the principal founders of the First Congregational church of Winchester.

FOR INVESTMENT.

There is no investment which is more satisfactory than a good building lot acquired at a price which will assure the purchaser of an immediate appreciation in value, the result of first-class development. I am able to offer such an opportunity through the purchase, by Mr. A. Wilbert Starratt, of what was formerly known as the Bacon Estate, off Highland Avenue in Winchester. This property consists of 264,000 sq. ft. of land situated on a side hill with a Southerly and Westerly exposure and protected on the North and East by a precipitous cliff. The tract is about seven minutes walk from the centre of the Town and four minutes from the electrics; it is adjacent to the Middlesex Fells and a stone's throw from the Mystic Valley Driveway, the main entrance to the Fells. The development is being carried out under the direction of Ernest W. Bowditch, the well known landscape architect, and under his supervision there is now, in the process of construction, a forty foot macadam roadway, with paved gutters, loam spaces and gravel sidewalks, which has been laid out in such a manner as to preserve the many large shade trees on the place. Sewer, water and gas pipes are laid through the entire roadway. There are 21 lots varying in size from 7,500 to 10,000 sq. ft. and of this number 12 have already been sold, upon which there have been already built, or are now in the process of construction, altogether ten houses which comply with suitable restrictions, and are a distinct benefit to the whole development. The nine lots now in my hands for sale are offered at a remarkably reasonable figure which cannot but prove attractive to the home seeker or investor.

Meeting of the High School Teachers.

All the teachers of the High school were invited to meet the members of the School Committee and Supt. Walradt on Thursday afternoon. A full report of this instructive and interesting meeting, at which took place an informal discussion of several points which pertain to the best welfare of the school, came too late for insertion in this week's paper. We hope to present it to our readers in full next week.

To accommodate those who are partial to the use of atomizers in applying liquids into the nasal passages for catarrhal troubles, the proprietors prepare Ely's Liquid Cream Balm. Price including the spraying tube is 75 cents. Druggists or by mail. The liquid embodies the medicinal properties of the solid preparation. Cream Balm is quickly absorbed by the membrane and does not dry up the secretions, but changes them to a natural and healthy character. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., N. Y.

One of the strongest addresses ever given before the Association was delivered by Rev. E. H. Hughes of Malden last Sunday afternoon. Subject, "The Allness of Christ." Fifty men were in attendance.

Mr. W. H. Breed of Boston will speak to the men Sunday. Mr. Breed is a business man who is interested in work among young men. A strong address is assured. Supt. S. P. Streeter of the Worcester Boy's Club, will speak to boys at 3 o'clock. Mr. Streeter is about the best known man in Worcester. A rich treat is in store for our boys. Parents should see that their boys attend this meeting.

The membership contest closes tonight by mutual agreement. Every member should work to get in all who have promised or who have signified a desire to join. A supper will be given to the winning team by the Women's Auxiliary and to all new members next Thursday evening. A fine time is expected.

Saturday evening Mr. E. J. Rich will speak in Association Hall upon "Chinese Gordon, the Knight Errant and Hero of the Nineteenth Century." The Association is especially fortunate in securing Mr. Rich, and extend to the public a hearty invitation to attend.

The basket ball team was defeated at Brockton last Saturday night by a score of 49 to 19. This is the team which defeated the Winchester team here a few weeks ago by a score of 45 to 15, and is the only team to defeat them this year.

The game with Franklin A. A. for the 23d has been cancelled, that team being disqualified by the A. A. U. The next home game fully arranged will be with Haverhill Y. M. C. A., Jan. 30. Malden may play here Jan. 20 or 25. The junior team won from Arlington High School last week by a close score.

The annual banquet of the State Executive Committee was held at Hotel Somerset Tuesday evening. The principal guests were Gov. Kimball of Rhode Island, Ex-Gov. Rollins of N. H., and Ex-Chancellor McDowell of New York city. Winchester was represented by five members.

Forty men have attended the gymnasium classes the last two class nights. The floor is being taxed to its utmost limit. The lockers are all taken, several being occupied by two parties. Never before has there been such large numbers using the gymnasium and social room.

Dr. Mead will talk to the gymnasium men next Friday night on the "Physiology of the Muscular System."

The monthly meeting of the Board of Directors will be held next Monday night.

The Physical Department committee will meet on Saturday night at 7.15, before Mr. Rich's lecture.

The committe on Union Bible Class, composed of the presidents and secretaries of the young people's societies, are requested to meet in the Association rooms next Tuesday evening before the class at 7.15.

The other evening a lecture was given in Woburn on the topic, "Scotland and Burns." In the audience was a young woman from Winchester. She is of Scotch extraction, has been in this country less than a year, and has been doing housework in a well known lawyer's family. The lecture was finely illustrated and the lecturer touched on scenes and places very familiar to the girl in question. Next day her mistress noticed that the maid was unusually quiet. In fact, she was downcast. Asked what was wrong, she sobbed out that the lecture had carried her heart home to the rugged hills where the greater part of her life had been passed amid friends and happiness. As the hours sped, housework was set in strong contrast with the loved home in Scotland where her parents, brothers and sisters dwell. The result was this: The girl reluctantly gave her notice, and will soon cross the ocean, homeward-bound.—[Herald.

Mr. Bryan has been beaten twice on the silver question. It may be that without that issue he might possibly be successful, but if he clings to it he will be buried with it as far as the presidency is concerned. It's a dead, buried and played out issue.

Most street railroads are no longer local affairs and it is better for the public that an expert board like the Railroad Commission should pass upon conditions made for a grant of location by aldermen and selectmen and the governor's recommendation should be adopted.

In every town report there should be a table showing in detail the cost of running the town for the year, and in connection therewith the population and valuation should be given, so that citizens may have before them in concrete form figures showing just what their town is costing from year to year. Very likely some town officials will say we have that now, but if any do, let them name the page in the last report where it can be found. Of course it can be picked out here and there but that does not fill the bill.

The steam railroad managers, so able that nobody could ever tell them anything, after losing largely their suburban business to the electrics are now trying to devise some means of getting it back, that is, the New Haven and Albany are. President Tuttle says he can do nothing. Does Mr. Tuttle think that the Northern suburbs can afford to have lower fares and better service on the Southern suburbs?

Of the three hundred and twenty towns in the Commonwealth Winchester now stands ninth in total assessed valuation with $8,937,654. But three cities, Boston, Worcester and Cambridge, have a larger valuation than the town of Brookline, while Milton, which ranks next of the towns, is ahead of half of the cities in wealth.

Speaking of assessments why don't the Assessors assess fowls? There are many fancy fowls and fowl fanciers in our town, and several amateurs are reading the book.

In Memory of Mr. Stanton.

The following letter as will be seen, was sent to Col. Wm. T. Grammar of Woburn by Dr. Wm. Ingalls, formerly of this town, and by him, if he thought best, to be given to the wife of the late J. C. Stanton. Col. Grammar forwarded the letter to Mr. N. A. Richardson, to use it as he thought proper. Mr. Richardson delivered the letter to Mrs. Stanton and received it back with many thanks to the writer, with the request that he use it as befitting its intent.

"THE WARREN," Roxbury, Jan. 12, 1902. General William T. Grammar,

My dear old friend: — The birth-days come around and while we think, every time, that the present will be the last, happily, we cannot look ahead with any certainty of being correct.

To call to mind the former days we or were engaged in the same lot for duty, needs not for me a present 12th, for I think of you, and many other comrades, daily, some present, some gone to their long homes; and of one now who is to be buried tomorrow, my orderly, Jacob C. Stanton, the memory of whom I shall always hold in respectful and friendly remembrance for his faithfulness and for his always good deportment.

I do not know if Jacob has left a widow, nor anything of his circumstances, but if he has, I would like, very much, to extend my sympathy to her in her bereavement, and I do not see why you might not, with propriety, send to her this letter just as it is.

Hoping you may live as many years as you can find enjoyment in them, I am

Your old friend and comrade,

WM. INGALLS.

Dr. Ingalls was a surgeon in the Civil War in the 5th Mass. for nine months, then in the 59th until the close of the war. His 89th birthday was last Saturday. He was born on School street, Boston, and for many years had an office over Theodore Metcalf's store on Tremont street. A good physician, a genial gentleman, well educated and highly cultured. When living here he had a large practice and was very popular. He lived on Thompson street and later in the Langley house, just east of the Brown & Stanton block.

Two Worthy Persons Remembered.

Mr. Geo. F. Arnold, the accomplished and genial pianist of Wedgemere Lodge of Good Templars, was treated to a genuine surprise at his home on Mt. Vernon street last Friday evening by the members of the Lodge. He unsuspectingly walked right into the kitchen which was crowded with more than a half hundred of his co-workers, both ladies and gentlemen. His jaw fell and his eyes bulged; but it was no use, he was in the hands of his friends and they did the handsome thing by himself and wife when they presented them with a beautiful set of dining room furniture, which was so much desired. Entertainment, consisting of music, singing, games and refreshments rounded out a red letter event in the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold, in which Mr. Arnold contributed several songs in his well known taking style.

Wedgemere Lodge is composed of a jolly crowd who never tire of getting up surprises and in other ways making membership in the order most pleasant and beneficial. Much is missed in the pleasures of life in not being a member. Mr. Arnold is one of the most prized members of the Lodge.

Annual Supper.

The annual supper of the members of the Congregational church took place in the vestry last evening, and like its predecessors, was a grand success. This pleasant home gathering is the feature social of the year, and every member who can possibly do so is sure to be present. The supper was all that could be desired by the most fastidious. Here is where the art of cooking is seen to perfection—such turkeys, meats and pastry are seldom met with outside of these annual suppers, and are sure to bring on a severe attack of vigorous appetite. The tables looked beautiful in their dressing of pink, which was the prevailing color, even to the programs. The large committee of ladies, under the able leadership of Mrs. C. W. Currier, worked hard to make the occasion a crowning success, which they succeeded in doing, and are deserving of a great deal of credit. Every person was pleased beyond measure at the ease with which the wants of all were supplied.

The ladies who had charge of the tables were: Mrs. Blanchard, Mrs. Kendall, Mrs. Simonds, Mrs. Bush, Mrs. Harris, Mrs. Lovering, Mrs. Denley, Mrs. Butler, Mrs. Gage, Mrs. Dyer, Miss Knapp, Miss Elliott, Mrs. Foster, Mrs. Phippen, Mrs. Hall, Mrs. Barron, Mrs. Hamilton, Mrs. Dane, Mrs. Hemingway.

After the wants of every one had been attended to, Rev. Mr. Newton called the gathering to order and introduced Mr. Arthur W. Hale as the toastmaster. The first number on the program was singing by the Boston University Glee Club Quartette; Deacon Harrison Parker was then called upon to respond to the toast "The Past Members." Mr. Burrill then gave a reading, Dr. Allen spoke for the new members and Rev. G. H. Gutterson for the future of the church. Interspersed were readings and selections by the quartette. After these pleasant exercises there was a brief social season.

Observations.

I met an acquaintance the other day that I have known for thirty years, and who has made a large fortune. I asked him how he had made so much. He replied, "by selling rum to others and drinking none myself." Think of this rich man, soon to enter the gate of death and leave a fortune made by the tears of wives, the misery of children, the plague of humanity and the curse of society! Yet rum selling is popular and upheld by law.

How is it that our schools are so much better than those that other towns have and our children more thoroughly educated, and we go out of town to employ a large part of our teachers, when there is so much better talent at home.

In 1850, when Winchester was incorporated, there were but six people who in real and personal estate (beyond their liabilities) were worth ten thousand dollars. Now, one of a million; two or three of half a million, six from two to three hundred thousand, as many more a hundred thousand and a score from twenty-five to fifty thousand.

In the U. S. are four thousand people worth a million. Ten of these are worth from one to three hundred million, twenty from twenty-five to fifty million and the woods are full of men worth from five to ten million. Mass. alone has four hundred people worth a million, many of them a long way above that figure. Gold is god, silver an idol, before whose throne all fall down and worship. Lately another element has come out of the bowels of the earth. They call it "king copper," and thousands have ridden in his chariot, some to riches, some to poverty, and while the bones of the latter are bleaching on the field of speculation, Jew and Gentile are hustling to put the chalice to their lips.

All who ride over Cambridge street have noticed, a little way beyond the top of the second hill in Arlington (over looking Mystic pond), a large, fine brick house, with modern trimmings, handsome lawn and a beautiful row of spruce and larch trees. This is called the Wm. J. Niles place, and was built by him many years ago. It is a summer residence for his remaining family, he having died several years ago. He was, and his heirs now are, the owners of the property in Boston known as "Niles' Block," opposite City Hall, and running back from School street. Fifty years ago Niles kept a boarding and livery stable here, and with the fruits of his business and the rise of his property, left a half a million dollars. Mr. Niles married in 1829 Mary Ann Hale of Woburn, daughter of Jonas Hale and Sarah Fowle, who lived on Cambridge street near the road leading to Lexington. Jonas Hale was a wheelright, and learned his trade of Deacon John Symmes, of Symmes' Corner, Winchester. Mrs. Symmes was a daughter of Jeduthan Richardson, and Mr. Hales' wife was her neice.

Jacob C. Stanton, last week deceased, needs no extended eulogium; his honorable life, business integrity and social excellence are characteristics that words cannot magnify or praise exhalt. He has gone to that just court where his deeds and nobility will receive their reward. May we all emulate his kind and good life.

Since South Woburn (now Winchester) was a part of Woburn, thirty-two different proprietors have kept grocery stores here. The first of tradition—Paul Wyman—in 1770, and later—of record—his son Jesse in 1800, and still later both kept a store where Charles Kendall now resides. Samuel Gardner, jr. in 1825 and Wm. Grammer in 1830, both near where Henry F. Johnson now lives. The other twenty-eight I will speak of in the future.

Two well known taverns have been kept in South Woburn—the Black Horse tavern from 1724 until 1835—111 years, and the Nathaniel Davis tavern, where James Russell lives, near the Woburn line, 150 years ago and later the Belknap estate.

Private schools were kept in South Woburn in dwelling houses of the inhabitants previous to 1794, when the first school house was erected on the Job Miller farm, just south of Prince avenue. It stood there until 1818, when it was bought by Jonathan Eaton, living on the Joseph Stone place, and sold by him to Zachariah Richardson. Part of it is today the house of Grenville Richardson.

I will not now enlarge, as I have promised a friend to write up the schools and houses of South Woburn before it became Winchester, with the names of the teachers and the branches taught. A most interesting subject, much of which is not on record; for instance—I had an uncle, John Richardson, educated at Harvard, who taught school in South Woburn, in Newburyport, was principal of a large academy at Leicester and fitted for college the sons of Gov. Levi Lincoln. In the fore part of last century ten prominent men taught winter schools in So. Woburn, five of them college graduates.

Mr. McCall's able speech on the Philippine question is receiving much praise. It bristles with patriotic sentiments that would receive the commendation of Sam'l Adams or James Otis, if now alive.

St. Mary's Benevolent Society.

The annual meeting of St. Mary's Benevolent Society was held at their room, Sunday, January 12. The following officers were elected: President, Mr. M. E. O'Leary; vice-president, Miss Mary Riley; recording secretary, Miss Minnie E. Dowd; financial secretary, Mr. A. Wm. Rooney; treasurer, Mrs. J. H. Cronin. The following board of directors was elected for three years: Miss Mary Burke, Miss Hannah O'Hara, Miss Elizabeth Barstow, Miss Annie Dowd, Miss Josephine Brine, Mr. J. Jos. Foley, Mr. P. W. Reardon.

The treasurer's report showed that during the past nine months $125 had been expended for the relief of the poor. The report of Mr. F. J. O'Hara, chairman of the executive committee, showed that 119 visits had been made by the visitors, who are appointed for each district. A sewing circle has been established by the ladies under the direction of Miss Mary Riley, where new garments are made and old ones made over for the deserving poor.

The officers wish to thank the people of Winchester, who have so generously responded to their appeal for clothing, and other assistance.

The society will give a coffee party in the Town Hall, Tuesday evening, February 4th, 1902, at which they hope to realize a goodly sum.

A Card of Thanks.

Through the columns of the STAR I wish to thank the good people of Winchester for their generous patronage at our fair last fall. I wish I could give every one who helped us a hearty handshake. I must say that the assistance given surpassed my expectations. Of course the church received the aid in a spirit of thanks to God and man, but as it is more blessed to give than to receive, the cheerful givers had the best of us. This may seem like a paradox to superficial who do not notice the undercurrents and need to be reminded that things are not what they seem, but this bible truth is also borne out by Christian experience. In more homely phrase, albeit of scarcely coextensive application, I often say: "What we do for others we really do for ourselves."

After two and a half years persistent and steady work, the church has paid $1100 of its debt. We refer the reader also to a brief summary of the congregational meeting in another column.

Thanks and greetings to all fellow-Christians.

Yours in the work and for Christ,

N. E. KNON.

Surprise and House Warming.

Friends of Chief of Police McIntosh have had in mind some weeks a house warming to mark the event of the occupancy of his pretty new house on Stone avenue, and this culminated Wednesday evening in a surprise and presentation. With considerable tact and much difficulty Mrs. McIntosh succeeded in getting her better half out of the house on an errand and during his absence some twenty well known citizens took possession. On his return he was somewhat taken back and was at a loss what to say or do. Judge Littlefield, however, added to the embarrassment by presenting the Chief with a handsome and massive oak morris chair befitting a man of 225 pounds.

Judge Littlefield spoke as follows:

"Chief McIntosh:—Some of your friends wishing to testify in substantial form their appreciation of your faithful work in the office which you have held for five years, determined to raise a fund. After the money was raised they were a little puzzled to choose a suitable present. Inquiry among your associates developed the fact that in your leisure hours you had a weakness for taking a quiet rest in Patrolman Dotten's easy chair. This solved the difficulty and a chair was ordered sufficiently strong and long to safely hold your robust frame; and I now take pleasure in presenting it to you.

I have read through the complete works of several poets including the published works of Aaron C. Bell and read through Sir Walter Scott's "Lady of the Lake" thinking that what would do for Roderick Dhu, might do for William Roderick, too, to find a suitable sentiment to offer in this connection.

At last I reached some of the recent popular songs and finally struck it, and as expressing the feelings of the donors, I would say, "Go Way Back and Sit Down."

Through some miscalculation after this chair was paid for there was a surplus of funds, and as the wear and tear must be pretty severe, with the constant use which I know will be made of it, it has been deemed advisable to present this surplus to Mrs. McIntosh as a contingent fund to provide for the necessary renewals, and I now take pleasure in handing her this envelope with the instructions to watch the chair closely and attend to keeping it in good condition."

Mr. McIntosh responded as ably as he could under the circumstances and heartily thanked the donors. Congratulations were then in order, followed by an excellent repast provided by Mrs. McIntosh, during the enjoyment of which lively conversation went merrily around the well filled table for an hour or more. Cigars and social chat with songs filled in the remainder of the evening. The whole affair was a genuine surprise to the chief, and his wife can be safely credited with being one woman who can keep a secret.

An envelope containing a substantial sum of money was presented Mrs. McIntosh to be used in "keeping the chair in repair."

At the time of the presentation, Judge Littlefield read the following telegrams and letters of regret:

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15, 1902.
Wm. R. McIntosh.
Can't come tonight; have got to meet Tom Platt. ROOSEVELT.

Paris, Jan. 15, 1902.
Wm. R. McIntosh, Winchester, Mass.
Darn it Bill, why did'nt you say you wanted a chair, I would have given you a whole library full. CARNEGIE.

Can't come, Bill, as I got paid off today and had to come to Sullivan square.

THOUGHTFULNESS.

What constitutes the joy of life
Aside from this good "chair of ease?"
It is in having a good wife
Who striveth hard her lord to please.

Then, if the one so richly blest
With having such a mate as this,
Remember well, this life-long test,
His cup will over run with bliss.

Among those present were: Town Clerk Geo. H. Carter, Selectmen Boutwell, Taylor and Bradstreet, Collector A. C. Bell, G. S. Littlefield, Dr. J. I. French, E. W. Hawes, Postmaster J. W. Richardson, A. B. Grover, G. F. Arnold, G. H. Vose, B. F. Mathews, G. S. Hudson, J. F. O'Connor, police officers Dotten, Craughwell and Hargrove.

The chair is a gem of the cabinet and upholsterers art and came from the large furniture house of Webster & Cook, Boston, which is a guarantee of its excellence, and is also a credit to our genial towns man, Mr. O. C. Webster, who is always trying so hard to suit the tastes of Winchester patrons.

Getting Thin

is all right, if you are too fat; and all wrong, if too thin already.

Fat, enough for your habit, is healthy; a little more, or less, is no great harm. Too fat, consult a doctor; too thin, persistently thin, no matter what cause, take Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil.

There are many causes of getting too thin; they all come under these two heads: overwork and under-digestion.

Stop over-work, if you can; but, whether you can or not, take Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, to balance yourself with your work. You can't live on it—true—but, by it, you can. There's a limit, however; you'll pay for it.

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil is the readiest cure for "can't eat," unless it comes of your doing no work—you can't long be well and strong, without some sort of activity.

The genuine has this picture on it, take no other.

If you have not tried it, send for free sample, its agreeable taste will surprise you.

A Little Boy's Life Saved.

I have a few words to say regarding Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It saved my little boy's life and I feel that I cannot praise it enough. I bought a bottle of it from A. E. Steere of Goodwin, S. D., and when I got home with it the poor baby could hardly breathe. I gave the medicine as directed every ten minutes until he "threw up" and then I thought sure he was going to choke to death. We had to pull the phlegm out of his mouth in great long strings. I am positive that if I had not got that bottle of cough medicine, my boy would not be on earth today.—JOEL DEMONT, Inwood, Iowa. A BURNING QUESTION

At this time is: "Are you getting the best out of your coal?" If not, perhaps you are wasting Heat in the cellar which is needed elsewhere. It has been shown that a single foot of naked two-inch pipe carrying high pressure steam all the year round will condense more steam than a dollar's worth of coal will make, and the loss is in proportion for lower pressure and shorter time. Do you wish to stop this loss? If so, now is the time when it can best be done. Perhaps it will cost less than you think. At any rate it will cost you nothing to get figures.

THE TOUCH DOES IT

Benson's Plasters are like your other friends—they hate to see you in pain or in weakness and are dog-tired hearing you complain about it. They want to cure you and send you along to your business—whole and happy. They can do it and will do it. Try them on. What for? Why for any cough or cold you may be troubled with, or any bothering pain or ache, or worry with kidneys or liver. Possibly some old clutch of muscular rheumatism renders an arm or a leg worth only half price just now. For anything that makes the machine work slow and stiff, with pain maybe in the motion of it, clap a Benson's Porous Plaster squarely on the bad spot. They are the get-out-to-morrow plasters—not the sort that go to sleep on your skin like a cat on a cushion. There is comfort and speedy relief in the touch of them. No other external remedy, no matter how made or how called, is worthy to live in the same street with Benson's Plasters. Pains and ailments melt away under them as a sheet of ice does under the Spring sun. You cannot foretell the weather but you can always foretell the effect of Benson's Plasters; it is as sure as the effect of a hot breakfast in a hungry man's stomach. But look out for substitutes. Get the genuine. All druggists, or we will prepay postage on any number ordered in the United States on receipt of 25c. each.

An odd invention is a miniature portable electric lamp supported on a series of light, flexible metal links held in whatever position they are placed by the friction of the connecting pins at the joints and having at one end a spring clamp sufficiently large to slide over a book cover or some other thin article for a support.

From the lamp, according to a description in The Scientific American, run two wires to a small dry or storage battery, which may be carried in one's outside pocket or placed upon an adjoining table or in the lap of the person reading. In the case of a newspaper the clamp may be adjusted to the forefinger of one hand and the light of the lamp projected upon such portion of the paper it is desired to read, both hands holding the paper. The small reflector throws the light on to the book or paper and screens it from the eye.

The convenience of this lamp is self evident, particularly so in warm weather, when reading in the house is uncomfortable. Lawns and piazzas may be then resorted to without fear of the light being blown out by the wind. It is also useful for amateur photographers in supplying a ready light for changing plates or developing and for travelers in cars, boats or hotels. Nurses find it convenient for use in darkened rooms.

Typewriting by Electricity.

Electricity is fast coming to the aid of the overworked typewriter. In the new electrical device the physical force is supplied by an electric current, acting through a magnet. The operator works with more rapidity, for the keys fall to one-third the depth, with one-tenth the pressure required on the modern machine. It is claimed that the electricity will secure uniformity of the writing and that the light action will make it possible for the manipulator to use all his fingers. An increased current will print a dozen manifold copies with equal ease.

Novel Heating Contrivance.

A gas heating apparatus has been devised by Louis O. Cameron of Bellevue, Pa., for use when a little heat is desired in the rooms of a house to keep off the chill, but when that from the furnace is too great. It consists of a small metallic cylinder, with a flame shield in the center and connections between the burner and a gas supply pipe. This apparatus is suspended from the ceiling of the basement directly underneath the radiator, or it may be attached to one of the disconnected heater pipes. Upon opening the radiator a draft of air is readily maintained, and a portion of the air, passing through the interior cylinder, becomes heated and rises through the radiator to the room above.

Bell to Prevent Hail.

Before the last meeting of the Academy of Sciences of Paris M. Stanoiewitch suggested a novel method for the prevention of hail. M. Stanoiewitch's plan consists in a captive balloon fitted with a deep toned electric bell or siren. By this it is possible to generate sound waves that aid in breaking up the hail clouds. The trouble with the cannons that were so much advocated a short time ago is that it is impossible for their vibration to reach the height at which hail clouds form, but a captive balloon can be sent up to any height and the noise of the electric gong be used to drive away the hail clouds.

A New Vineyard Pest.

A disease called the maromba disease has recently appeared in the vineyards of northern Portugal. Samples of the vines attacked have been sent to the Kew gardens, London, for examination, and it has been found that the cause of the trouble is a fungus, Rosellinia necatrix, which apparently is endowed with power, through its mycelium, of attacking with disastrous effects almost every plant it comes in contact with. The remedy recommended is an application of carbon bisulphide near the roots of the affected plants.

Preventing Magnetization of Watch.

The so called "magnetic shield" to prevent magnetization of watches simply consists of a soft iron outer case. It is a well known fact that soft iron affords the easiest path for the magnetic flux, hence the movement of the watch is practically insulated from the magnetic lines of force. An English journal asserts that a tooth powder box or polish box, made of iron, roughly serves the purpose of such a shield and proves an effective device when one is near a dynamo.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

LESSON III, FIRST QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, JAN. 19.

Text of the Lesson, Acts ii, 37-47. Memory Verses, 37-39—Golden Text, Acts ii 47—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

37. "Men and brethren, what shall we do?" This was the cry of those who, having heard the gospel preached by Peter, were by the Spirit convinced of their sin, the sin of rejecting Christ. Compare the cry of Saul and of the jailer in chapters ix, 6; xvi, 30, when they, too, were convinced of sin. This is the work of the Holy Spirit, as the Lord Jesus said, "When He is come, He will convince the world of sin, because they believe not on Me" (John xvi, 8, 9). Peter in the power of the Spirit, or the Spirit through Peter, had preached Christ from Joel ii, Ps. xvi and cx. It might be said that he gave a Bible reading from or an exposition of these passages from the Old Testament.

38. There was only one thing for them to do, and that was to receive Him whom they had rejected and confess it by being baptized in His name, and they would thus receive the forgiveness of sins and the gift of the Holy Spirit. They had thought that Jesus of Nazareth was an impostor and a deceiver, but they must change their mind about Him (that is repentance) and receive and honor Him as Israel's Messiah, the Christ of God, the only Saviour of sinners. See how Peter, by the Spirit, makes prominent the remission of sins, as Jesus had commanded in Luke xxiv, 47. The gospel that does not proclaim the forgiveness of sins is not the gospel of God concerning Jesus Christ, but another gospel concerning which Paul says, "Let the preacher be accursed" (Gal. i, 8, 9; II Cor. xi, 4).

39. Our Lord had said, "Him that cometh unto Me I will in nowise cast out" (John vi, 37), and He had prayed for the soldiers who nailed Him to the cross, "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do," and He had said to the penitent thief, "Today shalt thou be with Me in paradise" (Luke xxiii, 34, 43). So Peter encouraged these whom he had accused of killing Christ (verse 23) to turn to Him, that they might obtain His forgiveness. The call is to every one, however far off and dead in sin, to come, for Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners, and whosoever believeth in Him shall not be ashamed (I Tim. i, 15; Rom. ix, 33; x, 11).

40. As the Spirit gave him utterance he set before them the grace of God in Christ Jesus, urging them to come out from the unbelieving and show themselves for Christ. He did not expect that all who heard would believe, for he had been taught by the Lord Jesus that, while some seed would fall on good ground, some would also fall on the hard beaten ground, some on rocky and some on thorny soil.

41. Three thousand, or about that number, received Christ by receiving the truth concerning or by believing the testimony that Peter gave of Jesus Christ as the promised Messiah, who by the sacrifice of Himself made atonement for sin, who, having by Himself purged our sins, sat down on the right hand of the Majesty on high (Heb. i, 3) and sent the Holy Spirit, who now brought these truths home to their hearts. Faith cometh by hearing the word of God, not by any enticing words of man's wisdom (Rom. x, 17; I Cor. i, 17; ii, 4), and as the word of God is declared the spirit of God works. Unless God works nothing is accomplished, for even Christ could do nothing of Himself (John v, 30; viii, 28).

42, 43. This great ingathering was, no doubt, one of the "greater works" of which Christ had spoken (John xiv, 12), and they proved their sincerity by continuing steadfastly in the doctrine, in fellowship and in prayer (John viii, 31). This was a genuine work of the Holy Spirit, a work of God in the name of the Lord Jesus, and through one of the weakest of earthen vessels; there was nothing of man in it. The wonders and signs were "the Lord working with them and confirming the word with signs following" (Mark xvi, 20). The great resurrection chapter concludes with the exhortation to be "steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord" (I Cor. xv, 58), and it is our privilege to say with John, "Truly our fellowship is with the Father and with His Son Jesus Christ" (I John i, 3). "Patient continuance in well doing" (Rom. ii, 7) is a very good summary of the believer's daily life.

44, 45. "And all that believed were together and had all things common." In this first gathering of the redeemed from among the Jews out of all nations (verse 5) the Spirit seems to have so fully controlled them that they manifested the spirit of their Lord and Master in so loving each other that they counted nothing their own, but wrought and lived that they might have to give to him that needeth (Eph. iv, 28). The leaven, always suggestive of evil (Lev. xxiii, 16, 17), soon began to work and to appear, and all sought their own, not the things which are Jesus Christ's. And many turned away and loved this present world or sought pre-eminence in the church instead of honoring Christ as pre-eminent in all things (Phil. ii, 21; II Tim. i, 15; iv, 10; III John 9; Col. i, 18).

46. "Continuing daily with one accord." Whether in the temple or at home, there was true fellowship and gladness and singleness of heart. They were servants of Christ indeed, doing the will of God from the heart, acceptable to God and approved of men (Eph. vi, 6; Rom. xiv, 18). This was not their manner of life one day in the week only, but every day by the grace of God. They were filled with and constantly manifesting these features of the kingdom—righteousness and peace and joy in the Holy Ghost (Rom. xiv, 17), and God was glorified in them before the people.

47. "The Lord added to the church daily such as should be saved." In the revised version the word "church" is omitted. In chapters v, 14; xi, 24, it is said that the believers were "added to the Lord." The church is the body of Christ, which began with these thousands of Jews and is still on its way toward completion, taking in all who will come from all nations. The Lord Himself is adding to Himself all who truly come to Him, but tares and wheat will grow together till the harvest, and only then shall it be seen who are the Lord's additions and who are man's. He Himself said, "Every plant which My Heavenly Father hath not planted shall be rooted up" (Matt. xv, 13). May all who read be indeed "trees of righteousness, the planting of the Lord, that He may be glorified" (Isa. lxv, 3), and greatly used by Him to bear much fruit to His glory.

Rubies.

The journal Le Diamant says there are three varieties of ruby—oriental, Siamese and the spinel. The first is the most beautiful of all colored gems. They are becoming more and more rare and, weight for weight, are valued ten to twenty fold the price of diamonds. The best come from Ceylon, India and China. The Siamese rubies are very dark red; the spinel is less richly colored. The largest ruby known is one of the crown jewels of Russia.

Atmosphere of Planet Jupiter.

Mr. Percival Lowell, director of the Flagstaff observatory in Arizona, has recently published a determination of the refraction of the atmosphere of the planet Jupiter obtained from occultations of the satellites. The resulting value is eight minutes of arc for the exterior layers of the atmosphere. It also follows from the observation that the atmosphere is of great depth.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know it.

How To Find Out.

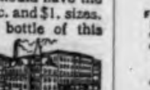

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What to Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in 50c. and $1. sizes.

You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful discovery and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail, address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper.

DO WOMEN WANT TO VOTE.

Indians, Negroes, Alaskans, Filipinos, Porto-Ricans and Women.

It is no exaggeration to say that during the past two weeks I have read at least fifty editorials and articles by men who acknowledge the justice of woman suffrage, but at the same time delude themselves into believing that they are doing no injustice to women by withholding from them that which they consider for themselves one of the most sacred rights of citizenship, viz. the ballot. The Minneapolis Times says:

"The Times desires to state, in behalf of the men of the nation, that the principal obstacle to the granting of women's suffrage is in the disinclination on the part of the large majority of women to accept such grant. This being true, it would seem to be fair to acknowledge that masculine skirts are free from stain in this regard."

This is only an excuse for deferring justice, and it would seem that those making this excuse would realize how thin it is. In the first place, how are we to judge whether women want to vote or not until we have given them the opportunity? In the four enfranchised states the women vote as generally as the men, and seem to enjoy it. If you don't believe it, just try to take the ballot from them and see what will happen. If the women do not wish to vote, and still do so from a sense of duty, they are the most conscientious beings on the face of the earth, and are certainly needed in governmental affairs.

There have been more petitions presented to our legislative bodies asking that women be given the ballot than all the other petitions combined. But why demand that a majority of women petition for the ballot when no such test has ever been required of the various classes of men that have been enfranchised since this Republic was founded? Originally only freeholders voted. Did the poor men unanimously petition for the franchise? Did a majority of the negroes in the south ask for the ballot? Have the majority of the Alaskan men asked for it? Have the various tribes of Indian men been enfranchised because the majority requested it? Did the majority of the Hawaiian men express a desire for it? Did a majority of the Porto Rican men insist upon being made voters? Is universal male suffrage provided for in the new Cuban Constitution because a majority of the native-born Chinamen ask for the ballot? Is there in the whole history of our Government one—just one—instance where any class of men have had the franchise bestowed upon them because a majority demanded it? Not in one single case has this been done; and yet legislators, politicians, editors, ministers, lawyers, dismiss the plea of women for representation with the illogical remark: "When the majority ask for it, they can have it."

No one has ever asked that those women who do not wish to vote should be made to do so. We only ask that those women who do take an interest in the affairs of their country be allowed to express that interest at the ballot box. This is simple justice, and it is always expedient to be just.

Elnora Monroe Babcock.

A Kansas Editor in Colorado.

T. A. McNeal, editor of the Topeka Mail and Breeze, has lately returned from Colorado. He says editorially:

A reader of the Mail and Breeze, asks if we made any inquiries in regard to the working of female suffrage in Colorado.

We did, and we have to say that we did not talk to a man of any political complexion who did not say that female suffrage was and is a success. Riding on the train with ex-Governor Adams, a Democrat, by the way, who would naturally be supposed to be against female suffrage, we asked how the law worked in the State.

"I have no hesitancy in saying," answered the Governor, "that it is a success. There is one thing I want to say about it, because it knocks out a favorite objection to female suffrage. The opponents said before the law was enacted that only the bad women would vote; that respectable women would not care to exercise the right of suffrage. The experience of Colorado is exactly the contrary. The bad women do not want to vote, and will not vote unless strongly urged. On the other hand, there is as large a proportion of the respectable women of Colorado who vote as there is of the men. They haven't purified the ballot entirely, but there is no question about the fact that they make the parties put up a better class of men for office than would be nominated if the women did not have the right to vote. I am strongly in favor of the law."

"I am not sure about many things politically," remarked a Republican who has taken a prominent part in Colorado politics, "but there is one thing I am sure about, and that is that female suffrage is right, and that it works all right in Colorado."

"Cadets" and Women.

Dr. Mary Putnam Jacobi, of New York City, asks the following pertinent question: "Can you suggest any reason why the 'cadets,' whose shameless business is just now receiving such vigorous denunciation, should continue to enjoy the privilege of the franchise, while their unfortunate victims are both forbidden to vote and used as a constant argument against the suffrage to other women?"

Miss Gertrude Fazel has been acting as Governor of Oklahoma. She is stenographer in the office of Governor Jenkins. The Governor has been absent in Indian Territory and last week his private secretary, Fred L. Wenner, was called to Lawton on territorial business, thus leaving Miss Fazel in charge of the office.

HEALTHFUL SHARON.

Letter From a Former Resident.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I write from Sharon, Massachusetts. This town has four times the area of Winchester, with about one-fourth as many inhabitants. The exact population is 2060. A drummer once asked, "where are the two thousand?" Seven towns bound Sharon. On the south are the Old Colony bounds. On the east the boundary is the centre line of Bay street for five miles.

The village is on the level top of a hill in the centre of the town, 300 feet above the sea level. Dennett Building, Morse Block, Pettee & Colburn's store and the town hall are noticable structures. Three churches have stood on Main street for sixty years. The green-painted standpipe near the central square holds a constantly renewed supply of spring water, abundant, sweet, and not variable in taste.

Although the railroad station is unpretentious, the station grounds are free from sidetracks, standing freight cars, and depots. Freights are taken at the Sharon Heights station. On the slope of the somewhat steep ascent from the station to the village is the base ball ground. The home team has a good record.

Massapoag pond, one mile south of the village, covers nearly a square mile. Large quantities of ice are cut every winter. The Massapoag Hotel is at the south end of the pond. Old residents say "pond," summer visitors say "lake."

Two miles west of the centre is Moore Hill, and three miles southeast is Rattle Snake Hill. At huckleberry time a rumor is started that a forty-foot snake lives on the former hill.

The farmers boast that no water runs from outside into the town. A look at the map will show that the waters from the northerly part of Sharon run through Neponset river into Massachusetts Bay, and those from the southerly part of Sharon run through Taunton river into Narragansett Bay.

In revolutionary times, cannon were cast in Sharon, some of which were used on Dorchester Heights. Deborah Sampson Garrett who lived forty years in this town, served as a soldier in the continental army. Her handsome house stands on East street. Opposite is the residence of Henry T. Schaefer, who contributes to the gaiety of Winchester and Sharon. A street near by is named Deborah Sampson street. It is proposed to celebrate soon the centennial of Mrs. Garrett's debut as a public speaker. In 1802 she appeared four successive nights in the Federal street theatre in Boston and delivered her narrative of soldier life.

Our titles are founded on deeds of the Dorchester Proprietors who owned "the new grant beyond the Blew Hills." On one of their old plans of Sharon lands are some rhymes of which the following is a stanza:

"May we our generation serve
According to God's holy will;
And from his precepts never swerve,
Labor to do our duty still."

This was in 1730. The first college boy from Sharon graduated at Harvard in 1698. His father's (Ebenezer Billings) gravestone has the oldest date, 17 17-18.

The air is fine, the trees are balmy, and the landscape beautiful. The people are full of animation, and winter as merry as June. Come here, Mr. Editor, if you ever need rest, and you will carry back a new lease of life.

A Deep Mystery.

It is a mystery why women endure backache, headache, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, fainting and dizzy spells when thousands have proved that Electric Bitters will quickly cure such troubles. "I suffered for many years with kidney trouble," writes Mrs. Phebe Cherley, of Peterson, Ia., "and a lame back pained me so I could not dress myself, but Electric Bitters wholly cured me, and, although 73 years old, I now am able to do all my housework." It overcomes constipation, improves appetite, gives perfect health. Only 50c at Grover's drug store.

Winchester Defeated.

Malden High defeated Winchester High at Malden last Friday afternoon at basket ball by a score of 16 to 14. In the first half the game was one-sided, Malden scoring 12 points to one for the Winchester team. In that period for Malden Hill scored two baskets and Burnham and Hathaway one each. Cushman of the Winchester High made one point by throwing a basket from foul. In the second period the visitors played a hard and fast game, keeping Malden down to one goal from fair ground. That goal was thrown by Hill a few seconds before time was called. Foss of the same team threw one from the foul line. For Winchester Cushman threw two goals, Smith one and Witherell one. Smith also made one point from foul. The line-up:

MALDEN HIGH.		WINCHESTER HIGH.
Burnham, r. f.		l. g., Mills
Hill, l. f.		r. g., Hovey
		r. g., Sullivan
Hathaway, c.		c., Witherell
Foss, r. g.		l. f., Smith
Dale, l. g.		r. f., Cushman
Hill, l. g.

Score—Malden High, 16; Winchester High, 14. Goals from fair ground—Hill 3, Cushman 2, Smith, Witherell, Burnham, Hathaway. Goals from foul—Cushman, Smith, Foss. Referee—Cosgrove of Winchester. Umpire—Hill of Malden. Timer—Walling of Winchester. Time—Two 20m. halves.

Winchester's Population Has Increased 90.6 Per Cent.

The following table, showing the growth during the past twenty years of what is designated as "Greater Boston," will be of interest to those to whom statistics are not dry reading matter. It will be seen that during the past twenty years that Winchester has nearly doubled in population.

A NOTABLE EVENT.

Annual Reunion and Supper of Congregational Church Members.

ADDRESSES OF MESSRS. PARKER, WHITNEY AND GUTTERSON

As noted in last week's STAR, the above social festival was a great success. We have already given credit to the ladies who had charge of the arrangements but made no extended report regarding the supper or of the feast of reason which followed, owing to lack of time before going to press. At the urgent request of the STAR the principal speakers have kindly corrected our report of what was said by them at the supper that the many friends of the church who could not be present might at least enjoy the literary part of the exercises.

After meeting in the body of the church at 7 o'clock, the company of about 500 guests proceeded to the large vestry where tables had been spread with a great abundance of solid and delicate eatables and made beautiful with flowers and ornamental candle-light. After all had been seated, the Rev. Mr. Newton, pastor of the church, called the company to order, and after a few introductory remarks offered a fervent prayer of thanksgiving for the good things spread before them and for all of God's blessings which the parish and its people enjoyed during the church year just closing.

After disposing of the creature comforts set before them, the company was called to order by Mr. Newton who congratulated the people on the evident prosperity of their church organization evinced by the large number present. He then introduced Mr. Arthur W. Hale as the toastmaster of the evening. After taking the chair and making a short congratulatory speech, he introduced the Boston University Glee Club Quartet who sang two selections, one being a recall piece. Following a few witty remarks at the expense of the coming speakers, Mr. Hale next alluded to one of the present mainstays of the church whose staying qualities in the past had also been of the most steadfast quality—Deacon Harrison Parker. Mr. Hale particularly alluded to Mr. Parker's success in raising money for charity work or extra expenditures of any kind when the church treasury was low in funds. Owing to Mr. Parker's long connection with the church he was particularly fitted for the first toast of the evening, "The Past Life of Church." Mr. Parker was received with applause and after it had subsided spoke as follows:

Mr. Chairman, the subject of my text might be called "Past Events."

To remove any lingering impression (owing to my venerable appearance) that you are looking at one of the band of 100 who left the Woburn church in 1840, I will say that I did not belong to that famous group. I did not become a member of the Sunday School till 1857. This statement does not give my age away.

It is a misfortune that the committee of this evening did not secure Mr. Abijah Thompson, the persistent historian of the church, parish and town, to glean for you the interesting events in the church and tell them in his own graphic manner.

If I were selecting a text to this toast it would be: "Remember the days of old; consider the years of many generations; ask thy father and he will show thee—the elders and they will tell thee."

Now, what are a few of the facts that we wish to recall this evening?

On January 3, 1841, the first service of worship was held on this spot.

On March 20, 1853, Sunday morning, the church was burned, with the new organ and valuable furniture. Only a few things were saved, as the Sunday School library case, the silver communion service and the clock now hanging on this wall. This clock was presented to the first church by the Young Ladies' Benevolent Association, and for fifty years or more it has ticked away the seconds that have made up the intervening years, to now. What a story it could tell you, if permitted to speak—of the influence of the Holy Spirit—of Sunday School work, as well as many a joyous and festive evening like this.

Oct 11, 1854, the present church was dedicated, and in 1857 I became a member of the Sunday School. How well I remember Mr. S. S. Holton and Dr. Chapin, both teachers of classes of boys, and the superintendents of the Sunday School—Dea. Abbott, Dea. O. R. Clark, Dea. Skillings, and so on down to the present time.

Rev. R. T. Robinson, the fourth pastor of the church and my first pastor here, was lowly in character and his life will never be forgotten by those who knew him and received his messages. He was our pastor from 1852 to 1871, when he died. During his pastorate came the years of the Civil War, and all the mighty events that clustered around them. Special services were often held to ask Divine aid, and one of the greatest rallies was held in the church above, when a large number of men came to the front and dedicated their lives to the cause of their country. Others, before and since, have dedicated themselves to their Lord and Saviour—the great revival occurred in 1858, when at the July Communion 110 persons filled the aisles and front of the room above, taking upon themselves the solemn vows of membership; 133 joined the church that year. * * *

Rev. Mr. Dascomb was pastor from 1874-1879. They have both passed away.

Rev. C. R. Seymour, now living, and doing a grand work in Bennington, Vt., was pastor from 1879-1888.

But how shall I condense the story? The committee gave me 5 minutes for the history of 60 years—one minute for each 12 years.

Dea. Abbott—To serve the church was his highest ambition. How often in this very room has he prayed and repeated psalms of praise, and how he copied his Master, in going about to do good.

Oliver R. Clark was of strong personality—active in state, town and church affairs. It was through his efforts that the town secured the common in front of the church. He was always ready to labor—"in season, and out of season," for the welfare of the society.

Mr. John R. Cobb was a great temperance worker; Rev. George Cook was a scholar and historian. Stephen Cutter, Stephen H. Cutter, Mr. Moses A. Herrick.

Mr. J. C. Johnson was organist and music teacher. He was the organizer of the Christmas festival, in Boston and vicinity. As a boy, I used to come to his Saturday afternoon music class, and learn the scale. I also remember how proud I felt, as a boy, to stand at the end of this vestry, at one of his Christmas festivals singing, "Old Dog Tray is ever faithful."

The names of other men and women could be added to this list, whose labor in the cause of this church in the past is remembered with gratitude. Many interesting events and anecdotes might be mentioned this evening, but I refrain, as an old member of the Sabbath School is promised half of my time.

After Mr. Parker's speech had been well applauded, the toastmaster arose and said: "We have a Winchester gentleman with us tonight who once belonged to our Sunday School and attended our church services. He dropped away from us a good while ago and therefore I cannot say much about his church standing at present. I can say, however, that he knows much about the past life of this parish and its way-back history. I take pleasure in introducing to you Mr. Arthur E. Whitney."

Mr. Whitney was cordially received after which he said:

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen:—I thank you for this kind reception, but I confess I am a little embarrassed by not knowing very definitely what I am expected to do or talk about. You will note I am not down on the program as a speaker or on the bill of fare as an eatable, neither has the Toast-master given me any toast to reply to, and we have had no rehearsal or conference. I imagine he may consider me a kind of a relish or condiment to be taken between the regular intellectual dishes, not worth a name perhaps, and to be partaken of sparingly, that is a little of me might do as salt or pepper to season something better! Or it may be your Toast-master means to imply by the qualification in the first part of his introduction that I am at present a "back slider" in church life and work and might be expected to respond for that numerous class of stragglers which saps the spiritual life of every community. But I do not feel that I am in good standing in that doubtful, looking-backward class as I am sliding ahead (but not down hill) on another religious coast just now, or on what some of you might think, a dangerous "teter-bender," theologically speaking! On the whole I decline to speak for the class of back-sliders. In fact I do not want to talk theology at all as I might be in a great minority in this gathering. I will say this, however, that in spite of the difference in opinions as to where we are all standing now spiritually, or where we may be expected to bring up at the end of our earthly career, I think that all of us here present can agree on this one positive fact, that we shall all go, when we leave this world, just where we belong and nowhere else! I certainly expect to meet you all there.

The Toast-master has spoken more favorably of my knowlege of past events in the history of this community than of my present knowledge of church life and work. I confess to a fondness for associating with men and events of long ago because I see so much in the present which is not pleasing to me, for the reason, I suppose, I stand too near the stage and see too many of the ropes. I can go back, even personally, of my Brother Parker's story and I thought it was understood by the Toast-master I was to be Mr. Parker's follower and have one-half of his allotted time, one-half of his supper and tell the most doubtful half of his story! Perhaps this will be safer for me now than to talk theology. To begin with my personal recollections of the history of this parish, I can well remember standing one Sunday morning on a cricket at the window of my old home on Walnut street, and see the flames wreath around the steeple of the first church building eating its life away until it fell to ground. I also remember going to the scene of the fire in the afternoon after the building was burnt. I went with my father and I remember I was surprised at the good time all seemed to be having eating and drinking on the common where out-of-town firemen were being fed on crackers, cod-fish and coffee, just as if it were not Sunday, the latent Puritan blood in me not approving of such seeming desecration. I next remember the building of this present church edifice, especially the spire, the upper half of which was built inside of the lower square part of the tower and raised up bodily through and above it. I remember watching the smaller part as it was lifted up with ropes and screws. One side was lifted, then the other, and as it got near the top it leaned first to the east and then to the west in a most unsteady manner. When I thought surely it would fall, it would straighten itself and then lean the other way on its upward journey. At last it got to its abiding place, safe and sound although it took a crooked course to get there. The late Elmore Johnson, who was buried from this church last week, framed this building and raised the steeple. The next great event in completing the church building was in getting the bell into position. I remember after it was hung, it was rung for an hour or so the first evening and I thought to myself how much might happen before it would be taken down from its new home and much has happened. The new town clock was something of a mystery at this time as it was presented to the town by some unknown giver whose name was not divulged till after his death many years after making his generous gift. It was the best clock which could be made at the time and was built by the Howard Clock Co. The giver was a Mr. Smith who then lived on the corner of Church and Wildwood streets.

The choice of a top piece for the steeple nearly rent the parish in twain. The idea of a cross was very obnoxious to some influential members of the parish as it seemed like giving up their ideas to "popery." Many wanted a weather cock of some kind, obedient to every wind that blows. Some said they would not enter the building if a Catholic cross was put upon it. The architect, Mr. Estey of Framingham, insisted that his plans called for a cross and he would not allow any alteration looking to anything else, so his brother once told me. He also explained very plausibly, to ease certain tender consciences, that the design called for a Greek cross, not a Roman Catholic cross with square ends and corners. Assisted by the broad men of the parish, Mr. Estey had his way at last and the cross was put up as originally designed. It was a great innovation at that time to place a cross of any kind on a Congregational church building but how glad we all are now that this Winchester mother church put up the first one! The present feeling in the matter indicates how much New England theology has broadened even within our own time. Think of a cockerel up there in its place! When I see the sacred emblem of human sacrifice on this church, as I saw it this morning, lifting its head way above the mist covering and hiding the low level where men abide, the bright morning sun bathing it in splendor, I instinctively think of that grand old Unitarian hymn (pardon me for so claiming it, as the whole world owns it now,) which appeals to every Christian believer who knows how glorious it is to sacrifice the lower life for the higher, the cross for the crown:

"In the cross of Christ I glory,
Towering o'er the wrecks of time;
All the light of sacred story
Gathers round its head sublime.

When the woes of life o'ertake me,
Hopes deceive, and fears annoy,
Never shall the cross forsake me;
Lo! it glows with peace and joy."

After the new church was completed, a work of much magnitude for the society, the whole town was invited to partake of its spiritual hospitality. Mrs. Thomas P. Tenney kindly invited my parents to let me go to the Sunday school and they consented. I was in an infant class which sat near the furnace in the small vestry. It was a hot place both in summer and winter. I was put to work on a little yellow colored book called the Westminster Shorter Catechism. It might have been short enough for some but it was too long for me. I learned the first question and answer and know it now and believe in its truth. It was, "What is the chief end of man?" Answer: "To glorify God and enjoy Him forever." I thought more of the original catechism than I did of the miserable 8 or 10 line verses injected into the book by some very poor poet. It was hard work to commit those verses as they meant nothing to me. I struggled with them for a year or so and then left the school as my father said I need not learn the verses. Mrs. Tenney, who did splendid work in that school, got me back again after a while and I went into another class which had easier text books. Later I went into the larger school in Mr. Edward Chaloner's class which sat near the spot where I now stand. Of course you do not have such infant books as I have described in use at present. I have no doubt the mental discipline was good for me. Besides many

VIGOR

Beauty and Grace Come Easily to Women Who Rely Upon Dr. Greene's Nervura.

The glow of health and physical strength carries fascination with it. Prettiness will soon fade unless it is sustained by health, but the power and influence of the healthy, glowing, vigorous woman is beyond measure. Dr. Greene's Nervura helps women realize ideal womanhood.

MRS. MARGARET DAXON, 209 East 29th St., New York City, says:

"A year ago my husband was taken very sick, and I had all the care of nursing him until he was strong enough for the doctor to send him to the country. It was a terrible strain on me. Of course I worried about him terribly. If I had not worried so much, I do not suppose working so hard would have hurt me but with the worry and the over-work together, I was fearfully run down. I lost flesh, and I was pale as a ghost. I would jump at every little thing from nervousness.

"My back ached awfully, too. It would hurt me so in the morning that I couldn't stand straight, but would have to crawl out of bed and put my corsets on to strengthen me before I could stand. No one knows the dreadful agony this caused me. There is nothing more wearing than backache and nervousness combined. I heard of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and that it was a wonderful medicine for keeping up the strength in a case like this, and that it was good for backache and nervousness. I took two bottles of it, and I wish to say that I have been cured by this wonderful remedy. I cannot say too much for it, and how much it has helped me. I have gained good, solid flesh, and that awful backache is gone. I feel splendid when I get up mornings. I have a good color, and have perfect health, thanks to Dr. Greene's Nervura."

Protect your nerves and your beauty with Dr. Greene's Nervura. Send for the health and beauty book, just issued by Dr. Greene, which tells you about this. It contains the secret of woman's success. Dr. Greene will give you advice free. His address is 34 Temple Place, Boston, Mass. Call or write.

A Good Recommendation.

"I have noticed the sale on Chamberlain's Stomach & Liver Tablets is almost invariably to those who have once used them," says Mr. J. H. Weber, a prominent druggist of Cascade, Iowa. What better recommendation could any medicine have than for people to call for it when again in need of such a remedy? Try them when you feel dull after eating, when you have a bad taste in your mouth, feel bilious, have no appetite or when troubled with constipation, you are certain to be delighted with the prompt relief which they afford. For sale by Young & Brown, Druggists.

A good idea has been put in use on the "Lake Shore" line of electric cars out of Middleboro. When a car returns to the barn for the night, it is cleaned up and thoroughly fumigated, which gives the traveling public a degree of immunity from contagious diseases. This method appeals to the public as especially desirable at just this time when small pox is prevalent. This would be a good scheme to put into practice in this section of the State.

Annual Meeting of First Cong. Church, Jan. 20, 1902.

A time for reports embodying facts and figures concerning the last year and of action in preparation for the work of the coming year. Church and Sunday School and C. E. Society officers had in hand an array of statistics adapted to encourage and stimulate to new and larger activity along the various lines of christian service. The financial showing was cheering. The apparent fruitage of the year was an earnest of what may come in response to faithful endeavor.

The year has witnessed admissions to membership, by letter 12 and on confession of faith 23. The losses have been, by death 11, by dismission to other churches 7. The net gain in membership is therefore 17. The resident members are 462 and the Sunday School numbers 460. The average morning church attendance has been 319, the average S. S. attendance for 44 Sabbaths, 259. The C. E. Society has 48 active and 30 associate members.

No new methods of service were introduced, but a care for the interests of others appeared in conferring authority upon the Sunday School Directors, with the Librarian, to give such books from the library as have served their purpose here to communities where they might have a new lease of useful life.

The Sunday School received an enlarged appropriation from $250 to $325. Summer arrangements for the S. S. were provisionally made. Compensation was voted the church Treasurer for the service the current year, and the request of the Society for a transfer of the loose money in the morning collections to its treasury was granted. The election of officers was as follows:

Church Clerk for one year — Edwin B. Palmer.
Deacon for six years—Chas. E. Redfern.
Church Visitors for six years—Mrs. Mary A. Blaisdell, *Mrs. Emma F. Berry.
Church Treasurer—Frank E. Rowe.
Assistant Church Treasurer—*Harry W. Morrill.
Auditor of Church and Sunday School accounts—*E. Lawrence Barnard.
Church Committee—Henry C. Ordway, *Rev. S. Winchester Adriance.

SUNDAY SCHOOL OFFICERS.

Superintendant—*A. S. F. Kirby.
Assistant Supt.—*A. Merrick Parker.
Treasurer—Edward H. Rice.
Ass't Treas.—Geo. H. Hamilton.
Secretary—*Joseph C. Adams.
Librarian—Geo. C. Coit.
Ass't Librarians — Robert C. Boone, Ernest W. Hatch, Walter Adams, *Richard Stinson.
Directors—Pastor, Superintendents, Miss Kate F. Pond. Miss S. E. M. Folts, Clarence J. Allen.
* Newly chosen.

A Trial Will Convince.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Please allow me space in your valuable paper to give a brief account of a horse trot, which I as well as a number of sporting blood love to talk about. Around town, since the good sleighing began, we have heard the boys who think they have good steppers, say "Well, you ought to have been on Pleasant street this afternoon and seen me clean out Chute of Woburn or Bigelow of Medford, or Gilbert of Winchester." Having no horse of my own and being anxious to see things just as they are, I went over for an hour last Friday afternoon. I found lots of fun, but many of the big talkers left about the time the good ones came on the road. I found my friend Gilbert bunched in the best of them, and always coming out a good leader. He noticed that I was anxious to see the fun, so he kindly invited me to ride with him next day after 3 p. m., which invitation I willingly accepted. When we arrived on the trotting ground he passed the reins over to me saying "Go for any one you wish." By the way, the horse we had with us was Lady Banker (2.23), full of life and ready for business. We were handicapped in having two in the sleigh while the others carried but one person, nevertheless we picked out Mr. Bigelow who held the reins over China Boy (2.24¼), a brother to Mr. Gilbert's Glimmer (2.23½), and off we went. The drive for about three-fourths of a mile was the handsomest sight ever seen on this track, the horses being neck and neck, with Lady Banker slightly in the lead, to the finish.

The next one we tackled was driven by a well known veteran of Lexington—a perfect gentleman—the possessor of horses above comment. Our "go" with him was a clean sweep, and I found that during these spins that I had never sat behind a cleaner trotting horse than is Lady Banker.

On Monday afternoon I had a second invitation to accompany Mr. Gilbert, this time to see what Glimmer (2.23½) could do. If anything I was more pleased with her performance than I was with her mate, Lady Banker. She is a perfect trotter and game to the finish. We started with the best of them, among which was Mr. Chute of Woburn, and found not the least trouble in coming out of the bunch a leader.

Now, boys of Winchester, if you think you have any chance with the above named horses you are laboring under a delusion. Mr. Gilbert can be found almost any fair day on the best roads and no doubt will be glad to accommodate all with a half-mile spin.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

The membership contest which began Dec. 15, closed last Friday night, and has resulted to date in gaining 39 new members for the Association. The "Lobsters" were the winning team by a wide margin, securing 26 to the "Indian's" 9. Since the contest closed four more have joined as a result of the "Indian's" canvass. $115.50 was brought in by the "Lobsters" and $23 by the "Indians," or counting the amount by the "Indians" since closing, $40, making a total of $135.50 as a result of a little systematic work on the part of the members. Twenty-one different members were successful in securing new members. One secured seven; four secured three each; four secured two each. The work should not end here even though there is no contest on. Many more men have been seen and some have purposed joining. These men should be followed up carefully and persistently. The Association should have by April first 300 members. It now has 247, the largest in its history, and more than three times as many as there were three years and a half ago. These facts and statements were made at a supper to new members and the winning team last night. The supper was furnished by the Woman's Auxiliary.

The men's meeting next Sunday will be addressed by Rev. E. P. Smith of Stoneham. Mr. Smith is known at these meetings having spoken twice before. The boys' meeting will be led by one of the boys. A good time is expected. These meetings were attended by eighty different men and boys last Sunday.

The talk by Mr. E. J. Rich last Saturday night, was a rare treat and was greatly appreciated by all present.

Dr. G. N. P. Mead will speak to the gymnasium men tonight on the "Physiology of the Muscular System." This will be the third talk of the series on physiology by local physicans.

The senior basket ball team do not play this week. The next game will be with Haverhill in the Winchester gymnasium next Thursday. The Winchester team play only strictly registered amateurs and always with a sanction from the Athletic League of North America, the controlling power in Association athletics with membership and rules interchangeable with those of the A. A. U.

Last week the juniors went to Malden to play the Malden High School team and lost by two points. The Malden boys are a very heavy team, three of their men weighing about 180 pounds, the other two above 150. Winchester's weight is only about 130. Wednesday afternoon these teams met again on the Winchester floor when the home team won by a score of 33 to 19, literally playing all round their heavy visitors. It was a remarkably clean game the Malden boys being trained down to strict ball and Y. M. C. A. spirit. It is a pleasure to meet such a team. The game was the best of the year for the juniors though a very hard fought one.

THE BROWN-TAIL MOTH.

Now is the Time to Combat this Dangerous Nuisance—Town Tree Warden Sounds a Warning.

The Town Tree Warden requests that property owners in Winchester take precautions at once to save their fruit and shade trees from defoliation next spring and summer. The brown-tail moth, an imported pest, which has caused a great deal of damage to trees in surrounding towns, is present in Winchester. Now is the time to handle this insect successfully while hundreds of young caterpillars may be killed at every stroke. If persons who have trees upon their private places will look them over now they can easily ascertain whether there are any brown-tails on them or not. They are especially fond of pear and elm trees but are sometimes found on other species. At this time of the year their presence is indicated by the bunches of dry leaves spun together with silk and hanging from the outermost sprays of the branches. Each such nest contains from 200 to 300 young caterpillars. When spring opens these youngsters sally forth and wax fat and strong by feeding on the buds and young leaves. No tree thus preyed upon can continue in health and if we would preserve our shade trees and orchards now is the the time to make away with the insects.

A pole pruner, which can be had from 6 to 10 feet in length at a cost of one dollar, is the tool to use. With this the nests on fruit trees can be reached from the ground. In the case of shade trees climbing will be necessary. All the nests should be cut from the trees and immediately burned, and it is well to examine the ground under the trees when the snow is off to be sure that no nests have blown off or been overlooked. On no account fail to burn the nests at once.

The principal points of infestation in our town seems to be in the vicinity of Symmes corner and along Cambridge street. It is the duty of every citizen to keep his trees clean for the protection of the community. In Europe, the native land of this pest, laws have long been in existence and enforced, compelling citizens to distroy this and other insects under heavy penalty. It is hoped that Massachusetts may never be obliged to thus drive her citizens into a sense of their public duty.

Aside from this insect's destructive way with trees it is capable of inflicting very serious pain upon human beings. A caterpillar, or even a bit of the hair from his coat, coming in contact with the human skin causes a violent, most painful, and lasting irritation, equal to, if not worse, than that produced by poison ivy or poison sumac. This no myth.

Water on Church Street a Nuisance.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

For several winters—ever since becoming a resident and citizen of this generally charming town—I have noticed that whenever there is a thaw, pedestrians have been obliged to wade through the torrent that flows across the Church street sidewalk just above the main entrance to Rangeley. The street in question is the main thoroughfare for the western end of the town, there is a good concrete sidewalk, and but for the defect at this point one could generally go dry shod. But here rubbers are useless, and if one cannot jump the torrent, the only alternatives are to take to the roadway, or take wet feet. Besides the ordinary passing to and from the centre and the railroad station, many school children pass here both to the Wadleigh school and the High school.

At first I wondered why the owners of the property did not repair the breach in the wall and make a suitable change in the drainage provisions; but as the thing continued and recurred without any sign of an effort to remedy the annoyance, wonder changed to indignation. If the owners are so lax in abating what is a veritable nuisance, where are the authorities—the Supt. of Streets or Selectmen—who should bring the necessary pressure to bear?

Although not a lawyer, I am inclined to doubt the right of the owners of private property to drain their land across a public way. If the case were reversed, there is small doubt that the town, if delinquent about correcting the fault, would soon have a damage suit to defend.

WEST SIDE.

Ellery A. Carter.

Mr. Ellery A. Carter passed away at West Levant, Me., yesterday, after an illness of about a year. Mr. Carter, previous to going to West Levant, some twelve years ago, carried on a provision store in the old Lyceum building. He was born in Boston 43 years ago, and when quite young came to Winchester with his parents. He leaves a widow and one daughter, also a mother, Mrs. Susan V. Carter, and a brother, Mr. Geo. H. Carter, both of Winchester.

Newsy Paragraphs.

Several hundred persons attended the reception Tuesday afternoon given by Mrs. Henry Lincoln Houghton at her home on Dix street from 3 to 5 o'clock. Mrs. Houghton and her friend Mrs. Charles Pond received in a charming manner. The sociability of the occasion was very pleasant and was added to by charming music by a ladies' orchestra. The frappe tea and chocolate were served by married ladies, and an elegant spread was served by a caterer.

Some of the members of the Calumet bowling team missed the train from Newton Friday night which connected with the last train for Winchester, and were obliged to spend the night away from home.

By vote of the town, all reports were to be in the hands of the Town Clerk ready for the printer by Jan. 10, excepting that of the Auditor, who had to the 20th. Promptly on time the reports went forward, but the Auditor had to hustle and work nights and over time to get his in.

During the present year not a single note has been issued by the town for any purpose, not even in anticipation of taxes. This was never known to happen before, and no other town can show a similar instance. This may never happen again.

The Appropriations Committee met Tuesday evening, but transacted no business of interest beyond discussing in a general way the appropriations. Active work will not commence until the Town Reports are out. All the departments have sent in estimates of appropriations required for next year.

We received this week a copy of El Pais published in San Juan, P. R., dated Jan. 13, for which we thank Mr. Fred Ham. The paper has a long account of a foot ball game on the Saturday before between two teams designated as the Reds and Blues. Mr. Ham played l. h. b. for the Reds who won by the score of 5 to 0. Fred always was on the winning side when living in Winchester.

The brown-tail moth, it is reported, has been discovered at Symmes Corner and on Cambridge street. If a tree has nests on it, they can be plainly seen now when it is free from leaves. All should examine their trees and remove the nests.

The storehouse of Stone & Forsyth, paper dealers, near Federal and Summer streets, Boston, was damaged by fire Saturday evening to the extent of about $40,000 which is covered by insurance. Mr. E. H. Stone of this town is the senior member of the firm.

The fire department was called out last year 19 times. Fire loss $2990, and the insurance was $2950. Winchester is practically immune from serious fires.

With the present number of turnouts on the line of the Woburn division of the Boston & Northern electric road, it is a matter for doubt whether the time of 90 minutes from Medford to Lowell can be maintained. The question is being thoroughly studied into by Supt. Brackett.

FOR INVESTMENT.

There is no investment which is more satisfactory than a good building lot acquired at a price which will assure the purchaser of an immediate appreciation in value, the result of first-class development. I am able to offer such an opportunity through the purchase, by Mr. A. Wilbert Starratt, of what was formerly known as the Bacon Estate, off Highland Avenue in Winchester. This property consists of 264,000 sq. ft. of land situated on a side hill with a Southerly and Westerly exposure and protected on the North and East by a precipitous cliff. The tract is about seven minutes walk from the centre of the Town and four minutes from the electrics; it is adjacent to the Middlesex Fells and a stone's throw from the Mystic Valley Driveway, the main entrance to the Fells. The development is being carried out under the direction of Ernest W. Bowditch, the well known landscape architect, and under his supervision there is now, in the process of construction, a forty foot macadam roadway, with paved gutters, loam spaces and gravel sidewalks, which has been laid out in such a manner as to preserve the many large shade trees on the place. Sewer, water and gas pipes are laid through the entire roadway. There are 21 lots varying in size from 7,500 to 30,000 sq. ft. and of this number 12 have already been sold, upon which there have been already built, or are now in the process of construction, altogether ten houses which comply with suitable restrictions, and are a distinct benefit to the whole development. The nine lots now in my hands for sale are offered at a remarkably reasonable figure which cannot but prove attractive to the home seeker or investor.

During the past week there has arisen much confusion among subscribers to the telephone because of a change in their numbers. This was owing to the installation of a new switch board in the central station and separating of the different services and giving each a section to itself, such for instance as the measured service, the flat rate, and trunk section, so known at the exchange. This greatly simplified the work and allows of better service as a girl is assigned to each. YOUNG PEOPLES' RELIGIOUS UNION.

Mr. T. G. Stanton spoke before the Young People's Religious Union last Sunday evening on the subject "the Ascent of Vesuvius, with Digressions."

He told of the way in which the volcano is climbed, of the fields of lava that are crossed and of the steam that issues from the fissures in the sides of the mountain. He spoke of the splendid display at night, which can be seen fifty miles at sea, when the volcano belches forth great volumes of smoke, that are lighted by "the eternal fires," and gave a vivid description of the famous bay of Naples, and of the contour of the country up and down the coast. He touched upon the politics of Italy and gave some interesting and astonishing statistics.

His talk was made all the more interesting by the knowledge that he is most familiar with the region lying all around the Mediterranean Sea.

The leader of the meeting was Miss Sophia Wilson, and Miss Bertha Russel was in charge of music. Mr. James Russell sang two songs.

Next Sunday evening Miss Alice Symmes will give an address. The meeting will be in charge of Miss Alice C. Newman and the music, of Mr. Wilder Parkhurst.

All are cordially invited to these meetings.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

It should be borne in mind that several hundred houses in town cannot be connected with the public sewers because they have no water fixtures excepting the single faucet. But there are plenty of others that have the needed fixtures and still are using cesspools. Many of the latter should be compelled to enter.

It is so desirable that the tax rate should be still further lowered, that it is well worth while to make a decided effort for it even if we do not spend quite so much money in some directions as the departments desire. As a suburb of Boston we shall continue to grow and can afford to be liberal in appropriations, but not extravagant. We cannot afford to be mean, and there is little danger of it. While a low tax rate is of benefit to all, it is of greatest benefit to the laborer and mechanic, as it results in more building and work as well as reducing cost of living.

There has been expended on account of streets in Winchester in the past eight years $250,000. How many citizens realize it? Although this expenditure has been of great advantage to the town, if it is necessary in order to keep the tax rate down can we not afford to haul in a little in this direction?

Apropos of the Sunday Herald's story about the opposition to Sam McCall it is pretty difficult to see how he can be disciplined when he has the votes of the people behind him. How does the G. O. P. propose to do it?

The price of electric current in Winchester may be cheap enough but the light certainly is not what it should be. It is very dim.

It looks now as if the town report would be out before the caucus. If it is, it will be the first time, although there has never been any good reason why it should not have been out as early as that every year. We certainly should know what our officials have done before renominating them. What form of caucus we should have is a question, but we do not want a cut-and-dried affair. Why not put all names on one ballot?

If Senator Williams cannot think of something better to protect town treasuries, he had better call in assistance. A proper system of auditing is what is needed by most towns.

The interior of our Town Hall is beginning to look shabby. Large numbers of the seats are out of repair and besides looking badly, tear the clothing. In several places the plaster is broken away and the stage drops are very unsightly from wear, etc. Cities and towns should keep all their public buildings and other property in good condition and looking well, and our people certainly desire it.

Now let us have 4th of July in the appropriations list and have a public recognition of our national holiday. It should be an annual feature in every city and town. Private celebrations do not fill the bill.

Don't forget Manchester Field at the town meeting, but ask questions about it. Remember, we have about $75,000 planted there. Faith has not been kept with us, and while our Park Commissioners are very nice men, they don't seem to make headway with the Metropolitan Board.

The Mediterranean Country.

Mr. T. G. Stanton spoke before the Young People's Religious Union at the Unitarian church last Sunday evening, his subject being "The Mediterranean Country and an Ascent of the Volcano Vesuvius." It would seem Mr. Stanton has made more than one visit to the crater, and his descriptions, partaking strongly of the personal element, were listened to with considerable interest.

Of the Mediterranean Country, he spoke of its early glories and of its decadence, in part as follows: Nature has been lavish in all this northern Mediterranean land. From the rock of Gibralter well called the "Pillars of Hercules"—to the Bosphorus—"the Golden Horn"— is a region of entrancement. Have not these shores been the rhapsody of all travelers. I will not compete with Byron and Keats and our own Longfellow, who in his winter home in Cambridge sang reminiscently of these shores,

"Sweet the memory is to me
Of a land beyond the sea,
Where the waves and mountains meet,
Where amid her mulberry-trees
Sits Amalfi in the heat,
Bathing ever her white feet
In the tideless summer seas."

Everywhere along the Mediterranean shores the mind is stimulated by historic association. Not only natural beauty here, but history, legend and poetry are in every inch of it:—the mild sunny climate, the turquoise sky, the clear atmosphere and the blue waters, combine with the rest to make for the imagination a picture unsurpassed.

Memories of the early classics cluster here; the refinements and art of Greece, the power and glories of the Roman Empire, the triumphs of Hannibal, Alexander, Caesar, the patriotism and bravery of Marathon and Thermopylae, the worlds triumphs to this day in architecture, the philosophies of Phythagorus, Herodotus, Aristotle, of Socrates, Zenophon and Plato,—the birthplace of the Saviour of the World:—for not only in the north, but along its southern shores—although less picturesque—the Mediterranean from Tangier and Algiers, to Egypt and the Holy Land, what precious remembrances, what history, what romance. Tales of the Slave Mart, the Slave Galleys, the Barbary Pirates, the Vendetta of Sicily, the Bandits of Corsica. Carthage, one time rival in power and splendor to Rome itself. The Moor, cast out of his beautiful Alhambra in Spain on this coast of Africa, Nelson and Trafalgar, Napoleon at the pyramids, the Sphinx, oldest monument made by human hands, Ptolemies, Cleopatra, Pharaohs,—Cities of Alexandria and Heliopolis—centers of the world's learning in their time. Highway of trade between Orient and Occident. Scene of the long struggle between Islam and Christianity, Saladin, and the Crusaders, The Knights of Malta, Moses, Sinai, Bethlehem. This is but a partial catalogue. I am quite conscious of it. How the fancy grows dizzy in contemplation of the rich associations that crowd the entire circuit of this Mediterranean Country.

It is a striking and impressive lesson to consider how in the lapse of time much of the glory of these Mediterranean shores faded away. How the great nations hereabout were humbled in dust, semi-barbarism taking the place of culture, the Maffia and Banditti succeeding Roman law, the religion of our Saviour largely driven out of the land of its origin by the Moslem.

"Greece a spectre haunts her heroes graves
And Rome's vast ruins darken Tibers waves."

Spain once mistress of the sea, holding more empire abroad than all the rest of that continent, in today a negligable quantity in the councils of Europe. Italy, Crete and Greece—until recently—divided up, parcelled out and kicked about, the odd change in the adjustments of Europe's balance of power. Egypt, centuries decadent, impoverished,—plundered by its rulers that a few Pasha's might live in luxurious splendor. Carthage, no longer so much as a geographical expression,—Pompeiis Pillar almost the sole surviving monument of ancient Alexandria, and at Heliopolis, a solitary half buried obelisk, marks,—in this land of Goshen—Cleopatras' city of the sun.

A NOTABLE EVENT.

good men now claim that very youthful instruction is the most important. A friend of mine, whom I agree with most always, says that kindergarten instruction before 5 years of age will keep boys out of jail when they get older. The instruction I received here may have helped me in the same way as I have not been in jail as yet!

Our whole family went to church here in my early days, more or less regularly. I remember all the people connected with the church and where they sat, particularly the two Blanchards who came from Burlington every Sunday. They passed away long ago and left no successors to hear my remarks as they were both old bachelors. They were good men and faithful friends of this church but how they did like to look around as often as the congregation turned about to view the choir as was then the custom! They did not stare as hard at the ladies of their own age either as they did at the younger and best dressed. I concluded at the time that it was a great treat for these Burlington gentlemen to go to church in Winchester.

This church provided most of the amusements for the young people of the town 30 or 40 years ago. The late James C. Johnson, organist of the church at the time, was a blessing to the young people of Winchester. He was the first one to introduce Christmas tree festivals into Boston and New England, holding his first one in Tremont Temple. After he moved to Winchester, he held a singing school for children in the vestry of this church for many years, free to all the children in town, the church supplying the room free of rent. At Christmas Mr. Johnson would give a children's concert followed by a Christmas tree celebration, all receiving presents of some kind. In the early summer he would organize May parties for the children in the neighboring woods. I remember very well one such party held in Rangeley before a house was ever built there. The singing school was held Saturday forenoons throughout the year. It was the custom to play games on rainy Saturdays on the theory that not many would be present, but more went on rainy days than on others. Mr. Johnson was a sweet, good man for the children and all the amusement of a public nature we had in town came through his instrumentality as organist of this church and his interest in children. The first day I attended this singing school, another boy enticed me to go in swimming in Wedge Pond, neither of us knowing the way to the pond or anything about the proper swimming places. We went into the water at the foot of the Wedge Pond way among the bushes and into the mud. This schoolmate of mine, Ezra Ingalls, son of our village doctor, was drowned a short time afterwards in the pond while in swimming with other boys, much to the sorrow of the whole town. He was buried from this church. My first swimming expedition to Wedge Pond made me acquainted with the Wedge Pond Way, an acquaintance which has grown into friendship although it has been of some trouble to me to back up my friendship lately!

But I am afraid I am not going back far enough into past history, therefore I will jump the intervening years and take you back to the days of the first church of Charlestown, in whose parish this community originally belonged. I have a written communication for you from the first minister of that church, Rev. Zachariah Symmes, in the shape of a leaf from one of his sermons. As my Brother Vinton may trip me if I do not report correctly, I will read his ancestor's communication from a type-written copy I have translated by means of a magnifying glass. When Mr. Symmes took charge of this parish, established in 1632, it embraced present Winchester, a portion of Woburn, the whole of Stoneham, Melrose, Malden, Everett, Charlestown proper, and a part of Medford. Mr. Symmes was therefore the first minister to the community now called Winchester, and the Winchester Congregational Society is a direct descendant from the first church established by our Puritan forefathers at Charlestown.

The two pages of the sermon are written on one small sheet of paper, both sides being written upon and numbered 21 and 22. The sheet is six inches by four and every part of it is utilized. The handwriting is fine but distinct and plainly indicates that Mr. Symmes was an educated, scholarly man, who made good use of the quill in his efforts to guide his flock into holier ways of living. The benediction, "Amen," marks the close of the 3d section of the sermon, the "Fourthly" being represented by six lines only at the bottom of the 22d page of the discourse, which was evidently written preparatory to the observance of the rite of holy communion.

Before reading the few living words and thoughts preserved to us on this little, frail piece of paper, let us consider briefly the life of the Rev. Zachariah Symmes, which this little memorial, the work of his own hands, the out-pouring of his own spirit, seems to bring very near to us to night. Mr. Symmes was born at Canterbury, England, April 5, 1599. He graduated from Emanuel College, Cambridge, in 1620. His first office was that of lecturer at St. Anthony's church, London. Being frequently harrassed for non-conformity in the Bishop's courts, he removed to Dunstable in 1625, where he continued for eight years as rector in the established church at that place. For conscience sake he gave up his home and living at Dunstable, gave up his friends and all his attachments to his native land, journeyed across the sea with his wife and seven small children and took charge of the church at Charlestown, erected almost in a wilderness. His outlying farm of 300 acres, granted him by the town, extended from very near the Winchester Congregational Church lot to Mystic lake, this remote territory being then styled by Edward Johnson, "the highest part of the yet-peopled land." His farm-house, occupied by his son, William, stood near the centre of our Winchester playground. His friend, the Rev. John Harvard, also had a farm of 300 acres granted to him, situated at present Winchester Highlands. He, for a brief, time supplied the Charlestown pulpit and was a member of the church until consumption ended his brief but helpful life.

What was it that drove these men, in common with most of our ancestors, from their comfortable English homes into the wilderness of New England? It was because the established church of old England in which they had been brought up had become so corrupt, so worldly in its administration of spiritual affairs that they could not, with clear consciences remain longer in the fold any more than Martin Luther could remain in his established church a century earlier. The fragment of a sermon presented to your attention this evening which has been preserved almost by chance, is the only morsel of written word from the pulpit life of Zachariah Symmes known to exist at present. It is well it should be made public at this good-cheer meeting of the granddaughter church of Charlestown where so many of Mr. Symmes' descendants have lived and died and where a number now attend church.

The wording on the leaf from the middle of the long ago sermon before us naturally begins abruptly as we know nothing of the context. In the latter part of the fragment you will note Mr. Symmes is earnest in asking for more and more wisdom from the "Father of Light," to guide him into the ways of righteousness, the paths of peace. He desired to know the way God wanted him to go and he would go therein. He did not ask for creature comforts, only for spiritual guidance, spiritual wisdom. Any man, earnest in mind and heart to straightway journey toward God and holiness, will be sure to reach his journey's end in time, even if in his human blindness he occasionally misses the right path and sometimes even stumbles and falls. Of such men and of like mind were the early apostles of the Puritan church of New England. Our heritage, our debt to them, we can never repay except by emulating their example and pass down to posterity equally inspiring lives to encourage those coming after us in their inevitable conflicts in favor of right living. As the deeds and sacrifices of our Puritan ancestry encourage us, so should our lives encourage posterity.

The two pages of the sermon read as follows, Mr. Hale following my reading to see if it is correct from the original he holds in his hand: "to him; thankfully accepting what he offers & Cheerfully Complying with what he Demands: that herein we open our mouths to God and swear we will be his in the bonds of an everlasting covenant that shall not be forgotten, accepting him & resigning ourselves. Do I know what advantage this ordinance is to every worthy Communicant, how it is Designed to Confirm their faith, to enflame their Love, purify their Consciences and Comfort their Souls? Do I understand how it produces these effects, not in a natural way, nor merely in a moral way, but by the powerful influences of the spirit, dispensed and to be expected in a devout attendance upon the appointments of infinite wisdom and goodness. Let me put to my own Soul that Question my Saviour put to his disciples, Hast thou understood all these things? I must confess my apprehensions of these things are too Dark and Confused, but I dare not deny the grace of God who has given me some acquaintance with these awful mysteries and I hope I do Desire to improve in knowledge, & am willing to receive instruction; and Oh! that God would teach me what I know not, and Lead me farther into the knowledge of all necessary truth; Oh! that he would show me his Covenant and help me to grow in grace & in the knowledge of my Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ! That he would reveal to me by his spirit, those Deep things of God which the natural man receiveth not because they are spiritually discerned. Oh! Father of Light, who givest Wisdom liberally & upbraidest not, make me to know the Love of Christ which passeth knowledge & help me to comprehend with all saints the breadth & length & Depth & Height of it! Amen!

Section 4th Consider, Oh! My Soul, that mere Knowledge is not a sufficient Qualification for the Holy Communion. If I have knowledge to Discern the Lord's body, and want faith to feed upon him, I shall return from his Table disappointed and ashamed ——"

Having led you back to the early days of this church in this country, I thank you for your attention and will now retire, ready to speak again, however, whenever you wish to go back still farther into our common New England church history.

Hearty applause greeted Mr. Whitney's interesting reminiscences and the reading on the fragment of the old live Puritan sermon, a leaf from the past full of suggestive thoughts and noble inspiration. The next number on the program was a reading by Mr. Burrill, followed by by singing by the quartette. Dr. C. J. Allen was next on the printed order to respond to the toast, "Our present church life." Having been called away, however, the Rev. G. H. Gutterson responded to the toast prepared for him by the committee "The future of the church." Mr. Gutterson spoke as follows:—

THE FUTURE OF THE CHURCH.

The Church is a collection of individuals bound together by an idea, believing in righteous principles, loyal to one Master, guided by the spirit of God as revealed to them from time to time, they are the "called-out ones," not necessarily worshipping in the same place, or subscribing to the same creed. These "called out ones" have formed themselves into an institution which is called the Church. When Christ told Peter that he would found his church upon a rock and that the gates of Hell should not prevail against it we take it that he means the church which we are now talking about.

It has had a wonderful past, romantic, tumultuous, tragic. Alway a conflict, its pathway forming a crimson line through history. Into it men have brought their schemes, their ambitions, their politics, their money making. It has endured all things, thus far conquered all things. If long life and great endurance count it has assurance of a future provided it grows younger as it grows older.

Like all human institutions it is subjected to one relentless law, namely the law of the "Survival of the Fittest." Does it serve a present purpose? Will it be equal to the occasion? Can it continue to correspond to its environment?

Now every thoughtful person who is truly interested in the church tries to forecast its future and has certain theories as to what the Church must do to render its future secure, and I am asked to give my theories not claiming for them that they are complete. Of course there are certain things taken for granted, for example, belief in and loyalty to Christ, the acceptance of the Bible as an inspired book, dependance upon the spirit of God, etc. Beyond these if the Church is to grow in all helpfulness to men, if the future is to be hers she must heed certain things.

In the first place, she must welcome truth, must be kindly disposed toward all seekers after truth. It is the truth that makes men free. There was a time the Church believed that the world was created in six days of twenty-four hours each. The discovery that this was not so was not welcomed by the Church. They felt the foundations were being shaken. The Church has no occasion to fear honest investigation of the Scriptures. She should encourage it. The foundations of religion will not be disturbed even if it should be proved that the narrative of Jonah is not actual history. That is a splendid word carved over the gates of Harvard College, "Veritas." The Church should be hospitable to every kind of truth by which men live.

Second, the Church must be characterized by liberty. I mean by this liberal and charitable ideas. Phillips Brooks said the Church must some day realize that men in shops, men in fields, men in fraternities and trades-unions were helping humanity and thus helping the Kingdom of God.

I heard a socialist preaching at midnight in Chicago. He seemed to be honest in his opinion. I could not agree with all he said but in so far as he was working to help men I am with him.

On attending a great meeting held at Cooper Institute in New York, made up of Jews, socialists, agnostics, and others whom I suppose do not care a rap for the Church, I felt the same, that is, that they were working for humanity, groping after better things, seeking light and means of relieving deplorable conditions and I was with them in heart.

Some of the Disciples saw a man casting out devils and they came to Jesus and told him about it and that he did not belong to their company. They were told by the Master, "Forbid him not . . . for he that is not against us, is for us."

Whoever goes into the business of casting out devils is to be encouraged and welcomed even though he cannot understand all the mysteries of theology. There are, I suppose, many good men who cannot intellectually accept the doctrine of the Trinity and who have doubts about the great mystery of the person of Christ. These are difficult problems and many of us have questions concerning them we do not like to talk about. The main thing is our building up the Kingdom of God among men. If we are doing this and if we are working to cast out devils we have fulfilled the principal requirement.

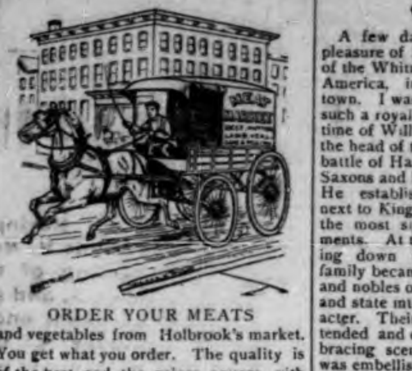

The final test is that of fruit bearing, not whether a man believes in our special brand of religion.

The third requisite is that the Church must never cease to struggle. That means to sacrifice and live not for herself but for mankind. Life means struggle and it is generally true that when one ceases to struggle at that moment he ceases really to live; ease, luxury, ability to gratify every desire make moral character flabby and character sags. There is a possibility of over training in the case of an athlete; there is no apparent danger of that in the Church. The moment it gets to be a private club or a mutual admiration society the great busy, needy world has absolutely no use for it.

In a notable sermon recently delivered, Bishop Lawrence uttered words something like these: "We of this Church (the Episcopal) were moving along in a state of contentment satisfied with our liturgies, and rubrics and creeds and English temper and rather flattering ourselves that things were coming our way and that men would be attracted to us by these things, so fine in themselves, so comforting to us; but our ease and self satisfaction was rudely broken in upon by the discovery that there are great bodies of men who care absolutely nothing for our sanctity and our respectability, who do not believe in the institution of religion, hardly in religion itself." I have not quoted him exactly but tried to give his idea.

If the Church is to win the support of these toiling, struggling millions who now look askance at her and if she is to find a larger, better place in their love and loyalty she must come down into the thick of their struggle today. The mysteries of her creeds and fine discussions about them mean absolutely nothing to these masses of men. They pray to be delivered from the oppression which is upon many of them; they want sympathy in their struggles; they are not thinking so much about the Heaven that is to come as about the life that now is. They are hungry and thirsty and sick and in prison and they want the cup of cold water today. The Church must come down out of her ease and her seclusion and fight the battles and be willing to lose sight of herself in their uplifting. It seems to me that these are among the things, at least, that the Church must do in order to secure her future.

At the conclusion of Mr. Gutterson's deeply interesting address, which was received with appreciative applause, the quartette sang an appropriate selection which was followed by another reading. Dr. Allen not then having returned, the meeting closed by the audience all joining in singing "Auld Lang Syne" after which it dispersed satisfied that the occasion has been one of the most enjoyable suppers ever held by the Winchester Congregational Parish.

The event of the evening was the address on the Business methods of the Grand Lodge office by Bro. Chas. C. Taft, P. M. W., Codman Lodge, Dorchester, member Financial Committee of the Grand Lodge. It was a reveleation to many of the order present. The congratulations he received at its close showed the appreciation of his effort.

Observations.

A few days ago I had the extreme pleasure of looking over the genealogy of the Whitney family in England and America, including the branch in this town. I was surprised to learn they had such a royal history, running back to the time of William the Conqueror, who, at the head of the Normans, fought the battle of Hastings in 1066, defeating the Saxons and becoming king of England. He established "Dooms Day Book," next to King John's "Magna Charta" the most significant of English enactments. At this early period and following down the lineage, the Whitney family became conspicuous. Great lords and nobles of this name mingled in social and state intercourse of the highest character. Their landed possessions were extended and of great natural beauty, embracing scenery which, in after years, was embellished with taste and wealth together with the cunning of art and the pride of family nobility. Their coat of arms was grouped in union with other eminent families of high estate. Elegant specimens of early English hand writing, with unfaded clearness, illustrate the family genealogy. Castles and towers, sentinels on lakes and rivers, are pictured, with grim walls and oaken gates, to verify the long past. In 1633 John Whitney of this family came to America and settled in Watertown. So respected and worthy was he regarded, that he was honored with the title of "Mister," a title applied to only two others in the town, the minister and the schoolmaster. The posterity of John Whitney has spread all over New England and other states, and they have become a great power in business enterprise and skilful invention. Eli Whitney of cotton gin invention was of this family, another was collector of customs at the port of Boston, another a member of a President's cabinet, another developing the mysterious working of coal gas, one, with boundless wealth, challenging our own and the English turf for the championship of the world. Our townsman, recently deceased, Joel Whitney, father of Arthur E. Whitney, was of the seventh generation of John Whitney, coming here from Wakefield fifty-five years ago, and there from Townsend, Mass., where his ancestors rest, esteemed for private and public excellence. Asa, a brother of Joel, lived and died in Philadelphia a few years ago, known as the maker of car wheels, which were of such demand as to bring him fame and fortune. The genealogy of the family has been prepared with industry and patience, costing many thousand dollars. It is bound in rich vellum, filled with steel engravings of English mansions and portraits of great men of brain and power. Only 600 copies of these souvenirs have been issued, at $18 a copy. A wealthy member of the family in New York is sponsor for the cost. I will say, that in my limited examination of this class of work, I have seen nothing that approaches it in style and grandeur of workmanship, in beauty of arrangement and high finish of portraiture. It is a gem of life and light, to perpetuate the memory of a family that have engraved their name on the disk of personal and national entablature.

Mr. Editor:—This review is written without the knowledge of any of the family.

There is nothing so deceptive as the speed of a horse, and there are several in Winchester at the present time (if their owners can tell it) that are marvelously fast. They all can beat each other around the warm stove, but when on the cold snow path they are apt to quit and fall out by the wayside. There are some here that can "brush" fast, but the glory of a trotter is one that can go fast and stay up to the end of the road. To believe that there are any here that can show a thirty clip is delusive, with one exception, G. H. Gilbert's "Glimmer." A fifty clip would fit them better, and on the road this makes their owners look faint hearted. Speed is by comparison. If a three minute horse beats his opponent, his owner is delighted and thinks he has a world beater and won a great victory. I can name six horses in Winchester that can trot in 2.50, everything favorable, two or three of them can go close to 2.40 for a quarter, and this is fast on the road. Let the fast ones of Winchester come together and settle the question, for this winter at least.

I think that it was a sad occurence in sending Mrs. Abbie Roswell to an institution to lessen a mental weakness which, if it exists, was brought on by patient toil in home duties and devotion to an invalid husband. The evidence was conflicting. Would not home nursing have been a better remedy? The mills of the gods grind slow, but they grind sure.

The Highland avenue scramble is frostbitten.

The fire department have laid down the hatchet and taken up the hose. Good change!

The road across the mill pond is under ice. It will be fished out and resuscitated this spring.

The McKay factory have a broken shaft that will be reset and soon whirling around again.

The new stable on Converse place is all saddled and bridled. Bring up your horses.

Best business in town—calking horses for the snow path.

Cut prices! Good soda crackers in Winchester 16 cents per pound, in Boston 10 cents. Only 60 per cent. more.

Foxes have holes, birds have nests, but the poor tramp has nowhere to lay his head.

Winchester has a good tax collector, a good poet and a clear Bell ringer all in one. How lucky.

Did'nt See Mayor Collins.

A rather exasperating story of a "con" man's duplicity is told of the venerable Patrick Holland of Winchester. Mr. Holland is one of the sturdiest Democrats of the town, a man who likes to rise in town meeting and advocate improvements for the streets in his immediate locality, where he owns a number of dwellings. He is not afraid to speak straight out at people and things that do not tally with his views.

Mr. Holland helped build the Boston & Lowell railroad when its tracks were laid through the town; then he had charge of a section of it with a gang of repairers. Lately he has done little more than rest contented on his income, with a trip to Boston once a week to do a little marketing and call on old friends. With this introduction of Mr. Holland the "con" man, if he reads this story, ought to feel ashamed of himself.

Mr. Holland received a ticket of admission to the inaugural exercises of Mayor P. A. Collins. On the appointed day he repaired to the Boston City Hall, attired in a suit of conventional clothing. His white hair and beard had been cropped for the occasion, and he carried his 80 odd years of manhood rather heavily with the assistance of a stout cane.

After a hard struggle with the throng in City hall he encountered a policeman and passed him the ticket. The guardian of the person of Mayor Collins glanced at the pasteboard and said it was of no use.

"Why not?" asked Mr. Holland.

"Go get Messenger Leary to put his fist full of ink on it," was the reply.

"Where is Mr. Leary?" inquired Mr. Holland. He did'nt get a very definite answer. The crowd surged him along towards the portals of the chamber where the "coronation" was about to take place.

Mr. Holland was not at all backward in asking questions as to where Mr. Leary could be found. It is said he jabbed several men with his cane in order to secure an audience with them on the question of the moment. No one appeared to know just where Mr. Leary could be found until a young man drew Mr. Holland out of the line and inquired what he wanted.

The venerable Winchester Statesman real estate magnate showed his new acquaintance, who, to use Mr. Holland's words, "was a real cute, likely appearing chap, with elegant clothes and moustache," the ticket and explained that it needed Mr. Leary's signature to admit him to the exercises. The young fellow smiled as if pleased at being able to perform so small a service for such a patriarchial citizen.

"You wait here sir," he said, "give me that ticket and I'll get the signature in a minute.

Mr. Holland handed him the ticket and the fellow disappeared.

By grabbing at pieces of furniture and projecting parts of the corridor Mr. Holland was enabled to hold his position fairly well against the onslaught of the throng. He was in everybody's way. Then he told his troubles to a policeman after nearly a half hour of patient waiting had elapsed. The policeman smiled broadly and audibly. "You go way back and sit down," he is alleged to have advised Mr. Holland. "That chap has sold your ticket long ago, and is now about two-thirds full on cheap whiskey down in the West end.

Mr. Holland took the next train for home. As he left the City Hall fire flashed out under his shaggy eyebrows, and he clenched his cane as if it were a bludgeon.—[Herald.

REMARKABLE CURE OF CROUP.

A Little Boy's Life Saved.

I have a few words to say regarding Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It saved my little boy's life and I feel that I cannot praise it enough. I bought a bottle of it from A. E. Steere of Goodwin, S. D., and when I got home with it the poor baby could hardly breathe. I gave the medicine as directed every ten minutes until he "threw up" and then I thought sure he was going to choke to death. We had to pull the phlegm out of his mouth in great long strings. I am positive that if I had not got that bottle of cough medicine, my boy would not be on earth today.—JOEL DEMONT, Inwood, Iowa. A BURNING QUESTION

At this time is: "Are you getting the best out of your coal?" If not, perhaps you are wasting Heat in the cellar which is needed elsewhere. It has been shown that a single foot of naked two-inch pipe carrying high pressure steam all the year round will condense more steam than a dollar's worth of coal will make, and the loss is in proportion for lower pressure and shorter time. Do you wish to stop this loss? If so, now is the time when it can best be done. Perhaps it will cost less than you think. At any rate it will cost you nothing to get figures.

THEY CRUSH THE POWERS

This is written in mid-October. The long, oppressive summer is quite gone. Fading leaf, withering tres and the rustling corn in the fields are signs of the season. Fog, frost, rain, snow,—they are coming. You remember last winter; of 1900 and 1901. The weather was cruel. Ah! the thousands it killed, and the hundreds of thousands it maimed and crippled. Oh, the rough grasp it laid on men at work, women at home, and children in cribs and cradles. Coughs that began before Thanksgiving Day are racking and tearing them still; yes, and growing worse as they dig deeper into the poor, tired throat and lungs. Many were cured by using Benson's Porous Plasters. For the soothing and healing power of these Plasters is wonderful. They conquer the complaints

THAT ARE KILLING THE PEOPLE.

No other plaster, no other medicine or application, can compare with them. Coughs, colds, backache, rheumatism, lumbago, kidney and liver troubles, asthma, influenza,—they all go down before Benson's Plasters like a snow image in the sun. You can't throw money away on a Benson's Plaster. Everybody is going to use them this season. But make certain you get the genuine. MAIN STREET NEAR THE BANK.

ORION KELLEY, D.D.S.,

DENTAL OFFICE,

WHITE'S BUILDING, WINCHESTER

Office Hours: 8-12 and 2-5.

The government's new bureau of plant industry is taking up the problem of how our gorgeous autumnal foliage receives its variegated coloring. That is one object of investigations which are now being made by Albert F. Woods, lately appointed pathologist and physiologist of the bureau.

"There has long been a controversy as to the cause of the autumn leaf's coloration," says Mr. Woods. "Some botanists have attributed it to frosts. We are finding that light frosts, not sufficient to kill leaves, greatly facilitate their coloration by causing an increase within them of a normal chemical ferment, which attacks the color compounds or color generators in the cells. We are finding that the oxidation of these color compounds by this ferment causes the various shades of color, especially the purples, oranges, etc. The yellows are normally present in the leaf.

"Autumn leaves containing sugar, such as the maples, sumacs, gums, etc., easily oxidize and thus form the rich reds, purples and violets so beautiful to the eye. That is why these, especially the hard maples, give the most beautiful autumn leaves. Autumnal oak leaves do not attract admiration because they contain much tannin. The oxidation color of tannic acid is dirty brown. Leaves which die quickly never give autumnal colors."

Making Ice by Heat.

Cold resulting from the transformation of a liquid body to a gaseous state can be put to practical use. For example, in the Carre ice manufacturing machine a saturated solution of strong ammonia is employed. The ammonia is heated and vaporized and is then condensed in a receiver which surrounds the vessels containing the water to be frozen. When the heat is turned off, the pressure decreases, the ammonia, which has been condensed and vaporized again, carrying off the heat from the water, and freezing results. In this manner heat is utilized for producing cold.

Painting by Machinery.

An invention for painting by machinery bids fair to take rank with other labor saving devices. A recent test of the machine on a flat surface 10 by 200 feet showed that one man working by hand finished painting the surface in sixteen hours and used four gallons of paint. The new machine did the work in three hours and twenty-nine minutes and used only two and a half gallons of paint. The machine is simply constructed, compressed air being used to drive a set of revolving brushes, connected by a hose to the tank, the paint being forced up as well.

Curious Geographical Globe.

One of the most interesting relics in the world has just been placed in the building of the Academy of Sciences at Tsarskoe-Selo. It is a geographical globe eleven feet in diameter made of copper. The outside represents the earth and the interior the celestial spheres of the world. There is a door giving access to the interior of the globe, and in the center is a round table, which is so large that twelve persons can easily sit around it. The globe can be made to revolve upon its axis.

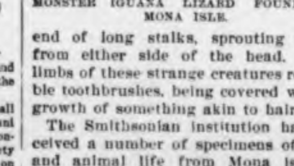

Bees' Venom For Rheumatism.

Dr. Terc, a medical man of much repute in Vienna, advocates as an effective remedy for rheumatism the saturating of the patient's body with the venom of bees. For the purpose he extracts the venom, treasuring it up in quantity and applying it artificially by way of punctures. He founds this treatment on his discovery that rheumatic patients do not suffer from a bee's sting to anything like the same degree as other people.

Porto Rico is proving to be an interesting field for the scientists in the employ of the government, says the Washington Star. They have already discovered much that is new in plant and animal life on this island. Among recent discoveries are the finding of many new fresh water leeches, new sea crabs and shrimps and a peculiar class of crayfish, which seem to be intermediate between shrimps and lobsters.

The eyes of these little crayfish are not set in their heads, but grow on the end of long stalks, sprouting forth from either side of the head. The limbs of these strange creatures resemble toothbrushes, being covered with a growth of something akin to hair.

The Smithsonian institution has received a number of specimens of bird and animal life from Mona isle, a strange rockbound island off the coast of Porto Rico. The island has a peculiar fauna. Most interesting objects are enormous iguana lizards, which have been discovered in great number. These lizards are very much larger than those of Cuba and Mexico.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

LESSON IV, FIRST QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, JAN. 26.

Text of the Lesson, Acts iii, 1-16. Memory Verses, 6-8—Golden Text, Ex. xv, 2—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1901, by American Press Association.]

1-3. It was the hour of the evening sacrifice, the hour when Jesus died on Golgotha (Matt. xxvii, 46, 50), that found Peter and John going into the temple on this occasion. While the unbelieving Jews continued their forms the believers in Jesus Christ met for prayer, knowing that the true and only sacrifice for sin was in heaven on their behalf and that they, His witnesses, could do nothing without Him.

4, 5. As Peter and John said, "Look on us," he looked, expecting to receive something in the way of money, for he knew not of the durable riches and righteousness of Prov. viii, 18. "He gave heed, expecting to receive," and that is more than many believers do when they pray, for they ask, and wonder if they receive, and are surprised if they receive, and talk about its being so wonderful and so strange. How much better it would be when we pray to expect, according to Ps. v, 3; lxii, 5; John xiv, 13, 14. This lame man was expecting from people, but Peter and John had learned to expect from God. If believers would lay hold of or be laid hold of by these words: "Cease ye from man," "It is God who worketh" (Isa. ii, 22; Phil. ii, 13), great things might be seen.

6. "In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, rise up and walk." Silver and gold could not do this nor all the power of man, but those who have neither gold nor silver can be friends of and partners with Him who doeth all such things. There is something better than money which can be had without money (Isa. lv, 1; Rev. xxii, 17). Many profess to have the gift of God, but some really possess Him. It would be well to consider, "Have I Christ, or do I only seem to have or think that I have?" (Luke viii, 18, margin; I John v, 12). Peter could say: "I have." "I give."

7, 8. "Walking and leaping and praising God." This by a man over forty years of age who had never walked! Well might the people call it a notable miracle (chapter iv, 16, 22). It was accomplished in a moment. As soon as Peter took him by the right hand immediately his feet and ankle bones received strength. It was written by the prophet that the lame man should leap as a hart (Isa. xxxv, 6). But how few would ever expect that such words would have such a literal fulfillment? And that is one of our great difficulties and hindrances. We seem so slow to believe that God means just what He says.

9, 10. The people saw Him and knew Him and were filled with wonder and amazement. So on the day of Pentecost they were all amazed and marveled (chapter ii, 7, 12). The change in this man was so manifest and unmistakable that it could not be denied (iv, 16), yet the authorities would, if they could, stop all such doings. A lady whom I know, whose eyes were miraculously healed after all the doctors had failed to help, put the story in tract form, and a doctor who read it told her she was doing wrong, as others might think they could have a similar experience. What are we on earth for if not that the works of God may be seen in us. (John ix, 3.)

11. "The lame man which was healed held Peter and John." The healed man naturally clung to his deliverers, and the crowd ran to see the healed and the healers. There is so little power of God in the church today that the crowd has to be drawn by entertainments, suppers, concerts, etc.; but let some of the power that was seen on this occasion be again manifested, and the things which now disgrace the church might speedily vanish. This man's help came through Peter and John, and he clung to his visible deliverers. When we learn to say sincerely, "My help cometh from the Lord, who made heaven and earth," we will no longer look to the hills for help (Ps. cxxi, 1, 2, margin, and Jer. iii, 23).

12. "Why look ye so earnestly on us?" Not knowing the invisible God, people gaze with wonder upon the visible instruments by whom God is graciously pleased to work, but if those whom God uses would continue to be used by Him they must be careful to give God the glory, for no flesh shall glory in His presence (I Cor. i, 29-31). As soon as the instrument is willing to be magnified the power ceases. Concerning Pharaoh's dream, Joseph said that it was not in him to interpret it, but that God would do it, and Daniel said that there was no wisdom in him more than in others, but that the God in heaven, who revealeth secrets, would make known the dream (Gen. xli, 16; Dan. ii, 28-30).

13-16. "His name, through faith in His name, hath made this man strong." As on the day of Pentecost, he told them that Jesus, whom they had crucified, had by God been raised from the dead and received up into heaven, so now he again tells them that the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob had glorified His Son Jesus, having raised Him from the dead, and that the perfect soundness of this man who had been lame was due wholly to the risen Christ, whose witnesses they were. We do not know that the man had any faith in Christ, but Peter and John had, and as the faith of the woman of Tyre and Sidon brought health to her daughter and the faith of the centurion brought health to his servant (Matt. viii, 10, 13; xv, 28), so their faith brought health to this man. Who can tell the possibilities of faith in God, and what do we know of the faith of the Son of God? (Mark xi, 22-24; Gal. ii, 20.) As Mephibosheth was lame through no fault of his own, yet was made to live with the king and eat continually at the king's table (II Sam. iv, 4; ix, 13), so we who are all lame through Adam's sin, without strength, ungodly, may be healed by Him who, having died for us, is now alive forevermore (Rom. v, 1-16; iii, 24). Peter, in the power of the Spirit, preaches unto them Jesus and the resurrection, as taught by the prophets, and, telling them that Jesus Christ shall come again to restore all things of which God hath spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets, he urges them to repent, that their sins may be blotted out and that the times of refreshing may come with the coming again of the Lord Jesus (verses 17-21 and see R. V.). To the Jew first (verse 26) and to every creature (Mark xvi, 15) we are to give the gospel, that out of all nations the people for His name may be gathered (Acts xv, 14), and thus His Eve builded, that He may take her to Himself and come again in His glory.

Tale of a Dormouse.

This tear compelling tale is from the London Globe: "A young lady bought a dormouse. After keeping it for some time she had occasion to send a present to a friend and utilized the dormouse for that purpose. A few months later the friend wrote to say that the pet did not seem very lively and was refusing its food. Would she come and inspect it? She came and inspected it and finally, feeling that this was a case for professional opinion, called in a vet. The vet's verdict was brief and to the point. The dormouse had been dead just six months."

MRS. LIVERMORE ANGRY.

She Defends the Equal Suffragists From a Coarse Attack.

Miss Heloise E. Hersey, for many years principal of a fashionable school for girls in Boston, has lately published some advice to girls, which is sensible in the main. But the author, while laying stress upon good manners, so far departs from good manners herself as to call the advocates of equal suffrage "shriekers," and solemnly warns girls to beware of them.

Mrs. Mary A. Livermore, for whom Miss Hersey professes great esteem and admiration, took her roundly to task the other day for this glaring breach of courtesy. "Am I a shrieker?" asked Mrs. Livermore. "Was Lucy Stone a shrieker? Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, Mrs. Alice Freeman Palmer, Clara Barton—are they shriekers?" Miss Hersey was obliged to confess that these particular women certainly were not. Mrs. Livermore also remonstrated with her upon the silly and sensational stories which she had told of the workings of equal suffrage in the enfranchised States—"such stories as might be heard in a pot house!" Mrs. Livermore said:

Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, too, objects to being called a "shrieker." She says:

"We who believe in equal rights are not a frantic, shrieking mob. We are individually allowed to be men and women of sound intellect, and of reputable life. Most of us are persons of moderate competence, earned or inherited, and are of more value to the community than we should be if we were able to chase the bubble of vain amusement around the globe whenever the fancy should seize us. Why should any one consider us as the enemies of society, who have everything to gain by its good government?"

Altogether, it may be said that this foolish and vulgar attack upon equal suffrage has brought upon its author the deserved condemnation of the best women in Massachustees, the most distinguished of whom happen to be suffragists.

Alice Stone Blackwell.

Leadville Transformed.

Just previous to our late election in New York the Newburg News said editorially:—

"If the women of New York City were allowed to vote in the coming municipal election, Tammany would be given a defeat from which it would never recover. Whatever may be argued against giving women the right of suffrage, it stands upon record that their influence is always upon the side of justice and morality. This is no more true of the women of greater New York than of the women of Newburg and all other cities, large and small, throughout the State."

That this is true is shown by the following editorial from the Leadville Democrat, where they have seen the practical effects of woman's vote in municipal affairs:

"From a mining camp with a reputation for bloodshed that extended to the oceans, Leadville has developed one of the most upright cities of the country, as free from violence and crime of any kind as a New England village. This result has been brought about through the influence of the good women of the community. They worked for the election of officials who could be trusted to enforce the laws, and make the city and county a most undesirable place for law-breakers and vagrants, and their moral influence throughout the years has been most beneficial in this respect. They have evolved a city of homes and good government from a mining camp with a record."

And yet women are denied the one womanly dignified and effectual means through which they can influence legislation—the ballot—and at the same time are urged to do the most unwomananly act of all, solicit the votes of men. "Consistency, thou art indeed a jewel!"

Elnora Monroe Babcock.

Lobbyist or Constituent?

So much has been done without the ballot that many men and women regard it as unimportant. It is often true that as much can be accomplished indirectly as directly, but the indirect influence is always questionable. There is a great gulf fixed between the woman lobbyist and the woman constituent; and to the latter is accorded a universal courtesy never shown to the former. It might be said of the ballot as the Texas cowboy said of a gun: "When you want it, you want it bad, and there ain't no time to wait."—Ellis Meredith.

Device for Removing Dust.

Dust loves to gather in places from which it is practically impossible to remove it, and neat housekeepers have spent much time in vain endeavors to rid themselves of this nuisance.

These housekeepers will be glad to learn that a simple instrument has been invented by means of which dust can instantaneously be removed from places which could not hitherto be reached even by the smallest feather duster. The instrument is in the form of a tubular bellows and consists of an ordinary wooden cylinder and of a piston which drives out the air and thus scatters the dust. That this little invention will prove useful in many directions can readily be seen. Thus it can be used to advantage in thoroughly cleaning the interior of a dynamo, a typewriter or a piano. All that is necessary is to work the piston once or twice, for the air thus expelled at once penetrates into the innermost crannies of the machine and compels the dust to seek new quarters.

Miss Helen Gould cast her vote at the recent election in Tarrytown, N. Y., on the question of providing a high-service filter reservoir to improve the city water.

"It seemed that nothing short of a miracle could save my little daughter from an untimely death," says City Marshall A. H. Malcolm, of Cherokee, Kan. AN INTERESTING FAMILY.

These pictures represent Rev. Albert W. Clark, foreign pastor of the Winchester Congregational Church, and his seven children, six daughters and one son—a most interesting family. Dr. Clark is supported in his labors among the Bohemians in Austria by the local church, and last Sunday at the morning service. Rev. E. C. Strong, D.D., spoke most interestingly of the great work that Dr. Clark is accomplishing among the five millions in that empire, where he has been laboring since 1872. He is 60 years of age. Was a native of Vermont, served in a Vermont regiment in the Civil war, and left a pastorate in Connecticut to enter upon his work in Austria.

HARD WORK

When Your Nerves Give Way, Dr. Greene's Nervura Builds Them Up and Makes Honest Strength.

The woman who does her own work and takes care of children has need of all her strength. All around us there are examples of what overwork will do. It overtaxes the nerves too, and then trouble begins.

Dr. Greene's Nervura is the great strengthener for overworked women. It gives them strength from their food and strength from perfect rest at night. It regulates the nerves and builds up in every way.

MRS. JOHN H. LAUX, 48 Springfield Ave., Newark, N.J., says:

"When I began to take Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy I was terribly run down. My baby had been very sick, and I was nursing him day and night, I got so worried I couldn't eat nor sleep. When I tried to eat my heart seemed to come up in a lump in my throat and choke me, and I would leave everything untasted. Any little noise would make me jump, and I lost all my color and got so thin I thought I would break down myself. That was when I decided to take Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and I am thankful to say it helped me wonderfully

It enabled me to bear the terrible strain of my baby's sickness, and kept me from breaking down in spite of all I had to stand. My appetite and color returned and I began to gain flesh. I recommend Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy to all women run down through overwork, sickness, or any cause, and I give this letter in the hope that other mothers who are worrying over their sick children and trying to do their work, may know how to keep up the health under such trying circumstances."

You love your home and your children, and you want to do the work, but when you over-do, your nerves begin to cry out against outrage. You must have help, and you'll find it in Dr. Greene's Nervura, which is known everywhere, and which is everywhere working wonders for women.

Kindergartens.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I send herewith a series of articles written by prominent educators on kindergartens. Please give these opinions to your readers at such times as you think necessary. W. L. TUCK.

Directly, the kindergartens are leading along right lines the comparatively few children who are members of these schools. Indirectly, the kindergartens are having beneficent influence on all grades of the common schools. The child himself is becoming the chief object of our concern rather than the subjects which he is required to study. We are living with our children.

The development of the child along normal lines is sought as never before. The free spirit of the kindergarten, so thoroughly in harmony with the free spirit of the child, is leading schools everywhere away from the formal insistence upon the same results from every child and is teaching us to respect individuality and to value effort.

The kindergarten spirit teaches that we must know the child in his play and in his home as well as in the community life of the school. The extension of this spirit into the higher schools is enabling teachers to understand the special conditions that are helps or hindrances to the children. The individual, and not the class of which he is a member, is foremost in the mind of the teacher.

In the kindergarten the inventional powers of the children are given judicious guidance. Instruction is largely incidental to the needs of the children as they are engaged in doing and making. The movement towards having more of making things and more of doing things and less of formal study about things is in harmony with this spirit of the kindergarten.

Weaving and sloyd are among the extensions of kindergarten work that, in the more progressive schools, are proving exceedingly valuable means of development for children in intermediate and grammar grades.

The kindergarten spirit is abroad; it is the spirit that would know the child as he is; that would lead him on from step to step along the lines of his natural development; that would give him power to do; that would educate his heart as well as his hands and his head. This spirit now has its most complete manifestation in the kindergarten itself and in the primary grades that are most closely connected with the kindergarten.

May the time soon come when the same spirit shall have its perfect work in all our grades.—[William E. Bates, Supt Schools, Fall River.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

As you have referred to the election of the School Committee, I for one am sorry to see Mr. Symmes withdraw his name as a candidate, for I think he has been a very valuable member; and I, with many others would like to see him continue on the board. A large number of citizens think we should have a committee of five members and one of the number a lady. I hope it will be so.

It would be a pleasure to a large number, to vote for Frank Carpenter, Dr. C. A. McCarthy, Mrs. John T. Wilson and Frank Philbrick and hope they will allow their names to be placed on the ballot.

It is said our board is in doubt as to the future of the High School Battalion. Let there be no doubt, but give the boys guns and other accoutrements and encourage them and Mr. Collins in this good work. WHITFIELD L. TUCK.

The Christian Endeavorers all over New England are much interested in the plans for the New England convention, to be held in Boston, Oct. 14, 15, 16 and 17, 1902. The programme committee has just outlined some of the features of this gathering. The committee consists of Rev. Chas. D. Crane of Maine, Rev. John E. Smith of New Hampshire, Col. E. G. Osgood of Vermont, Dr. F. B. Sprague of Rhode Island, Rev. Russell T. Hall, D. D., of Connecticut, H. N. Lathrop, George E. Copeland, Rev. J. J. Dunlop, George W. Coleman, Arthur W. Robinson of Massachusetts.

School Stamp Saving.

The idea of School Stamp Saving is neither new nor of recent origin. Originating in England, we believe, it was brought to the U. S. some years ago, perhaps twenty, and has been introduced in many places.

Briefly, the object of the system is the inculcation of the habit of systematic saving in the boys and girls of the schools. The system is a very simple one and involves merely the selling of stamps, to be attached to a card by the pupil purchasing them, it being understood that stamps so attached may be redeemed at their face value at any time the pupil sees fit. Cards, when full, may be preserved by the pupil until the total amounts to five dollars, when the holder will be encouraged to redeem his stamps and to make a deposit in the Savings bank. The card at any time is an evidence of the amount on deposit.

The material necessary to install the system would include 50,000 adhesive stamps of the denominations of one, three, five, ten and twenty-five cents (10,000 of each denomination) 2000 or more double stamp cards, to which the stamps are to be affixed by the pupil purchasing them, 2000 or 3000 circulars descriptive of the system for distribution and one or two simple record books.

The administration of the system should be as simple as possible, the less machinery the better. One of the many methods of administration, and perhaps as simple as any, would be as follows:

Invoke the aid of some philanthropic shop keeper, centrally located, to act as treasurer. The treasurer will have charge of the stamps, issuing them to teachers applying therefor and will redeem them on presentation of cards from the funds derived from the sale of stamps.

The principal of each school will provide herself with stamps from the treasurer, who will issue them to her on credit, and also with stamp cards, also to be obtained from the treasurer. The stamps so received shall be sold to pupils applying for them and cards shall be issued to such pupils at the time of their first purchase.

The principal shall make fortnightly settlements with the treasurer.

The cost of initiating such a system and continuing it for three or four years, we have estimated to be in the vicinity of $75, divided as follows: stamps, $54, cards, $10, circulars, record books and incidentals, $10.—[Wakefield Item.

Street Across the Pond.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

When town meeting day arrives it will be found that the question of a street or a bridge across the pond will be as far distant in the future as ever. I understand that the whole question will be so loaded down with probable cost as to make the street or bridge prohibitive. It seems to me that this important question should have the treatment that it is entitled to, and if it does not, then it will continue to come before the town until it does. From what I learn in regard to the present condition of affairs is that figures have been procured of the cost of a bridge already built of massive construction which cost a large sum of money to erect, the surroundings of which in no way compare with those across the pond, and that these figures will be presented at the town meeting. Now I don't think that an expensive massive bridge is needed, for the reason that there will never be any heavy teaming over it. A contractor who has furnished estimates says that a comparatively inexpensive bridge can be erected that can be used with absolute safety by electric cars, if necessary, and which will last for many years.

Don't let this question become befogged for the purpose of causing a postponement. FAIR PLAY.

Startling Right in Life.

Like the old-fashioned home companion a package of Sulpho-Napthol is a source of never failing comfort and relief, to which the young housewife may turn when desiring anything accomplished which it is claimed Sulpho-Napthol will do.

We know of nothing which will be so useful in the household. For cleaning, disinfecting and deodorizing it is unequaled. In the sickroom it is an article of rare merit. It can be depended upon to give instant relief and to heal all cuts, burns, bruises, sores. It is splendid as a poultice, much better than flaxseed, which it is taking the place of in our large hospitals. A little in the bath really surprises one in its cleansing, stimulating and exhilarating effect.

Compositions of High School Pupils.

Believing that parents of pupils and the inhabitants are deeply interested in the work of the High School, the STAR has arranged to print often one or more papers written by pupils of this school. They will be found very interesting and instructive not only to the younger portion of the community, but to those who would keep in touch with what the pupils of the High School are doing. This week we print the following:

JOHN ADAMS.

John Adams, who was of the fourth generation in descent from Henry (the first Adams that moved to this country), was born at Braintree, near Boston, October 19, 1735.

Mr. Adams came from a well-to-do family, considering the conditions of the country at the time in which he was born. He was educated at Harvard College and graduated at the age of twenty. His son says that John graduated in a class "which in proportion to its numbers contained as many men afterwards eminent in the civil and ecclesiastical departments as any class that ever was graduated at that institution." In his youth he was conscientious, upright, pure-minded, industrious; just what every person today has a privilege of being, if he will only work for it. It was in Mr. Adams' nature to grumble about everything and everybody, himself included.

Mr. Adams was in the habit of lying abed in the morning, a habit which, I am sorry to say, is practiced by many people. Although Mr. Adams did lie abed in the morning, he was no sluggard during the remaining part of the day.

The year he graduated at Harvard he went to Worchester to teach in the grammar school; he remained there but one year. He spent a great deal of time and thought in deciding what vocation he would follow. He thought seriously of being a clergyman but changed his views because "it walled a person in too much." He finally decided to study law, and immediately took up its study. In preparation he read Latin and among some of the selections he read Ovid's "Art of Love" to a married woman! A very strangething. In the year of 1764 he married Abigail Smith, a very helpful and loveable wife.

In his practice of law he became very prominent and was elected as one of the delegates from Massachusetts to the sessions of the First and Second Congress. In one of his letters to his wife during the session of the First Congress he wrote: "I believe, if it was moved and seconded that we should come to a resolution that three and two make five, we should be entertained with logic and rhetoric, law, history, politics and mathematics; and then—we should pass the resolution, unanimously, in the affirmative." In the Second Congress he was very energetic in bringing about the "Declaration of Independence" by having little matters passed. He had obtained his pratice in oratory in the debates which were held in the Town meetings.

He was commissioner to France twice and helped a great deal in straightening accounts, which had been kept in a very careless manner. While in France he became a very bitter enemy of Franklin. He was also sent to England to negotiate treaties.

After the Revolution he was elected Vice-President under Washington and President after Washington.

He died at sunset July 4th, 1826, the fiftieth anniversary of the "Declaration of Independence."

GEO. R. GUERNSEY.

THE BOSTON MASSACRE.

One of principal events leading up to the Revolution, and which greatly hastened it was the Boston Massacre. This fatal quarrel between the soldiers and the townspeople was not by any means the first, but was only the climax of a long series of street fights lasting for more than a year and a half. These quarrels, at first mere personal affairs, soon grew to regular pitched snow battles, and finally a general scrimmage took place on the evening of Friday, March 2, 1770, between some soldiers of the Twenty-ninth Regiment and a handful of rope-makers.

The next day it was rumored that the fight would be resumed on the following Monday. Early Monday evening small parties of men and boys were patroling the streets, when one of them suddenly came upon a small band of soldiers on Brattle street armed with clubs and cutlasses. A quarrel of course arose and some of the soldiers threatened to fire, and just at the critical moment an officer arrived and ordered the troops to their barracks, and had the gates closed. The alarm-bell, however, had been rung, and the people were hastening thither from all parts of the city, thinking that there was a fire. Finding out the true cause, many men urged the crowd to disperse, but some one raised the cry of "To the main guard!" Immediately they started toward King Street, or what is now State state, and soon after nine o'clock an excited party passed the custom House which then stood on that street. The crowd insulted the sentry on duty there, and he threatened to fire if the mob molested him. The crowd jeered and dared him to do it, and sticks and snowballs were fired at the unhappy sentinel After finding how true the aim of the young Bostonians was, he shouted loudly for help to the main guard on the other side of the street.

A sergeant with a file of seven men was soon sent to the assistance of the sentry who joined them at the foot of the steps. Captain Preston soon arrived and took command of the men, and Henry Knox, afterwards General and Secretary of War, who was passing at the time urged Captain Preston to withdraw his men. This the captain refused to do and the confusion became so great that he rushed in among them. The crowd shouted to the soldiers to fire if they dared, and no one can say whether Capt. Preston, angered by the taunts, ordered the men to fire or not; however, they did fire, one after another, in rapid succession, with the result that five men were killed and a new nation was born.

BREMER POND.

HISTORY OF FANEUIL HALL.

The market at Boston was held in the street, until, at a town meeting Peter Faneuil offered to erect at his own expense a suitable building, the first story to be used as a market, and the second as a Town Hall. The opposition to market houses at that time was so great, that the offer was accepted by a majority of only seven.

The building was begun in Dock Square in 1740 and finished two years later. In 1761 it was destroyed by fire, nothing but the brick walls remaining. It was rebuilt by the town in 1763, and during the British occupation of Boston it was used for a theatre. In 1805 it was enlarged by the addition of another story and increased in width.

The large hall is about eighty feet square and contains many fine paintings of distinguished men. The first meeting after the rebuilding was held when the building was dedicated March 14th, 1763. The address was delivered by James Otis.

The walls of Faneuil Hall have echoed with the voices of great men now departed. The hall was much used by the people at the outbreak of the Revolution, as a place where they went for council.

It obtained its name the "Cradle of Liberty" from the stirring debates, and important resolutions heard and passed within its walls.

Candidates for the School Board.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

In your last number, under "Newsy Paragraphs," was the interesting item that Mr. F. F. Carpenter is spoken of for membership on the School Board. Now it strikes the writer, Mr. Editor, that rarely has so valuable a name been presented for the serious consideration of the citizens of the town for official position as the above named individual.

For several years Mr. Carpenter has been untiring in his efforts to perpetuate in our town the most beneficent features of our perfected school system. We all can look back with much pride to his magnificent efforts in two town meetings to save our kindergarten. No one who spoke at the monster meeting of two years ago had such splendid command of his subject, such keen, incisive arguments, and such masterly logic with which to meet the onslaught on our pet institution.

In the face of such a tremendous victory as was then won, for some unaccountable reason the guardians of the best interests of our schools fell asleep only to awake when again the tireless and unscrupulous enemy, this fall—and this time, mind you, Mr. Editor, the dread deed was attempted by the hands of the supposed guardians of our children's interests,—tried to upset the kindergarten system by abolishing it.

We must admit the Board said for only a few months, but who knows how much of the camel will enter the tent his head has already entered?

Now it is certainly a most desirable thing that on that board there should be a stout defender of an institution that the town has twice strongly endorsed as beyond improvement. Few of us have adequately recognized what a genius served us so brilliantly and well as did the Rev. Mr. Suter in his long and most helpful term on our board. He it was who was the architect of our present system and never had any author a stronger endorsement of the regard in which his creation is held by the beneficiaries than had he when the cohorts of retrogression were met by the combined forces of Labor and Progress and put to rout. Now, Mr. Editor, shall we allow again this portion of our school system which we all admire and desire to cherish to be smothered just because we do not have on the board a friend?

It is a matter of surprise that no one has brought to the attention of the town for serious consideration Mr. W. L. Tuck. There are two positions on the board to be filled at the coming town meeting, and certainly the town is very forgetful when it does not reward itself by placing on our School Board a gentleman who has shown such heartfelt interest in our schools as has Mr. Tuck. A man of strong character, an excellent debator, a true friend of the working man, of culture and refinement, one stands in amazement as he sees such powers wasted in our town. We certainly need a lecture on the "Conservation of Energy" to awaken us to our neglect of the great capabilities we allow to run to waste.

Both Mr. Carpenter and Mr. Tuck are men of resource and integrity. Each would approach the various problems that constantly confront our School Board with candid minds open to the spirit of progress and with mature judgment to conserve the best interests of our schools. Let us rise to our opportunity, Mr. Editor, and by electing the foregoing gentlemen bring our School Board to a sane condition of mind.

A Deep Mystery.

It is a mystery why women endure backache, headache, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, fainting and dizzy spells when thousands have proved that Electric Bitters will quickly cure such troubles. "I suffered for many years with kidney trouble," writes Mrs. Phebe Cherley, of Peterson, Ia., "and a lame back pained me so I could not dress myself, but Electric Bitters wholly cured me, and, although 73 years old, I now am able to do all my housework." It overcomes constipation, improves appetite, gives perfect health. Only 50c at Grover's drug store.

The Royal Arcanum has reason to be proud of its standing. The membership is now 231,000, with a net gain in the past year of 21,000. One hundred and one new councils were instituted and two good councils. The emergency fund is $1,556,742.70. The mortuary liabilities were $70,000 less last year than in 1900. Plays With Fire and Gasoline.

The deadly gasoline explosion is a thing of the past if the invention of Alfred Tanzer of Cleveland will do all that he claims for it. By adding two small appliances to a can, stove or any receptacle containing gasoline or any other liquid dangerous because of its explosive gases Mr. Tanzer guarantees to make the whole as harmless as a pail of water. The invention is in two parts. It appears to consist of two hollow brass fittings attached to the top and to the muzzle of the can. The device, which is still kept a secret, is concealed within the tubes.

Sulphuric Acid For Snake Bites.

Those who fear snakes or live where snakes are found will find comfort in the assurance of Dr. John H. Henry of Montgomery that sulphuric acid is a specific. Dr. Henry says: "The poison of animals and snakes is intensely alkaline, and sulphuric acid taken internally and injected hypodermically, diluted or pure, in the fang puncture immediately kills the poison. This discovery was made by a gentleman who says he has been bitten by snakes and insects over a hundred times."

Cause of Aurora Borealis.

Professor Birkeland of the University of Christiania is convinced that the aurora borealis is the result of cathode rays, which issue from the sun and which have been caught up from the upper air of the earth. The truth of this theory, he says, has been clearly demonstrated by many experiments which he has made. He even succeeded in making an artificial aurora borealis which could not be distinguished from a genuine one.

"Greater Boston."

The "Greater Boston" scheme has started in early this year. There was a meeting at the residence of Dr. H. O. Marcy, Commonwealth avenue, Boston, Monday evening. This question promises to be as long drawn out as the "wide tire" bill which has been before the Legislature for generations.

Water Rates.

Nothing has given water takers so much satisfaction in a long time as the substantial reduction in their water bills sent out recently. This is all the more appreciated considering that the rates of the Metropolitan system are steadily increasing. How thankful we all ought to be that the town did not enter this latter. Yet it is intimated that Winchester will be compelled to enter the system in a few years.

Lower Fares.

There is said to be a movement on foot by the steam railroads to reduce fares in the suburban districts. The experiment in this direction made by the Boston & Albany some time ago on one of its branch lines has been successful. The only way the steam roads can recover the business taken from them by the electric roads is to reduce the fares to those of the latter. In the course of the next few years suburban rates are expected to be considerably lowered on the steam roads.

A Good Successor to Mr. Symmes.

One of the most important matters before the town is the election of two members of the School Committee at the March meeting. Dr. A. F. Blaisdell was elected to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Rev. John W. Suter, and under the law the vacancy must now be filled by the town. The unwillingness of Mr. S. S. Symmes to serve longer after fourteen years' faithful service, leaves another vacancy. Dr. Blaisdell's exceptional equipment for school work ought to make his election a certainty. The fact that he is not an extremist on the kindergarten question ought not to be a factor in depriving the town of his valuable services. On the other hand, on account of the strong sentiment in town in favor of kindergartens we believe that the third man ought to be one who is in recognized sympathy with them, and yet one who is not an extremist. We do not know of anyone who meets the requirements as well as the Rev. William I. Lawrance. He has shown his strong interest by his able communications in the public press. He is, moreover, a man of broad public spirit, which is tempered by a conservatism which comes from a profound and sympathetic study of the problems of life. If Mr. Lawrance will consent to serve, the town cannot do better than elect him.

Visiting Nurse Association.

It is only those persons who come into direct contact with the benefits of the Visiting Nurse Association at a time of emergency who are in a position to thoroughly appreciate the work carried on by this organization. There are two thoroughly trained nurses who are ready at all times, day or night, to respond to the calls of the doctors. Previous to the formation of this association, many persons will recall the difficulty of procuring a nurse at times of emergency. Now within a half hour after a call is sent, a nurse is at the bedside of a patient, working intelligently and sympathetically, and in many cases the amount of benefit derived by the sick person from the quick response is inestimable. This is made more apparent in the cases of poor people who, but for these nurses, would be left entirely without intelligent treatment in their sickness, with the result that in a number of instances there would be a prolongation of the disease, or, perhaps, a fatal termination.

This association, too, makes the labors of the doctors more successful, as but for the careful nursing their patients receive, this work would be a great deal more trying and far less satisfactory, so that for this reason the doctors should be, as no doubt they are, generous supporters of the association. There is no other organization in town, it may be unhesitatingly said, that does so much wide spread good as does the Visiting Nurse Association and none so much entitled to the consideration of those who wish to assist in a most humanitarian work.

May the day be close at hand when Winchester will have a cottage hospital to supplement the work of the nurses.

Political Matters.

Thursday evening, Feb. 20, has been set as the date for holding the caucus for the nominating of town officers. The caucus promises to be exceedingly lively as there are five members of the Board of Selectmen to be nominated, and besides there will be a contest for two positions on the School Board, and probably a fight for the office of Auditor, filled at the present time by Mr. William C. Newell. Mr. William H. Herrick who contested for this latter office a year ago is said to be in the field, although he has announced in a semi-private way that he will not be a candidate for the office.

The principal fight at the caucus will come over the nominating of candidates for the Board of Selectmen. Selectman Taylor after serving three years, has made public a wish to retire, and Selectman Boutwell has expressed himself in like manner, although it is reported that if the citizens desire his return he will do so. The other members of the Board, Messss. Fitzgerald, Bradstreet and Jones, will stand for a renomination and they are counted on as being successful. The caucus should not loose sight of the fact that it will not do to let too many members of the present Board be retired, and more especially the chairman, who has a most intimate acquaintance with the town's business. Many names for candidates are talked of, notably, John Challis, F. F. Carpenter, Edwin Robinson, John H. Carter, Alex Macdonald, and a dark horse on the west side that is being groomed and put into condition for the contest by friends who desire to keep the unknown in secret until the evening of the caucus. Of course other names will come before the readers of the STAR before the evening of the caucus. The names of the new candidates mentioned above denote able men who would look well to the town's business. So far as we know there is no opposition to the present Board, and but for the desire of Messrs. Boutwell and Taylor to retire, they would undoubtedly all be re-elected. Friends of Mr. Boutwell are urging him to remain for another year, and as is stated above, he may do so provided the caucus gives a good expression to that effect. The desire of Mr. Taylor to retire is not meeting with the approval of many of the citizens, and he is daily being urged to allow his name to be used, but whether sufficient pressure can be brought to bear to that end is a matter for doubt.

An attempt is being made to stir up a lively breeze on the question of kindergarten schools, but it is thought the less that is done in this regard the better it will be for those who have the wellfare of these schools at heart, and who do not wish for agitation. Kindergarten schools have come to stay, the members of the School Board are in favor of them, and the only difference of opinion is as to their management and number. It has been said that an effort is to be made at the caucus to defeat Dr. Albert Blaisdell whose term is to expire. The accomplishment of this would mean a severe blow to education in this town. Therefore it should not be done, and it won't. When such an able and advanced educator as Dr. Blaisdell is willing to give his valuable time to the schools, then the town should do all in its power to keep him in office. Mr. F. F. Carpenter is mentioned as a successor to Mr. Symmes. This gentleman has pronounced views on educational matter, especially in regard to kindergarten schools to which he has given some study, and no doubt if elected his views will be found the same as those of the other members of the Board. Two other gentlemen mentioned are Mr. C. E. L. Wingate and Mr. Frank Philbrick, the former an advanced thinker, conservative, and whose every endeavor, if elected, would be to promote the welfare of the schools.

Aside from the above there will be no contests for the positions of other officers.

It is customary at the caucus to select a Moderator for the town meeting, and this year a new man will have to be chosen as Mr. Arthur H. Russell has announced that he will not be a candidate. The declination of Mr. Russell, while it may only be temporary, yet it is to be regretted. During his service as Moderator he has ably and impartially filled the chair, and has at all times kept the meetings well in hand, while his rulings have been fair and just. The name of Mr. Edgar J. Rich will be presented as a successor to Mr. Russell. Mr. Rich is particularly well fitted for this trying position, and the citizens can rest assured that he will make an excellent presiding officer.

Commendatory.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

For one, but representing many readers, I want to thank you for your very full and accurate report of the proceedings at the late supper of the Congregational church. I could not attend the supper and listen to what was said first hand, but it is a great consolation to me to be able to read the after dinner speeches of the various speakers, each one different and all to the point. How much such a report as you printed enlarges the benefits of speaking at all at such times! The STAR audience is probably ten times as large as met at the supper, besides the historical matter presented at that event is saved for all time. I am an old resident of the town but much of what was said historically was all new to me and I am pleased to be instructed "in what I know not," using the language of the old sermon by Zachariah Symmes.

Another thing, I think it is very nice at such gatherings to invite representatives of other denominations to say a word. It is a tacit acknowledgment that "a thousand ways the Father has to lead his children home." Why could not all the churches hold a union supper in the town hall and exchange ideas on the best way to live? I hope the time may come when this can be done for we all need each other's help along the way.

OLD RESIDENT.

[We thank our correspondent for his commendation. It may please him to know that although we issued an extra large edition of the STAR last week, every paper has been sold. This proves the value of our report of the speeches of the church supper. Editor.]

Mr. Brainerd Rowe has been on the sick list at the home of his parents on Mt. Vernon street, and after a seige of about three weeks was able to be out Monday for the first time.

In a recent letter Mrs. S. C. Brazer, of Orange, Mass., (formerly Mrs. Bailey the well remembered and much liked teacher of music in the public schools,) said: "I enjoy the STAR so much and watch for its coming so eagerly. I should hardly know how to get along without it. Winchester is changing rapidly and new people constantly coming to make their homes in the beautiful town and I find many unfamiliar names in the STAR. But the dear old friends are there still and it is a pleasure to keep in touch with the doings of the place that was my home for so many years."

FOR INVESTMENT.

There is no investment which is more satisfactory than a good building lot acquired at a price which will assure the purchaser of an immediate appreciation in value, the result of first-class development. I am able to offer such an opportunity through the purchase, by Mr. A. Wilbert Starratt, of what was formerly known as the Bacon Estate, off Highland Avenue in Winchester. This property consists of 264,000 sq. ft. of land situated on a side hill with a Southerly and Westerly exposure and protected on the North and East by a precipitous cliff. The tract is about seven minutes walk from the centre of the Town and four minutes from the electrics; it is adjacent to the Middlesex Fells and a stone's throw from the Mystic Valley Driveway, the main entrance to the Fells. The development is being carried out under the direction of Ernest W. Bowditch, the well known landscape architect, and under his supervision there is now, in the process of construction, a forty foot macadam roadway, with paved gutters, loam spaces and gravel sidewalks, which has been laid out in such a manner as to preserve the many large shade trees on the place. Sewer, water and gas pipes are laid through the entire roadway. There are 21 lots varying in size from 7,500 to 10,000 sq. ft. and of this number 12 have already been sold, upon which there have been already built, or are now in the process of construction, altogether ten houses which comply with suitable restrictions, and are a distinct benefit to the whole development. The nine lots now in my hands for sale are offered at a remarkably reasonable figure which cannot but prove attractive to the home seeker or investor.

Newsy Paragraphs

For the first time in 37 years there has been no marriage intention issued from the Town Clerk's office in Winchester for January. The last time this occurred (in 1865) the population was only about 2500, now it is nearly 8000, so that the occurrence is all the more remarkable. Usually in the month of January there are from three to eight certificates issued. It can't be that our young people of marriageable age made a vow the first of the year that they would not marry. If not, then what is the reason? Probably the succeeding months of the year will make up for the lapses of January.

The pains in the chest indicated an approaching attack of pneumonia which in this instance was undoubtedly warded off by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The Metropolitan Park Commission is arranging for the placing in various localities along the Mystic valley parkway, on the shores of Mystic lake, lifesaving apparatus for public use in case of emergency. A new lot of German favors at Mills.

The city of Newburyport has a touch of mediaeval picturesqueness in one of its officials. It is the only place in the country that still has a town crier. Mayor Brown has just renominated Enoch Flanders to the position. "Squarry" as he is familiary known, patrols the business part of the city every day, ringing his huge bell and shouting his announcements. His customary preface is "Hear What I have to say." Enoch is getting old now but as long as he can ring his bell and cry his news, he can doubtless count on holding his place, but it is probable that his office will die with him.

THE "HEAVENLY TWINS."

When the fountain on the Common was dismantled the twins, or cherubs, were taken to the North Reservoir and there placed in a commanding position overlooking the beautiful lake. During the summer and up to the present time they have faithfully attended to their duty by throwing high into the air sparkling jets of water which glimmer in the bright sunlight to the evident pleasure of all visitors to this romantic spot. Jack Frost has been particularly thoughtful and has attempted to shield their nakedness from the biting blasts of winter, and in their improvised garb Mr. Edward M. Messenger has succeeded in taking the accompanying picture, and also in penning the following lines to our famous "Heavenly Twins:"

ICE BOUND.

These cherubs were a happy pair,
One is not seen, but it is there.
The modest one so bashful grew,
She prayed for clothing for the two.

Jack Frost, by whom her wail was heard,
Once touched the fountain as it poured;
He weaved a robe of purest white,
To cover both up, out of sight.

Like many another piece of cloth,
It lacked in width to cover both,
And as of old—I've heard it said—
She has all the clothes and half the bed.

Echoes.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Why should this town continue to insure against fire when it can afford to take the risk much better than the insurance companies can? What sense is there in a corporation whose liabilities are less than five per cent of its assets insuring? It may never get a loss but if it does will it embarrass it any? We are paying interest on about $30,000 a year for fire insurance. Isn't it about time we quit it?

Before people will get rapid transit through Boston they must be rapid transit people. They are slower getting in and out of cars than at anything else,—they fairly crawl.

'Tis said the members of one of the boards who are candidates for re-election are opposed to any but the "cut and dried" style of ballot for the caucus. If this is so it must be because they are afraid to stand on their record and desire to make a "deal."

The able committee of the town of Brookline appointed at a town meeting last year for the purpose reports the following: "The committee considered the general policy of insuring our public buildings and have given the whole subject much consideration; and unanimously recommend that in their opinion it is best for the town to assume the risk itself instead of paying out money raised by taxation for this purpose."

Commissioner Swan gives good reasons why city and town clerks should be elected for three year terms, instead of annually, and it would seem as if we should have an article in the warrant to accept the act. Twenty-seven of the thirty-three cities accepted the act at their election last Fall.

What kind of sense is there in electing town officials first and hearing an account of their doings for the past year afterwards? This is putting the cart before the horse and no other corporations do business in any such way. We should not only have the town reports first but also a chance to discuss same in town meeting before electing officials for the next year.

Citizens caucus will probably be held upon Feb. 20, but all candidates who do not believe in going into deals and combines should ignore the caucus and run on nomination papers at the polls. That is the only way they will have any show against the politicians and their "fixtures."

There certainly should be articles in the town warrant for town stable and yard. Main street bridge at Whitney's mill; Bacon street bridge; clearing of Eaton street lot. All of these having been hanging for a long time and should be taken hold of and cleared up. We have too many things on the table.

With all the demands for costly things coming along, our tax rate can still be kept under sixteen dollars if the money is raised in the right way for the things we need.

The Brookline special town meeting Wednesday night voted four to one against insuring the town buildings.

The Fortnightly.

At the regular meeting held on Monday afternoon a large audience greeted Miss Helen A. Brooks of Boston, who gave a lecture-recital upon "Old French and English Dances." The musical illustrations formed and interesting part of the lecture. Miss Brooks gave illustrations upon the piano, and was ably assisted by Miss Greta Masson, the talented soprano. Miss Masson is already a prime favorite with the club members and her appearance before them is always welcomed with great pleasure. The afternoon was in charge of Mrs H. A. Wheeler, first vice-president, and also chairman of the Music Committee.

A Challenge.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Please allow me space in your valuable paper to answer the article on the alleged race between Messrs. Chute of Woburn, Bigelow of Medford and Gilbert of Winchester, a full account of which is purported to come from the pen of W. T. Dotten and which appeared in the coumns of the STAR of last week.

While Mr. Dotten apparently fully believes that an actual race occurred, the fact is that only a lively sprint was made, in which Mr. Bigelow allowed the Winchester horse to win as he was not prepared to race his horse on that occasion. As Mr. Dotton evidently believes that either of Mr. Gilbert's horses is more than a match for Mr Bigelow's China Boy, I wish to make the following statement regarding the merits of all the horses:

It is believed that all the animals are good racers and very speedy, but to put them all to a practical test, Mr. Bigelow will race any of Mr. Gilbert's horses on the snow, ice or road for either a quarter, half or full mile for a purse of $100 to $500, the winner to take all. The money is to be posted in the office of the Medford Citizen at any time that either of the parties agree upon. The race to be under the rules of the National Association and at a place to be mutually agreed upon at the time the match is made.

Respectfully yours,
A. A. HASTINGS.

The Guild of St. Cross will meet Tuesday evening at 8 p. m. with Mrs. E. O. Punchard, Church street.

The Year Books and Lenten Cards, etc., will be distributed next week.

The services on Ash-Wednesday, February 12, are at 10.30 a. m., and 8 p. m.

The bishop will make his annual visit on March 5.

The Rector has set aside Ash Wednesday afternoon at 4 p. m. or Friday of the same week at 7.30 p. m. as times for first talks regarding confirmation, and will be glad to see any one who is interested at that time.

The committee of the Ladies' Guild is much disappointed in the returns, up to date, from the postal cards sent out. A very small number of answers has been received. It is hoped that every one who received a card will send some answer. It is not asked that people shall bring articles to the open table, or that they should be willing to bring articles for every meeting, but simply if they are willing occasionally to be called upon by the committee for contributions, if they are willing in the course of the year to contribute one article or more. A return postal card is also an opportunity to make suggestions, or to ask further questions.

Concerning "Historic Outbreaks."

Practical Politics is responsible for the following sarcasm on a recent report of the gypsy moth committee to the State Board of Agriculture:

"A significant portion of the report of this committee is as follows: 'We are led to fear that soon, unless preventive action is taken, scenes of the historic outbreak of 1889 90 will be repeated on an even larger scale.' This is the ultimatum which will shortly be thrown at the legislators, and those who remember the 'historic outbreak' of men looking for jobs as 'exterminators' at the time mentioned can not help shuddering at the outlook."

Maria C Anderson.

Mrs. Maria C., wife of Mr. Gustaf Anderson passed away last Saturday at her home on Harvard street after a brief illness with pneumonia. She was a most lovable woman, a devoted wife and mother, and her death came as a surprise and sorrow to the many relatives and friends of the family. A sad feature is the leaving of three motherless children, the youngest being but four years of age. The father has the heartfelt sympathy of many friends in his inconsolable loss

Funeral services were held Tuesday, Rev. N. E Kron of the Swedish Church, Woburn, officiating. The interment was in Wildwood.

Just a Word for Mr. Samuel S. Symmes.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Within the past few months, I have noticed that some of your esteemed correspondents have apparently taken delight in hinting that it was time for Mr. Symmes to withdraw from the School Board of this town. I am not aware that anybody claims that there is any special reason for such action on his part, only the very general reason that he would do well to give way for some "better man." Whether Mr. Symmes wishes to have his name presented before the coming caucus as a candidate again, I do not know and it does not in the least concern what I have now to say. Whatever others may think, it is a great satisfaction to any honest and high-minded citizen to know that he has served his town on the School Board for many years to the best of his ability, and this, too, without pecuniary compensation.

Mr. Symmes, in private life, is a shrewd, successful and long headed scientific farmer. I would not for one moment claim, (and Mr. Symmes would be the last man to do so) that he is able to examine the High school classes in Latin, Greek or chemistry, to be as eloquent as some "Boston lawyer" in expounding to the galleries concerning the wonders of the kindergarten system, or even nimble of tongue to defend himself against the blatant attacks of would-be petty office-holders (but not property holders) in some March meeting. Oh, no! Mr. Symmes is no "Reverend," "Professor," "Doctor," or even one of the many "legal luminaries" of the town, he is only a straightforward business man, shrewd, honest and fair minded. As such, he has done a good piece of work for our schools for the last fourteen years. How has he served his fellow citizens so well? Simply, by applying the same detailed business methods of looking after the financial transactions of the School Committee as he has done in his own private business. Citizens sometimes forget that in spending over $40,000 annually for our schools that hundreds of little bills have to be contracted, audited, paid, and otherwise accounted for to the value of a cent. How a man is apt to grumble over the "incidental" expenses connected with the running of his own house and land. It is five times as much bother and trouble with the care and expense of looking after public property. It is the blunder of a janitor, the carelessness of a teacher, the excessive charge on some contract, the lack of a proper discount or an overcharge on this or that bill for "supplies," the addition of five or even twenty dollars for "extras" and a hundred other things which are continually turning up that demand the watchful oversight of a practical business man who knows exactly what a dollar is worth. For an exact and detailed knowledge of all that concerns our school buildings and their equipment, both inside and outside, and the expense of running the same, no man in this town can surpass Mr. Symmes. Simply, because this is the bent of his mind and he believes that he can serve his town better in this direction than in any other.

I am not especially interested in Mr. Symmes as a candidate for re-election. I should really think that he would be glad to rid himself of the irksome details of a school committeeman's work. There are twenty-five men in this town who can fill Mr. Symmes' place with great credit—if they only will. If elected, would they do so, or would they do as most men do, shirk their duties and "let things slide" when they found that there was other work to do besides putting on their Sunday clothes and ornamenting the platform some june morning while some class is celebrating its graduation?

I claim that Mr. Symmes has made a most efficient "running mate," during these fourteen years for sundry inefficient, impractical, shirking and "professional" ladies and gentlemen who aspired to serve the town on the school committee and who would have made a sorry mess of it financially if it had not been for the level head of this quiet member from Symmes Corner. And yet at the next caucus somebody who cannot run his own business straight, will hop up and say, "Sam is a good fellow, but he has been there long enough," and then proceed to nominate some one to take his place whom the average citizen would not trust to sell a spavined horse. Meanwhile a couple dozen of well meaning citizens who, after having eaten a big dinner, were just tired enough to go to the club and forget the caucus, will say on the next morning: "Why! it is too bad, I ought to have gone, you know." This is to be expected,—and it is a part of the comedy.

Appropriations Committee.

The Appropriations Committee held its third meeting Tuesday evening and had before it the School, Water and Selectmen boards. The Water Board advanced a plan for making up for the loss of water shed caused by the abandonment of Dyke's meadow by taking in the water shed of about one hundred acres in the Fells at a roughly estimated cost of $3000.

The Selectmen exhibited two plans for taking care of surface water on the west side of the town at estimated costs of eight or nine thousand dollars respectively, and also reported upon the needs of departments under its charge. The School Board made an extremely thorough report. Next Tuesday evening the Committee will hear the other boards and officials.

"The Irish Agent."

This pleasing and popular drama will be given in Lyceum Hall, Tuesday evening, Feb. 11, by the Winchester Catholic Total Abstinence Society. The staging and everything connected with the play is being looked after so that a first class performance is assured. Some of the best amateur plays ever given in this town were by this society, which has an abundance of good talent to draw upon. Tickets are on sale at Connor's drug store.

Observations.

[Written by N. A. Richardson.]

Wm. E. Parmenter, of Arlington, who has just resigned as judge of the Municipal Court of Boston, after thirty years service in trying civil and criminal cases, is an agreeable gentleman, a good lawyer and an able judge. His family is an old one, and one that I have been acquainted with for many years. Judge Parmenter's father, Wm. Parmenter, was a democrat of the old school, in the days of Andrew Jackson and Martin Van Buren. He represented the Middlesex District in Congress eight years, 1837-45. His wife was Mary Parker of Boston, her father was well known and an extensive land owner in the city. He had three sons, Wm. E., the judge, George, who for many years was a druggist on Hanover street, Boston, and Ezra, once Mayor of Cambridge and later inspector of drugs in the Boston Custom House. Three daughters, one died young, one, Elizabeth, married (now a widow) Freeman Hunt of N. Y., a scholar and writer of distinction, another, Mary, now a maiden lady; the two last living together. I became acquainted with the elder Parmenter when he was up for Congress as a democrat in 1842. I received an invitation from him to go to East Cambridge, where he lived, (his home being a part of the land on which the new Probate buildings now stand) and speak in his behalf at an out-of-door public meeting. This I did, Nathan Brooks, of Concord, being the whig candidate in opposition. This meeting was held of a Saturday night and after the meeting, no cars running late in the evening, I was invited to spend the night at his house. This I accepted. The next day, Sunday, was very stormy, no Sunday trains then running, I was still urged to spend Sunday there, which I did and until Monday morning. I was most kindly treated, and I shall never forget my trepidation at the table and before the open fire place. I was quite plainly dressed, with an unpolished pair of shoes to cover up my home knit stockings, and more than once did I draw my feet back under the rung of the chair out of sight of the young Parmenter girls, who seemed to be all the time present in the sitting room. The young ladies were very sociable in conversation and agreeable in manners, and I have no doubt passed my ill manners and plain cloths by, without comment. The elder Parmenter looked quite like Daniel Webster, dark deep eyes, shaded complexion and impressive features. He was popular with his party at home and influential in Washington. In 1845 I went to Washington for the first time in my life and spent a week. I received a letter of introduction from Mr. Parmenter to Hannibal Hamlin, then a member of the House from Maine, afterwards Vice-President under President Lincoln. Mr. Hamlin had been a member and an intimate friend of Mr. Parmenter in Congress and showed me many favors, giving me a seat on the floor of the House and pointing out many members of national eminence. This acquaintance was not forgotten, for in 1862 I was going down to Fredericksburg, two days after that great battle was fought, with no ready conveyance. I learned that the Vice-President was going down in his private boat, introduced myself to him as one he had met 17 years before by introduction from Mr. Parmenter, he remembered the event and gave me a free passage on his boat. Later in the Blaine campaign I took a letter of introduction from Hon. N. P. Banks to Mr. Hamlin, then at home, who gave me a list of towns to speak in with some points to discuss.

Wages in olden times:—In 1830 Caleb Convers, son of Benjamin Convers who lived where Edward Robinson now lives, worked for Zachariah Symmes, father of Mrs. Nancy Symmes Howe, one year for $4 a month. He worked on a farm, drove an ox team, etc. When he settled, Mr. Symmes charged him for an ax handle he broke, 20 cents, for a hatchet handle broken 17 cents, for washing his overalls 50 cents, for medicine $2, for liquor at Black Horse tavern $1.75, for tobacco at Grammar's store $1.42, for putting on a lock on his trunk 50 cents, for mending his stockings and mittens 70 cents, for a pair of new sheets to his bed and a quilt $1.25, for sitting in his pew $1, for breaking a shovel handle and rake 80 cents, for tapping his thick boots and patching his shoes 75 cents, for not working wet weather $6, total $17.14; cash to balance $30.86; total $48. It would seem here was a good reason to strike for higher wages. I remember Convers well. I have have seen him going to Andover with an ox team, to haul ship timber to Medford. He died in a poor horse.

Mrs. Mary Upton Nash, wife of the late Judge Nash, of Lynnfield, has, by will, given to the town $2000, income to be used for "public purposes" and $1000 to the Lynnfield public library. Mrs. Nash was the daughter of Edward Upton of Wakefield and brother of the late Judge Upton of that town. Her mother was Betsey Davis, daughter of Nathaniel Davis, who died in 1835, and lived where James Russell now lives (last house in Winchester, right hand side going to Woburn). Mrs. Nash's mother was a sister to the father of Samuel H. Davis of this town. She was married at the Davis house in 1815, and was a woman of much energy and considerable talent.

Some bubbles come to the surface about S. W. McCall's being returned to Congress another term, but they are evanescent. The people in his district hold him in high regard. He has a strong hold upon the masses. His calm and sensible position upon two or three of the dividing issues of the day meet public approval, and they respect his judgment and independence because they believe his convictions are fortified by prudent deliberation. Mr. McCall is not a meteor that glides through the political horizon and is lost in darkness; his light shines steady, past, present, and will in the future. He fills a prominent position in the eyes of the nation, is looked upon with favor by all parties, his speeches are quoted extensively, while his views make a strong impression. He is a good debater, neither clamorous or egotistic. When he addresses the House empty seats are scarce, because he has something interesting to say.

A Little Boy's Life Saved.

I have a few words to say regarding Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It saved my little boy's life and I feel that I cannot praise it enough. I bought a bottle of it from A. E. Steere of Goodwin, S. D., and when I got home with it the poor baby could hardly breathe. I gave the medicine as directed every ten minutes until he "threw up" and then I thought sure he was going to choke to death. We had to pull the phlegm out of his mouth in great long strings. I am positive that if I had not got that bottle of cough medicine, my boy would not be on earth today.—JOEL DEMONT, Inwood, Iowa. YOUNG PEOPLES' RELIGIOUS UNION.

Miss Alice F. Symmes gave a most interesting talk last Sunday evening before the Young Peoples' Religious Union, about the growth of the churches in Boston. To one who is unfamiliar with the church history of Boston, some surprising facts were given. She told of the changes that had been made in the churches, of the divisions of the congregations and the reasons for these divisions. It certainly strikes one as strange that churches can be divided over such matters as made many breaks in the Boston churches in the last part of the seventeenth century and the early part of the eighteenth. But by these means several new churches were formed and these same churches are large and influential at the present time. The spirit that the Puritans brought over to this country was the spirit of brotherhood and this they made a part of the creeds of their churches—that is, the more liberal of them did this. These creeds were simple as far as the wording of them was concerned, but their meaning was great and as lasting as truly great things always are.

Miss Alice C. Newman was the leader of the meeting, and Mr. Wilder Parkhurst was in charge of the music. This consisted of a violin solo by Mr. Parkhurst and a bass solo by Mr. Herbert Dutch. All are cordially invited to these meetings.

HOME AND CHILD

Does your horse "feel his oats"? What a difference between the grain-fed and the grass-fed horse! The first strong and full of ginger, the second flabby, weak and tired out before he begins. The feeding makes the difference.

Children are not alike either. One is rosy, bright-eyed, full of life and laughter, another is pale, weak and dull. The feeding again is responsible.

Sickly children need special feeding. They don't "feel their oats". Scott's Emulsion adds just the right richness to their diet. It is like grain to the horse. The child gets new appetite and strong digestion.

Scott's Emulsion is more than food. It is a strong medicine. It rouses up dull children, puts new flesh on thin bones and red blood into pale ones. It makes children grow. Scott's Emulsion makes ordinary food do its duty.

This picture represents the Trade Mark of Scott's Emulsion and is on the wrapper of every bottle.

Now that large users of water who have had special contracts with the Water Board have been ordered to put in meters, many people are coming to the conclusion that the revised water rates were acted on too hastily and without proper consideration. There is no objection to that part of the new by-laws relating to the rates for water for dwelling houses, but there is to that wherein the Water Board is compelled against its judgement to install meters in those places which have hereto fore had the privilege of contracting for their supplies and which paid the town a fair revenue. It was not sound business policy to take away from the Board all its authority and make hard and fast rules which will cause a loss to the town of a great deal of money annually. Since water was first introduced into Winchester the Water Board has been composed of able business men who have conducted the affairs of the department on the same principles as they have their own affairs. But now, except to lay new pipe and make repairs, they have been deprived of practically all power, and in a certain sense are merely figureheads. When a Board becomes incapable of intelligently managing its affairs in the interests of the town it should be removed and a new Board elected. But it is not fair, however, for the town to tie their hands as has been done in this case.

A few years ago Beggs & Cobb paid the town annually $600 for water. Under pressure the Water Board put in meters, but not before this firm had agreed to pay $700. It was a case of killing the goose that laid the golden egg, as Messrs. Beggs & Cobb put in wells from which they now get all the water required at a trifling cost. This will be the case with the farmers who are now paying the town a great deal of money annually. They cannot afford to pay for metered water. In the case of the STAR, the Board announced that it would be compelled to meter the water from the first of January. An offer was made to pay the same price as would be charged for electricity, but the Board said they had no voice in the matter whatever. The result was that electricity has replaced water, and the town is out just that much, and so it will be in other instances. If the Board had had authority a rate could have been arranged that would have been fair and equitable to both. If Winchester was not blessed with an abundant supply of water the situation would be different, but where more than double the quantity of water is allowed to go to waste over the dams than is used for domestic and manufacturing purposes, it is not good policy to cut down the revenue and increase the wastage. Let this question again rest in the hands of the Water Board where it properly should.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

The men's meeting will be addressed next Sunday by Mr. Ray Green Hurling of the Cambridge High school. Mr. Hurling will also speak to the boys meeting at 3 o'clock on, "Things Worth Having." These meetings will be especially attractive as the speaker is very strong and popular.

The Bible class conducted by Mrs. James M. Gray finished on Tuesday evening. All who have attended are unanimous in their praise of the class and feel the time was well expended. It is hoped a similar class may be formed another season.

The "Durrell Brotherhood" will meet as usual on Friday afternoon. The mechanical drawing class is progressing satisfactory. Some of the work is on exhibition at the rooms now and is very commendable. Thirteen men were in attendance at the last session. There are fifteen on the list of members, two having left town.

An effort is being made to form a basket ball league among the gymnasum members. The plan is to organize as many teams as is possible, six possibly, and arrange a tournament, every team to play every other team. The members of the first team will be captains of the teams organized. All desiring to play in these games are asked to leave their names at the office at once.

A class in fencing is being organized. Foils and masks have been secured by six men and instruction will begin tonight.

The regular basket ball team go to Salem next Thursday to play the association team there. Salem were beaten here a few weeks ago and intense interest is felt in both associations in the outcome of this game. The Winchester team have a fair chance of winning.

Winchester defeated Haverhill last night by the score of 49-20.

The Juniors defeated Brown & Nichols of Cambridge at basket ball Thursday afternoon by a score of 28-22. The line up:

MYSTIC VALLEY LEAGUE.

The club lost two to the Battery Tuesday night on the latters alleys. The second was lost by only two pins and Robertson of the Battery rolled 243, making a new record for high single. Every Calumet man bunched in one of the strings, Littlefield a bunch of five in the second and McCall a bunch of four and two in the third. Both McCall and Littlefield had holes in their high strings which held them down. At the commencement of the third Berry, McCall and Burnham all started off with doubles and the Battery did not once gain the lead. The score:

New gas lights have been placed in the club house in the reception room and over one of the billiard tables as well as several small lights. They are a great improvement and are meeting with much approval. It is hoped that the remaining billiard and pool tables and the bowling alleys will be similiarly equipped.

GILT EDGE LEAGUE.

The club took two from Charlestown in their return game Thursday evening. All three games would have been won as Charlestown only led the sixth box in the first string by four pins, but breaks held the Calumets down, Purrington alone getting six. The second box in the third was clean with strikes for Calumet, two of the five doubling. Littlefield got 5-6 twice and Small cleaned up some hard leaves. Richardson rolled his second a clean string of spares.

Calumet is now tie with Dudley, leading them, however, on the pin fall.

W. H. S. Notes.

The polo game which was to take place between the class of 1902 and the class of 1906 last Wednesday afternoon was forfeited by the class of 1906.

The mid-winter examinations are taking place this week.

The Senior English class held a debate last Monday at the High school building. The question before the class was, Resolved: That free and unrestricted sufferage be granted to women. The chief speakers on the affirmative were: Florence Perry and Edith Wilcox, who presented a well arranged and able argument. Mildred Gutterson and Howard Newton were the principal speakers on the negative. Among those who took part in the debate were: Estella Perry, Bremer Pond, Charles Main, Nellie Donavan, Evelyn Parker, Robert Adriance, Ralph Dyer. Owing to the informal character of the discussion, no board of judges was appointed.

A BURNING QUESTION

At this time is: "Are you getting the best out of your coal?" If not, perhaps you are wasting Heat in the cellar which is needed elsewhere. It has been shown that a single foot of naked two-inch pipe carrying high pressure steam all the year round will condense more steam than a dollar's worth of coal will make, and the loss is in proportion for lower pressure and shorter time. Do you wish to stop this loss? If so, now is the time when it can best be done. Perhaps it will cost less than you think. At any rate it will cost you nothing to get figures.

NOW LOOK OUT!

"Take care of yourself," say our friends. "I'll try to," we answer. We do take a little care, yet in spite of warm clothes, rubbers and mackintoshes, an army of people were bowled out by pneumonia and other lung and chest diseases last winter. They caught cold, neglected it, let it fix upon them, were torn by coughs, choked by inflammations and congestions, wasted by fever, tired out by pain and then gave up the fight. The hour you realize that you have a cold on the chest, place a Benson's Porous Plaster where the pain or oppression is felt. If you think two are needed make it two. No harm if you were covered with them. They act quickly and prevent the engorgment of blood in the organs. In this way—with ordinary caution as to exposure—you will break up the cold and avoid a serious sickness. No other applications, or any other form of treatment, will accomplish this as certainly and speedily. Benson's Plasters have a distinct and positive action and are curative to the highest degree. Use them with the same confidence for coughs, muscular rheumatism, the grip (back and chest) and all similar ailments. Women, who are chief sufferers from cold weather complaints, should keep these plasters always within reach. Get the genuine. TEACHERS WON

TWO LITTLE SCHOOL MARMS BATTLE WITH CORPORATIONS.

Chicago Teachers Did Not Get Their Pay and Found That the Deficit in the City Treasury Was Due to Tax Dodging by Millionaires.

A signal triumph has just been won by two Chicago school-teachers over the most powerful corporations of that city; and the more fully the details of the struggle become known, the more remarkable the victory appears.

The appropriations for schools in Chicago have long been inadequate, and whenever the Board of Education needed $1,000,000 or $2,000,000 for any purpose, it has been in the habit of deducting it from the teachers' salaries. A few years ago, about 4,000 of the 6,000 teachers in Chicago organized a Teachers' Federation. Having reason to believe that the shortage of money was due to the fact that most of the large corporations were evading their legal taxes, they appointed two young teachers, Miss Margaret Haley and Miss Catherine Goggin, a committee to investigate. Then, as the Boston Journal of Education says, "the battle royal began between two little schoolmarms and all the most powerful corporations and trusts in the State combined."

The women's inquiries revealed a most extraordinary state of things. Up to 1875, the railroads of Illinois had been assessed an annual tax on their franchises. In 1874, the assessment was $31,000,000.; in 1875, only $22,000,000.; and from 1875 to the present time, they have not been assessed at all. In 1874, the franchises of the two little horsecar lines which Chicago then had were taxed at $1,000,000.; but in 1900, the franchises of the 700 miles of electric and cable car lines in Chicago were not taxed a cent.

About 1875 the railroads apparently found out that it was cheaper to bribe the officials whose duty it was to apportion their taxes than it was to pay the tax. Other corporations found out the same thing. Of 23 large corporations that the teachers investigated owning franchises worth $235,000,000, the majority were not assessed at all, and the others were assessed on only a small fraction of their actual property. These 23 corporations were the gas and coke company, the telephone company, and electric company, and twenty street railway companies.

The women tried to induce the officials whose duty it was to tax these corporations to tax them. Finding that the officials were in league with the tax-dodgers and were determined not to comply with the law, the women engaged an able lawyer and took legal action, to compel the officials to do their duty. The corporations fought hard; they exhausted every resource of evasion and delay; they appealed the case up from court to court; but the law was clear and the evidence of fraud overwhelming, and the Supreme Court of Illinois has ruled that they must pay. The decision will add millions every year to the revenues of Chicago. Hereafter there will be money enough to keep the schools open the full term, and to pay the teachers their salaries. All the other municipalities in Illinois will also profit by the decision.

Are not those two plucky young women worthy of a vote?

Alice Stone Blackwell.

Lillian Whiting in Colorado.

Lillian Whiting, the well-known newspaper correspondent, lately visited Colorado. She writes:

"It would hardly seem possible for any person of ordinary intelligence to visit Colorado without becoming convinced of the value of woman suffrage to society and to the State. However, one's previous convictions might have differed from this conclusion, it is one that must almost inevitably be forced upon the ordinarily intelligent perception, when brought face to face with the great object-lesson of its working demonstration.

"The fact that women are voters changes the entire structure of society to a degree that is surprising, even to those who have theoretically believed in this same result. It is all we had believed, and ever more so. Whatever special interest women have at heart, whether the building of a club house, the extension and higher development of the schools, or the improvement of any municipal matter, their effort is perforce taken seriously, and not regarded as a matter of amusement. The result is that the woman takes her place in the affairs of life as a rational and responsible human being; and that social matters and conversational interchange are infinitely more interesting and significant."

Mrs. Livermore on School Suffrage.

Mrs. Mary A. Livermore said in a recent address:

"Some women think the school ballot is too small a fraction of the right of suffrage to be worth using. My husband said he always felt indignant when I came out of that booth, after being allowed to vote for school officers only, and he advised me to wait till I could vote the whole ticket. I asked, 'Is that the way you would do if a man owed you a large debt, and offered to pay you a small instalment on it? If he owed you $10,000 and offered you $500, wouldn't you take what you could get, and then work for more?' 'Oh, yes,' he said, 'you have the logic of it, but I have the sentiment!'"

It is certainly the duty of women—mothers and possible mothers—to stand by the public schools. You want to know who are the teachers, and who are the school committee. You want to see that the children are taught kindness, cleanliness and courtesy. School suffrage is a moral measure, and no woman should hold herself excused from voting.

WITH THE DOCTORS

The first milestone on the journey toward bloodless surgery has been reached. Its name is adrenalin, that being the title of a chemical composition recently discovered by Dr. Jokichi Takamine, a well known and highly educated Japanese. Adrenalin is to medicine what liquid air is to science, the only difference being that the chemical is under complete control, with unlimited possibilities before it.

By the local application of adrenalin, in solution of one part to 5,000, operations may be performed on the nose, ear and eye without the spilling of a drop of blood. Such operations have also been performed with adrenalin in solution of one part to 10,000.

Thus has it been demonstrated that the discovery is the most powerful medicine known and at the same time, it might be said, the most expensive. Physicians buy it at $1 a grain, or $7,000 a pound.

The isolation of the blood pressure raising constituent of the suprarenal gland is of course the chief virtue of adrenalin, and its uses and developments along this particular line are unlimited. It has also been ascertained, however, that adrenalin is a most powerful cardiac stimulant, and it has been hinted by physicians that it may be possible to resuscitate persons who have apparently died of heart failure.

Diphtheria Germs Fifteen Years Old.

In a recent investigation which was made to discover in what manner diphtheria was contracted it developed that two children had made their way to an attic and had there opened an old trunk and played with toys that belonged to a child who had died of diphtheria fifteen years previously. There was no other way in which the disease could have been contracted.

Seasickness Exposition.

An exposition dealing with all the means for preventing seasickness has been held at Ostend. It comprised apparatus for diminishing the effects of the motion of a vessel, plans of special vessels; designed to avoid movements producing seasickness; apparatus for holding the viscera (abdomen) rigidly in place, plans for ventilation and renewal of the air of cabins, deodorizing agents, hygiene of seasickness, remedies, etc.

Effect of Light on Silkworms.

Some curious experiments with silkworms made recently in France may be used as the basis of a new sex theory even more remarkable than that of Dr. Schenk of Vienna. The experiments were made by M. Camille Flammarion, the celebrated French astronomer, and were described at a meeting of the Academie des Sciences by M. Bouquet de la Grye, who declared that tests made on a great number of silkworms showed that those bred under natural light produced an equal number of male and female worms, while those bred under a glass of a light violet color produced 77 per cent of males.

Device to Measure Wits.

An Iowa professor, Carl E. Seashore, comes to the center with a psycho mechanical device to measure brain power. Professor Seashore says: "I can tell what scholar is the brightest, what pupil is the earnest plodder, what one is quick but unreliable. In short, the psychergograph will test the power of the individual and compare the capacity of many persons to do certain kinds of work specified, to associate ideas, to develop mental working power with age and to perform any other mental acts and services."

Boon For Submarine Travel.

The new cleptoscope of Signors Rosso and Laurenti, two Italian naval engineers, is claimed to be the most successful solution thus far of the problem of giving vision to the crews of submarine vessels. It has a range of 60 degrees, showing objects on the water distinctly and without distortion, and the only part of the apparatus reaching above the surface is a practically invisible tube five inches in diameter.

Boiler Inspection In France.

The laws governing boiler inspections in France are exceedingly liberal, which does not imply that they are exceedingly safe to the public. Boilers must be inspected when made, when repaired and when changing owners; also every tenth year anyhow. "Voluntary inspection," whatever that may be, must be at "reasonable intervals."

WOOD AND FLOWER

Gunnar Anderson, a Scandinavian botanist, makes a specialty of the study of plant growth inside the arctic circle. The total number of flowering species so far identified is about 900, of which 435 are in Iceland, 286 in Greenland and the rest mostly in Spitzbergen.

The arctic summers, though short, are often hot and dry, and the lack of moisture keeps plant life dwarfed. Many of the species are the same as in larger forms in southern lands.

Parsnips Poisonous When Wild.

The common garden parsnip, Pastinaca sativa, when it runs wild becomes a skin poison, somewhat after the manner of Rhus toxicodendron. It is especially poisonous when the dew is on, but when dry is said to be entirely safe. Upon children's hands and feet this wild parsnip will set up quite a smart rash, but a wash of salt water is said to be a speedy cure.

LESSON V, FIRST QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, FEB. 2.

Text of the Lesson, Acts iv, 1-22. Memory Verses, 8-10—Golden Text, Acts iv, 12—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

1, 2. "They preached through Jesus the resurrection from the dead." It was this that they taught the people as they preached unto them repentance and remission of sins through Jesus Christ. It is not at death that the believer enters into the fullness of the benefits of redemption, but at the resurrection, for, although absent from the body and present with the Lord is a gain, and very far better, yet until the company of called out ones is completed, whether they are in heaven or on earth, all are waiting until Jesus shall come again; for that event will bring the resurrection of the just, not a resurrection of all the dead, but a resurrection of the righteous from among the rest of the dead, like the resurrection of Christ and of those saints who rose after Him (Matt. xxvii, 52, 53; Rev. xx, 5, 6).

3, 4. For their faithfulness to Christ and His doctrine Peter and John find themselves in prison; but, while they were for a time bound, they could rejoice that the word of God was not bound, and we rejoice to read that many who heard believed, and the number of the men was about 5,000. What a grand gathering from Israel to the glory of Israel's Messiah, for the gospel was not yet preached to the gentiles (chapter xi, 19). This great result was the work not of the apostles, but of Him who when on earth said on one occasion, "Give ye them to eat," and then used the apostles to feed the 5,000 with bread which He had provided.

5-7. "By what power or by what name have ye done this?" They asked Christ a similar question at one time (Matt. xxi, 23), but not for any good reason. Like some people today, they could not tolerate anything that did not proceed from themselves. But we must remember that all that is not of God shall come to naught (Isa. viii, 9, 10).

8-10. It thrills one to hear Peter declare to these rulers of the people that this work was wrought by Jesus of Nazareth, whom they had crucified, but whom God had raised from the dead. He knew that these men could kill him as they had killed Jesus, but he had no fear, for he was filled with the Spirit. It was a good deed which had been done to an impotent man, and it had been wrought by Him whom they delighted to own as Lord and Master, and they were His to be, His witnesses, and to die for Him if need be. In the latter part of this story (verses 29-31) they do not ask to be delivered from further persecution, but only that they may have boldness to speak His word and power to honor His name.

11, 12. "This is the stone which was set at naught of you builders." Read here Gen. xlix, 24; Isa. viii, 14; xxviii, 16; Ps. cxviii, 22; Zech. iii, 9; iv, 7; I Pet. ii, 4-8, and see what a fruitful simile you have in this stone which so wondrously speaks of Christ. Read also Dan. ii, 44, 45, and be sure that you are in the Rock and drinking from it (Ex. xxxiii, 22; Isa. xxvi, 4, margin; I Cor. x, 4). There is no other foundation and no other salvation (I Cor. iii, 11; Isa. xlv, 22). They were familiar with the words "God is my salvation" (Isa. xii, 2; Ex. xv, 2; Ps. cxviii, 14), but they (these rulers) would not accept Jesus as God. They were ignorant of God's righteousness and going about to establish their own, which in God's sight was only filthy rags (Rom. x, 4; Isa. xliv, 6).

13, 14. "They took knowledge of them that they had been with Jesus." Like their Master, they had not been taught in the schools. They had not the wisdom of man, but they had wisdom and power which man could not give them. The power of Christ manifest in us is the strongest kind of preaching, and when they saw it not only in the apostles, but in this poor, helpless beggar, they could say nothing against, though in their hearts they hated it, for they were but carnal, and the carnal mind is enmity against God. Paul so coveted the power of Christ that He would glory in infirmities if only the power of Christ might rest upon him (II Cor. xii, 9).

15-17. "What shall we do to these men?" Having sent the apostles aside, they confer among themselves as a council on this to them important matter, and they determine that any more of such work as the healing of this impotent man in the name of Jesus must not be tolerated. Why do they imagine a vain thing and take counsel against the Lord? He that sitteth in the heavens shall laugh. The Lord shall have them in derision (Ps. ii, 1-4). Their counsel is vain, their purposes against the Lord shall surely be frustrated, for "every purpose of the Lord shall be performed" (Jer. li, 29; see also Isa. xiv, 24). Think of mortal man determining that the work of the Lord God Almighty shall spread no farther! How plainly visible is the one behind the scene, the devil, who would, if he could, dethrone God, and who will before his final overthrow gather the nations against God (Rev. xix, 19).

18-20. "We cannot but speak the things which we have seen and heard." This is their reply to the command not to speak at all nor teach in the name of Jesus, and this command was from the foremost religious people of the day, with the high priest at their head, whose lips should keep knowledge and who ought to have been the messenger of the Lord of Hosts (Mal. ii, 7). Let any one now preach the whole truth concerning the second coming of Christ, the resurrection of the righteous, the restoration of Israel, no kingdom till Jesus comes, etc., and he will not fail to find prominent religious rulers who will if possible stop that kind of teaching.

21, 22. With some further threatening they were let go without punishment because the people were all glorifying God for that which was done. So they went to their own company of believers and told all that the chief priests and elders had said unto them, and with one accord they lifted up their voices to God, the creator of all things, and told Him all and left it with Him, asking only for boldness to speak His word and that through them He would honor His name. The Lord's answer was to shake the place and fill them again with His Spirit and cause them to speak boldly, as they had desired (verses 23 to 31). Believing that they were on earth for God, they feared not the face of man. Like Abram, who, being blessed by the Most High God, possessor of heaven and earth, he wanted no favors of the king of Sodom; like Zerubbabel, who feared not the adversaries and took no help from them (Gen. xiv, 22, 23; Ez. iv, 1-3).

A Legless Humanity.

A Professor Young, an Englishman, foresees a legless humanity. He can see no reason for thinking that the present tendency of people to use artificial means of progression will not continue and even increase. The whole theory of evolution rests on the principle that the persistent disuse of members will end in their loss, just as the blindness of the fishes in the subterranean river in Mammoth cave has followed the habit of living in darkness.

A Natural Fountain Pen.

The needles of the pine are in pairs, and when a pair is bound with fine wire near the point a pen capable of writing is made. As penholder, put the length of the needles in a piece of lilac branch, only leaving the points to show by about a centimeter. The space between the needles fills with ink by its capillarity, and you have a "fountain" pen capable of writing twenty lines right away.

Keeping Butter.

Good butter will keep sweet for many weeks when it is placed in a crock after being made into rolls wrapped in strong cheesecloth or old muslin and then covered with a brine strong enough to bear up an egg. Saltpeter and sugar may be added to advantage while the brine is still hot in the proportion of a teaspoonful of the former and a tablespoonful of the latter to every four quarts. The brine must, however, not be poured upon the butter until it is entirely cold.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper.

NATURE'S ENERGY.

Possibilities of Utilizing Heat of the Earth's Interior.

New methods of utilizing nature's energy constantly are being discovered, and doubtless the future has in store greater discoveries than yet have been made. T. C. Mendenhall in Cassier's Magazine writes of the stored energy of the heat of the earth's interior and the possibilities of using it as a source of power. He says:

"The stored energy of the heat of the earth's interior is beyond power of calculation, and some not entirely unsuccessful attempts to utilize this have already been made. From a short distance below the surface the temperature increases downward at an average rate which indicates that at a depth of fifty miles it is not less than 5,000 degrees F., and there is abundant reason for believing that the earth is an intensely hot body with only a thin layer of poorly conducting, cold surface matter.

"These are the essential conditions of a heat engine of enormous capacity, and as in many parts of the world comparatively high temperatures are found very near the surface, while in all parts considerable ranges are possible within reasonable differences of level, the interior heat of the earth, which has an origin more remote in time than the sun or its own axial rotation, is worthy of most serious consideration as a possible and reasonable source of power.

"Its importance will be greatly enhanced when we are able to transform heat energy directly into electricity on a large scale and with economy, avoiding the great waste which necessarily accompanies the use of the steam engine, and this must soon come about."

RAILROADING

There is a possibility that the familiar appearing sandbox, the useful and ornamental addition to a locomotive boiler, will in the near future be relegated to the scrap heap along with the iron brake wheels and link and pin couplers of primitive railroading. In its place a weird creation will be erected to startle the traveling public.

This will be a dynamo, an invention of a Baltimore man. Not only will it take the place of the sandbox in providing a remedy for slipping wheels; but, according to the optimistic ideas of the inventor, it will add about 50 per cent to the efficiency of the locomotive to which it is applied by increasing its adhesion to the rails and consequently the tractive power.

The theory is that when the train is to be started the current of electricity can be thrown into the steel tires of the drivers, making them powerful magnates, which will attract the steel rails, obviating all chances of slipping. It is now a well defined law in locomotive engineering that the heavier a locomotive is the more cars it will pull; hence the monster creations which are being turned out of the various works. According to the inventor, if a perfect connection can be established between the wheels and the rails the light locomotive will be made almost twice as heavy by the attraction and capable of hauling twice as many cars.

Of a Large Class.

Simkins—Bilkins junior strikes me as being a very promising young man.

Timkins—Yes; more promising than paying.—Chicago News.

Daring Wasps.

"Wasps were the first paper makers," said an entomologist. "It is very interesting to study the ways of these fierce little insects. For the sake of a grab at the honey store a single individual will sometimes face a whole hive of bees, being in fair combat a match for any three inhabitants of the apiary. Most of us have had experience of the fearlessness with which they will attack human beings."

A Good Recommendation.

"I have noticed the sale on Chamberlain's Stomach & Liver Tablets is almost invariably to those who have once used them," says Mr. J. H. Weber, a prominent druggist of Cascade, Iowa. What better recommendation could any medicine have than for people to call for it when again in need of such a remedy? Try them when you feel dull after eating, when you have a bad taste in your mouth feel bilious, have no appetite or when troubled with constipation, you are certain to be delighted with the prompt relief which they afford. G. C. Clemens, of Topeka, Kan., the noted constitutional lawyer, who bears so striking a resemblance to Mark Twain, (Samuel B. Clemens) that he is frequently taken for the original Mark, is a man of deep intellect and wide experience. He is considered one of the foremost lawyers in this country. In a recent letter to the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Mr. Clemens says:

A Unique Headstone.

The above picture represents the headstone over the grave of Waterman Brown the veteran employee of the Boston & Maine Railroad, who died in Woburn, Nov. 5, 1900. Previous to his last sickness he made the request that a stone sleeper and a section of rail taken from the old roadbed of the Boston & Lowell R. R., now a part of the Southern Division of the B. & M. R. R., be placed over his grave as a headstone. The stone sleeper can be seen on the grave in Woodbrook Cemetery at Woburn, and to the passing observer it will serve as a reminder of the faithfulness and devotion to duty of the one who lies beneath. Mr. Brown was a familiar figure in Woburn for a great many years.

CALVIN W. RICE.

Remarkable Success of a Winchester Boy.

The following was taken from the last issue of the Electrical World and Engineer, of New York, the leading paper of its class in this country.

Mr. Calvin Winsor Rice was born in Winchester, Mass., on Nov. 4, 1863. He is of Puritan stock, descended from Governor Winslow, of the Massachusetts Bay Colony. Most of his early life was spent in the vicinity of Boston, Mass., and his education was obtained in the public schools of Massachusetts. Entering the electrical engineering course of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1886, he was graduated therefrom with the class of 1890

Previous to graduation Mr. Rice, in order to supplement his class instruction by practical knowledge, worked during summer vacations in the shops of the Thomson-Houston Electric Company, of Lynn, Mass., beginning as armature winder. In this manner he gained early in life the practical ideas which have so clearly shown themselves in his subsequent career. Shortly after M. Rice's permanent attachment to the Thomson Houston Electric Company, he was assigned for duty with the motor department, and assisted in the work then being newly undertaken adapting electric motors to many of the various kinds of work with which we are now all so familiar, but which in those days presented many problems for solution.

When the Thomson-Houston Electric Company consolidated with the Edison General Electric Company in 1892, and the present General Electric Company was formed, Mr. Rice was assigned to duty at the headquarters of the new company in Schenectady. There again he had the rare opportunity of assisting in new developments, as work was carried out on a much larger scale and polyphase apparatus was beginning to receive much more attention than had formerly been the case.

At Schenectady in 1894 he contracted typhoid fever, and after recovery was chosen in 1895 to fill the position of local engineer of the Cincinnati office of the General Electric Company, where he remained until 1896, when he was called to the position of electrical superintendent of the Silver Lake Mines, Silverton, Col. At these mines there was a power transmission system, the power plant situated on the Las Animas River, transmitting over a four-mile line to the mines at an elevation of 12,500 ft. above sea level.

After completing the extensions for the Silver Lake plant Mr. Rice went with the Anaconda Copper Mining Company as consulting engineer to Mr. Marcus Daly. In this position a great variety of work was performed by Mr. Rice, but his chief occupation was that of determing the engineering and commercial practicability of the development of certain water powers near Butte, Mont.

Mr. Rice returned to the east in 1898 and became the electrical engineer of the Kings County Electric Light & Power Company, Brooklyn, and took part in the equipping of the station and complete system of feeders and mains for an alternating system. The Kings County system was only partially completed when a consolidation was affected with the Brooklyn Edison Company, and the two systems were merged. Mr. Rice then accepted a position as electrical engineer of the Consolidated Telegraph & Electrical Subway Company, which owns and operates the high-tension subways of the City of New York. In addition to this responsible position, which he still holds, Mr. Rice was also appointed chief of the meter and testing departments of the New York Edison Company, with headquarters at 53 Duane Street, New York. In these positions Mr. Rice has been assisting in the successful consolidation of several companies into one large system, and has gathered an experience equaled by few engineers.

Mr. Rice has prepared papers for the National Electric Light Association at its conventions in 1898 and 1901, for the Boston Society of Arts and the Brooklyn Engineers' Club.

Mr. Rice is interested in literature, music and art, and these qualities as well as his never-failing courtesy have endeared him to a large circle of acquaintances and personal friends.

He is a member of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, of which he is at present a manager, a member of the finance and several special committees. He is the very efficient chairman of the Institute Committee on Papers and Meetings. He is also a member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and a corporate member of the Brooklyn Engineer's Club.

Had To Conquer Or Die

"I was just about gone," writes Mrs Rosa Richardson, of Laurel Springs, N. C. "I had consumption so bad that the best doctors said I could not live more than a month, but I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery and was wholly cured by seven bottles and am now stout and well." It's an unrivaled life-saver in consumption, pneumonia, La Grippe and Bronchitis; infallible for coughs, colds, asthma, hay fever, croup or whooping cough. Guaranteed bottles 50c and $1. Trial bottles free at Grover's drug store.

Saluting With the Hat.

Before the invention of wigs the hat was rarely removed except to salute others, especially royal personages. It was worn at table when ladies or persons of rank were present. Except when saluting royalty it was the custom merely to raise the hand to the hat somewhat after the manner of a military salute. When it became the mode to wear a profusion of false hair, the hat was less needed as a protection for the head and was carried under the arm.

Chief McIntosh Loses His Mother

Miss Mary A. McIntosh, mother of Chief Wm. R. McIntosh and of D Fraser McIntosh of Woburn was discovered ill at her home in Buel Block on Main street, Woburn, Wednesday of last week under unusual circumstances.

Mrs. W. R. McIntosh came here Wednesday noon to call upon her mother-in-law. She found the door to the apartments fastened, and was told by a neighbor that the elder Mrs. McIntosh had probably gone to Winchester as she had not been seen for a day or two. The chief's wife had received no visit from her husband's mother, and felt that something was wrong. She at once notified her husband, who repaired hither, and opened the rooms.

His mother was found partly resting upon the bed, and nearly if not quite unconscious. The attending physician's supposition is that Mrs. McIntosh retired as usual Saturday night, that being the last time her neighbors heard any sound from her rooms; that between Saturday night and Sunday morning she was stricken with apoplexy, lying unconscious until Wednesday morning, when having partially recovered she sought to summon help, but was too weak and fell back upon the bed.

Mrs. McIntosh was the widow of the late Duncan McIntosh, and was 68 years of age and lived by herself in Buel Block. She was afflicted with Bright's disease, but had kept about until this seizure. She passed away last Friday evening.

Funeral services were held at the Congregational church in Woburn Monday afternoon.

Another Rumor of Removal of McKay Plant.

A rumor having been circulated that the United Shoe Machinery Company was to remove their scattered plants to a proposed mammoth structure in Quincy is denied by a chief official of the concern who says "that nothing has yet been decided in regard to a location for a new plant. He further said that for the past two years various rumors have been flying about concerning the purposes of the company. It is the intention of the company to erect a modern, up-to-date building, but where it will be built is still a question. Various places are under consideration and it will undoubtedly be located wherever it is decided the best interests of the company will be served. Beyond that nothing has yet been decided."

As the present location in Winchester does not appear to be taken into account as a site for the plant, there is a growing opinion that the McKay branch will ultimately leave Winchester. That the present building, which cost about $100,000 to erect a few years ago besides other smaller ones, together with the fifteen acres of land will be abandoned is not to be supposed, as in all probability they will be disposed of to some other concern if they are not utilized by some special branch of the company. However, in the course of the next few months the public will know all about the matter, as the plans for the new buildings are about completed. As it will be a year or more before they will be ready for occupancy, no change in Winchester will take place until that time arrives.

Friends to the Workingman.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Your man, "Fair Play," in last week's STAR, must be a workingman. He knows how to hit the nail on the head the first time. He says Mr. Whitfield Tuck and Mr. F. F. Carpenter are our two men for School Committeemen, and he is right. They forget every day more than some men ever knew about running the schools. Go away with your ministers, lawyers and doctors! We want plain, everyday business men and no cranks. I heard these men talk at the town meeting and I know they are the real friends of the workingman. Mr. Henry Johnson says we must keep ministers and lawyers off the School Board, and he knows what he is talking about. Mr. Tuck says give us a kindergarten in every school in town, and Mr. Carpenter says we must cut down the cost of running the High school. That is the right kind of talk. Taxes are too high now for the laboring man. So, then, Mr. Editor, give these two gentlemen a send off, and oblige a

McKAY WORKINGMAN.

Women on the School Board.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Your correspondent in last weeks issue of your paper advances the thoughts of many of our citizens in regard to placing women on the school board. Many mothers have felt for a long time the importance of having women on the board.

Mr. Tuck recommends increasing the number to five and that one of that number be a woman. I would suggest that the number be increased to five and that two of that number be mothers. The early education of the children is in the hands of mothers, they know the children best for they are able to be with them more than the father can be. Will any mother admit that her husband knows as well as she the wants of their child. Very few fathers will claim such knowledge.

Now I would suggest the names of Mrs. Pleasantine C. Wilson and Mrs. Arrabella Punchard. I think either of these women would do excellent work, and greatly assist the other members of the board. Let us hear from others in regard to this matter.

Coachmen and Hackmen Dance.

The first annual concert and ball of the coachmen and hackmen of Winchester took place in the Town Hall last evening and was most successful, socially and financially. Arthur Mullen was the floor director, and John McLaughlin assistant, while Henry J. Lyons was chief of aids, and they were ably assisted by the following: Bernard Rogers, David McNelly, James McLellan, William Philips, James Giles, George Morrill, James Murphy, Leigh Roberts, John Murray, Joseph Macdonsa, Coleman Flaherty, Percival Smith, Bernard McFeeley, John Cullen, John Kelley, John Flaherty. The refreshment committee consisted of the following: John Flaherty, George Morrill, John Cullen, David McNelly, John Kelley, James McLellan, Bernard McFeeley. Many guests were present from out of town. The association ought to feel elated over the success of their first party, as from start to finish it was very enjoyable to all present.

Rev. G. Campbell Morgan, who is now at work under the auspices of the North-field Extention Movement, in New York City, will speak in Mount Hermon Chapel, Sunday morning, Feb. 9th, at 10 30 o'clock and in Northfield, Mass., Sanday evening.

Bilious Colic.

H. Seever, a carpenter and builder of Kenton, Tenn., when suffering intensely from an attack of bilious colic, sent to a near by drug store for something to relieve him. The druggist sent him a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, three doses of which effect a permanent cure. This is the only remedy that can be depended upon in the most severe cases of colic and cholera morbus. Most druggists know this and recommend it when such a medicine is called for. PAINS

The Twinges of Rheumatism Make Life a Burden Until They are Overcome by Dr. Greene's Nervura.

Rheumatism is the subtle foe which steals away the joy of life. It gets into your joints and your muscles. It comes and stays and everything you do to dislodge it seems useless. Sometimes it lays you up, sometimes it lets you drag around, but its sting is always with you when you make a quick or an unguarded movement.

LOUIS D. APPEL, JR., Assistant Manager Harmonie Club, 313 W. 36th St., New York City, says:

"Two years ago I was taken with rheumatism. I could not sleep or eat but very little, and for over two months I could not stand on my feet. My weight had decreased to such an extent as to force me to look for better medical advice than my own doctor. I had seen Dr. Greene's Nervura advertised and concluded to try it. I had not used it very long before I felt the pain and swelling leaving me, and to my surprise I could feel as if I were a new man, and my weight increased. My appetite was better than it ever was, and now I am well and hearty, after going through the most intense pain which a human person could endure. I cheerfully recommend Dr. Greene's wonderful Nervura to my friends who know how I have suffered, and I hope this testimonial may be published."

Rheumatism supports half the doctors in christendom, but it would disappear if every sufferer understood how surely it is cured by Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy.

Don't think because nothing has yet cured your rheumatism that Dr. Greene's Nervura won't do it, for it will if you give it a chance. You'll pay almost any sum to be rid of the trouble, but you can get rid of it at little cost. Start to-day using the medicine that is known to cure rheumatism, and that has been curing it for many years.

A Leave Taking.

Last Saturday evening friends and neighbors of Mrs. Corey Weatherbee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Hoyt of Forest street, Highlands, met at the house to express regrets and also to convey well wishes on her departure to Melrose where she is to make her home. Mrs. Weatherbee, because of her charming personality and owing to her activities in the work of the Chapel, has endeared herself to hosts of friends. It was only intended to have a half dozen of the more intimate friends present, but the facts having got about there was no use curtailing the affair, so Mr. Hoyt was told, therefore he readily assented to making it a little out in the nature of a surprise to his wife and daughter. It was not until nearly forty persons provisioned for the occasion, had arrived that the incoming of guests ceased.

When the last one had arrived, Mr. Hoyt prepared his stereopticon and threw onto a screen some handsome views of Cuba interspersed with interesting explanatory remarks. This was followed by a piano duet by Mrs. John Park and and Mrs. F. W. Winn. Then there were very enjoyable orchestral selection by Messrs. H. Earl Richardson and Clyde W. Bell and Mrs. Park, also an original poem written for the occasion by Mrs. Amy Wyman. The evening closed with an old fashioned Virginia reel, replete with merriment and grace. It was near the opening of Sabbath when the guests departed, after a most enjoyable evening.

Refreshments consisting of cake, ice cream and coffee were served. Mrs. Park and Mrs. Winn were the prime movers in the affair, and they also did much toward arranging for the impromptu program.

School Committee.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Among the several names mentioned for the School Board, that of Mr. C. E. Swett is being considered with much favor by the thinking community. An old citizen, identified with and having a deep interested in our schools, a teacher of high standing and long experience in all the details of school wants and care, a good scholar, a good disciplinarian in government, with full knowledge of what is best in the line of a thorough education and the way to carry it out. Of his ability there is no question. Of his fitness, a long record speaks loudly in his behalf. Economy, with good judgment, and active practice, are essential parts of a proper School Committee.

A FRIEND OF GOOD SCHOOLS.

Going off of the snow and consequent end of the best sleighing we have had for years has robbed our esteemed friend, Mr. George H. Gilbert, of a deal of pleasure. He has two of the finest and fastest blooded horses in this section of Middlesex county, and they haven't met their match on the Arlington-Belmont road this winter. Fast nags from the surrounding towns have been pitted against Mr. Gilbert's fivers only to meet defeat. Horsemen of note and fine ladies frequently sat in the sleigh behind them during the sleighing, for Mr. Gilbert likes to have others share his good things, and every such lucky person praised his horses without stint. Col. N. A. Richardson, a horseman to the core, and Dotten, the Water Superintendent, have recently come perilously near "dropping into poetry" in their stories in the STAR concerning sleighrides with Mr. Gilbert. As sentimental prose Col. Nat's productions were leaders. But all those good times disappeared with the snow.—[Woburn Journal.

Prevalency of Kidney Trouble.

So prevalent and deceptive is kidney trouble that it very often becomes well advanced before it is even suspected, therefore, it behooves all to be on the lookout. Should you be ill, or not feeling well, it would be wise to first pay attention to the kidneys and ascertain if they are the cause of your trouble.

A simple method of finding out if your kidneys are at fault has been often called to the attention of our readers through Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root advertising in the columns of this paper, and it is now repeated for the benefit of those who may be interested. Viz; "Fill a bottle with urine and set aside for twenty-four hours or so, and if it shows a brick-dust sediment or cloudy appearance, or if the urine is scanty or profuse, or if it is found necessary to go often through the day, or get up many times during the night, you may be sure your kidneys need attention

After careful inquiry we find Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, is remarkably successful in the quick relief and cure of the diseases for which it is recommended. There is hardly a drug store in the land that does not keep, and highly recommend this celebrated preparation for kidney, liver and bladder troubles.

Additions to a Large Fleet.

The first of the two new magnificent steamers which the Old Dominion Steamship Company has been building for its new first-class passenger and freight route between Virginia's most important cities, Norfolk and Richmond, is finished and ready for service. These new boats have been called "Brandon" and "Berkeley," after two of the famous colonial estates for which the James River section is noted. It is "Brandon" that has been received from the builders, and work on the "Berkeley" is being pushed as rapidly as possible.

The placing of the new steamers in the Norfolk-Richmond service of the line means the opening up of a new route of travel between these two cities, and one which has been long needed. They will be operated on a night schedule, and thus offer to the business men, tourists and traveling public in general, the opportunity to spend the day in one city, board the steamer the same evening, and after a restful night on the quiet waters of the James River, 'mid comfort and luxury, awake to find the other city has been reached.

No expense has been spared to make the "Brandon" and "Berkeley" strictly up-to-date steamers. They are single-screw boats, 213 feet long, have all modern appliances for the care and satisfaction of passengers.

Our Coal Producing Lungs.

The volume of carbonic acid exhaled by a healthy person in twenty-four hours is about 15,000 cubic inches, containing about six ounces of solid carbon. Taking the population of the world at 1,000,000,000, this means that the human race breathes out every year 61,000,000 tons of solid carbon, a quantity of coal twice as great as the total annual export from Great Britain.

Venezuelan Pearls.

When the Spanish discovered Venezuela, they found the natives wearing pearls for ornament, and the fishery is still flourishing today. More than 400 boats are employed in the work, each one paying about $3 per year to the government. The pearls are of fine quality, usually white or yellow and rarely black. Only recently a white pearl valued at $2,000 was found.

Adverse Report on Street Across the Pond.

The Selectmen, at their meeting Monday evening, repo ted adversely on the petition for a street across the pond to Swanton street Whether the petitioners will appea to the County Commissioners from the decision of the Selectmen is not absolutely known, although there has been talk to that effect in the past, when it was made apparent that such a report was to be made.

The Name Well Received.

We had occasion last week to speak in this column of the admirable qualifications for a school committeeman which were possessed by our well known townsman, the Rev. William I. Lawrance. We did this from a high sense of duty, for it is not an unimportant part of the mission of the STAR to bring to the public attention the names of high minded and well qualified citizens for official positions. The general favor with which the name of this gentleman has been received about town during the past week, reinforces the statements of his peculiar qualifications which we took pleasure in printing in last week's issue. In recent conversation with those who know whereof they speak, we are gratified to learn that this gentleman's experience in educational affairs in a distant city has peculiarly fitted him to take up afresh in our enterprising town a vigorous work in school affairs. We repeat what we said last week that Rev. Mr. Lawrance would make a strong man for the place if he will only consent to serve.

Three, Six or Nine.

As the time draws near for the annual caucus, it is not unusual for citizens in public places and correspondents of the local press to claim that the members of the School Board should be increased to six or even nine. A large School Board has been tried in recent years in this town, as most of our citizens know, and we only echo the opinion of all hard headed friends of our schools when we say that the larger School Board proved a sorry failure. We would not be so ungallant or so unwise to claim, as we have heard many say, that this failure was due to the fact that there were at that time one or more well qualified women elected on the Board. So far as we can hear those women attended to business even better than the n. The old adage says that too many cooks spoil the broth. If this is true in culinary affairs, it is ten fold more so in educational matters. Fortunate is any town that can find with a searchlight even three well qualified people who will take time to attend the details required of them in faithfully discharging the duties to which they take oath. If it is difficult to find three, what chance is there of finding six or nine? There are probably very few towns in the Commonwealth of the population of Winchester, in which could be found so many men and women well fitted in every way to serve on the School Board. Why are these people not willing to serve? Simply because they have had "experience" elsewhere, either in teaching or on School Boards, and they are reluctant to add to their cares and burdens that of serving their fellow citizens without pay in an office in which slurs and harsh criticisms exceed any compensations which may result from an honest desire to take an active part in school affairs. All this is so obvious that we doubt if anybody has taken this matter of increasing the School Committeemen seriously. We have good reason to suppose that this year, as in previous years, after a score of names of undesirable parties have been suggested through the press and otherwise, that the really desirable candidates will simmer down to perhaps three or four who will do honor to themselves and to the town.

In the Interest of Truth.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

That "whispering tongues can poison truth" is well known. Whispering tongues have not only whispered it, but I have been boldly informed by several persons that I wrote the article in last week's STAR entitled "Candidates for the School Board" signed by "Fairplay." I wish to publicly state I neither wrote nor dictated the article or had anything to do with it except to read it in the STAR. I know nothing of the "Cohorts of Retrogression" or of the "Combined Forces of Labor and Progress." In town affairs I only know the citizens of Winchester. I should say the article in question must have been written by some member of the secret orders above referred to. I have no doubt the gentlemen so enthusiastically endorsed would make good candidates for town office but I fail to see why an effusive love for the working men fits one for School Committee work any more than a love for mince pie fits one for the Board of Health, or a liking for roast pig for the office of Field Driver.

ARTHUR E. WHITNEY.

(The article in question was not contributed by Mr. Whitney.) Editor.

Appropriations.

The Appropriations Committee held its fourth session Tuesday evening when most of the boards which had not appeared at previous sessions were heard. The fire engineers asked for $7500 for running expenses, $300 for new hose, $750 for fire alarm boxes and $850 to cover unpaid bills when the present board took office. They also asked to have the appropriation become available May first instead of March, so as to conform to the board year. They further asked for $30,000 for a new central house and land. The committee cannot make up its report until the warrant is closed as under the vote of the town meeting it must report on all articles carrying an appropriation of money. The next meeting will be Tuesday evening next.

Political Gossip.

At the annual election the following officers are to be elected, the names of the present incumbents being given: Town Clerk, George H. Carter; Selectmen, J. P. Bowtwell, N. H. Taylor, J. J. Fitzgerald, C. W. Bradstreet, E. F. Jones; Assessor, George H. Carter; Overseer of the Poor, Mrs. Emily C. Symmes; Town Treasurer, Thomas S. Spurr; Collector of Taxes, Aaron C. Bell; Auditor, William C. Newell; Water Board, 3 years, David N. Skiffings; Sewer Commissioner, 3 years, Fred M. Symmes; Park Commissioner, 3 years, Allen Chamberlain; Cemetery Commissioner, 5 years, C. W. Bradstreet; Board of Health, 3 years, James Hinds; School Committee, A. F. Blaisdell, 2 years, S. S. Symmes, 3 years; Trustee of Town Library, 3 years, James F. Dorsey; Tree Warden, Joseph S. Nowell. Also constables, Field Drivers and Fence Viewers.

It is now understood that the entire Board of Selectmen may stand for re-election. It was hoped that Mr. D. B. Badger would allow his name to be used as a candidate for the Board, but he positively declined because of the exactions of his large business interests. Mr. T. B. Cotter was also labored with, but no impression could be made. Nevertheless if the caucus should bestow on him hearty support perhaps he might be induced to change his mind. Two new names have come to the front this week—Messrs. H. J. Winde and G. G. Stratton, both residents of Cutter's Village, and the residents of that section believe that they should have representation on the Board. Mr. Winde served most creditably a few years ago, when he made a popular town father.

Rev. W. I. Lawrance declines to be a candidate for the School Board. He would have been an invaluable man if elected. So far as candidates for the two vacancies on this Board are concerned, there is no change from that given in these columns last week. Dr. Blaisdell is certain to be returned, but the second man is not claimed by any one up to the present time. Neither Edgar J. Rich nor C. E. L. Wingate are candidates as they cannot devote the time to the exacting duties of the office, during the present year at least.

We have heard Mr. Fred V. Wooster's name mentioned for the Board of Assessors, but how much there is to the report we are not prepared to say, as public announcement has not been made of his intentions, if he has any.

The announcement in last week's STAR that Edgar J. Rich, Esq., would be a candidate for Moderator, is meeting with the approval of the citizens. Mr. Rich is especially well qualified and equipped for this position and there is no doubt that he will fill the chair to the satisfaction of the meeting.

Rev. Mr. Lawrance Declines.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

An editorial note in the STAR of last week was my first intimation that anyone had thought of me as a possible member of the School Committee. While I appreciate highly the kindness of the friends who have suggested my name, I could not add so great a responsibility to what I already have, and so must decline to be a candidate.

FOR INVESTMENT.

There is no investment which is more satisfactory than a good building lot acquired at a price which will assure the purchaser of an immediate appreciation in value, the result of first-class development. I am able to offer such an opportunity through the purchase, by Mr. A. Wilbert Starratt, of what was formerly known as the Bacon Estate, off Highland Avenue in Winchester. This property consists of 264,000 sq. ft. of land situated on a side hill with a Southerly and Westerly exposure and protected on the North and East by a precipitous cliff. The tract is about seven minutes walk from the centre of the Town and four minutes from the electrics; it is adjacent to the Middlesex Fells and a stone's throw from the Mystic Valley Driveway, the main entrance to the Fells. The development is being carried out under the direction of Ernest W. Bowditch, the well known landscape architect, and under his supervision there is now, in the process of construction, a forty foot macadam roadway, with paved gutters, loam spaces and gravel sidewalks, which has been laid out in such a manner as to preserve the many large shade trees on the place. Sewer, water and gas pipes are laid through the entire roadway. There are 21 lots varying in size from 7,500 to 10,000 sq. ft. and of this number 12 have already been sold, upon which there have been already built, or are now in the process of construction, altogether ten houses which comply with suitable restrictions, and are a distinct benefit to the whole development. The nine lots now in my hands for sale are offered at a remarkably reasonable figure which cannot but prove attractive to the home seeker or investor.

Water on Church Street.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

A communication recently published in the columns of your paper from a contributor signing himself "West Side," described at some length and much earnestness the flood of waters which for many winters has swept across Church street sidewalk just above the main entrance to Rangeley, after a rainstorm or when the snow was melting in the sunshine.

The correspondent went farther. He waxed indignant and demanded to know why the town authorities did not compel the tax owner of the adjacent property to abate a veritable nuisance. Well, why don't they? Last week I searched the columns of the "STAR" with diligence for some word from the town authorities which would enlighten "West Side" in this thirst for information, but no word did I find from the town house, where it is well known why the waters have swept across Church street sidewalk above the entrance to Rangeley for several years.

The explanation has to do with a chapter of incidents which I have never read in the town records, but which might have been incorporated in them with propriety as part of the report of the Supt. of Streets several years ago. Having been one of the owners of Rangeley for several years before and since the time of the incident, which for some reason did not find a place in the Supt of Streets' report, it is, perhaps, incumbent on me to narrate them.

When Rangeley wall was built, many years ago, the land of the estate was carefully graded for the purpose of conveying all the surface water from the slope, having a frontage of nearly 1000 feet, to a catch basin just inside the gates of the main entrance to the park. This catch basin was connected with a circular brick drain, which was constructed on private property entirely at the expense of the owners of the property. The drain went to the low land by the railroad, and there, together with three of the Rangeley houses, was connected with the Metropolitan sewer under a specially granted permission.

Permission to empty into the Metropolitan sewer was given only because grass land was to be drained and consequently there would be no dirt in large quantities or gravel to interfere with the operation of the system.

For years the street drainage from Central street to Common street was conveyed mainly on the surface. In front of the two entrances to Rangeley it went under the concrete. The Supt. of Streets, somewhat less that a decade ago, noticing how successfully the water inside the wall was carried off, and finding that the street was like a river in a heavy rain, owing to the long down grade and that the culvert would not take what was coming, broke away the concrete sidewalk close up to the Rangeley line. He dug a ditch to the same point. Then, thinking to avoid trespassing on private property he attached the engine hose to a hydrant and blew his way through private property underneath the sod, thus connecting with the Rangeley drain, which had been built by the owner at large expense and for personal use.

Having obtained a connection, which was really on private property, the Supt. of Streets covered it up as quickly as possible and congratulated himself on his enterprise. The next morning there was serious trouble all along the line of the sewer between Winchester and Woburn. Water was "backing up" in the tanneries. A gang of men employed for the purpose, speedily located the cause at the catch basin between the tracks on the Boston & Maine, opposite Rangeley. There they found quantities of gravel which had come from the hole in the estate which the industrious Supt. of Streets had blown with the help of the hose and the hydrant. The Rangeley drain was chock full of dirt and the cellars of the three Rangeley houses previously referred to were flooded.

The sewer gang reported at the Boston office of the Metropolitan Commission and were immediately ordered to cut off permanently all the Rangeley connections with the Metropolitan Sewer because of a breach of agreement, it having been agreed by the owners of Rangeley that water from grass land only should be conducted, not stone, sand and gravel.

The Supt. of Streets and other town officials were urged to acknowledge their responsibility for the trouble and to afford what little relief was within their power, but they refused.

Then, and not until then, did the owners of Rangeley open the private drain on private property as near as possible to where it had been tapped without permission, by the Supt. of Streets, and break the brickwork apart for a distance of ten feet. The end of the drain was plugged up with bricks and cement.

The situation was explained to the Metropolitan Commissioners and again they gave their consent to the connecting of the three Rangeley houses with the Metropolitan sewer. The private drain on private property having been closed at the point where it had been interfered with by a town official unwarrantably, the rain water from the Rangeley lawns was skillfully directed over and under and through the wall to the street in order that it might not run through the gate to the inconvenience of the tenants.

And the incident was closed.

For years, at the expense of the owners and without a bit of expense to the town, the surface drainage of the Rangeley slope on Church street was taken care of through a private drain, by a private agreement with the Metropolitan Sewer Commission. Then an official agent of the town, without permission, broke into this private drain, and in so doing choked it so that it was ordered discontinued. As the town refused in any way to acknowledge its responsibility and admit its unwarranted action, the surface drainage of the Rangeley slope has been left from that day to this for the town to care for in its own way.

And this is why "West Side" obtained no information from the town house.

MARY SKILLINGS SANBORN.

Christian Endeavor Day.

The twenty-first birthday of Christian Endeavor was observed last Sunday evening by the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of the First Congregational church. After the praise service and opening prayer the scripture lesson assigned for the evening was read from Matt. 25: 31-46. Miss Mabel W. Stinson who had the service in charge then spoke as follows in regard to the movement:

"To-day we are celebrating Christian Endeavor Day, as are so many others all over this wide, wide world, because the first Christian Endeavor society was organized by Rev. Francis E. Clark in Williston church, Portland, Me., Feb. 2, 1881, and the movement is now twenty-one years of age. This Christian Endeavor Day is to remind us that in our work for Christ there will surely come a testing day as is so clearly set forth in our scripture reading. What will be Christ's opinion of our Christian Endeavors? That is the great question. Not what will men think but what will Christ say. For he can search our hearts. He knows whether we are doing our best or not, whether we are sullen or joyous workers, and in the light of that infinite knowledge we are to be judged.

What are you doing; what am I doing in this work for the Master? We are to think to-night also of what Christian Endeavor is, and of what it has done in the world. To compare the past with the present, I ask you to listen to a few statistics but ones that will tell a great deal.

The first society had 54 members, and today there are nearly 62,000 societies in the world, with a membership of more than three and a half millions, in forty evangelical denominations. Every nation in the world flies its Christian Endeavor banner. While the scope of Christian Endeavorers is largely with their own churches, yet many have found fruitful fields of labor among soldiers, sailors, and life-savers. Christian Endeavor is having also a blessed mission in the prisons of the United States. During the last year Christian Endeavor has been reaching out. India has called a general secretary from the land of Christian Endeavor's birth to foster the rapid growth of the movement in the far east. In Germany, Mexico, China and Japan the Christian Endeavor tide is rising and the outlook in every land is one to inspire a deeper sense of gratitude to God for what he has wrought.

In America the movement increases, and we are told that over 1000 societies have been added to the rolls since last "Christian Endeavor Day," and that more than $500,000 has been given to missions at home and abroad by Christian Endeavorers. Now what does Christian Endeavor stand for? It seems to me that it stands for outspoken confession of Christ, for unswerving loyalty to the church, and all kinds of service for it; for Christian citizenship, for fellowship among denominations and nations; for missions at home and abroad; for proportionate, systematic and generous giving to God; for personal communion with God; for systematic study of the Bible. Our motto is, 'For Christ and the church.' May we go forward ever loyal to our Master and our Church."

Dr. Clarence J. Allen read portions of a paper which he had prepared and read at one of the Union Rallies, the subject of which was, "How a Society can help the Church in the largest way." He set forth very clearly the relation a society bears to the church of which it is a part, emphasizing the fact that the society is not the end, but only the means to an end, that it is a training school where young people are trained by the participation in their meetings, by their committee work and leadership for the larger work of the church. His ideal society would be one in which all are advancing to this end. He spoke also of the part, the active part which the members of the society should take in the mid-week church prayer meeting, and which he hopes to see being done and thus carrying out in one respect the idea Father Endeavor Clark had as to what should be the definite aim of the societies. The motto is, "For Christ and the Church." The society should work first for Christ and second for the Church.

Rev. D. A. Newton spoke of the rapid growth of the movement and of how much it has been able to do by thus organizing young people for work for the Master and also that he hoped he might see Dr. Allen's suggestions carried out in the church here. Justice cannot be done these two speakers in these few words as all who heard their earnest words can say.

Two solos were kindly rendered by Mrs. Catherine M. Atkinson of Reading, thus adding a great deal to the evening.

Christian Endeavor has gained a great foot-hold in this country, and already in foreign lands missionaries are telling of how many are reached by these societies that cannot seem to be in any other way and Dr. Clark and others working with him are endeavoring to have it gain as great a foot-hold there. As the thank-offering for the day the society took a collection to raise a portion of the $25 recently voted toward carrying on Christian Endeavor work in foreign lands. This closed what it is hoped will prove to have been a Christian Endeavor day profitable to all who were present.

WINCHESTER UNITARIAN CHURCH

Young People's Religious Union.

The Young People's Religious Union of the Unitarian church held another very interesting meeting last Sunday night. The meeting was in charge of Miss Alice Russell who announced a program of unusual interest and merit. Mr. Arthur E. Whitney delivered an address on George Herbert, holding the closest attention of his audience with a masterly discourse which delighted all who heard it.

Miss Charlotte Skillings had charge of the music which was of a high order. Mr. Wm. Fenton of Ottawa, Canada, sang two solos in a most artistic and delightful manner. His piano accompanist was Mr. Morley of Boston.

Miss Skillings selected hymns from Herbert which were sung by the congregation, the selections being especially appropriate for the occasion.

Mr. Whitney sketched the life of George Herbert from his birth, at Montgomery Castle, England, in 1598 until his death in 1632. He was of noble blood on both sides and was educated at Westminster school and Cambridge University. At 26 years of age, he was elected Public Orator to the University, an honor coveted by many scholars. He was a great favorite at court and personally a favorite of King James who styled Herbert the "Jewel of the University." The King bestowed a sinicure upon Herbert once held by Sir Philip Sydney. With this income and an annuity from his family, together with what he received from the University, he gratified a taste, at this spring-time in his life, "for clothes and court-like company." He thus became early acquainted with the essential frivolity and selfishness of the "high life" of his time. On the death of King James, he retired from the court into Kent, where he had many conflicts with himself whether he should return to the court of Charles 1st. or take up the study of divinity and devote the remainder of his life to the ministry. The church needed such men, as it had fallen very low, spiritually, and was fast losing the respect of the people. Herbert therefore considered it his duty to upbuild its character, and influence to the full extent of his ability. He therefore married, was ordained and accepted the charge of a little country church at Bemberton, consecrating his life to the church, a true Puritan within its fold. This parish had been neglected by the former incumbent. The church and parsonage were much out of repair. No pastor had lived there for many years. The little church was of stone only 45 by 18 feet in dimensions, yet from its windows has gleamed a helpful, almost a divine light, these many years, a reflection from the life of George Herbert which makes Bemberton church almost another Bethlehem where sweet truth was born again.

Herbert's pastoral labors were crowded into the space of two years and a few months, during which time he wrote most of his poems and hymns as well as his advice to pastors, "The Priest to the Temple." He was sick in consumption much of the time, yet how much pure life he put into his short work-day! Even "the meaner classes" of his parishoners loved him and would stop their plow when his saint's bell rang for prayers." He died without knowing what a noble life he had lived. His works were not published during his life time and they came near not being published at all. On his death bed he gave what he had written to a friend in manuscript asking him to read it and if any publisher "can think it may turn to the advantage of any dejected poor soul, let it be made public; if not let him burn it." Thus modestly did Herbert think of his written word, his gospel to his fellow men. Truly our unconscious acts are the best and have the most effect on the world.

Mr. Whitney illustrated different phases in Herbert's life by reading extracts from his poems and hymns very effectively. He also quoted many proverbial and witty sayings collected and written by Herbert, none of which were less than 270 years old. These were very apt and full of both wit and thought. Mr. Whitney finished the reading of the selections with Herbert's familiar hymn illustrating the idea that true religion should enter into every thought and act of life:—

> "Teach me my God and King
> In all things, Thee to see,
> And what I do in any thing,
> To do it as for Thee."
> "A servant, with this clause,
> Makes drudgery divine;
> Who sweeps a room, as for thy laws,
> Makes that, and the action, fine."

Mr. Whitney closed his address with these words:

"Having reviewed the life and works of George Herbert what are the helpful thoughts we can carry home with us to assist in making our lives more successful? May not this be one: that true success in life does not depend so much on outward conditions, whatever they are, as in meeting those conditions bravely and making, in the highest sense, the most of them. Herbert's early surroundings seemed to be perfect, so far as the good things of this world are concerned. He was of noble blood, he had friends at court, a good education, quick wit and conversation, and was on the high road to worldly success. Yet he threw away his ambitions in this direction, would not accept seeming prosperity because the conditions agreeable as they were, stood in the way of a nobler ambition to serve God and his fellow men. No doubt Herbert's contemporaries thought him foolish to abandon court life and political preferment and success; to be his Master's servant and helper in a little country parish, rather than to shine at court and to be seen of men. 270 years after Herbert's death we can realize that his life was a triumphant success because he met not only the favorable conditions of his early life in spirit of brave sacrifice and trust in his own spiritual insight, but the seemingly unfavorable conditions of sickness and an early death, in a spirit of trust and resignation to the love and wisdom of a higher power. Both conditions of seeming prosperity and adversity he met in such a way as to make his life successful in the highest sense. In a lesser degree we may do the same.

Another helpful thought is this: if we follow the best light we can obtain as to the best way of living, earnestly seeking and deserving our own intelligent, honest commendation in whatever we do, rather than the applause of others, we shall live successfully in the highest sense. Live your own life as Hebert lived his. What you honestly think of yourself is much more important to you than what others think of you. This may sound egotistical, but your own experience will prove to you it is a true statement. We spend most of our time with ourselves and if we do not like ourselves, cannot approve of what we are doing in the world, God help us, for we shall be truly lonesome and not be as Goethe expresses it, "at one with God," which condition is the one which leads to the highest success in life. "He loseth nothing, that loseth not God" says Herbert.

A third helpful thought in connection with Herbert's teachings, is this; true every day religion does not consist in the observance of any particular rites or forms as much as it does in putting such religion as we have attained to into our every act and deed. Going to church and observing the ordinary form of worship are all helps assisting us to attain to that high state of existence in which we can recognize that true religion enters into every thing we do or think. As our human body lives in the fluid we call air which has seemingly no weight, length breadth or thickness, which we cannot see, and yet is so important in its purity to the existence of our bodies, permeating into and through everything physical in our nature, so should the sweet breath of pure religion enter into and permeate every thing we do and think in life.

George Herbert enunciated a great truth which the world has not comprehended as yet in its beauty and significance when he sings: "Teach me my God and King in all things, Thee to see; and what I do in anything, to do as for Thee." Such applied religion as this makes even drudgery divine. "if we drudge in the right spirit. The thought that everything you do may be an act of worship if you do it in the right way, offers opportunities for worship close at hand and at all times, without intervention of priest or pulpit, creed or sacrament. Such worship is the highest form of personal religion free and open to every body. If we can take this one thought home with us and go live tomorrow and hereafter "that what we do in anything, "we must do it "as for God," this evening has not been quite wasted. It is this thought that inspires Whittier to say, if we perform whatever tasks belong to us to do properly, carrying our small as well as our great crosses "along the way" in the right spirit, we shall make "our common daily life divine and every land, a Palistine."

During Lent Mr. Lawrance will address the Sunday evening meetings. The Young People's Religious Union will assist at these meetings, having charge of the music and furnishing the ushers. All are cordially invited to attend.

Observations.

I see in the STAR a little difference of opinion about the comparative speed of Mr. Bigelow of Medford's horse "China Boy" and Mr. Gilbert of this town's "Glimmer." I have never seen them lock horns, and I am not aware that the owner of Glimmer is a sporting gentleman or that he trots his horses to win or lose money. I notice in Wallace's Year Book (best authority), vol. 16, page 826, that Glimmer has a record of 2.23 1-2. China Boy 2.24 3-4, a difference of one and a quarter seconds in favor of Glimmer, or at a 2 30 gait 44 feet in favor of the latter horse.

I have just read the message of Mayor Feeney to the citizens of Woburn. It is a model of brevity, conciseness, wise and prudent suggestions; if its recommendations are carried out Woburn will take a long step for economy and good government. I have never met the Mayor, but judging from his address, if it reflects his will, he will be a safe ruler.

Let there be a free and full expression of public sentiment at the coming caucus, no cut and salted tickets, made up in private parlors. Let the voters select their candidates, mark or vote for them in the meeting, no muzzling of free action. The old officers are good men, and if they wish to retire there are other good ones to fill up the gap. Keep down the expenses in all possible ways, low taxes do much to build up, while high taxes keep away new comers. Let the kindergarten subject be considered with care and deliberation for the credit of the town and the benefit of the pupils; let the opposites concede something and harmonize for mutual good. Winchester has a glorious future, it is not wise or necessary to to put on purple robes today, let those who come after us bear the burdens their day and generation may demand.

The honors of office are a "thorn in the the flesh," the emoluments a feast of uncertain endurance.

The class of 1902 held one of the most important class meetings of the year, last Tuesday evening at the home of Amy Newman on Central street. About thirty members were present to choose the class motto. The motto which was selected was presented to the class for consideration several weeks ago by Mr. Dutch. "Opportunities never wait" is the English translation from the Greek. After the adjournment of the business meeting, games were enjoyed for the rest of the evening.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Those who believe it good policy for the town to sell unlimited and unknown quantities of water at normal prices based upon what the user says he can afford to pay should have an article in the next town meeting warrant and present their argument to the meeting. What the opinion of the Water Board on this question is it would be interesting to know, but up to the present time it has refused to take any part in the discussion of rates either before the last committee on rates or in town meeting. Why don't the STAR interview the Board?

There is going to be such a demand for gallery and small hall seats at the coming town meeting from those who have not the right to the floor of the main hall that children under sixteen years of age at least should not be admitted. It does these youngsters no good to attend and at every meeting their noise is a nuisance, besides there is no room we can spare them.

Why won't the kindergarten cranks paste it in their hats that the town believes in kindergartens in moderation and that there are no more people who believe in their abolition than there are who believe that the more we have the better. If the rest of the schools had had as much attention of late years as the kindergartens it would have been much better for all.

Tellers should be appointed as soon as the town meeting starts business in the evening as we are certain to need them and the moderator can have some good ones picked out before hand.

What the town may lose by not having Ex-moderator Russell in the chair it will make up in part certainly if he will speak from the floor, as he is one of the most convincing speakers we have ever had in our town meetings. I certainly would say his style is the best.

The legislature is rather slower than usual, and it always will be slow moving so long as the presiding officers are pulling all the wires for further political honors. They are so afraid of offending somebody that they don't dare to push things.

A Pretty Concert and Ball.

Last evening Messrs. Callahan and Maloney, the well known teachers in dancing, gave a complimentary concert and ball to the pupils of their classes in Lyceum Hall. It was most enjoyable, not only to the pupils but to the large number of friends present. Mr. Jas. H. Healy was the floor director and Mr. Thos. F. Donahue assistant, and they were assisted by the following: John Small, Thos. Boyle, Jas. Healey, Daniel Sullivan, Edward O'Connor, Arthur Mout, Jas. Kenney, John Haley, Harry Richardson, Wm. Healey, Chas. Northrope, George Sleep, George Newbury.

Messrs. Callahan and Maloney have large classes of pupils, and they are most proficient instructors.

A Fireman's Close Call.

"I stuck to my engine, although every joint ached and every nerve was racked with pain," writes C. W. Bellamy, a locomotive fireman, of Burlington, Iowa., "I was weak and pale, without any appetite and all run down. As I was about to give up, I got a bottle of Electric Bitters and, after taking it, I felt as well as I ever did in my life." Weak, sickly, run down people always gain new life, strength and vigor from their use. Try them. Satisfaction guaranteed by Grover's drug store. Price 50 cents.

The rector has set aside Ash Wednesday afternoon at 4 p. m., or Friday of the same week at 7.30 p. m., as times for first talks regarding confirmation, and will be glad to see any one who is interested at that time.

The committee of the Ladies' Guild is much disappointed in the returns, up to date, from the postal cards sent out. A very small number of answers has been received. It is hoped that every one who received a card will send some answer. It is not asked that people shall bring articles to the open table, or that they should be willing to bring articles for every meeting, but simply if they are willing occasionally to be called upon by the committee for contributions, if they are willing in the course of the year to contribute one article or more. A return postal card is also an opportunity to make suggestions or to ask further questions.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Over-Work Weakens Your Kidneys.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes.

The kidneys are your blood purifiers, they filter out the waste or impurities in the blood.

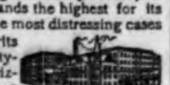

If they are sick or out of order, they fail to do their work.

Pains, aches and rheumatism come from excess of uric acid in the blood, due to neglected kidney trouble.

Kidney trouble causes quick or unsteady heart beats, and makes one feel as though they had heart trouble, because the heart is over-working in pumping thick, kidney-poisoned blood through veins and arteries.

It used to be considered that only urinary troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all constitutional diseases have their beginning in kidney trouble.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

HE FEARED HE HAD LOST

When Wu Ting Fang, the famous Chinese Minister to Washington, irritable and somewhat forgetful from a severe cold, missed one day from the front of his cap the immense diamond he always wears there, he was dreadfully frightened. A friend pointed out that the statesman had inadvertently donned his turban wrong side before, and that the diamond was safe in the rear. Had Wu Ting Fang been wearing a Benson's Porous Plaster on his chest or back to cure his cold, he never would have doubted its location. He would have felt it doing its work,—warming and making flexible the torpid muscles, extracting the pain and soreness, promoting the free circulation of the blood, stimulating the skin and lungs to proper action, and so dissolving and banishing the malady. Thus we perceive, beloved friends, that while a pretty thing to look upon, was of no practical use. But Benson's Plasters are supremely useful. They relieve and cure gout, rheumatism, neuralgia, colds on the chest, lame back, etc., so quickly and completely as to make you wonder how it can be. Better now,—well to-morrow; that's the way they work. Get the genuine. All druggists, or we will prepay postage on any number ordered in the United States on receipt of 25c. each.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

LESSON VI, FIRST QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, FEB. 9.

Text of the Lesson, Acts iv, 32 to v, 11—Memory Verses, 3-5—Golden Text, Eph. iv, 25—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1901, by American Press Association.]

32, 33. "With great power gave the apostles witness of the resurrection of the Lord Jesus, and great grace was upon them all." In these days we can scarcely imagine several thousands of believers of one heart and one soul to serve the Lord, no one clinging to his own things, but each loving the other as himself and all having all things in common. If it was the power of His resurrection that did this, they must have known something that few know today.

34-37. Possessors of lands and houses sold their property and put the proceeds in the common fund that the need of each might be supplied and that no one might have any lack. There was no selfishness and no self seeking. This seems all the more remarkable when we consider the strife for pre-eminence that was seen more than once among the twelve before Jesus died; yes, even at the passover on the night before His resurrection, but now they were all filled with the Spirit, and hence this great difference. A Spirit filled people will manifest the life of Christ and not the life of self. Joses, surnamed Barnabas, son of consolation, a Levite, and evidently a true one, is mentioned as one of those who having land sold it and laid the money at the apostles' feet. Levi signifies "joined," and he illustrated the truth, "He that is joined to the Lord is one Spirit" (I Cor. vi, 17). Our Lord Jesus not only gave up all His riches and became poor to make us rich, but He actually gave Himself for us, taking the place of the guilty that we might be joined to Him (II Cor. viii, 9; Gal. ii, 20).

v, 1, 2. "But Ananias and Sapphira." The tares and the wheat will grow together until the harvest. Until Jesus comes again many a bird will lodge in the branches, but no bird ever becomes a branch. The commands, "Walk before Me and be thou sincere" and "Thou shalt be sincere with the Lord thy God" (Gen. xvii, 1, margin; Deut. xviii, 13), are always binding, and "Cursed be he that doeth the work of the Lord deceitfully" (Jer. xlviii, 10), seems to be always a necessary warning. When Abram and Sara agreed to act a lie and Isaac and Rebekah did the same (Gen. xii, 11-13; xx, 2; xxvi, 7), which of us can say that the eyes as a flame of fire may not see some deceit in our inmost hearts? We are not our own, but bought with His precious blood.

3, 4. "Why hath Satan filled thine heart to lie to the Holy Ghost? Thou hast lied unto God." See the oneness of the Father and the Spirit, for in lying to the Spirit they lied unto God. See also the oneness of the Spirit and the believer, for in lying to Peter and the others they lied unto the Spirit. Notice also that it was the work of the devil, the father of lies, in Ananias, the same adversary who in the garden of Eden lied to Eve and has ever since been practicing his ungodly wiles. Contrast Peter filled with the Spirit and Ananias filled with Satan and the high priest and others filled with indignation or envy (chapters iv, 8, 31; v, 3, 17). If filled with the Spirit, evil can find no place in us. The Spirit of Truth and the father of lies each desires us, but neither can fill us unless we welcome them.

5, 6. Dead and buried in a few hours; gone from the earth and from his possessions, but gone where? To the true child of God death is gain and far better than sojourning here. But what of Ananias? His name means, "Jehovah is gracious." But did he know the saving grace of Jehovah? We know that there is such a thing as being saved as by fire, that Satan may destroy the flesh and yet the spirit be saved, that some of the members of the church were sickly and some dying because of sin and that we are told to judge nothing before the time until the Lord come (I Cor. iii, 15; v, 5; xi, 30; iv, 5), yet Rev. xxi, 8, gives us little hope for Ananias.

7, 8. "It was about the space of three hours after when his wife, not knowing what was done, came in." Three hours a widow, but not aware of it. How long they had journeyed together in these mortal bodies we do not know, but his journey has ended, and hers is about to, though she is all unconscious of it. Perhaps she had come seeking him, wondering why he delayed to return home. It is a sad story and should teach us to be sincere with God, who desires truth in the inward parts (Ps. li, 6). If we did not know that Peter was filled with the Spirit, we might feel like questioning his way with her and might wish that he had sought to lead her to repentance, but perhaps her heart was fully set in her to do evil (Eccl. viii, 11).

9, 10. "How is it that ye have agreed together to tempt the Spirit of the Lord?" So one with God are His people that when we touch them we touch Him, and as we deal with them we deal with Him (Zech. ii, 8; Acts ix, 4). There is unspeakable comfort and yet a solemn warning in this great truth. How awful is this scene before us! She is for the first time told of her husband's death and at the same time told that she must die, and in a moment she is gone. In the morning they are in health, but united in a lie to God that they may appear before men to be very religious, but before night they are found out (Num. xxxii, 23), and are dead and buried. Two liars in one grave. But their souls— If not saved as by fire, then Luke xvi, 23, first clause, tells their fate. It was the hand of God, and the Judge of all the earth doeth right (Gen. xviii, 25; Rev. xv, 3). See also Acts xii, 23; Jer. xxviii, 16, 17, and yet believe firmly that "God is Love" and "not willing that any should perish" (I John iv, 8; II Pet. iii, 9).

11. "And great fear came upon all the church and upon as many as heard these things." It was a needed lesson for the times, and, although He does not always thus swiftly punish sinners, He always hates sin and tells us that he that telleth lies shall not tarry in His sight (Ps. ci, 7). We cannot but think of the swift judgment upon Aaron's sons at the beginning of God's dealings with Israel (Lev. x, 1, 2). If all liars in the church today and all ministers who use strange fire were thus summarily dealt with, there would be no end of funerals and a truly great fear upon many. Although God seems to keep silence concerning the corruptions and abominations in His professed people, He assures us that He will not always keep silence and that judgment must begin at the house of God (Ps. ii, 3; I Pet. iv, 17).

or in other words, men with good sound hearts, are not very numerous. The increasing number of sudden deaths from heart disease daily chronicled by the press, is proof of the alarming prevalence of this dangerous complaint, and as no one can foretell just when a fatal collapse will occur, the danger of neglecting treatment is certainly a very risky matter. WOMEN ELECTED.

Many Women Chosen to Educational Places in the Western States.

In Colorado, at the recent election, Miss Emma Herey was re-elected County Superintendent of Schools for Arapahoe County (Denver). She received the joint nomination of six political parties, and her candidacy was endorsed by a long list of prominent citizens.

The fitness of women for educational positions seems to be generally conceded in the equal suffrage States. In Colorado, women were elected superintendents of schools for seventeen other counties.

In Utah, Margaret Snow was elected city treasurer of Provo; Harriet L. Brown, city auditor of Ogden; Harriet Smith, city recorder of Logan; Mrs. Ellis Day, city treasurer of Mt. Pleasant; Mrs. Adelphia Teasdale, city recorder, and Mrs. Martha E. Paxman, city treasurer of Nephi (Mrs. Teasdale is a Republican and Mrs. Paxman a Democrat); Luella Hayward, city treasurer of Springville by a large vote; Sarah T. Evans, city recorder of Lehi; Mrs. B. N. Walter, city treasurer of Pleasant Grove; and Alpha Elquist, city treasurer of Grantville.

In both Colorado and Utah, the men outnumber the women; so if women are chosen to these offices, it is because the men want the women to hold them.

The Salt Lake Tribune, the leading Gentile paper of Utah, reports that the election was as quiet as a funeral. The day after election the Tribune said editorially: "The women! We all love them. But we love them a little better this morning than usual. They can always be relied upon to keep the ship of State in the channel."

Do Women Corrupt Politics?

The charge that women have increased the corruption of politics in the equal suffrage States is generally made either by corrupt politicians, who hate the woman vote because they cannot control it, or else in anonymous letters, which of course are entitled to no weight. The opinion of persons who have been prominent opponents of political corruption is worth much more as evidence. Of such a character is the testimony of Mrs. A. J. Peavy, the first woman ever chosen in Colorado as State Superintendent of Public Instruction. The Denver Herold, a paper published in German, said of her administration:

"She not only attended to overseeing the teaching in the schools, but insisted that the business of the boards to which she belonged should be handled in a proper manner. In her school lands commission work, she prevented many a bad swindle by her energetic investigation, and always protected the poor people against the greed of the more powerful. Our readers know that we have never been in favor of women in politics, and are not to-day; nevertheless, if the women of the State can put such officers in the field as Mrs. Peavy, to whom we can point as an example of immovable official integrity, then the women will be most welcome comrades in the fight against the corruption that disgraces our republic."

Mrs. Peavy writes, in answer to certain anonymous accusations against equal suffrage in Colorado:

"Corrupt politicians do not like women in politics. They are afraid of the woman vote. They do not know how to cope with it. Very few good men oppose equal suffrage, for they have nothing to fear and much to hope for, if they desire better conditions. The bitterest enemy of equal suffrage dares not deny that all parties feel they must put up as candidates good men, because they are afraid of the woman vote. If we have honest and clean candidates in all parties, is equal suffrage a failure?"

A Monarchy or a Republic.

The general argument for woman suffrage is the same as the argument for having a republic rather than a monarchy. It is fair and right that those who must obey the laws should have a voice in making them, and that those who are obliged to pay taxes should have a voice as to the amount of the tax and the way in which the tax money should be spent. Roughly stated, the fundamental principle of a republic is this: In deciding what is to be done, where everybody's interests are concerned, we take everybody's opinion, and go according to the wish of the majority. Since we cannot suit everybody, we do what will suit the greatest number. That seems to be, on the whole, the fairest way. A vote is simply a written expression of opinion, written down and put into a ballot box so that it may be counted.

In thus taking a vote to get at the wish of the majority, certain classes of persons are always passed over, whose opinions, for one reason or another, are thought not to be worth counting. In most of our States, these classes are children, aliens, idiots, lunatics, criminals and women. There are good and obvious reasons for making all these exceptions but the last. It is clear that no account ought to be taken of the opinion of children, lunatics or criminals. Is there any equally good reason why no account should be taken of the opinion of women? If not, it would seem that they ought to have a vote, on general principles of fair play.

Something That Will Do You Good.

We know of no way in which we can be of more service to our readers than to tell them of something that will be of good to them. For this reason we want to acquaint them with what we consider one of the very best remedies on the market for coughs, colds and that alarming complaint, croup. We refer to Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. We have used it with such good results in our family so long that it has become a household necessity. By its prompt use we haven't any doubt but that it has time and again prevented croup. The testimony is given upon our own experiences and we suggest that our readers, especially those who have small children, always keep it in their homes as a safeguard against croup. Camden (S.C.) JOB + PRINTING

Taken From the Town Report.

SELECTMEN.

The sidewalks of the principal streets of the town are in good order, but as much cannot be said of those on many of the side streets.

The old town stable is in such bad condition that it will have to be torn down and rebuilt. That the whole lot now used by the fire and highway departments be hereafter wholly used by the latter department, and a new location found for the fire department.

That street signs should be repainted and repaired.

The town cannot be too well lighted, and that an increased appropriation to be given this year for more lamps.

TOWN ENGINEER.

That the town plans are now in a brick vault and tabulated. Also that many are missing.

That the Assessors should be provided with plans clearly showing every lot in town. That the expense of the plans would be saved by the increase in taxes obtained from land not now assessed.

The Bacon street bridge is in bad condition and is liable to give way at any time.

That to properly drain Church street near Wedgemere avenue will cost either $9430 or $8282.

HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT.

The repair bill on streets next year will be small.

Would not advise the expenditure of money on the town stable, which is in a bad condition.

Stone is put on the street as cheaply as any city or town in the State.

Street sweepers should be used as being more economical than hand labor.

One team collected 1670 loads of dirt. If the town owned a small lot of the pond it could be filled with this waste material at little cost.

To repair Walnut street bridge last year cost $637 37, but it is now safe for sever l years.

Street department should hereafter concrete its sidewalks.

That Washington street should be finished to the Woburn line, also that Forest street be rebuilt before the stone crusher leaves Winchester Highlands. Church and Swanton streets should be finished.

FIRE ENGINEERS.

The central house is inconvenient in arrangement and location. A new building of brick should be erected, costing in the neighborhood of $30,000. This, together with a new hose house for the west side is food for thought.

The Engineers are always ready to listen to any just criticisms and are equally ready and willing to correct any errors.

The men of the department are responding very promptly to every alarm, and we do not believe that the citizens need have any concern that they will not properly care for their interests.

PARK BOARD.

It was fully expected that before this time our playground would be finished. In any event the sod will not be sufficiently well established to admit of the use of the field before late autumn, 1902.

The town should assume control of the field if suitable terms can be secured from the Metropolitan Park Board. Such care and control will mean that one or two permanent men will have to be employed for at least seven months in the year. These men could also care for the common and other public plots.

BOARD OF HEALTH.

Collection of garbage is still a great source of trouble, and will never be satisfactory until the town does the work itself. Also it should collect the ashes and thus do away with the dump nuisance.

The town has been more free from contagious diseases than usual.

Should a case of small pox appear the Board feels that it is prepared to take care of it.

The sewers should be more generally used. Barely half the buildings on streets where sewers have been laid are connected—a poor showing.

BATH HOUSE.

Committee recommend that a bath house and bathing place be established at Mystic pond on the Commonwealth's land just west of the aqueduct. $1200 will do it.

SCHOOL COMMITTEE.

The seating capacity of the High school building has been surpassed. A special committee should be appointed to consider the question of a new building.

Only one or two towns in the State have a larger number of kindergartens in proportion to population than has Winchester and in no place is the enrollment per teacher smaller than here.

We believe most emphatically in continuing the kindergartens.

The schools should have the entire time of a superintendent. There appears to be only two towns in the State with a population as large as Winchester's that share their superintendent with another town.

The maximum of our teachers' salaries is smaller than that of almost every town or city with which we have to compete when seeking teachers.

The crowded condition of the High school, is an emergency too pressing to await the usual slow course of getting a new building. The committee and the town should move at once for a new building, or an enlargement of the existing one to meet present needs and provide for slightly larger numbers.

Once More.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I see that the Stoneham and Arlington Electric Road, so called, is still running an occasional car between the two towns. To those who are now grumbling about the service of this road, I should like to say that just so long as the travelling public of this town are willing to meekly put up with this wretched service, just so long will it last. In the fall when some people saw what was in store for them during the winter they "kicked," but were easily pacified when told that new cars had been ordered; which did not explain lack of power, however. A month or more ago, getting tired of waiting for new cars they again "kicked" and the announcement was made that new cars had been ordered and would appear soon, but as the car manufacturers were so crowded they could not supply their orders (?) and the road would have to wait its turn. If this is so the North Woburn road must be able to make cars out of nothing at all, for they have been adding cars almost weekly since fall, and now, when their Superintendent thinks his passengers will ride more easily in side seated cars, he is replacing the cars now on the line with still newer ones. How wonderful it is!

One night last week I was attracted by an unusual noise to the Baptist church, and there found one of the Stoneham road's luxurious rolling palaces on a turnout where it had fallen to pieces, and a few men trying to patch it together sufficiently to get it back to the barn. To my mind it would be better for some of our people to cease waxing wrathful over the fact that our School Committee has attempted to follow a majority of other towns in the number of teachers per pupil in kindergartens and turn their attention to a few other things. APPEAL.

Bilious Colic.

H. Seaver, a carpenter and builder of Kenton, Tenn., when suffering intensely from an attack of bilious colic, sent to a near by drug store for something to relieve him. The druggist sent him a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, three doses of which effect a permanent cure. This is the only remedy that can be depended upon in the most severe cases of colic and cholera morbus. Most druggists know this and recommend it when such a medicine is called for. For sale by Young & Brown, druggists.

Surprise Party.

Last Thursday Mr. and Mrs. Wm. A. Borden were surprised at their home on Prince avenue by about fifty neighbors and friends who took complete possession of their house. The occasion their silver wedding anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Borden were presented with a handsome and costly solid silver service as a testimonial from their many friends. A dainty lunch was provided by the visiting ladies. During the evening there were selections on the piano, vocal solos and a graphophone concert—all contributing to a most delightful evening to host and hostess and guests.

Mr. Borden is a superintendent at the McKay factory.

Had To Conquer Or Die.

"I was just about gone," writes Mrs. Rosa Richardson, of Laurel Springs, N. C. "I had consumption so bad that the best doctors said I could not live more than a month, but I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery and was wholly cured by seven bottles and am now stout and well." It's an unrivaled life-saver in consumption, pneumonia, La Grippe and Bronchitis; infallible for coughs, colds asthma, hay fever, croup or whooping cough. Guaranteed bottles 50c and $1. Trial bottles free at Grover's drug store.

Whipping an Editor in old Times.

The following anecdote of the late Col. W. P. Winchester, whom our town was named after, was taken from the Hingham Journal:

Passing down State street one April morning in the year 1843, the writer noticed quite a commotion about the doorway of the evening Bulletin, opposite the Old State House and the assisting of a very nervous appearing little gentleman into a waiting hack. He did not appear injured in any way, but was evidently very much agitated and frightened. Upon enquiry it was ascertained that the gentleman was the editor of the Bulletin. Mr. C. H. Peabody, who had just been horsewhipped by Col. W. P. Winchester, a well known wealthy citizens for the offence of publishing a burlesque account entitled "Wedding in High Life," referring to the marriage of the Colonel's daughter, to which the editor was not invited with some other editors. It was a foolish specimen of petty spite on the part of Peabody, which the popular Colonel resented by calling on the latter and inflicting several blows with a cowhide, which frightened the little editor, but did him no other harm. The Colonel, who was a large powerful man, evidently had never before seen the editor, and confidently went prepared for a big fight with an unknown quantity and was accompanied by a friend, Mr. J. R. Bradlee, an equally big man, and was greatly susprised to meet with such an insignificant foe, so he administered a few light blows, which would hardly drive away a fly, and bestowing upon him a few uncomplimentary remarks, took his leave of the terrified editor, who was nearly frightened to death and left the premises. Peabody made a terrific fuss over it and filled his next paper with lurid accounts of a murderous assault and attempted assassination, and added a vigorous outcry about the rights of the press, etc. He followed it up in the Supreme Court, in which the jury gave a verdict of $213.33 against Col. Winchester, and acquitted Mr. Bradlee. The result did not trouble the Col. in the least but it caused a big horse-laugh about town over the scared editor, who soon after left Boston.

Life Saving Apparatus for the Lakes.

The Metropolitan Park Commission has at last taken steps to act upon the suggestion made some time ago by this newspaper that life saving apparatus ought to be placed on the shores of the Mystic Lakes, as has been done in the cases of several ponds elsewhere within the domain of the commission.

The matter has been frequently discussed by hundreds of people, young and old, who use the lakes for canoeing in summer and for skating in winter, and everyone will be glad to learn that something is about to be done. It is not the plan to have regularly appointed men patrol the shores of the lakes, watching for accidents as the coast life savers do. At suitable intervals along the lake shores emergency boxes will be erected, each one containing life buoys, ropes, boat-hooks and a ladder.

These boxes will be patterned after those which have been in use for some years at the Malden Reservoir, and at other ponds within the jurisdiction of the Metropolitan officials. Each box is about three feet high and several feet long, constructed of sheathing, painted brown, and bearing the words, "Life Saving Apparatus" in black letters on the sides.

The ladder and hooks are placed on one side of the receptacles and the other emergency tools within. On occasion in the winter time the park patrolmen, or pedestrians, may easily and quickly secure the saving tools and hasten to the aid of any unfortunates. In the winter a man may push his way across the ice with a ladder, place it across a hole with little or no danger to himself—for even very thin ice is wonderfully strong when stepped on with care—and assist the unfortunate who has gone through.

In the canoeing season it will be very easy to paddle to one of these emergency stations, obtain ropes or a boathook, and hasten back to the scene of accident. The presence of such emergency tools will do much to inspire confidence, and afford protection to life.

Something in the way of a life saving plan was proposed several months ago by a Boston gentleman representing a corporation established to install regular inland life saving stations on lakes, ponds and rivers hereabouts. The proposition was to have patrolmen placed on the lakes to watch for accidents. The scheme, while a good one, was rejected on the ground that the lakes were in use but a comparatively small part of the year, and that the expense would be so great as to be scarcely warranted.—[Medford Mercury.

Working Overtime.

Eight hour laws are ignored by those tireless little workers—Dr. King's New Life Pills. Millions are always at work, night and day, curing indigestion, biliousness, constipation, sick headache and all stomach, liver and bowel troubles. Easy, pleasant, safe, sure. Only 25c at Grover's drug store.

Appropriations.

The Committee held its fifth session Tuesday evening. Mr. Currier of the school board stated that it would have an article in the warrant in regard to enlarging the High school building. Engineer Fletcher explained plans for disposal of surface water on west side. The salary for moderator was stricken out. Messrs. Mills and Badger, the sub-committee on streets, are to perambulate the streets of the town and report at next meeting. Next Tuesday evening the Committee will have a list of all articles in the warrant calling for appropriations of money, and will arrange to take them up. It is known that there will be all of a dozen outside of the usual appropriations. The Committee discussed all the usual appropriations and decided upon all but one or two. It is believed it will be a hard fight to keep the tax rate as low as it has been the past three years.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Town reports omissions and commissions:

Selectmen: Not a word about completing Main street at Whitney's mill; No reference to Eaton street lot that the board was instructed to clear and grade; ask for special appropriation for sidewalks although they are a part of the street. List of jurors is a good one and should be accepted just as it stands. Street across the pond committee should have conferred with Boston & Maine people and found out what, if any arrangement could be made with them, to build it. Supt. of Streets is satisfied we can take street railway tax paid in lieu of maintaining street between and eighteen inches outside of rails and also compel the company to take care of street just the same. Evidently he does not believe the law is common sense. Chief of Police recommends another officer but Selectmen don't approve. Fire Engineers make a good report but forgot evidently to ask for a horseless engine and water tower,—nothing else seems to have escaped them. Their suggestions are timely, however. Cemetery Commissioners advise purchase of plans of cemetery. They should have bought them long ago. Park Board, same old song on Manchester Field. No progress will be made on this matter until the town appoints a special committee to go up to the State House and call down the Metropolitan Park Board. Board of Health think more buildings should be connected with sewers but apparently does nothing about ordering any in until complaint is made. Why should it wait for complaints to be made? Supt. of Water Works says "the property at North Reservoir is in good condition." He could not have included the dam and gate house or the fire protection furnished by the piece of hose that does not reach around the house.

Sewer Board gives practically no information, as usual.

Sewer Superintendent and Town Engineer talk well and to the point.

Library Trustees say nothing new. They might have explained why they buy paintings before they keep lower reading room in respectable condition.

School Committee makes an excellent report that should be satisfactory to all.

Assessors make no report outside of statistics and valuation list.

The general makeup of the book is the best yet.

Why didn't you wake up in time, you school committee "knockers?" Don't you know that in order to make a change in the number of members on a board action in favor of it must be taken at a meeting at least thirty days before the annual meeting?

That kingergarten and labor combine town meeting was not the largest ever held in this town, the meeting of March 19, 1894, when the park question was up, was much larger, 598 votes were cast and the town was a thousand smaller in population then, too. By the way, who put that labor article into the warrant? It was not any of those who have been mentioned as the "true friends of the laboring man."

Why should not money for macadam street construction be raised by borrowing instead of by taxation, as most of it has been? These rock roads are expected to last for a great number of years and it would seem that maintenance only should be raised by taxation.

Is this seat engaged? May I occupy this seat? May I share this seat with you? are some of the absurd words you hear on the steam cars. How many seats do people pay for, anyway?

The motion offered last year instructing the various officials to have their annual reports in by January 10, this year, was a good one and now that it has been proved conclusively that they can get them in by that date let us make that vote a standing one and so have the annual reports every year before the caucus. That is something like.

The Auditor's recommendation in the town report in regard to the ordering of supplies is very timely and to the point and should be adopted. Some boards have been very careless about this.

Let the watch-word be economy and low tax rate the guiding star.

Why don't the Park Board put that fancy lamp post it has stored on the Common with an arc light in it.

The spectacle of members of boards trying to fill the other places on the board with their friends is one that should be turned down. It looks almost suspicious in some cases. Let it be stopped.

The idea that it is just as well to have all members of the Board of Selectmen from one part of the town will not find much favor. It is well enough in theory but does not work well in practice. There are plenty of good men in all parts of the town. We don't want any more one man power, either.

It looks now as if the fight for nominations for Selectmen will be hot at the caucus and renewed at the polls. This shows interest and is much better than the lackadaisical one of last year. Selectman Taylor thinks three terms enough and believes in giving others a chance. The ballot with the names of all candidates for Selectmen upon it is the fairest and should be adopted by the caucus as the only one to be used, as that will prevent cut and dried tickets and give every one an equal show. The caucus has a perfect right to say this as nobody suffers by it, besides we do not want a "machine" caucus.

For many years the only Selectman who had more than three years service on the board was the late Mr Pattee, although many citizens have served upon the board in the time. If a citizen is especially qualified he should be returned, otherwise three years seems to be the established time. Of the present board Mr. Taylor has served three terms and declines to run again, Mr. Boutwell has had three terms and is a candidate for a fourth, Mr. Jones has had two terms, Mr. Fitzgerald has had two terms and are candidates for the third and Mr. Bradstreet has had but one term and is a candidate.

The style of the Auditor's report has been much improved.

The theory is advanced that catching so many fish from the reservoirs is responsible for the bad taste of the water the past year. If this is true we better appoint a Fish Committee. It would not be a bad idea to have one anyway.

I rather guess all the attention the thirty thousand dollar fire house will get this year will be what may come in connection with the new stable and yard investigation. The Engineers furnish so much "food for thought" that it will require a a good deal of time to think.

The Selectmen have not only refused to do anything about clearing up the Eaton street lot, but have allowed it to be made a dump again and included with the other stuff are fifteen or twenty stumps of great trees. What is the use of talking about the dump nuisance when the town permits it on its own property and a school house on the lot at that. Is it an object lesson for the scholars?

Four Small Fires.

The early days of the closing month of the town's municipal year were ushered in by four bell alarms calling out the fire department. The first at 12 o'clock last Sunday noon was for a grass fire on the Stone estate, Washington street. At 7 p. m. for the same cause a second alarm was sounded.

At 9.10 Sunday evening the department responded for a fire in the house of Mr. P. W. Reardon, Nelson street, caused by an oil stove taking fire. Some excited individual pulled in a second alarm from another box for this fire which caused much confusion. When an alarm is being sounded, another box should not be pulled in until the first has been completed.

Tuesday afternoon the firemen were called out for a grass fire that was threatening the destruction of the Maxwell tannery on Cross street. The building had an exceedingly narrow escape, and some hard work was necesary to keep the fire from consuming the building.

A Great Surprise

Is in store for all who use Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs, the great guaranteed remedy. Would you believe that it is sold on its merits and any druggist is authorized by the proprietor of this wonderful remedy to give you a sample bottle free? It never fails to cure acute or chronic coughs. All druggists sell Kemp's Balsam. Price 25c. and 50c.

Ahead of the Times.

M. C. Cook and his numerous fellow-signers are to appear again with that Greater Boston proposition. Cook is a very respectable and earnest old gentleman, who probably, if accorded his true deserts, should by this time be wearing his initials at the end as well as before his family name. But he must know by this time that the Greater Boston idea, which he conceived in the earlier years of his very useful life, is a dream as yet, and that in this, at least, he is years ahead of his time. Such petitions take too much of the precious time of the metropolitan affairs committee.

A Temporary but Urgent Expedient.

It affords us a great deal of satisfaction to print in another column the treatment of the subject of increased accommodation for the High School, which is to be found in the recently published annual report of the School Committee. As the readers of the STAR will doubtless remember, we have briefly discussed this topic in several recent issues of this paper. It is a matter of self-congratulation, that the School Committee has taken substantially the same position which we have done. In fact, the language of the report is so plain, well-put and convincing that it needs little if no additional comment on our part. The suggestion is certainly along the lines of a sound educational and business-like policy. We have good reason to predict that our citizens will give the whole question of High School accommodation a fair and thorough consideration at the annual meeting in March. We can well understand that the School Committee is somewhat reluctant to recommend another addition to the architectural deformities of our antiquated High School building, but it is clearly evident that some such temporary expedient is urgently needed. It is not a theory but a plain every day condition that must be met,—the sooner the better.

Important Nominations.

Unquestionably the most important nominations to be made at the caucus next week are for the School Committee. Not only does this department lead in the amount of money expended, but, what is far more vital, its duties are of the most serious nature, its work, for good or ill, more far-reaching than that of any other board—the education of 1500 children in the public schools.

Winchester has a right to expect that its schools shall be second to none in the State. To bring the schools to such a standard, and to keep them there, demands, on the part of the committee, men thoroughly equipped for the enormously varied duties of the office, men absolutely in earnest that every grade of the school system, from the lowest to the highest, shall be brought to the highest possible state of perfection, men who can command sufficient leisure to study and help solve the numberless problems constantly arising in school management. Any mistakes that may be made in nearly all other departments of town government are of a temporary and material character. Errors in education involve life-long moral and intellectual consequences.

For these and other reasons it is essential that citizens should attend the caucus next Thursday evening with an eye singly to the best interests of the schools and the school children, and with an earnest purpose to put in nomination the best men that can be secured for the two vacancies that are to be filled.

Mr. Garrett's Lecture.

The announcement of Mr. Edmund H. Garrett's lecture on "Some Old Baronial Halls and Elizabethan Mansions in England," to be given in the Town Hall on the evening of February 25th, affords an opportunity which will be gladly welcomed by our townspeople generally, to repay in some measure the numerous and important services rendered by Mr. Garrett to various good causes during a period of many years. These services have always been given freely and without any reserve of personal effort or sacrifice, and with results in artistic value and practical success such as it would have been difficult, perhaps impossible, to secure without his peculiarly skilful aid.

The lecture itself promises a delightful entertainment. Mr. Garrett has given his "talks," with stereopticon illustrations, in other places and always with very great success. We have never read more enthusiastic and unqualified praise for anything of the sort than that given Mr. Garrett in an editorial article in the Boston Herald—a very unusual honor for a great daily newspaper to bestow.

We notice that the price fixed for seats is very moderate.

Those who know Mr. Garrett will not look for any effort on his part to induce people to attend his lecture. He modestly contents himself with providing an excellent entertainment. The management of the affair is in the hands of a number of influential persons, representing the various organizations and causes indebted to Mr. Garrett, and they intend to prove that it is possible for once and in Winchester for a prophet to have honor in his own country as well as abroad. The house should be crowded.

Town Auditor.

William C. Newell desires to announce to the people of the town that he is a candidate for re-election to the office of Town Auditor, and would ask that all who favor his retention attend the caucus on Thursday, the 25th inst.

Fairyland or The Fairy's Enchantment.

The dainty play which was given at the home of Mr. Noyes on Everett avenue last Saturday by about twenty little children in aid of the Floating Hospital was so successful and so great an interest was shown in its production that it has been decided to repeat it next Saturday morning at 10.30 a. m. in Metcalf Hall for the benefit of the same charity.

It is hoped that the attendance on that date will warrant its repetition. Tickets can be obtained at the door. Admission for all 10 cts.

The Problem of Accommodation for the High School.

We reprint with pleasure the following extract from the Annual Report of the School Committee. We understand that it was written by Prof. Currier, the chairman of the Committee. It certainly voices in emphatic words the opinion of our best citizens:

The problem of school accommodations is again an urgent one. The pressure now is greatest at the High School and in the lower primary rooms. An unusual growth in number of pupils has characterized the high schools of the State and of the United States during the past ten or twelve years, and Winchester has contributed its share in this development. To go back but a very short time, it is found that the enrollment at our High School in December, 1898, was 209; December, 1899, 238; December, 1900, 245; December, 1901, 284; an increase of 75 in three years. We have not only reached, but passed, the seating capacity of the present building. It was necessary last fall to use the physical and chemical laboratories, not only as laboratories, but also for seating twenty-four pupils and for constant service as recitation rooms. So far as can be estimated at the present time, the school will have about thirty more pupils next year than it has this year, and we must look forward to a steady annual increase in numbers. A special committee should be appointed at the approaching town meeting, to consider the question of a new High School building. It is, however, hardly likely that such a building can be expected for three or four years to come; in the meantime something must be done to provide for the immediate needs of the school. The School Committee hesitates to recommend putting another addition onto the present building; however, this seems to be, perhaps, the only solution of the problem confronting the town. Careful estimates of a reliable contractor, based on the plans of a competent architect, indicate that such an addition, sufficient to provide for any probable growth of the next three or four years, can be made at an expense amounting to less than a single year's interest on the cost of a new High School building. This is suggested as a temporary expedient, to provide for the interval which must elapse before the erection of such a High School building as the town so plainly needs.

For School Committeeman.

There are two vacancies on the School Board to be filled at the coming election. For one of the positions the present incumbent, Dr. Blaisdell, possesses such evident qualifications that no argument is needed to demonstrate the wisdom of retaining his services: broad education, the training of a physician, experience in teaching, long service on the School Committee of a large city, deep interest in the public schools and time to devote to their welfare.

For the other vacancy the name of Mr. Robert Coit has been frequently and favorably mentioned. Mr Coit, too, is a man of liberal education, and his profession as an architect would enable him to render most valuable assistance in meeting the numerous intricate and technical questions connected with the repair of school buildings, and with their heating, ventilation and sanitation. Mr Coit is already well acquainted with school conditions, not only because of having four children in the schools, but also from having served on a number of special committees on school affairs.

For Visiting Nurse Association

When the Visiting Nurse Association began its work in Winchester there was received from various sources a quantity of supplies which have lasted until the present time. Now more are needed. It is not necessary to remind the people of Winchester of the great debt of the community to this Association. Everybody knows that its work is most important and that the nurses are followed by gratitude and blessings wherever they go.

The Association now appeals to the public for sick room supplies, such as malted milk, cocoa, beef extract, bovox, shredded wheat and invalids' foods. There is need of cotton and woolen cloth to be torn into pieces, and the nurses make a special request for ivory soap and bedroom slippers. All such articles may be sent to the town hall, plainly marked for the Association, and Mr. Carr, the janitor, will receive them.

Persons who prefer to give money for the purchase of supplies may hand their contributions to any one of the members of the Supply Committee, who are: Mrs. S. H. Folsom, Miss Katherine Pond, Mrs. W. A. Snow, Mrs. C. C. Pond, Miss Mary Richards, Miss Alice Russell, Mrs. F. F. Carpenter, Mrs. George G. Kellogg and Mrs. W. M. Mason.

A Series of Entertainments.

The Winchester Boat Club is to give a series of entertainments during the next few weeks in Waterfield Hall, for the purpose of raising funds for the purchase of a war canoe and two racing paddling canoes. The entertainments are in the hands of the following committee which is an assurance of everything being first class and from whom tickets can be procured: J. Herbert Dwinell, chairman, Arthur H. Dorsey, Geo. F. Edgett, F. H. Harding, M. B. May, Clarence Fultz.

The program and dates arranged are as follows:

March 5th, from 8 until 12 p. m. Tableau and informal dancing. Committee: Mr. Murphy, Mr. Garrett, Mrs. Woods.

March 19th, from 8 until 12 p. m. Musicale and and informal dancing. Committee: Mr. Bicknell, Mr. Richards, Mrs. Passano.

April 2d, from 8 until 12 p. m. Dramatic entertainment and informal dancing. Committee: Mr. Dickson, Mr. Baylor, Miss Kellogg. An excellent orchestra has been engaged for the dancing.

A Correction.

In a communication from Mrs. Sanborn printed in last week's issue of the STAR and referring to the surface drainage of Rangeley Park, allusion was made to the Metropolitan Sewer.

Readers conversant with the subject could not fail to perceive that the Mystic Valley Sewer was what the writer really had in mind. The error was purely one of inadvertence; not affecting the essential facts of the case. No one was misled by it and this correction is made merely for the sake of verbal accuracy.

"I have taken a great many different medicines for stomach trouble and constipation," says Mrs. S. Geiger of Dunkerton, Iowa, "but never had as good results from any as from Chamberlain's stomach and liver tablets." For sale by Young & Brown druggists.

Winter does not cause a great deal of interruption to building operations these days. Near the corner of Park avenue and Washington street, last Monday a large force of men were at work with sledge hammers, steel wedges, shovels and picks forcing out the earth for the cellar for a new house.

Mrs. Elizabeth R. Locke, widow of the late Daniel Fifield and daughter of Jonathan and Betsey (Russell) Locke, died of the painful malady from which she has been afflicted for some time, on Friday, Jan. 31st, at her home at 14 Palmer street, Arlington, where she has resided with her son and daughter, Mr. Wallace A. and Miss Augusta Fifield, for several years. Mrs. Fifield had a beautiful disposition and those Christian virtues which endeared her to many friends who have felt the deepest love and sympathy for her in her affliction of body which she has borne so patiently and uncomplainingly. Mrs. Fifield has a son, Mr. John Fifield, who resides in Malden, while her sisters, Mrs. Sarah M. Cox and Miss Adeline M. Locke, have their home in Arlington, with which the family has long been identified, although the homestead is on what is known as Turkey Hill, over the Winchester line, where the deceased has a brother and sister living. The funeral took place Tuesday afternoon Feb. 4, at the home on Palmer street, Rev. Mr. Graves, of Charlestown, an old pastor of the deceased, officiating. A quartette, made up from the chorus choir of the Baptist church, sang several appropriate selections. Beautiful flowers surrounded the casket and were expressive of the regard of loving kin and dear friends. The burial was in the family lot at Wildwood Cemetery, Winchester.—[Arlington Advocate.

The suite at 109 Gainsboro street Boston, occupied by Mrs. Geo. C. Squier formerly Miss Mary Hinds of this town, was broken into by burglars last Friday. They secured a large amount of valuables, among which were Mrs. Squier's wedding presents and a quantity of wearing apparel.

Ex-Mayor Davis and others have been before the Committee on Metropolitan Affairs at the State House presenting claims for a boulevard connecting with the Metropolitan Park System in Winchester. It calls for a road on the westerly side of Horn Pond, through Water and Pleasant streets, Arlington road and Lake avenue to connect at both ends with the park system. It will not pass this year, however, because of the Governor's well known opposition to all such new work.

The annual meeting of the Ladies' Friendly Society was held Thursday afternoon. The election of officers was as follows: President, Mrs P C Wilson; vice-president, Mrs M Dutch; secretary, Mrs T H Emus; treasurer, Mrs G S Littlefield; directors for two years, Mrs Dr Eaton, Mrs Wm Goodwin and Mrs Roland Thompson. A very large number attended the supper, fully 300 being present. In the evening a play was given on the stage, the characters taken by Miss Mary Taplin, Miss Mary Kellogg and Mr. Roland Cutter. Miss Besserer entertained with a song, after which dancing filled up the rest of the evening. The whole affair was particularly delightful even for this society who give so many pleasant entertainments.

Among the "stately homes of England" to be described by Mr. Garrett in his lecture at the Town Hall are three famously connected with the Elizabethan period of history: Hever Castle the birth place of Anne Boleyn, Queen Elizabeth's mother; Penshurst Castle, the home of Sir Philip Sidney, Queen Elizabeth's noble favorite; and Hardwick Hall where Elizabeth's rival, the unhappy Mary Stuart, Queen of Scots, passed a part of her long captivity.

In a published interview on the celebrated Dr. Pfeiffe small pox case, Boston, Dr. H. L. Houghton of this town, who is an anti-vaccinationist, says: "I do not know anything about it excep that I was one of those who voted him down at a meeting of the society, and we refused to have anything to do with any such experiment. Whatever he did was absolutely without authority from the society, was done on his own responsibility and for notoriety. It was a fool thing to do. There is no question at all about the virulence of the disease or that it is contagious. So his costly experiment has proved nothing and will not affect the subject of anti-vaccination. Our only complaint was about introducing compulsory vaccination requiring a person to allow a disease to be introduced into the system, even againgt the will. I do not see how the course of Dr. Pfeiffer has any bearing at all on that question.

We were in error last week in stating that Mr. Charles A. Conant, who has been appointed treasurer of the Morton Trust Co. of New York, was brother to Mrs. Edwin Robinson. The pen should have said son to Deacon C. E. Conant. However Winchester is proud to count him as one of her boys.

The Irish Agent.

"The Irish Agent," a drama of Irish life in four acts, was given by the Winchester C. T. A. Society last Tuesday evening in Lyceum hall before a crowded house. Too much praise cannot be given the manager, Chas. J. Harrold, and the members of the company for this very successful production of a play very seldom attempted by amateurs.

From the moment of the raising of the curtain in the first act to its fall in the last, there was round after round of applause and the play was probably better received than any other given by the Society. The manifold nature of the Celt is shown to great advantage here, changing from great joy and merriment to the wildest grief at the recurring changes in the play.

Mr. Dennis O'Neil as "Con O'Neil," the Irish farmer, had a fine conception of his part, one very difficult to take, and in the emotional parts, especially in the graveyard scene, was very strong. Mr. J. Joseph Foley, as "The Irish Agent," did very well and the storm of hisses which greeted him at times showed that he was taking this hated character to the satisfaction of the audience. Mr. Chas. J. Harrold as "Tighe Murphy," a rollicking, witty Irish lad, captivated the audience from the start and his song, "My Dudeen," rendered in regular Andrew Mack style, brought down the house. His assumption of "Nancy O'Grady," an old lady, was particularly fine. Mr. Harrold is gifted with a high-pitched voice as well as a deep bass, and could impersonate both the male and female character without any trouble. It is hard to see how this character could be improved upon, even on the professional stage.

Mr. John Malloney as "Darby O'Riordan," Shaun's accomplice, took this very difficult part in a surprising manner and deserves great credit for his fine work. Mr. Wm. Foley as "Barney Burke," a strolling fiddler, was good-natured and easy-going and made a pleasing character. Mr. Frank Callahan as "Father Tom," the parish priest, had all the solemnity necessary for this important character. Mr. Jas. Kenney as "Frank Sheldon," a young Englishman, was very popular with the audience and showed that as a love maker he was no novice.

Miss Lillian E. McCarthy as "Mary O'Neil," took the leading lady part with grace and dignity and in her scenes with Shaun, her abductor, showed fine dramatic effort. Miss Gertrude Lynch as "Norah O'Neil" acted the part of the sick girl as it should be and it is to be regretted that her part was not longer. Miss Mary Burke as "Kate," the soubrette, kept the audience in a roar of laughter and made a fine running-mate for Tighe. She handles the brogue in such a way as would make one think she had kissed the Blarney stone.

Lack of Individual Responsibility.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

To criticise a public servant is an unpleasant task at the best and when the one in question leads an exemplary life in his private affairs it is even more distasteful, but a communication from J. W. R. is such a hodge-podge of erroneous statements and fulsome compliment for a member of our school board that it seems wise to call attention to the errors.

For fourteen years Mr. Symmes has been on our school board and for years it has been commonly understood that either (1st) he agreed with the other members of the board in the policy pursued in the management of the schools, or (2d) that he felt he was not in a position to make an effective presentation of his minority views. If the first report be true there is no reason for the compliments that J. W. R. places on his brow. For years and years the school board exceeded its appropriations and certainly while Mr. Hunt was superintendent the board itself did not apparently know its liabilities. Now if Mr. Symmes had shown the careful auditing of bills, certainly the town would not have been in the state of ignorance that it was periodically when the appropriation committee tried to find how the school accounts stood. Again the extravagant expense of our kindergarten system is another standing refutation of the statement that Mr. Symmes has been a careful guardian of the interests of the taxpayers.

Would Mr. Symmes in his capacity of scientific farmer for one moment consent that one set of laborers work for him ten hours a day and another set five hours without a corresponding payment for services rendered? Yet we find our kindergarteners carefully husbanding their strength by a two and one half hour session while our primary teachers with more insistent courses work nearly double the time with much larger groups of children. Why has not Mr. Symmes in his capacity of tax saver insisted that the kindergarten teachers work morning and afternoon? The first rudiments of business should have caused him to evolve a plan by which many dollars could have been saved the town in this direction alone.

Now if the second report be true that he has not felt able to cope with the majority of the board, it strikes the writer that it would have been far better for him to have retired from the board at some happy moment when the pressure of outside duties would have made the exit graceful, so that some one who was not overawed by the learned ministers and lawyers could have been in a position to present minority reports to the town. Why, the report was circulated that three years ago the gentleman was ready to retire but stayed on to please a member who has since resigned. If this be true it disposes effectually of the claim that Mr. Symmes felt himself in serious opposition to anything the majority of the board desired.

Candidly it has seemed to the writer that Mr. Symmes disliked presenting any views in opposition to those of the chairman and he has thus placed himself in the position of entire agreement with his fellow members. We all readily recall the attempt made to largely increase an appropriation for airing the ventilating and sanitary arrangements of the Wyman school when Mr. Symmes presented so clearly his ground for opposing extravagance and was heartily supported by the voters. Is not this incident enough to prove that a minority opinion of a board commands a most respectful hearing from our citizens?

Speaking broadly of our school board and of our selectmen for the past few years it has struck the writer that there has been altogether too much unanimity of opinion among the members of each board. Citizens are elected to these boards by no political party with definite platform to be carried out, but each is expected to give, within resonable limits, an individual account of his stewardship. It is a short time since the majority of the voters at a town meeting voted in opposition to the unanimous vote of the selectmen on the widening of Highland Avenue. Not one member of that board was willing to go on record in the townmeeting as being in accord with the majority of the voters. Consequently the majority of the voters are now in the position of being without a representative on the board of selectmen. Yet in the bulletins of your excellent paper, Mr. Editor, it is stated that four members of the board desire, and, it is fair to presume, expect a reelection as an endorsement of their official actions.

Is it not about time to pick out some citizens for membership on our boards who have not the endorsement of the holdovers? It is laughable to think that the holdovers have greater interest in the membership of our boards than do the voters, but certainly our last caucus gives us reason for so believing.

I ask for instance our board of health who nominated Dr Church at our last caucus? In turn who nominated for the same board Mr. Hinds? Now this year who, reasoning from analogy, will nominate two members for the board? Again, state what act of courtesy required Mr. Wooster to nominate Mr. Fred Symmes for the sewer board?

No member of our boards can afford to have so close a relationship with the choice of new members of the same board. It is fair to reason that when a member of a board desires the election of a citizen to the same board and takes such active measures to insure his selection as to nominate him himself, it is fair to assume I say, that some understanding has been reached by which the first will have one vote at least that agrees with his own. When, however, it has reached the state that a whole board works unanimously on debatable subjects, a feeling gains ground that it is the result either of a most remarkable coincidence that three or five men of one mind have been elected to a board, or, that by a process of careful sifting that only men of a certain cast of mind are allowed on the board, or, finally, that some pretty poor sticks with no minds of their own on debatable subjects have been elected to be a Me Too element carefully guarded by the manipulators of town politics from failure of reelection at our annual meetings.

Any one of the above causes should be carefully guarded against if our town government is to be administered in the interests of the citizens.

All that has been said in the foregoing as to the lack of individual responsibility on the part of our town officials is equally true of each voter who has by his half-hearted interest in town affairs given his passive consent to such a state of affairs. Now let the coming caucus reflect an active interest on the part of a large number of our voters in the affairs of the town.

R. S. V. P.

His Position on the School Question.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Dear Sir:

I have been asked by a number of my friends to stand for election to the School Board. That there may be no misunderstanding about my views on the public school questions. I should esteem it a favor if you would kindly publish this letter. I believe that primarily the schools are for the pupil and not the pupil for the schools. The courses should be so arranged as to give each child a thorough and practical preparation for the life he is to follow on leaving school. It is hardly necessary for me to state that I believe most thoroughly in kindergartens. They should be so arranged as to give the child his start along the proper lines so that on going into the higher branches his work will show the advantages of the early education. Kindergarten children, as a rule, complete their education at an earlier age than those not having had the advantages of this first training and so that extent saved the town the money expended on these first years.

In saying this I do not mean that I believe that there is nothing in our present system that can be improved. The question of reducing our kindergartens to three as has been proposed is one that may be seriously considered. The matter of expense is a vital one in a community like ours, and if after careful consideration it is found that this reduction can be effected without injury to the system or the deprivation of any of the scholars of their rights to this elementary education, then I can see no reason why the economy should not be effected.

The Primary schools should be so arranged that the pupil coming from the kindergarten shall be closely under the eye of the teacher, and to this end we must avoid over crowding the class rooms and the allotment of too many scholars to each teacher.

The Grammar schools, probably the most important of all the grades, should be closely scrutinized and care taken that the fundamental studies on which a child's education rests may not be too much crowded by additional and newer branches. I believe thoroughly in sloyd cooking, sewing, etc., when taught under careful supervision and due regard to the other studies, but caution must be exercised to see that they are properly taught and not regarded as of little importance to be slighted and neglected as the child himself may elect. So large a proportion of our children end their school days with the Grammar school that too much importance cannot be laid upon the years spent in this grade.

In the High school I believe there should be three distinct courses—academic, scientific and mercantile. I would lay particular stress upon this last course. A thorough course of stenography and typewriting should be included in this. Book-keeping as exemplified by modern experts, and modern business methods and banking regulation, should be taught by those having made these branches a special study. Modern methods have so improved these in the past few years that the usual instruction given from several years' old text books on the subjects is not what is required in an "up to date" school. The practical methods of modern business should be so taught, that a scholar finishing this course would be on an equality with a graduate of the same age, leaving a business college. It is as important, in my judgement, that a thoroughly practical business education be given to those who desire it, as the fitting of a boy or girl for college. Our college course is already so well established and its results speak so highly for those having it in charge that all I can say is that it has my most hearty approval.

I desire to commend most sincerely the report of the school superintendent just published and to call particular attention to what he says in reference to the new High school building. It is poor economy to defer action on this important matter. We know the situation and should at once take steps for the erection of a new building. The School Committee's report clearly shows what we should do in this matter.

The question of physical culture, athletic's and military drill are matters in which I am deeply interested and I believe that the proper developement of a childs physical body is fully as important as that of his mental capacities. Careful attention should be given to all matters of expenditure, but it is false economy to employ underpaid teachers because they are cheap and can be hired for less money than better ones, or to pay our teachers such small salaries as to have them constantly on the lookout for new engagements, thus leaving us constantly engaging and breaking in new teachers which is an expense to the town and a detriment to the scholar.

The above is a brief outline of my views on the subject. If they meet with the approval of my fellow townsmen I shall deem it an honor to stand as candidate for the School Board and if elected to serve with Prof. Currier and Dr. Blaisdell thereon.

FRANK F. CARPENTER.

Observations.

[Written by N. A. Richardson.]

In the spring of 1842 the Western Railroad was completed to Albany, N. Y. The Massachusetts Legislature, at the close of its session in March, was invited as a body to ride over the road to that city. As a member of that body, I went, and had an interesting journey through Worcester, Springfield and the high and beautiful Berkshire region, a region now so popular and sought after by the wealthy and fashionable families of N. Y., where dew drops of gold cluster on vine and flower, enriched with sunshine and air. When we started a violent storm was raging on the line of the road, but cleared away as we approached Springfield. The road was new and in several deep cuts the clay soil had been washed by the rain down the embankments so deep as to greatly impede the two engines and cars, which often came to a standstill. The train was very long, and of the 9 members of the Governor's Council, 40 members of the Senate and 339 members of the House, a total of 388, 294 went, under the marshalship of Benj. Stevens, Sargeant at Arms. John Davis, Governor, and George Hill, Lieutenant Governor, were present. Josiah Quincy, jr., president of the Senate, Josiah G. Abobtt, Foster Hooper, John Mills, Amos Abbott, Emery Washburn, Seth Sprague, jr., of the Senate, were present. Charles Francis Adams, George T. Bigelow, Charles P. Curtis, John G. Palfrey, J. Thomas Stevenson, John C. Park, George Wheatland, Joshua H. Ward, James D. Green, Seth J. Thomas, Richard Frothingham, jr., George S. Boutwell, John P. Robinson, Daniel S. Richardson, Henry Wilson, James Russell, Alvah Crocker, Thomas Kinnicutt speaker of the House, Benj. F. Thomas, Samuel C. Allen, jr., Samuel H. Wally, jr., Stephen L. White, Artemus Hale, Horace Collamore, Nathanial Hinckley, Loring Moody, all members of the House and distinguished members of the whig and democratic parties, each being marked men in business, law and politics. All of the above are now dead except Geo. S. Boutwell and myself. I knew them all, and if I had space could give you personal reminiscences of each. Several members of the Legislature, well known democrats, had such strong feelings against corporations and railroads, they would not go to Albany. They believed like Martin Van Buren "that of all evils, incorporated companies were the most injurious to the interests of the people." The city of Albany was reached a little before night and a great reception was extended by the city authorities and the Legislative Assembly. Wm. H. Seward was Governor at the time I think; he was present, also ex-Vice-President Van Buren, Silas Wright, Wm. Marcy and many other eminent men of the State. The city was over run with visitors and an abundance of food and exhilerating drinks were provided. So great was the crowd that decent sleeping accommodations were not to be had, three sleeping in one bed part of the night and then turning out and giving others a chance to rest in the same bed. The next day, after seeing the capitol and other objects of interest, the company returned to Boston, many stopping off on the way to go to their homes. I returned to my humble home on the morning of the third day, my father and mother being then alive, long since resting in peace. What changes since that time! Then only a few railroads known, electric roads not dreamed of; now sixty thousand miles in this country alone of iron roads, running to our doors and reaching to far off cities and suburban villages. The iron horse tramps on, conquering distance with the breath of steam, to strengthen his tireless muscles, while electric currents controlled by mind, masters matter as human will directs.

If you wish to meet a gentleman, affable, social, intelligent, and of impressive personality, go up to the State House, take a chair by the side of C. B. Tillinghast, the state librarian, and converse with him for half an hour. You will remember the interview with pleasure. If on politics, party lines, historic events, biography, legislation, or the views of eminent men who have given character to the state and nation, his mind is clear, his genial and descriptive points fresh and fascinating. While the alcoves of the library are stored with the fruits of intellect, his facile tongue will illustrate and indicate their value to the inquiring student.

Another gentleman who has recently made his mark upon the political and legal front of Massachusetts, can be found at the State House — Herbert Parker, Attorney-General. He is open and frank in his intercourse with callers. You feel at home in his presence, assured that his election was wise and that his legal ability will guard the welfare of the State.

What a variety of tangled corridors, rooms and by-ways does the extended State House present. A good pattern for a "crazy quilt," where hundreds of thousands have been spent without getting comfort, convenience or beauty. The old has been swallowed up by the new, while the new is without form or wisdom. When will states and communities learn economy, simplicity and harmony in construction, with a view of present wants and future necessities? When will committees and architects become au fait?

A first class school committee board: Mr. Currier, Mr. Blaisdell, Mr. Swett. What town in the state could furnish a more competent and efficient board—so say we all.

W. H. S. Notes.

The class of 1904 held their regular monthly class meeting last Tuesday evening at the residence of Philip Ordway. The president, Hattie Cole, called the meeting to order at 7.30. The secretary's report was read and accepted and the roll was called. Almira Dickson was voted a member of the class. After the adjournment of the business meeting games and a general good time followed.

The last class meeting of the class of 1903 was held at the home of Harper Blaisdell last Saturday evening. The meeting was called to order by Elizabeth Kendall, the president, at 7.45. As Marie Kreutz, the secretary, was absent, Grace Herrick was chosen secretary pro tem. Harold Bridges was elected a member of the class and several matters were discussed before the business meeting adjourned. The rest of the evening was spent in playing games.

A most interesting debate was held last Monday by the junior English class at the small town hall. "Resolved: that intercollegiate contests should be abolished" was the question for debate. The principal disputants on the affirmative were Elizabeth Abbott and Harold Bridges; on the negative, Nellie Donovan and Amos Mills; chairman, Amy E. White; judges, Sadie Fisher, Ralph Herrick and Harold V. Hovey. After the judges retired the question was thrown open to the house and Roy Pratt and Webster Wyman spoke. The decision was given to the affirmative by the judges.

The championship polo game which decided whether the class of 1902 or the class of 1903 would win the silver cup this year, was played Feb. 5 on Wedge Pond and was won by the senior class. Score, 4-0. The players were:

1902		1903
Gage	rush	Cushman
Currier	rush	Guernsey
Nash	centre	Mills
Fults	guard	Wyman-Walling
O'Neil	goal	Hovey

The goals for the class of 1902 were made by Currier 2, Nash 2. Time, 20-minute halves. Referee, Ernest Collins.

A debate will be held next Monday at the High school building by the Junior class. Subject, "Resolved: that full and unrestricted suffrage should be given to the women." Those on the affirmative are Marie Kreutz, Bessie Kelley, Emma Punchard; rebuttal, Agnes O'Leary; on the negative, Maxwell Ferguson, Sydney Blanchard, Webster Wyman; rebuttal, William Little; chairman, Arthur Holcombe.

A Fireman's Close Call

"I stuck to my engine, although every joint ached and every nerve was racked with pain," writes C. W. Bellamy, a locomotive fireman, of Burlington, Iowa., "I was weak and pale, without any appetite and all run down. As I was about to give up, I got a bottle of Electric Bitters and, after taking it, I felt as well as I ever did in my life." Weak, sickly, run down people always gain new life, strength and vigor from their use. Try them. Satisfaction guaranteed by Grover's drug store. Price 50 cents.

Gadfly's Buzz Over the Town Reports.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

From my comfortable conservatory (as it is a little out of season) allow your old friend "Gadfly" to harmlessly "buzz" a little over the reports of the various town officers.

The book is well printed and indexed. One improvement in the index is in separating the reports of town officers and committees from the Auditor's financial report of the various departments.

The Selectmen's report is full of suggestions of town expansion and the need of more money. We want more lights, a new town stable, new system of surface drainage for the west side, a new engine house on a new lot, a new Bacon street bridge, etc, etc. The only indication of conservatism in the report is the decisions the board have made during the year not to lay out or accept new streets unless they are properly built and it it is plainly of advantage to the town to accept them. In spite of a seeming desire to lead the town into new schemes of street and drainage development, the Selectmen seem to have run their heads into the sand in regard to finishing Main street next to the mill pond. Notwithstanding a town loan of $3000 has been authorized, $1000 in addition is to be given the town by the County when the street is completely finished, and the Selectmen were given full power at the last annual town meeting to proceed with the work. The subject of completing Main street is not even mentioned in their report. Of course something must drag. We cannot take all the new schemes into the town band wagon and carry them along triumphantly. We must let some of the old work drag on behind, therefore let Main street drag,it is only ten or twelve years old anyway.

We note that the proposed street across the pond has received its quietus so far as the Selectmen are concerned, since the report was printed. The Selectmen's report is a good one on the whole, as it is both fat and lean, both radical and conservative. We are sorry to see that the Selectmen, and all the departments in fact, need so much for legal guidance. $1100 for legal advice to January 1st, on top of large payments for costs and cash paid in settlement of contested cases, does not look as though the town got much return from its law department. It never cost the town so much before to obtain justice, but everything "has riz" lately and why not law? The law department is subordinate to the Selectmen and they work well together it seems.

The Town Clerk's report is very complete and well written. Nothing is to be desired so much in town government as full, complete records, and Winchester is getting them at present. Our Town Clerk can "shove" a pen pretty well.

The Supt. of Street's report is also very full; almost running over with information in fact. It could be boiled down a little by not printing a full list every year of all the harnesses, chains, shovels, etc, the town owns. It is very gratifying to note how polite the Supt. is to his foreman, Mr. Maguire, and to all town departments and "people in general," thanking them all for their kindness and consideration. This is a good thing and should be pushed along into other department reports.

The Committee on Wedge Pond Way have reported so much during the year, (as they have held meetings from time to time) that their final report seems like a "twice told tale." But for all that this committee has done a most important work in bringing to notice and improving one of the most convenient and beautiful ways in town. The final outcome of the committee's work, all done without the help of counsel, except from their own number, and notwithstanding all the law involved, is good. It is safe to say that the way will always be kept open to Wedge pond. The committee only spent one-quarter of their appropriation which is a good showing.

The report of Town Counsel is quite a brief. In fact it gives no information at all except to state what suits have been settled and the list of suits pending. We wish the town could be counseled how to settle the suits brought against it by arbitration. The town almost always gets "licked" in its disputes with its citizens, besides paying costs and counsel fees. We do not think present methods are any Improvement over the old way of "leaving it out," as lawyers do not work for the honor of serving but for fees. Many other town officers other that attorneys, serve for the pleasure of serving their fellow citizens, but lawyers prefer to serve for cash, and always get it, if there is any in the case.

The Police Department makes a good report, but recommends another patrolman, which will add to the expense of the department. The transient tramp boarder has not visited the town as freely lately as formerly. He should be given a vote of thanks as there were 716 less of him in 1901 than during the previous year. The Chief of Police is also Lock-up Keeper and Sealer of Weights and Measures. There are only a few lines in each of the latter two reports, but they take a page in the book and it is paid for by the page. These are the kind of pages to suit the printer. Why would it not be a good job for the Selectmen and Town Counsel to obtain leave of the Legislature to consolidate the offices of Lock-up Keeper and Sealer with the Police Department? Bigger jobs than this have been done in the Legislature.

The Inspector of Animals and the Inspector of Wires have very amicably squeezed together on one page in reporting their doings to the town. But few people realize how much better off the public is with these two boards inspecting all the time, than it was when no inspection was going on. We should have town inspectors of butter, cheese, eggs, potatoes, corn-beef, cabbage, etc., also inspectors of town laborers, town officers, town horses, hay, grain, etc., then we should know how to live. At present we do not know how as we are not inspected enough. Let us have more inspection.

If this little buzzing is all right and disturbs no one, Gadfly will buzz again next week if he feels like it and the STAR is willing.

GADFLY.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

Pledges amounting to more than $100 were made on Monday night for the extension of the Association movement in foreign lands. These pledges were made at the monthly committee supper,by young men, and in amounts ranging from 5 to 15 cents per week. The money will go toward the support of the work in the Philippines and Brazil. Ninety-eight dollars was paid in last year and sent through the State office for this purpose.

The monthly meeting of the Women's Auxiliary was well attended on Tuesday. A very interesting and helptul paper was read by Miss Hawes of Cambridge. Refreshments were served and a pleasant half hour enjoyed after the meeting.

The men's and boys' meetings next Sunday will both be addressed by Mr. J. W. Cawley of Stoneham. Mr. Cawley has been here once each year for several years and is always much enjoyed by all who hear him.

The fencing class in the gymnasium is a very popular feature. So many men have made application for it that restriction as to the number has been made necessary.

The senior basket ball team won their eleventh game on Saturday night from the Lawrence team at Lawrence. A return game was to have been played this week on the home floor, but it was postponed to February 27. The Boston University team will play there next Monday night. This team has the name of a strong team only having been beaten once or twice; a fine games is expected. The junior team go to Lynn to play the junior of the Lynn association this afternoon.

The monthly meeting of the board of directors will be held Monday night.

Mr. E. J. Johnson of this town will speak Saturday evening in Association Hall on "Life Among the Boers in South Africa." Mr. Johnson is thoroughly equipped to talk upon this subject having lived among them.

Political Gossip.

Since the School Committee has said in the Town Report that it is emphatically in favor of kindergarten schools, interest appears to be waning,so that at the present writing there appears to be no opposition to Dr. Blaisdell's return or as to who will fill the place of Mr Symmes. It seems somewhat singular that so much agitation should have arisen among the friends of kindergarten schools at their supposed discontinuance by the Board, when as a matter of fact the members have taken every opportunity to say that they were believers in that branch of education. Mr. C. E. Swett, for many years principal of the Grammar school is being talked of by friends for the vacant position. Mr. Swett is well qualified for this office, both from experience and ability. There are a good many people who recognize the force of the communication in the STAR two weeks ago in regard to Mr. Symmes' work on the Board, and hope to have an opportunity to vote for him at the caucus. A great many have not known of the clerical work that he has done in regard to keeping a strict watch over the money paid out. Supt. Walradt has been given the credit in the past for doing this, and now in view of the facts in the case some people are asking why Mr. Walradt has not given more time to visiting the schools instead of keeping in his office so much. An enlargement of the Board to five members by the addition of two women has not, apparently, met with favor among the voters. At the present time it is difficult to predict who will be the third man on the Board.

Since the above was put into type it is learned that Mr. John Abbott is suggested as an excellent candidate for the School Board.

Mr. Frank E. Rowe has also been suggested as a well equipped man for a position on the Board. He is a college graduate, a former school teacher and at one time principal of the Grammar School. He would give strength to the present members of the committee.

Selectman Nathan H. Taylor authorizes the STAR to emphatically state that he will not again be a candidate for the Board of Selectmen. He says that having served three years, he has done his duty, received all honors due the position, and is now willing that the distinction should be confered on some other good citizen. Selectman Taylor is, perhaps, the most popular man that has been voted for for this office in a long time, and many of his friends hope at some time to cast ballots for him for some higher position not strictly relating to town government. Mr. John Challis is being talked up considerably as a successor to Mr. Taylor, and quite a little work is being accomplished in his behalf. Mr. H. J. Winde was much surprised when he opened his STAR last Friday to learn that he was being talked of for a candidate. He has given the town three years of creditable work, and, while he has not announced the fact that a second term would be agreeable to him, yet his friends think he would stand if nominated. He lives in Cutter village. So, too, does Mr. George G. Stratton who has also been mentioned for a position. Residents of that locality think they should have representation this year.

Winchester Highlands puts forth the name of Mr. John H. Carter—a man well informed on town government. Symmes Corner having no pretentions does not offer a candidate. The dark horse, kept in hiding on the west side, is said to be Mr. Geo. S. Rice. This caused the STAR'S informant to ask, "How many Selectmen does that part of the town expect to have? There is Selectmen Bradstreet and Jones and candidate Challis, and now Mr. Rice. Better take the whole Board from there." However, as there are other good men from other parts of the town who are anxious and willing to serve, there is no reason to suppose that all the above will be nominated.

Of the present Board, all are willing to serve another term. Then there is Edwin Robinson, Alex Macdonald, F. F. Carpenter H. F. Johnson and others who are spoken of, in addition to the above.

Mr. John T. Cosgrove announces that he will be a candidate for Selectman.

Mr William Herrick is to go before the caucus as a candidate for Auditor.

It is probable that all the other officers will be returned without opposition. Indications point to a warm caucus.

The caucus takes place next week Thursday evening in the Town Hall.

Not a One-Sided School Committee.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

School and school matters seem to be in the air, and necessarily so just at this time when there is an opportunity to improve or increase the interest in what seems to be the most important work of every town and city. An Oriental writer has said, "The salvation of the world is in the breath of the school children," therefore I would like to emphasize the remark of "A Subscriber" and others in your columns who would like to see women on our School Committee. Not that women can do better work than men, but they can do work not generally acceptable to men, or that they are competent to do, but which is necessary and important to the well being of our schools, teachers and children. I refer to the housekeeping part of school administration and management, which all must agree is as much needed in our schools as in all well ordered homes. We know that our children spend at least a third of their day in the school rooms, and it is as important that the housekeeping part of the schools should be as thoroughly performed as in our own homes, and all men will agree with me, especially fathers who have good and well managed homes, that it is due to the careful and constant care of the good wife and mother that such a condition exists. Therefore, I hope that we shall not have a one-sided School Committee any longer, but one composed of both men and women, thereby making what I consider to be an ideal committee in the administration of public institutions.

(MRS.) H. FREETHY.

Roll Call and Reunion.

The annual Roll Call at the Baptist church Thursday evening was pronounced by all present to be one of the most enjoyable and successful events in the history of the church. After a social hour supper was served while selections were rendered by the Orchestral Class of the Daudelin School of Music, of Boston. The vestry was artistically decorated with streamers of pink and white crepe paper, where four tables were bountifully spread with edibles. After supper a greeting was given by Rev. Amos Harris followed by the Roll Call read by Mr. Wallace Palmer, and a brilliant address on "The Prophetic Church," by Rev. C B Crane, DD, of Cambridge, who is a very happy after dinner speaker.

To the Committee having the affair in charge is due the success of the evening. They were as follows: Mrs E C Sanderson,chairman, Mrs F A Sanborn Mrs S D Leland, Mrs C H Spaulding, Mrs H C Sanborn, and were very fortunate in securing the orchestra from the Daudelin School, whose selections reflected great credit upon the school and the instruction received there.

The reception committee was composed of the following: Rev and Mrs H E Hodge, Mr and Mrs S W Smith, Mr and Mrs A Macdonald, Mr and Mrs W J Armstrong, Mrs E H Rice, Mrs Mary Winn, Mrs R S Davis.

Mr Wheeler Got Rid of His Rheumatism.

"During the winter of 1898 I was so lame in my joints, in fact all over my body, that I could hardly hobble around, when I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. From the first application I began to get well, and was cured and have worked steadily all the year." R. WHEELER, Northwood, N. Y. For sale by Young & Brown, druggists.

"I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for a number of years and have no hesitancy in saying that it is the best remedy for coughs, colds and croup I have ever used in my family. Calumet Club Notes.

The race for first place in the home tournament of the club is rapidly narrowing down to two teams. The Lily Valley team at present holds the coveted place, but is being pushed hard by the Bucks. The Lily Valleys have only lost 2 out of 15 games, but while the Bucks have lost 4 they have rolled 21 games. The Tigers, Farmers and Kids follow the leaders with about equal games won and lost. McFarland now holds the honor place for high single with 220, and A. S. Littlefield the three string total with 573. F. S. Richardson has the best average and Dickson the high three string total with handicap. The greatest average increase over rating is being fought for by Corey and Philbrick, with the latter slightly in the lead. Kendall and Berry also have an eye on this place. MYSTIC VALLEY LEAGUE.

The Towanda Club rolled its return game with the club Tuesday evening and got two of the three games. This makes an even break between the two clubs with three games each. As is usually the case in a Calumet game a record was smashed, but this time by a Calumet man. Wilson raised the high single mark of the league to 245, he getting a double, two breaks and eight consecutive strikes, making ten out of a possible twelve. Every record except high team single has been made in a Calumet game, and Towanda imitated Medford by rolling its highest string and total of the season, getting a total of 2617. The score:

New gas lamps have been placed over the remaining billiard and pool tables and give much satisfaction. They will be installed in the bowling alley next week.

A BURNING QUESTION

At this time is: "Are you getting the best out of your coal?" If not, perhaps you are wasting Heat in the cellar which is needed elsewhere. It has been shown that a single foot of naked two-inch pipe carrying high pressure steam all the year round will condense more steam than a dollar's worth of coal will make, and the loss is in proportion for lower pressure and shorter time. Do you wish to stop this loss? If so, now is the time when it can best be done. Perhaps it will cost less than you think. At any rate it will cost you nothing to get figures.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know it.

How To Find Out.

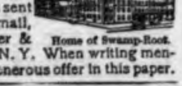

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What to Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in 50c. and $1. sizes.

You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful discovery and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail, address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper.

WORTH $300,000,000.

The President of a certain big Oil Company is said to be worth $300,000,000. A tidy bit of money and no mistake. And yet he isn't happy. In an address to a Bible class he spoke of trials and troubles of the rich and the loads they have to carry. A young lady whispered to a friend that he might wear a Benson's Porous Plaster on his back or, better still, divide the money among the members of the class. I don't know why her idea about the plaster makes me want to laugh, but it does. All the same I have seen plenty of people laugh after putting Benson's Plasters on their backs or chests, or on any other spot where there was weight, heaviness, weakness or pain. It may be the sharp stabs of neuralgia, the aches and wrenches of rheumatism; it may be colds in muscles or bones; it may be those kidney or lumbago thrusts that make you yell as at a dog bite; or it may be a strain or cramp, anything that wants quieting and comforting. Dont bother with salves, liniments, lotions, etc., or with any of the stupid and useless old style plasters. Clap on a Benson's. It relieves at once and cures quickly. It stops the pain and makes you laugh for the very ease and good feeling of it. But watch out against imitations and substitutes. All druggists, or we will prepay postage on any number ordered in the United States on receipt of 25c. each.

LESSON VII, FIRST QUARTER. INTERNATIONAL SERIES, FEB. 16.

Text of the Lesson, Acts v, 25-42. Memory Verses, 40-42—Golden Text, Matt. v, 10—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1901, by American Press Association.]

25. "Behold, the men whom ye put in prison are standing in the temple and teaching the people." This was the message which was brought to the high priest, council and senate of the children of Israel as they waited to receive the prisoners whom they had arrested the evening before. Multitudes of men and women were believing, and multitudes of sick and demon possessed people not only in Jerusalem, but also from the cities roundabout, were healed. The work was going so grandly that the high priest and Sadducees simply could not stand it and so put the apostles in prison. God, whose they were and whom they served, sent an angel by night and released them from prison and sent them to the temple to continue their ministry, and there they are found teaching, instead of in the prison under the power of the authorities. They belonged to God.

26-28. "Behold, ye have filled Jerusalem with your doctrine and intend to bring this man's blood upon us." The high priest reminds them that they had been forbidden to teach in the name of Jesus and then adds this word, unintentionally giving good testimony to their zeal, but evidently forgetting that the people had cried, "His blood be on us and on our children" (Matt. xxvii, 25).

29-32. "We ought to obey God rather than men." Thus replied Peter and again accused them to their faces of being the murderers of Jesus, whom God raised from the dead and exalted with His right hand to be a Prince and a Saviour to give repentance and forgiveness of sins even to such as they were. That it is not possible to please God and to please the world lying in the wicked one is seen in Gal. i, 10; Luke xvi, 13; Jas. iv, 4. These apostles were in conscious partnership with the Holy Spirit, who was in them, and He, the Spirit, was the speaker through their lips, even as Jesus had said, "It is not ye that speak, but the Spirit of your Father which speaketh in you" (Matt. x, 20).

33. "When they heard that, they were cut to the heart and took counsel to slay them." Not only was the blood of Jesus upon them, but they were ready to bring upon themselves the blood of the apostles also. Before they killed Jesus they desired to kill Lazarus, whom Jesus raised from the dead (John xii, 10). The truth of God when not meekly received makes manifest that "the carnal mind is enmity against God" (Rom. viii, 7).

34, 35. "Ye men of Israel, take heed to yourselves what ye intend to do as touching these men." The apostles, being sent out of the council for a little while, Gamaliel, a learned and honorable member, at whose feet Saul of Tarsus had been educated (chapter xxii, 3), thus begins to address his brethren. He seems to have had something of the spirit of Joseph and Nicodemus, who also were at one time members of the council (Mark xv, 43; John vii, 50). We do not know that he ever received Jesus as the Christ, but from the wisdom and spirit of this address and on the supposition that Saul would seek the welfare of his teacher we may hope that he did.

36, 37. "Before these days rose up Theudas, boasting himself to be somebody." He quotes two cases of deceivers who for a time had quite a following, but in each case the leaders perished, and their followers were dispersed. The mark of a deceiver is that "he boasts himself to be somebody," while a true follower of the Lord seeks to glorify God only. The antichrist shall do according to his own will and shall exalt himself and magnify himself (Dan. xi, 36), but the Lord Jesus Christ sought neither His own will nor His own glory (John vi, 38; viii, 50), and Paul, the great apostle, determined to know nothing but "Jesus Christ and Him crucified," his mottoes being "Not I, but Christ," "Not I, but the grace of God" (I Cor. ii, 2; xv, 10; Gal. ii, 20).

38. "If this counsel or this work be of men, it will come to naught." He may have remembered these words, "The Lord bringeth the counsel of the heathen to naught; He maketh the devices of the people of none effect" (Ps. xxxiii, 10; see also Isa. viii, 9, 10, for very strong words in this connection). It is a great comfort to the true believer to know that they that war against him shall be as nothing and as a thing of naught and that no weapon formed against him can prosper (Isa. xli, 12; liv, 17).

39. "If it be of God, ye cannot overthrow it, lest haply ye be found even to fight against God." It is written that "every purpose of the Lord shall be performed," and "The Lord of Hosts hath sworn, saying, Surely as I have thought, so shall it come to pass, and as I have purposed, so shall it stand," and, again, "The counsel of the Lord standeth forever, the thoughts of His heart to all generations" (Jer. li, 29; Isa. xiv, 24; Ps. xxxiii, 11).

40. "They commanded that they should not speak in the name of Jesus." With the repetition of this ungodly and rebellious command they are beaten and let go. How the devil hates that name at which every knee shall yet bow and concerning which every tongue shall yet confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father! (Phil. ii, 10, 11.) Jesus had told His disciples that they would be delivered up to councils and be scourged and brought before governors and kings for His sake (Matt. x, 17, 18).

41. "Rejoicing that they were counted worthy to suffer shame for His name." What a glorious reality is the Lord Jesus to those who can take such treatment, not only without resentment, but even joyfully! Backs scourged and bleeding, full of pain physically, but full of joy inwardly—how great is the grace of God! They were already tasting that which Paul was afterward told concerning the great things he must suffer for Christ's sake (chapter ix, 16).

42. "And daily in the temple and in every house they ceased not to teach and preach Jesus Christ." Thus they obeyed God rather than man and were ready for the next beating or imprisonment for so doing whenever God might see fit to let it come. As Peter and John said, they could not help doing it; like Jeremiah, when tempted to speak no more in His name, they had such a burning fire within them that they were weary if they did not speak; or, like Elihu, they felt that they would burst if they did not speak (Acts iv, 20; Jer. xx, 9; Job xxxii, 18-20).

A GREAT PHILANTHROPIST.

The 100th Birthday of Laura Bridgman's Teacher Celebrated.

The recent celebration in Boston of Dr. Samuel G. Howe's 100th birthday calls attention anew to the fact that Mrs. Julia Ward Howe was nearly twenty years younger than her distinguished husband. She was present on this occasion. Dr. Howe's good work was many sided, and the different sides of it were well brought out by the various speakers.

U. S. Senator Hoar told of Dr. Howe's work against slavery. Dr. Edward Everett Hale read a letter from Helen Keller, the deaf, dumb and blind girl, expressing her gratitude to Dr. Howe for showing how to teach deaf mutes. She wrote:

"If he had not taken upon himself the responsibility of Laura Bridgman's education, and with heroic patience led her out of the pit of Acheron to the possession of her human nature, should I be a sophomore in Radcliffe College to-day?"

Miss Emilie Pulsson told of Dr. Howe's 44 years' work as an educator of the blind, how he invented a way of printing books for them in half the bulk and at one fourth the cost of the previous method, and how he published the first New Testament that the blind could read. The pupils of the Perkins Institute for the blind are still urged to courage by the gallant motto that he gave them: "Obstacles are things to be overcome."

Another speaker told of the Massachusetts school for the Feeble-Minded, which Dr. Howe started, amid general ridicule of the idea that idiots could be taught anything. F. B. Sanborn told how Dr. Howe, as chairman of the State Board of Charities, advocated placing dependent children in families rather than in institutions. Dr. Howe once said, "How fine it would be if we could see 1,500 poor children placed out in the homes of the commonwealth!" He spoke as if that were hardly to be hoped for; yet to-day there are in Massachusetts poor children so placed. On all sides the ideas that he started have since been adopted.

Prof. J. Irving Manatt, formerly U. S. Minister to Greece, told of Dr. Howe's going out to Greece as a young man to fight on the side of the Greeks in their war with the Turks, and how he afterward came home and raised a shipload of relief supplies for the starving Greek women and children. A blind girl read from raised type Whittier's poem "The Hero," founded on Dr. Howe's rescue of a wounded Greek:

"O for a knight like Bayard,
Without reproach or fear,
My light glove on his casque of steel,
My love-knot on his spear!"

Dr. Howe was in sympathy also with his wife's work for woman suffrage, a liberality rare in those early days. His daughter, Mrs. Laura E. Richards, in her book entitled "When I was Your Age," after describing her father's many-sided beneficience, says:

"Most men, absorbed in such high works as these, would have found scant leisure for family life and communion, but no finger-ache of our father's smallest child ever escaped his loving care, no childish thought or wish ever failed to win his sympathy. We who had this high privilege of being his children love to think of him as the brave soldier, the wise physician, the great philanthropist; but dearest of all is the thought of him as our loving and tender father."

The Ignorant Vote.

The objection to equal suffrage that has the most weight with thoughtful men and women is the fear of increasing the ignorant vote. The evils resulting from the ballot in the hands of great numbers of ignorant men are so clear that it is no wonder if many hesitate to add to these unenlightened male voters a great number of unenlightened women. "The ignorant foreign vote is a millstone around our necks now. What possible good can you expect from doubling it?" they ask.

Whatever may be the dangers from the ignorant foreign vote, these dangers would be lessened, not increased by equal suffrage. Men are by nature more adventurous, more enterprising and more "foot-loose" than women. Hence, a great many more foreign men than foreign women emigrate to the United States. Equal suffrage would increase the proportion of native-born voters, even if all the foreign women voted.

During the last three years our total immigration numbered 1,149,118, of which only 383,975 were women, or about one third.

This year the names of 5,037 women have been added to the list of new voters in Boston. These, added to the names already on the list, make the total registration of women 15,545. For years the number of women voters in Boston has been steadily growing. When school suffrage was first granted, in 1879, only 934 women voted, and for the first seven years the average was only 940. Since then there has been a large increase of interest. In 1898, 5,201 women voted; 1899, 7,090; in 1900, 9,542; and this year there are 15,545 on the register.

Something That Will Do You Good.

We know of no way in which we can be of more service to our readers than to tell them of something that will be of real good to them. For this reason we want to acquaint them with what we consider one of the very best remedies on the market for coughs, colds and that alarming complaint, croup. We refer to Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. We have used it with such good results in our family so long that it has become a household necessity. By its prompt use we haven't any doubt but that it has time and again prevented croup. The testimony is given upon our own experiences and we suggest that our readers, especially those who have small children, always keep it in their homes as a safeguard against croup. Known to Many Winchester People.

Mr. John Johnson, ex-President of the First National Bank, was 88 years old last Wednesday, Feb. 12, the same month and day on which the lamented Lincoln would have been 93 had he lived to see it. He has lived a long, busy and prosperous life, and is now enjoying the fruits of his labors in a quiet, peaceful and reasonably happy "green old age." Mr. Johnson has been prominent in Woburn's public affairs for three score years. All along his pathway he has been chosen by his fellow citizens to fill responsible official posts, and has never failed in the performance of his duties. A man of sound judgment and strict integrity, he has been a counsellor for the people and seldom led them astray. We hope he has many contented years yet to spend among his neighbors and friends here.—[Woburn Journal.

Bilious Colic.

H. Seever, a carpenter and builder of Kenton, Tenn., when suffering intensely from an attack of bilious colic, sent to a near by drug store for something to relieve him. The druggist sent him a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, three doses of which effect a permanent cure. This is the only remedy that can be depended upon in the most severe cases of colic and cholera morbus. Most druggists know this and recommend it when such a medicine is called for. For sale by Young & Brown, druggists.

Street Railway Fined.

For the first time since the law was passed requiring street railway companies to heat their cars, the local court tried a case alleging violation of the statute, and the defendant, the Old Colony Street Railway Company, has been found guilty on seven complaints. A fine of $25 was imposed in each case and the company appealed. It is understood that this is a test case, the defence having been made on law points.

The complainant was an inspector representing the Railroad Commissioners of the state. The seven counts brought against the railroad were all for running cars not properly heated. The law requires that all cars shall be heated to not less than 50 degrees nor more than 60 degrees above zero. Judge A. O. Marden of the Norfolk County District Court decided that the charge had been sustained in each case, and the imposition of a fine of $25 for each violation was followed by an appeal.

Births, Marriages and Deaths.

A bill is pending before the legislature, which looks to the preservation of vital statistics of the state. The Massachusetts Historical Genealogical Society has decided to transcribe the records of births, deaths and marriages in every city and town in the commonwealth, and it asks the state to purchase 500 copies of the complete work for distribution among libraries and similar depositories. This, it is estimated would pay for the printing. The association expects, and has good reason to believe that private orders will be sufficient to meet the expense of collecting and copying the data. Mr. Henry F. Johnson is compiling a record of the births, marriages and deaths in this town since its incorporation and no doubt he would be willing to co-operate with the Historical Society.

A Blizzard.

What a beautiful day was last Sunday. So clear and warm was it, that it seemed like one of April's balmiest days. And what a contrast was Monday when one of the severest blizzards accompanied by blinding snow set in early in the morning. In an hour and a half after the storm commenced the electric cars were only able to run spasmodically and when preceded by powerful electric snow plows. Even the steam road called into service its plows notwithstanding there was no apparent difficulty in running the trains on schedule time.

The snow was wet and heavy and at times through the day rain shared honors. The Woburn electric road was placed hors de combat for the first time this winter, because of insufficient power to propel the large cars. Supt. Brackett was on deck, but he could accomplish but little.

On the Arlington and Winchester line trips were made every few hours, the power being given up almost wholly to plows. This was a great deal better than attempting to run the usual number of cars and thereby completely tying up the whole system.

The men of the street department were out in force and they did good service, going over about all the prominent streets in town before dark, besides keeping the crossings in the centre open.

During a good part of the afternoon the electricity for lighting purposes was shut off because of crossed and displaced electric and telephone wires caused by wet snow and high wind. Before dark, however, everything was put to rights when the lights were turned on.

A telephone wire fell on to an electric light wire near the Washington street end of the Town Hall building and Policeman Dotten had to stand guard over it until the electric current was turned off. A second wire broke from its fastenings on Pleasant street, another on Bacon street, besides other parts of the town.

At some time in the past it may have snowed harder than it did between one and two o'clock, but we have no recollection of that fact. A few hours of such a downfall would have completely blocked all travel. After the beautiful weather of the past few weeks, this storm was a rude awakening to the fact that winter is still with us.

Massachusetts Town Meeting.

The decay of the Massachusetts town meetings forms the subject of an inquiry by the Springfield Republican, which finds that in these most important gatherings their is a falling off in the attendance, and they are not of the representative character they used to be. Formerly the meetings were held in the daytime, and the town meeting was an event that called for the suspension of work, general attendance and full discussion of the various questions coming up. Now the meeting is frequently held in the evening and time does not permit of thorough consideration of the business offered, while the failure of the freemen generally to turn out robs the occasion of much of its old-time spirit and inspiration. This is attributed, with much reason, to a decline in public spirit, and this in turn is accounted for by the loss of homogeneity in the average town or city population, which grows out of the heavy immigration of the past thirty years. Such towns as Wellesley and Concord maintain a town government close up to the old standard, and there we find a smaller infusion of the foreign element that is common. This unquestionably makes a difference, for the newcomers are apt to be active politically, catching at once stimulous of a freer political atmosphere, and those born to the manner are rather disposed to stand aloof from such a jostle in public affairs. Thus the business of government tends to drift into the hands of the newer element in the population. What is the remedy? Simply to let the new conditions work themselves out naturally. But that this may be done safely, there is need of the cultivation of more of the old-fashioned public spirit among our people.—[Natick Bulletin.

Burdens of Taxation.

According to its own newspapers and city officials the financial and economic condition of Malden is well nigh desperate. The Mail of that city in a recent issue says that between 1890 and 1900 Malden has made the worst showing of any city reported in the state in respect to industries old and new. The number of establishments has decreased from 205 to 242. The total capital invested has dropped from $7,600,124 to $5,906,279, the number of wage earners has been reduced from 4418 to 3082. The total wages paid have fallen from $2,115,420 to $1,520,658. The value of manufactured products has declined from $9,592,501 to $7,959,292. This looks bad for Malden. The Mail suggests that it is due to "boss rule." Commenting on this the Boston Advertiser says: "It is due, in fact, to outrageous taxation, a large part of which is due to the governor and the legislature for parks, boulevards and general extravagance, which has imposed such a burden upon real estate as to make it practically unsalable at tax values in any of the towns and cities around Boston, save Nahant, Cohasset and Milton, where wealthy men live on account of low taxes and so greatly increase the personal tax levy. If Malden is in such a bad way now, what will it be when the large taxes now paid by a few men, the Converses, Davenports and Eatons pass out of the tax levy? Mayor Dean of Malden says that only 71 buildings were erected in the city last year, not enough to house the normal increase of population. But Malden is not half so hard pressed as Beverly, Saugus, Stoneham, Melrose and Wakefield, its neighbours, who are still worse burdened by the metropolitan expeditures to which we refer."

Senator Williams Much Disturbed.

Sen. Williams, of Wayland, is much perturbed over the strenuous opposition to his bill to limit to five years the terms of office of town treasurers. When the senator was framing his bill and mournfully contemplating the terrible situation in Massachusetts, he had little thought of the perfected and organized opposition and remonstrance that is now pouring in from every corner of the state. Naturally the town treasurers, many of whom had served their respective communities long and honestly, interpreted the proposed measure as a direct reflection. Having first turned their attention to the bill itself the various town treasurers and their friends have now begun to pay their respects to the senator who introduced it. Sen. Williams is extremely sensitive on the subject.—[Practical Politics.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

As this column goes to press before the caucus has been held, the writer does not know what may happen there, but there seems to be pretty conclusive evidence that the law was not complied with by issuing the notice "at least seven days prior" as the law requires. This is a case of "what is everybody's business is nobody's business." Our caucus laws are very crude and unsatisfactory and should be amended.

The appropriations for the usual items will probably not give the meeting much trouble or take much time but the special things, of which we never had so many or such important ones in any warrant before, will bother us a great deal. There is one thing we certainly should not do and that is bury our heads in the sand in regard to things that must be done. It would seem to be better policy to finish up some of the things that have been hanging for some time, before taking on new ones, but it is well to discuss what is coming along, as it works better to have large matters discussed considerably before action is taken. It probably is a mistake to crowd so many of the special matters into one warrant however. The first thing we should do at the meeting is to pass the usual and necessary appropriations and then take up the other matters.

"Gadfly" is a misnomer for such a pleasant insect as the STAR'S correspondent, whose buzzing is bright, breezy and pleasant, with no indication at all of stinging.

As not a single voter registered at the first session of the board would indicate that Winchester is dead politically. It is certainly surprising when there are two or three hundred who might register.

R. S. V. P. in last weeks STAR hits the nail on the head when he says there has been too much unanimity in some of the town boards and in every case it can be put down to one man power. In no other way could a unanimous report be got on such an amazing proposition as was the narrowing of Highland avenue for instance. The unanimity on the school, sewer, water, health and perhaps other boards has been for the same reason. The smoothness and quietness that some citizens have desired in town affairs is not for the best interests and it would be much better to have more general discussion. Publicity is what is wanted. Even in last week's STAR the statement was made that another citizen is to succeed a certain member of the present board of Selectmen, when we elect the entire board of five members annually, and the retiring member says this citizen is to take his place. Isn't it about time the voters decided who to return and not other members of the boards? We don't want any more "slates."

It is more than ten years since the County Commissioners ordered Main street rebuilt and yet that piece at Whitney's mill is still unfinished. What is the matter? Isn't it possible for a town like this to get a board of Selectmen to handle this comparatively small job? There is no good reason why this work should not have been finished long ago.

I have it from one of the best political authorities in the Commonwealth that it is a mistake for towns where there are no party nominations for town offices to hold a caucus, that it works better to let candidates run on nomination papers alone, and do away with the expense, work and ill feeling of the caucus. Right here it should be borne in mind that the calling of our citizen's caucus is no duty of any official of the town and any citizen can call one. There is no authority in the laws for the town to go to any expense in the matter either. It has been customary for the town clerk to call this caucus but he does it and signs it as a private citizen.

From town reports and warrant; School Committee will ask for addition to High school house. Only about half a dozen years ago we expended twelve thousand dollars there—Selectmen say Bacon street bridge should be rebuilt. No doubt of it, it should have been done before this—Same board says town hall building should be kept in first class condition. Certainly it should, but it hasn't been—Town Engineer says Assessors should have a set of plans to properly perform their work. He probably mentioned it because they were too modest to—He also says stone bounds should be set throughout the town, a good suggestion. Says surface water disposal should be planned for. This should have been done before we started to build macadam streets. Superintendent of Streets says new town stable and yard is much needed. There is a crying need of it. Says repairing Walnut street bridge and rebuilding Main street were not considered when appropriation was asked for last year. Thinks department is finding out better how to handle macadam. The work shows it.—The most wonderful thing shown in the whole book is that the committee on Wedge pond way agreed. How was it ever brought about?—Fire Engineers made a good report and show that the net loss from fires last year was only fifty dollars. Is this an argument in favor of or against more equipment? Water Board says amount for construction should be increased and for maintenance decreased. Certainly items should be charged to the proper account and this has not always been done in the past.—Supt. of Water Works says while water has had a disagreeable odor it is not injurious to health. The same might be said of castor oil.—Sewer Board leaves its report to the Super. but if it told us on what basis it decides where to build the sewers that few enter, it would be important news.—School Committee knows what it wants and tells why it wants it.

Edith Braddon and a man named Steeves, who were arrested by Chief McIntosh some weeks ago for stealing jewelry and clothing from the house of W. H. Thorne to the value of about $250 were before the Court at East Cambridge Monday, when the woman was sentenced to the Woman's Prison for three years, and the man to the House of Correction for three years. They hired a room in Thorne's house, and when an opportunity offered gathered together the goods and decamped.

Food Which Does Not Nourish. How Dr. Greene's Nervura Makes Appetite and Strength.

"I can't eat a mouthful; if I did it would not do me any good." How many women are saying this to-day? But they have to work just the same whether they eat or not. They grow thin, and haggard, and nervous, and are at their wits end.

MRS. SARAH CLARK, 1879 Third Ave., New York City, says:

"I want to tell all those who have indigestion how awfully I suffered, and how perfectly I was cured by the use of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. I had indigestion so bad that I couldn't eat anything for months, it looked as though if something didn't cure me I would slowly starve. I had the most terrible dizzy spells, and such sick headaches that I couldn't lift my head. The headache made me half blind, and even with glasses on could hardly see at all. In the mornings when I woke up I would be all tired out, and my tongue would be coated all the time. The indigestion got so bad that it affected my kidneys and blood. I suffered great pain from rheumatism. My limbs would be cold all the time, and I had terrible palpitation of the heart. God only knows how I suffered, and how much I needed help! But nothing I took seemed to do me any good, until I heard of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and how it was the best medicine on earth for all stomach troubles. I guess people who say this know what they are talking about. I never can be grateful enough to Dr. Greene for the great good his Nervura has done me. I have a splendid appetite now. You ought to see me eat, and not a bit of pain after it. I want everyone to know how splendid Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is, and I give my experience for the benefit of all."

All strength comes from food. If you can't get strength that way you'll never get it. The reason Dr. Greene's Nervura builds people up is because it makes you get the benefit of your food and drives nutrition to the limits of your body by curing your nerves. One bottle will show you this is so.

Had To Conquer Or Die.

"I was just about gone," writes Mrs. Rosa Richardson, of Laurel Springs, N. C. "I had consumption so bad that the best doctors said I could not live more than a month, but I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery and was wholly cured by seven bottles and am now stout and well." It's an unrivaled life-saver in consumption, pneumonia, La Grippe and Bronchitis; infallible for coughs, colds asthma, hay fever, croup or whooping cough. Guaranteed bottles 50c and $1. Trial bottles free at Grover's drug store.

Place practice on a level with theory and protect the young child-life by rearing it amidst sanitary surroundings. One-fourth of the diseases which destroy childlife are preventable. Only four and a half per cent of the babies born annually live to the allotted three score and ten years of man's existence, largely because proper attention is not given this subject by mothers.

The standard cleanser, purifier, disinfectant and "sick-room necessity" for maintaining the desired sanitary conditions is Cabot's Sulpho-Naphthol, an article strongly endorsed by the Medical Profession, Board of Health and housekeepers all over the country. It is adapted to the busy house-wife's daily needs.

Decorating School Rooms.

The following, taken from the Natick Bulletin, is worthy of the consideration of our teachers and the public. During Mr. Suter's connection with the School committee he did a great deal in fostering interest in the decorating of school rooms with pictures and paintings that were not only leasing to the eye but were likewise instructive to the scholars. The Bulletine says:

"Within a few days the school teachers of Natick, we are informed, will make an effort to reach the public and endeavor to interest them in the matter of school decoration. This is a matter which has for a long time been under consideration both by teachers and private individuals, and frequent comments have been made that the school house walls in Natick are destitute of any decoration or ornament to please the pupils' eye and make the school surroundings more pleasant in appearance. As a matter of fact, in all the school rooms in Natick, scarcely a dozen pictures can be found which bear even the slightest pretension to being called presentable in the home now-a-days. We consider the pictures on the walls as essential a part of the furnishings as the carpet on the floor, and they form a very necessary part of our comforts and pleasure.

Ought we not then to take care that the child, at this portion of his life when he is most susceptible to the influence of the beautiful, be surrounded by means by which his life may be influenced. Town after town has taken up the school decoration movement very successfully and there are thousands of school rooms in Massachusetts today which have been rendered bright and attractive by means of pictures furnished by public generosity.

With the hope of beginning their important work in Natick, the teachers will within a short time make a public appeal to the individual parents and citizens for financial help. Even the smallest contribution would be gladly received and acknowledged, for the interest shown would be as welcome as the money received. It ought not to be difficult in Natick to help the teachers in such a way that every room in town may be furnished with at least one or two examples of real art, which will hang upon the wall as mute but potent factors in the education of the Natick boys and girls.

Smallpox in Boston.

This direful disease which prevails to quite an extent at the present time was a terror to Boston in its earlier days as a reference to events then occuring, abundantly proves, and it was stated, that no city on the continent suffered so severely from its ravages. In 1669 it prevailed extensively; again in 1678; and 1721, 844 persons died with it. Once more in 1752 it was exceedingly fatal and 545 died. Again in 1764 it appeared and 124 victims were carried off. In 1779 and again in 1792 it made alarming visitations. It is now a disease supposed to exist in some portions of the city all the year round, yet the through system of vaccination now in force keeps away its epidemical form.

Ahead of the Times.

M. C. Cook and his numerous fellowsigners are to appear again with that Greater Boston proposition. Cook is a very respectable and earnest old gentleman, who probably, if accorded his true deserts, should by this time be wearing his initials at the end as well as before his family name. But he must know by this time that the Greater Boston idea, which he conceived in the earlier years of his very useful life, is a dream as yet, and that in this, at least, he is years ahead of his time. Such petitions take too much of the precious time of the metropolitan affairs committee.

Some Future Expenditures.

The town has on hand a number of improvements that will call for large expenditures of money during the next few years. There is a new High school building needed at a cost of between $75,000 and $100,000; an engine house at an estimate of $30,000; a hose house for the west side, at from $7,000 to $10,000, and a street across the pond that will call for about $30,000—in all, close onto $200,000. To secure all these needed improvements will call for the strictest economy.

Mr. D. N. Skillings Retires from Water Board.

Only a short time ago the STAR chronicled the resignation of Mr. D. N. Skillings from the treasuryship of the Winchester Savings Bank after a long and honorable service. At that time it was reported to us on good authority that he would, at the end of the year, retire from the Water Board, of which he has been chairman since the death of Mr. James H. Dwinell. We did not give the publicity at that time to the report, hoping in the meantime that he might change his mind and still continue on the Board. His refusal to allow his name to be used at the caucus came, therefore, as a great surprise to the citizens.

In severing his long connection with the Board he does so with the sincere appreciation of the citizens for his valuable services to the town. He has given his time freely and ungrudgingly, and to his wise forthought, acting in conjunction with the late Moses A. Herrick and James F. Dwinell, is due the splendid water system of this town, with which their names will be indellibly linked for generations to come.

Mr. Skilling's withdrawal from office is a desire on his part to devote more time to his personal affairs, and give what leisure time he has to his duties on the Metropolitan Park Board of which he is a member.

Can Have the Street at Slight Expense.

The refusal of the Selectmen to recommend the laying out of a street across the pond only postpones this important question for a short time. The objection to this improvement is the expense. In his annual report of a year ago the Superintendent of Streets was responsible for the statement that he was throwing away each year about one thousand dollars' worth of dirt suitable for filling. This year he recommends that the town purchase a part of the pond and use it for a dumping place for this material. The Board of Health in its report this year recommends the collection by the town of the ashes and other refuse—an innovation that is not only wise but one that will meet with the approval of all the citizens who are subjected to a great deal of annoyance in disposing of their ashes.

In view of these recommendations and the great benefit to be derived from a street across the pond to Swanton street, why would it not be a good move on the part of the citizens to buy that portion of the pond over which the street would be laid out and use it for a dumping place, which is so much needed at the present time. In a few years there would be filling enough to make a first class street and at no cost to the town. If possible, this right of way should be secured at the annual meeting so that it will be ready for the street department this spring to deposit its waste material.

A Town Yard.

Recommendations in the Town Report are to the effect that a new location be obtained for the central fire station, that the street department have sole use of the town yard and that a suitable stable and outbuildings be erected thereon to replace the present which are worn out.

There is most serious objection to the present location as a town yard. The crushing of stone is a positive injury to all the adjoining property. When stone is being crushed the clouds of dust permeate every building within two or three hundred feet of the machine, not to speak of the noise which is most annoying. Then again the yard is unsightly, situated as it is almost under the eaves of the Town House, and adjoining one of the principal streets of the town. If this yard was used by a citizen for its present purposes it would be looked upon as a nuisance and its owner subjected to the ill feeling of his fellow citizens. This yard should be removed elsewhere and made large enough to accommodate not only the street department, but the water and sewer as well. A town yard adjoining the steam railroad is a necessity, and we trust that before anything is done in regard to building a new stable in the centre that a committee be appointed to look into the matter of acquiring a new location. This yard together with the building and land used by the water department on Vine street would realize more than money enough to secure ample territory for storage purposes.

Baptist Mission on Cross Street Under a Cloud.

Rev. D. H. Mitchell who came here two weeks ago to take charge of the Baptist Mission church (colored) on Cross street, has thrown over the whole proposition and started a new church in Waterfield Hall over the post office. He says he found things at the Cross street church in a most deplorable condition, and so stated that fact to the people when he told them a few days ago that he would not stay, but would open a new church and invited all to come with him. He said to the STAR: "I was the most surprised man you ever heard of when I found the society had no money to pay my salary and was over $40 in debt for rent and not a cent in the treasury. But I became amazed when I found the money was being paid out without any authority, no recipts being taken and no records whatever of the doings of the society kept. I asked the people how they were kept informed of what was taking place and the reply was that it was passed 'from mouth to mouth.' I asked the treasurer what he did with the money collected, and he said he took what was given him, and when requested passed it over to a certain member at his request and without receiving a receipt in return. Now, I know," continued Mr. Mitchell, "that the people in this town have been very generous in helping the Mission, and what I would like to know is what has become of this money? If I was a leader in the church, receiving but eight or nine dollars a week at my trade as a mechanic, and was able within a few years to purchase a house costing over $1000 in addition to supporting my family I would not be at all surprised if some thought it was accomplised by money belonging to the church. And I was not at all backward in saying so to the brother. It is a rotten mess at the best, the Mission being run by one man who was the boss in every particular, so I concluded to start out fresh, and have affairs conducted as they should be. Nearly every member of the Mission has agreed to come to my new church, so that everything looks quite encouraging. When I told the members of the Mission what I proposed to do, this brother who had been so industriously running affairs, said he 'proposed to stay by the old church until the roof and walls fell in even if he went into the cellar amid the ruins,' and then I replied that even the devil wouldn't help him extricate himself from his predicament."

Rev. Mr. Mitchell says that hereafter it is proposed to run the Mission as an auxiliary to the First Baptist church, and on lines of benefit to the colored people of Winchester. He is an exceedingly bright man, who comes here from Philadelphia where he had been settled over a church. He is full of business and means business, and will not tolerate any lax methods in the conduct of the affairs of the Mission. He extends an earnest invitation to members of other churches to visit the Mission which will hold services Sundays at 10.30 a m and 7 p m.

Asked what he thought in regard to the future of the Cross street Mission, Mr. Mitchell said undoubtedly it would be closed as all the prominent and best members had followed him to the new home.

Mrs. Helen DeCamp.

Mrs. Helen DeCamp, mother to Mrs. S. D. Leland, of this town, passed away at Worcester last Sunday. The cause of her death was bronchitis, the result of grippe.

Mrs. De Camp was one of the best known women in the city, having been prominently identified with many of the religious and philanthropic interests of the place for many years. She was a woman of rare executive ability and genial, sunny temperament, and was peculiarly well fitted to fill positions of influence and to be a leader. She had been a member of the First Baptist Church for 20 years and the beloved teacher and friend of a large class of young women for as many years. To few women is it given to minister in so many ways to the suffering and distressed.

As the Hon. A. S. Roe in a tribute said, "Flowers in profusion were heaped upon the casket of our friend, and the words of the minister were expressive, but away beyond all visible tokens of regard are the good words which came from hundreds as to the good she has done and how we shall miss her."

Funeral services held Tuesday, Rev. Henry E. Hodge of this town officiating in the absence of her pastor, who had gone to Detroit, Mich.

Public School Teachers' Meeting.

The third meeting for the year of all the teachers of the public schools below the High school grade took place last Thursday afternoon at the High school building. All the teachers were present, except two who were excused from illness. After the reports of the several supervising principals was heard and some informal talk was had on the subject of corporal punishment, the meeting was open for papers or talks from the seven teachers who are new to our town and to our schools. Informal remarks were made by Miss Gertrude Jameson of the Wadleigh school who had taught in Weymouth and elsewhere; Miss Sue W. Corbett of the Gifford school who had taught at Natick and Miss Gertrude M. Kendall of the Gifford school. These remarks mostly concerned detailed matters of school discipline and were heard with great interest and stimulated much lively discussion. The meeting was led by Dr. Blaisdell assisted by Professor Currier and Supt. Walradt, all of whom took an active part in the discussions.

A Fireman's Close Call.

"I stuck to my engine, although every joint ached and every nerve was racked with pain," writes C. W. Bellamy, a locomotive fireman, of Burlington, Iowa, "I was weak and pale, without any appetite and all run down. As I was about to give up, I got a bottle of Electric Bitters and, after taking it, I felt as well as I ever did in my life." Weak, sickly, run down people always gain new life, strength and vigor from their use. Try them. Satisfaction guaranteed by Grover's drug store. Price 50 cents.

Collector A. C. Bell has in his possession a Stoneham tax bill bearing the date of 1819, and made out to Capt. John Symmes. The bill is very unique in its make up and quite a curiosity. Capt. Symmes was called upon to pay a tax of 12 cents to the State, 61 cents to the minister, $1.90 to the town and county and 47 cents presumably for highways, although it is not specified on the bill. The total tax was $3.10. Contrast this with the tax of the prtsent day, where the rate is five times that amount on a single thousand dollars. But, then, who would care to have those old time conditions of living prevailing now.

Rev. George H. Gutterson of the American Missionary Association gave a fine description of what that society is doing among the Negroes of the South, the American Highlanders and the Indians and Chinese in the United States and the mission work of Porto Rico, at the Congregational church. There are 750 missionaries and teachers employed by this board. His discourse was very interesting as he told of the good that had been done among the various nationalities and of his visit to the Dakota Indians.—[Melrose Journal.

The Brown Tail and Gypsy moths have been found on trees on Church street near Wildwood. It is well to state, that these pests if not checked will cause irreparable damage to trees of almost all kinds. Their nests can be plainly seen and removed with but little trouble. No doubt there are other places in town where the moth has gained a foot-hold. Prompt action should be taken by the citizens in looking after their trees. Gen. Lawrence of Medford has had men employed on his estate hunting the moths and since November have destroyed 17,000 nests.

Superintendent of Streets H. A. Spates has returned from a three weeks' trip South.

The police are after a gang of hoodlums who are beginning to infest the centre of the town and steal everything within their reach. They obstruct the sidewalks and scatter like the wind at the approach of an officer. Some time Sunday evening they stole a candy and gum case from in front of a store in the centre. These boys it is said, come from the neighborhood of Cutter's village, and unless they are extremely careful will find themselves in the lockup, as the police are determined to make the boys behave themselves and prevent them from parading the streets and loafing about the corners.

Many Winchester lambs bought the "gold brick" of the "Cuban" who had a brother at school in Cambridge, and got boxes of the meanest cigars ever made in Boston. But aren't the Winchesterites an innocent set of people?—[Woburn Journal.

There has been a sly fellow "doing" several Winchester houses by representing himself as an electric light inspector showing a bogus badge, and then after getting inside the house, stealing what ever he could take. Naturally some guardians of the households are rather timid. This led recently to a very vigorous expression of opinion on the part of a local expressman. He was rapping on the back door, rapping and raping. Finally the curtain was anxiously pushed aside from an adjoining window, and a frightened voice inquired. "Who is it?" "Great Scott, let me in!" shouted the expressman. I have been an hour and a half trying to deliver bundles to only two Winchester houses. It is harder to get into a Winchester house now than it is to get into Heaven."—[Journal.

There is much enthusiasm manifested in the proposed high school interscholastic canoe paddling and swimming meet that has been urged by members of the Winchester Boat Club, and for which provision has been made locally. The Medford boys are ready to carry out the scheme, and it is expected that Newton, Dedham, Auburndale and other places will fall into line, so that the first race of the series may take place on Mystic lake June 17.—[Ed. As near as we can find out, all this enthusiasm over the matter is in the newspapers. At any rate the boys of our own high school don't seem to know anything about it.

A bill has been introduced into the Legislature which, if passed, will allow Boards of Health to exercise some common sense in the matter of compulsory vaccination. Marcus C. Cook has again filed his petition to provide for a greater Boston by permitting any city or town adjoining Boston by land or bridge to become annexed by concurrent vote. This would permit the annexation of Everett, leaving Winchester and other towns and cities out; but nobody expects to see Mr. Cook's bill more successful this year than in other years, despite this entering wedge for a greater Boston.

In 1850 Winchester was established as a separate municipality. The large part of the territory was set off from Woburn, but some of the territory included within the limits of the new town belonged to West Cambridge, now Arlington, and Medford. The residents of each of the towns at that time naturally protested against loss of territory and population. The result is that Winchester is one of Boston's garden spots.

It is so much the rule that newspapers and newspaper men get more kicks than compliments, that when a good word is said for them it deserves the appreciation of being quoted. Rev. Dr. Madison C. Peters of Brooklyn in his farewell sermon a few days ago said:

The most influential factor in our American life is the newspaper. The newspaper reaches everybody, and it can be truthfully said of the newspapers that they are daily preaching sobriety, temperance and honesty in every department of life. My parting prayer is that heaven's benediction may rest upon the newspaper men, who, with the exception of our teachers, are the hardest worked and poorest paid people in America.

The committee voted that the engine house, town stable and yard, and the new high schoolhouse matters be left to special committees to be appointed at the town meeting to investigate and report upon. All matters have now been considered and all but a very few passed upon, and the committee hopes to finish its labors next Tuesday evening.

Miss Barker's Concert.

Miss Kate Atherton Barker, who has recently come to live in Winchester, gave a concert last Tuesday evening in Lyceum Hall. Miss Barker is a violinist and a pupil of Mr. C. N. Allen of Boston. A great deal of interest had been excited in the young lady's first appearance here; the hall was well filled by an audience brilliant in evening dress; one was met at the door by daintily clad young women—a veritable rosebud garden of girls—who acted as ushers. All in all the occasion was of that friendly and intimate sort where the grumpy and critical critic is not wanted.

Miss Barker was assisted by her teacher, Mr. Allen, Miss Greta Masson, soprano, Mr. M. M. Emery, pianist. She played the introduction and the slow movement from Vieuxtemps' concerto No. 4; two short pieces by Godard, "Adoration" by Borowski, a Slavonic Dance by Dvorak and a cradle song by Mr. Allen, besides an encore. With Mr. Allen she played two movements from a Bach concerto for two violins and piano, and six little duets by Godard. Miss Masson sang songs by A. Bungert, Carl Loewe and Ries, as well as a more showy affair in answer to a recall. Besides the accompaniments Mr. Emery played a Chopin nocturne, a gavotte of his own composition, and being recalled, a familiar piece by Thomé.

Miss Barker is young and of very pleasing appearance. Her playing shows the careful training, honest musicianship and correct and solid technique to be expected from one who has studied so long under such a master as Mr. Allen. She has strength and freedom in bowing, a good broad tone, and in Borowski's "Adoration" especially, showed commendable warmth and vigor. In short she plays well—very well—and has promise of a successful career. Miss Masson's rich and beautiful voice is known to our townspeople. She and Miss Barker were both very warmly received and applauded.

Though we have formally renounced, for this occasion, the role of critic, we feel bound, in the interest of our local concert goers to say: first that no concert should be given with such a piano as that in this hall. A competent pianist was on this occasion reduced to ineffectiveness, if not to something worse, by its worn-out qualities. And next, the management delayed beginning until more than a quarter of an hour after the advertised time, and some time after people had ceased coming. This is the unpardonable sin in concert goers.

Why?

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

A few years ago I introduced a bill into our legislature to give towns the right to appropriate money at their annual town meetings to celebrate the Fourth of July. The hearing was largely attended and the bill became a law, the vote being unanimous. My idea and of those who spoke at the hearing was to have an annual celebration in all cities and towns similar to Memorial day, that is an appropriate and general recognition of the national holiday. Some three weeks ago I wrote to our Selectmen requesting that an article be inserted in the warrant for the coming town meeting and asked that if they declined to put it in I might be so informed in order that the necessary action might be taken by petition to get it in. The board declined to take any action until just before closing the warrant Monday night and then threw it out. Let me say right here that the board has put articles into this warrant at the single request of some citizens and refused just as appropriate articles from others. Now if the board had been willing to put in this 4th of July article the meeting would undoubtedly have voted the same amount it does for Memorial day and officially celebrated the day, and it was intended to ask Congressman McCall to deliver the oration. Why the board should consider an article to see if the town would vote to officially celebrate the national holiday an improper one is amazing and must give people the idea that patriotism is at a pretty low ebb in Winchester.

Baptist Church Notes.

Our deepest sympathy goes out to Mrs. S. D. Leland in the sad loss of her mother, Mrs. DeCamp of Worcester, who died suddenly in that city on Sunday last. Hers was an exceptionally strong, noble and stately Christian character. She exemplified and loved the heroic in life. She was always helping somebody. The funeral service was held on Tuesday. In the absence of her pastor, our pastor officiated.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Observations.

WILLIAM MCKINLEY.

Tearful eyes and sad hearts symbolized a nation's grief when the murderous tide of death bore away from life's presence the mortal remains of Wm. McKinley. He, so honored and loved for his kind heart and gentle nature. In life his amiable ways so potent for influence, so captivating to control — yet void of offensive courage when the light of opposition reflected on his path, he shrunk from advance, and to conciliate, yielded his convictions. Calm in peace, exultant in victory, timid in repulse. So sincere in his belief, others would concede to his fair hopes and cheerful advice. Senators respected his honest aims and gave them trial; Representatives spoke kindly of his mental and official errors and turned aside to leave his wishes executed.

All this in life with pledges around the funeral bier to fulfill to the end his policy and solemnly remember his dying advice. But when the earth closed over his grave all was forgotten, strife lifted its head where peace reigned before. Soft words no longer turned away wrath. A new flame was kindled with fierce words and divided councils. How soon has the oil which President McKinley poured upon the republican shrine been turned, to undermine its foundation. The influence he exercised at the close of his life has been ignored and cast aside as an unwished heritage, a budget filled with obsolete promises and useless results. His complacent ways and unassuming manners, a shadow of the past, no element of statesmanship, only to please and pacify conservative indolence. The republican party, so firmly anchored to his hold, have now drifted away, and sail in other channels. President Roosevelt, so eager to follow the line laid down by his predecessor, has departed and is hewing out venturesome paths, the party, floundering in the underbrush of new conquest. The ghost of departed wisdom and propriety is stalking through the land.

Foreign complications, insular obligations, reciprocity, custom regulations, Cuban rights and demands, with the great and consuming elephant, war, roaming in the far-off islands of the Pacific on the nation's hands — costing twenty millions, and untold expense of treasure and precious lives, to be controlled and diciplined to American rule.

Although I have written somewhat, above, of the excellent and prudent character of President McKinley, it cannot be said he was a great man, or will he go down in history as one of our great presidents. His nomination was almost accidental, his election the providence of God. He was of fair ability at the bar. The nucleus of his success took root upon the field of battle, where braver and greater men gave their lives, while he lived to become a ruler over the nation they died to save. President McKinley was not lion-hearted like Jackson, of obdurate will; not cunning, like Van Buren, whose surroundings magnified his greatness; not weak, like Wm. H. Harrison, an ornamental figure protected with the panoply of an able cabinet; not a turgid party bound leader, a candidate of convenience, like Polk; not a stuffed moss back chimera, loving the south and hugging the north, like Buchanan; not a small politician, like Pierce, wearing the cast-off coat of Isaac Hill; not like Lincoln, wise, discreet, large hearted, adored by his party, praised by all men for his goodness and greatness, and whose memory will grow brighter and brighter until the perfect day. Nor was he vain and self seeking, like Johnson, for personal ends, fretful to his party who lifted him up; not serene and observing in government, with strength of mind and tenacity of purpose in war, like Grant; not a political leader, like Garfield, able to mould and unfold republican principles with the judgment of a statesman; not like Hayes, a willing representative of a great State—clay in the hands of a returning board — shaking dice in Louisiana to checkmate Tilden; not like Cleveland, robust in will, with courage to defy a storm of warring elements.

Neither was he like the second Harrison, skillfully poised to advance or retreat, a scholar of clear thought and dignified address, to pilot his party through danger or success; not like Clay, with polished mein, an orator born with an intellect studded with gems of thought, a voice of melody, to sweeten personal charms, a statesman of misfortune; not like Benton, lordly in authority, imperious in manners, with a cloak on his shoulders beneath which the memory of Andrew Jackson, and the interests of Missouri were shielded and upheld with perpetual incense; not like Webster, colossus, towering with rugged aspect like the mountains of his home state, solid, bold, captivating with thought and language, an orator and statesman, whose party with cruel hands mutilated his political brow; not like Blaine, schooled in the art of political warfare, fresh with the showers of rhetoric, intensified with the magic and consummate influence of a great mind to mould and vitalize his party — the victim of three R's that stalked through the land to falsify his record.

To summarize, Wm. McKinley was a good man, true friend, devoted husband, fortunate representative, popular president. Without eminent ability, his party embraced him, to win. He called around himself able advisors, that gave him breath to meet trials, and hold steady the helm of state. If, like Lincoln, he had had the weight of the civil war upon his hands, vacillation and dismay would have killed him and destroyed the union.

John Wallace Adams.

Born February 15, 1815, at Portland, Maine, and while yet an infant his parents moved to Saco, where he spent his boyhood. When he reached the age of twenty-one he went to Lowell, where he engaged in the stove and tin ware business. In 1837 he married Miss Mary O. Scarlett, and remained in business in Lowell until 1852, when he came to Melrose and opened, on Essex street, opposite the city hall, the first stove and tin ware store in Melrose.

In 1855 he buried his wife and in 1856 he married, for his second wife, Miss Nancy J. Raymond, a teacher of Lowell. He continued a very successful business in Melrose until 1860, when he sold out to J. C. Howes, who afterwards became his son-in-law. He soon removed to Winchester and engaged in the same business for several years. About sixteen years ago he retired from active business on account of ill health, and returned to Melrose, making his home, with his son-in-law, J. C. Howes. Here he has lived a quiet, retired life, enjoying the society of his wife and daughter, until two years ago, when the former was called away, and he had only her memory to cheer him in these later days.

Such is the brief life history of one of our old citizens, who last Sunday morning passed quitely out of the earthly into the heavenly home. Eighty seven years covers much in a life's history, and even fifty years which practically he spent in touch with Melrose, were filled with many friendships and many separations. Few of the old friends, who in the early days of Melrose mingled with him in the social, business and church life of the town (for he was an attendant at the Congregational church), remained to talk over the old times and be happy over the "has beens" of life, and so he was ready to lay the burden down.

We, who are left and remember him through all these years, from the days of '52 when he started life anew in Melrose, down to the present, remember with pleasure his quiet, unobtrusive manner, his pleasant smile and word, his shrinking from public life, finding delight in the joys of home and friends; remember him always as that best type of manhood, a good man, whom it was always good to meet and to speak with. His daughter, Mrs. May, who has resided in California for twenty-six years, and has not been home for fifteen years, came home for the Christmas holidays and has been here ever since.

So his last days were blest with her companionship, and among his words as he was quietly passing on, was the reiteration "I have my four daughters with me," and so, blest with their help and comfort, he went without shrinking down to the river's brink and was borne away in peace and exceeding great joy. He leaves four daughters to hold in the gallery of their hearts the picture of a good and true man and a loving father. They are: Mrs J. C Howes of Melrose, Mrs. Fred May of Santa Cruz., Cal., Mrs. C. F. Gage of Winchester, and Mrs. S. O. Eldridge of Melrose.

The funeral services of a private nature, were held at the late home on Tuesday afternoon, Dr. Symmss officiating in his usual tender manner. The interment was in the family lot at Winchester.—[Melrose Free Press.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I was much interested in your "Political Gossip" last week. Candidates for the office of Selectmen should surely be popular men and capable of filling their position.

The "west side" does not want to be represented by "dark horses."

WEST SIDE.

Citizens Caucus.

A citizens caucus for the nomination of town officers for the ensuing year was held in the Town Hall last evening. About 300 voters were in attendance, and everything considered it was a very quiet affair. After Mr. Geo. H. Carter had read the call for the meeting, Mr. Arthur H. Russell was elected chairman and Mr. George Chandler Coit secretary. Previous to taking up the list of nominations for the several offices, the understanding was reached that where there was to be no contest those offices be taken up first and disposed of. Therefore unanimous nominations occurred in all instances excepting for one member of the School Board and the five Selectmen, which were decided by ballot.

The result of the ballot for a member of the School Board for one year (F. F. Carpenter being unanimously nominated for the 3-year term) was as follows: A. F. Blaisdell had 211 votes, F. Philbrick 5 and C. E. Swett 2.

The result of the vote for Selectmen was: J. J. Fitzgerald 223, E. F. Jones 222, C. W. Bradstreet 231, John Challis 215, J. P. Boutwell 151, J. H. Carter 102, Edwin Robinson 69, J. T. Cosgrove 7. The first five were declared to be the nominees of the caucus.

A Topographic Map of the Boston Region.

The United States Geological Survey has recently issued a reprint of the two topographic maps embracing the region of Boston and vicinity. They are known as the Boston and Boston Bay sheets, and are now available. The maps are on a scale of one mile to the inch, and include the surburban districts as far west as Waltham, north to Stoneham and Woburn, south to Hyde Park, and east to Nantasket and Marblehead Neck. They show in great detail the usual features of cities, towns, road, and streams, and in addition the features of relief such as the slopes of hills and valleys and the elevations above sea level of all parts of the section. They are parts of the topographic map of the state of Massachusetts and may be had at five cents each on application to the Director of the U. S. Geological Survey, Washington.

The Middlesex county republican committee has organized for 1902, as follows: President, James Pierce, of Malden; secretary, Henry W. Pitman, of Somerville; treasurer, Arthur G. Pollard of Lowell.

Barnum's Monkeys

"All well—all happy—lots of fun". That is the regular report from the monkey cage of Barnum's Circus ever since the keepers began dosing the monkeys with Scott's Emulsion. Consumption was carrying off two thirds of them every year and the circus had to buy new ones.

One day a keeper accidentally broke a bottle of Scott Emulsion near the monkey cage and the monkeys eagerly lapped it up from the floor This suggested the idea that it might do them good. Since then the monkeys have received regular doses and the keepers report very few deaths from consumption. Of course it's cheaper to buy Scott's Emulsion than new monkeys—and that suits the circus men.

Consumption in monkeys and in man is the same disease. If you have it or are threatened with it can you take the hint?

(Incorporated, $10,000,000.00)

Guarantees the payment of

5% Interest Per Annum in Gold Coin, Payable Quarterly, on the

BONDS OF THE

West Virginia Coal, Gas, Oil & Lumber Co.

A Corporation formed for the purpose of operating Coal Mines and working up the vast forest of Virginia timber which is now standing on the 24,000 acres of land controlled by this Company located in Kanawha and Clay Counties, W. Virginia, and various other objects, which have been thoroughly outlined and explained in their prospectus.

These securities, which are a 5 per cent. twenty year gold coupon bond, will afford those investors who wish a safe, conservative and an immediate interest bearing security an excellent opportunity to make a first class investment. The terms under which these bonds are offered will net the holders an immediate 6 per cent on the investment, to say nothing of the bonus of common stock which has been offered, and which we are confident will prove to be in a very short time worth more alone than the price asked for the bonds.

The property owned and controlled by the Company is one which is in no sense of the word a gamble or a speculation, and is not a mere prospect on which they ask you to furnish the money in order to find out whether they have got anything below the surface or not, but, on the other hand, they have three coal veins which will aggregate 15 feet 11 inches in thickness, and millions of feet of lumber right in sight, which is the actual commercial product, and all that is necessary is to put a force of men at work in order to get the goods on the market and the actual immediate returns.

They have planned, in addition to the development of their Coal and Lumber properties, the laying out and building of as large a city as possible on their town site, the erection of a Mammoth Furniture Factory, the completion of their arrangements for retail Coal Agencies, and numerous other objects which will be explained in the prospectus.

The Company is officered and controlled by Boston and New York business men, whose names alone are a sufficient guarantee that the Company's financial and business affairs will be conducted on absolutely sound and safe business principles. These names will be given you in the prospectus of the Company, and we know upon your thorough investigation you will be fully convinced that this is a bona fide business proposition worthy of your immediate attention.

Another striking feature of the Company's business methods is a proposed excursion of business men, bond and stock holders, which they are at this time organizing. They intend in the early spring to take down a train load of those who are interested and desire to go, free of charge, so that they may see for themselves the broad expanse of undeveloped possibilities, which it is next to impossible for us to explain through the medium of prospectuses, advertising, etc.

The capitalization of the Company is a very small one, $500,000 in common stock and $250,000 in bonds, and if you are desirous of investigating this in time to secure a portion of these securities, it will be necessary for you to see us or write us at once, as we are confident that the securities will only be offered to the general public for a very short time.

It is our business to study conditions existing or possible in the various corporations that we represent as fiscal agents, and we have no hesitancy in recommending to our customers the West Virginia Coal, Gas, Oil and Lumber Company Bonds. Our advice is to buy them immediately.

This advertisement is written to you, and we hope you will thoroughly investigate the same immediately, in order to satisfy yourself that we are either right or wrong.

A BURNING QUESTION

At this time is: "Are you getting the best out of your coal?" If not, perhaps you are wasting Heat in the cellar which is needed elsewhere. It has been shown that a single foot of naked two-inch pipe carrying high pressure steam all the year round will condense more steam than a dollar's worth of coal will make, and the loss is in proportion for lower pressure and shorter time. Do you wish to stop this loss? If so, now is the time when it can best be done. Perhaps it will cost less than you think. At any rate it will cost you nothing to get figures.

ONCE IS ENOUGH TO SEE

Gustave Dore's portrait of Dante is worth seeing—once. But once is enough. Some such look you notice on the faces of those who have suffered, and still suffer, much physical pain; people subject to rheumatism, gout, neuralgia, periodic headache, lumbago, or pain from some old lesion. This pain habit puts its marks on them, as the custom of handling ropes crooks a sailor's fingers; or as too much riding of a bicycle stamps a worried expression on certain faces. No wonder people said of the Italian poet as he passed along, "There goes

THE MAN WHO NEVER LAUGHS."

The complaints above named all yield to the action of Benson's Porous Plasters, and quickly too. Not only those, but colds and coughs, kidney and liver affections, all congestions and muscular strains, diseases of the chest, asthma and all ailments which are open to external treatment. It is frequently said that Benson's Plaster is Pain's Master. It cures when others are not even able to relieve. For thirty years the leading external remedy. The old-style plasters, as well as salves, liniments, oils, etc., have little or no efficacy as compared with it. Use it. Trust it. Keep it in the house. Ask for Benson's Plaster; take no other. All druggists, or we will prepay postage on any number ordered in the United States on receipt of 25c. each.

LESSON VIII, FIRST QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, FEB. 23.

Text of the Lesson, Acts vi, 1-15. Memory Verses 7, 8—Golden Text, Matt. x, 28—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

1, 2. "It is not reason that we should leave the word of God and serve tables." This was the decision of the twelve when there began to be some murmuring among the disciples concerning the daily ministration of things temporal. As the number of the disciples multiplied it could hardly be expected that in these newborn babes there would not be manifest some phases of the old nature, some of the works of the flesh, such as wrath, strife, surgings and such like (Gal. v, 20). Even Peter, James and John might remember quite a number of things in their own lives, even after they had been a year or two with Christ, which were of the flesh and not of the spirit; so it is to be hoped that while they determined that they could not take time to see to these seemingly unspiritual affairs they were patient with the murmurers.

3, 4. "We will give ourselves continually to prayer and to the ministry of the word." They would not serve tables, but they would pray and search and teach the word. They recognized the importance and the difficulty of attending to the daily ministration, for they saw the necessity of a committee of honest report, full of the Holy Ghost and wisdom.

5, 6. "They chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Ghost, and Philip." The other five are not mentioned again after this verse, which is not necessarily anything against them. Philip is mentioned sixteen times and Stephen, who became the first martyr for Christ, is mentioned seven times. If the mind of the majority is a correct guide, then the appointing of this committee was the proper thing, for the suggestion pleased the whole multitude. There was something in those days in the laying on of hands (I Tim. iv, 14; II Tim. i, 6), but it was not confined to the hands of the apostles (Acts ix, 17; xiii, 3). The laying on of hands in our day is not unlike the shaking of hands; sometimes there are life and inspiration and sometimes a chill. Barnabas, the son of consolation, was like Stephen, a man full of the Holy Ghost and of faith (chapter xi, 24). There is no reason why each believer should not be so filled.

7, 8. "And Stephen, full of faith and power, did great wonders and miracles among the people." The word of God increased, or, as in xii, 24, "grew and multiplied," and in xix, 20, "grew mightily and prevailed." The number of the disciples multiplied greatly in Jerusalem, and a great company of the priests became believers. It was truly a great and mighty work of the Spirit of God and was not confined to the apostles, for Stephen, willing to serve tables, was greatly used, God working wonders and miracles by him. The gospel is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth (Rom. i, 16), and as the word is preached the Spirit works, convincing of sin and righteousness and judgment. When a servant of Christ preaches the word of God, he has a right to believe that it will accomplish His pleasure and never return to Him void (Isa. lv, 11). We may learn a lesson of assurance from the devil in this matter, for when he sowed his tares he seems to have had no anxiety about their growth, for he went his way, sure that they would grow (Matt. xiii, 25). Let us have faith in God that He will take care of His own word and that no word from God shall be void of power (Luke i, 37, R. V).

9, 10. "They were not able to resist the wisdom and the spirit by which he spake." The Lord Jesus had promised a mouth and wisdom which no adversary could gainsay or resist (Luke xxi, 15), and this was a fulfillment of His promise. The wisdom was the wisdom of God and the spirit was the Spirit of God. As with the Lord Jesus the words and works were all the Father's, so in these Spirit filled men the words and works were all the Lord's (John xiv, 10; xvii, 18). We think of the night in Gethsemane when, in reply to their saying that they sought Jesus of Nazareth, He simply said, "I am," and they went backward and fell to the ground. It was the same word that healed the leper, cast out demons, rebuked fevers and all manner of disease, stilled the storm and, away back in the beginning, created all things. What do we know of the power of His word in us or through us, or of the experience of Paul in these words: "Striving according to His working which worketh in me mightily?" (Col. i, 29.)

11, 12. "They caught him and brought him to the council." The adversary can stand ten thousand ordinary believers of the Laodicean stamp and be not a whit afraid of them, but let a Peter or a Stephen, filled with the Spirit, stand boldly for Christ and the resurrection, and the devil will do his best to stop them. The power of God in Stephen was more than Satan could put up with, and so he stirs up the rulers and the people to lie about him and to arrest him.

13, 14. "And set up false witnesses." So Jezebel did to Naboth, and so these same rulers did to our Lord Jesus. It was written concerning Him, "False witnesses did rise up; they laid to My charge things that I knew not." "They that hate Me without a cause are more than the hairs of Mine head; they that would destroy Me, being Mine enemies wrongfully, are mighty" (Ps. xxxv, 11; lxix, 4). We must, if we follow Him fully, expect the same treatment He received, for "all that will live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution" (II Tim. iii, 12), and He Himself said, "If they have persecuted Me, they will also persecute you" (John xv, 20).

15. "And all that sat in the council, looking steadfastly on him, saw his face as it had been the face of an angel." He was no doubt thinking of the Lord Jesus and all that Christ had endured for him. By faith he saw Christ and not these wicked witnesses or rulers, and the glory of Christ was seen upon him. We are apt to think it very hard when people wrongfully accuse us and lay to our charge things we know not, but we should consider it as blessed fellowship with Christ, remembering His own words, "Blessed are ye when men shall revile you and persecute you and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely for My sake; rejoice and be exceeding glad, for great is your reward in heaven" (Matt. v, 11, 12). Some associate this angel-like appearance of Stephen with the time of his martyrdom, but it was before he gave his address to the council. May we ever so see Jesus that we shall reflect His glory.

WOMEN AND NEGROES.

How Black, Yellow and Red Men are Preferred to Women as Voters.

Mrs. Ida H. Harper, in the N. Y. Sun, calls attention to the inconsistency of recent utterances by some prominent men on the suffrage question:

President Eliot of Harvard College, one of the most unflinching opponents of the enfranchisement of women, in a written opinion as to whether the Southern Negro should be disfranchised, said: "I must confess myself unable to imagine how a State in this Union can be peacefully and prosperously conducted with a large majority, or even a minority, of its inhabitants deprived of the suffrage."

He seems to forget all about Massachusetts, with a very large majority of her inhabitants deprived of the suffrage, and President Eliot himself using his influence to keep them so.

Senator J. S. Hawley of Connecticut, outspoken in opposing the franchise for women, thus expressed himself in writing on taking the ballot away from the Negro: "Any class of citizens deprived of a vote hold their liberties at the mercy of other people."

The women of Connecticut are asking the Constitutional Convention to incorporate a clause giving them the franchise. Will Senator Hawley assist in relieving the women of his own State from the helpless position of holding their liberties at the mercies of other people?

In a recent issue of the Commoner, Mr. Bryan waxed eloquent over the outrageous treatment of the Filipinos by the United States. As the crowning act of injustice he cites: "And they are denied representation in the Legislature which taxes them!"

In a recent interview Mrs. Bryan is quoted as saying: "Mr. Bryan has never quite reached the point of favoring woman suffrage."

Is it not singular how some men will stand up for the rights of those of their own sex, be they white or black or yellow, and yet remain totally oblivious to the injustice of denying the same rights to women?

Cooks, Dressmakers and Legislators.

Mr. Henry T. Finck says:

"There is no more reason why men should not legislate for women in all things than why they should not cook for them in restaurants, or design artistic gowns for them. Are not the best chefs men always, and do not all the women who can afford it wear tailor-made gowns designed by men? In other words, do not women often deliberately choose men to be their law-makers, even in so distinctively feminine a matter as dress?"

Grant, for the sake of argument, that the best cooks, dressmakers, and legislators are invariably men; does it follow that every woman ought to be compelled to have a man for her cook and a man for her dressmaker, and moreover, that she ought to be allowed no voice in deciding who the man shall be, or how much she shall pay him? If not, why should she be debarred from all voice in choosing the legislator who is to make laws for her, and whose salary she must help to pay?

"Women often deliberately choose men to be their legislators" in the equal suffrage States. In fact, it is their usual practice. In Wyoming, where women have had the full ballot for thirty-three years, no woman has ever gone to the Legislature; and in Colorado, Utah, and Idaho, no Legislature has ever contained more than three women at one time. Enfranchised women for the most part seem well satisfied to have men for their legislators, provided they are allowed a voice in deciding who the men shall be. But it is one thing when "women deliberately choose men to be their law-makers," and quite another when law-makers are imposed upon them without their being allowed any voice in the matter. It is this to which a growing number of women object.

The oft-reiterated assertion that men are the best cooks is not a demonstrated fact. They are the best-paid cooks, undoubtedly; but there is many a woman unknown to fame whose family would not exchange her home cooking for that of any restaurant. The question, however, is not pertinent to the present discussion, for however inferior women may be to men in cooking or dressmaking, no one proposes to forbid them by law to be cooks or dressmakers, provided they can find any one who wishes to employ them. Then why should they be forbidden to be legislators in any community where the majority of the people wish to employ them in that capacity? Such cases do not seem likely to be frequent enough in the near future to turn the world upside down, even from Mr. Finck's point of view.—Alice Stone Blackwell.

The annual report of the New York State Association Opposed to the Extension of Suffrage to Women, lately published, speaks of "the abatement of the woman suffrage agitation in England." The first petition for woman suffrage in England, in 1867, was signed by only 1,499 women; that of 1873 was signed by 11,000 women, and the petition presented to the members of the recent Parliament was signed by 257,000 women. This is about the ratio in which interest in equal suffrage is abating, on both sides of the Atlantic.—Woman's Journal.

Something That Will Do You Good.

We know of no way in which we can be of more service to our readers than to tell them of something that will be of real good to them. For this reason we want to acquaint them with what we consider one of the very best remedies on the market for coughs, colds and that alarming complaint, croup. We refer to Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. We have used it with such good results in our family so long that it has become a household necessity. By its prompt use we haven't any doubt but that it has time and again prevented croup. The testimony is given upon our own experiences and we suggest that our readers, especially those who have small children, always keep it in their homes as a safeguard against croup. Camden (S.C.) Mr. Cotter Assumes an Important Trust.

Mr. T. B. Cotter has been appointed manager of the large and well known winter resort, Pinehurst, N. C., by the members of the family of the late James W. Tufts. Pinehurst is a village of 6000 acres laid out by the famous lanscape artists Olmsted, Olmsted & Eliot. The village contains over 50 houses, a casino, boarding and apartment houses, a well stocked department store, village hall, museum and several buildings devoted to amusements and sports, a school house, a local newspaper, library, money order post office, and telephone and telegraph offices, and an electric railroad. Also there are several first class hotels. The population at this season of the year is about 7000. This is all private property and Mr. Cotter will have general charge of the town—in fact he will be the Mayor with more power than the chief executive of a city.

Mr. Cotter will leave here on Monday to take charge. As the large interests will require his presence at Pinehurst practically all the year, he has given up all business in Winchester. He has resigned from the office of secretary and treasurer of the Co-operative Bank, also as Fire Engineer.

This is a big undertaking for Mr. Cotter to assume, but all who know his ability feel sure that he will be found the man for the office. His many friends here wish him success.

Pinehurst has a national reputation for being the finest, best laid out, most healthy and best equipped winter resorts in the country, where the patronage is only limited by the accommodations.

School Books and Supplies.

At the coming town meeting the voters will be asked to decide whether or not they wish to accept section 36 of chapter 42 of the Revised Laws. In order that this section may be understood in advance of the meeting, its provisions are here reprinted. The section in question may be a little clearer if it is explained that the preceding section provides for the purchase, at the expense of the town, of books and supplies, and for their loan, free of charge, to the pupils in the schools.

Revised Laws, Chapter 42, Section 36.

In a city which, by vote of the board of aldermen, and in a town which, by vote of the inhabitants at an annual town meeting, accepts the provisions of this section or has accepted the corresponding provisions of earlier laws, the school committee shall make regulations with reference to the care, custody and distribution of books and supplies so loaned, and may provide for the continued use of any text books by such pupils throughout any grades. Such pupils may, if the school committee so votes, purchase from such city or town, at such time and place as the school committee dsignates, at not more than the cost price to such city or town, any text books which are, or are to be, used by them in the public schools, and, if the committee so votes, pupils who complete two years in any public school in grades more advanced than the fourth grade may, upon graduating from the grammar school and upon application to the school committee, be permitted to acquire the permanent ownership of such three text books, used during the last year of their attendance in the school, as they may select.

Rev. Edwin Bradford Robinson.

Rev. Edwin Bradford Robinson, once a resident of Winchester, has recently been called to the pastorate of Grace church, Holyoke, Mass., a large and busy city church, conducted to some extent along institutional lines. It will interest his friends here to read the following resolution passed by the council that was called to dismiss him from his work at Lisbon, Conn.

"The council, having reviewed the action of the church and of the society, and having listened to statements from the pastor and others, showing the harmonious action of all parties concerned has decided unanimously to sever the pastorate in taking this action, the council wishes to express its gratification at the successful work accomplished by Rev. Edwin Bradford Robinson in the three years he has spent with this church. His prayerful, earnest, devoted service has been appreciated and has resulted in a united spirit of co-operation on the part of the people, and in the building up of the church in members and in strength.

The representatives of the church in the vicinity have rejoiced in the knowledge of the good work done here, and in the fraternal spirit with which the pastor has entered into the fellowship of the churches in the country, of the ministerial association and of the local conferences, and regret his removal to another field of labor. At the same time, we recognize the call of duty to the growing field to which God has directed him. We commend him as brother pastor to the fellowship of the association with which he will there be associated and feel assured that he will prove a blessing to the people of his charge. We shall follow him with our affection and prayers, and we express our sympathy with the church in this place, and commend it to the great head of this church to lead it to secure a wise pastor who will carry on the work that has been so successfully carried on in the past.—[Norwich Bulletin.

The Rejected Article.

February 5th, 1902.

To the Board of Selectmen:

Gentlemen:—I request that the item July 4th, be inserted in the Warrant for the annual town meeting, next to Memorial Day if possible.

If the board refuses to insert this I desire to be informed, so that the necessary action may be taken to have it put into the warrant. Yours truly,

JOHN H. CARTER.

Is This so, John.

We have been waiting with considerable curiosity to find out what the Suburban Fare League are up to in the Legislature. The Boston & Maine Railroad is reported as still doing business at the old stand, which leads to the conclusion that the great battle between it and the League is yet in embryo. In the mean time Winchester is really suffering for lower railroad fares. —[Woburn Journal.

Monumental Baptist Mission.

The services at the Monumental Baptist Mission in Waterfield Hall last Sunday evening were largely attended, many white people of the other churches being present. Sunday evening, the pastor, Rev. D. H. Mitchell, will take for his topic, "Angels in Heaven." The new pastor feels much encouraged over the attendance and interest displayed thus far, and hopes in a short time that the entire congregation which has held meetings on Cross street will meet in the new church.

The attendance at the Mission on Cross street last Sunday was very small, nearly all the people having gone with the pastor to Waterfield Hall.

Mrs. T. H. Jones has been chosen manager of the Sunday School.

Bilious Colic.

H. Seever, a carpenter and builder of Kenton, Tenn., when suffering intensely from an attack of bilious colic, sent to a near by drug store for something to relieve him. The druggist sent him a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, three doses of which effect a permanent cure. This is the only remedy that can be depended upon in the most severe cases of colic and cholera morbus. Most druggists know this and recommend it when such a medicine is called for. Prepare Yourself for Spring

Take Dr. Greene's Nervura, the Best Spring Medicine in the World.

In the spring everybody needs and should take a spring medicine. Spring is the time to be cured if you are sick, and the spring finds most of us in poor condition, blood poor, nerves relaxed, weak, and unstrung, and the organs clogged and sluggish in action.

Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is the best spring medicine in the world, the best possible remedy for you to take, the one sure spring restorative which will build up your blood, invigorate your nerves, and give you your old-time snap, vim, energy, strength, and vigor.

Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is purely vegetable and perfectly harmless, and now is the time to take it—now is the time you need it most—now is the time to be cured.

Dr. Orlando Kiser, 954 Reese Ave., Lima, Ohio, says:

"Many years ago I was unfortunate enough to lose my health, and, while endeavoring to regain the same, gradually grew worse, until I became a complete wreck in every respect. My nervous system was entirely shattered, the nerves controlling the heart became weak and the heart's action irregular, which was a source of great alarm to me. I was unable to sleep, digestion was interfered with, and, generally speaking, I considered my time short for this earth. I became discouraged and gave up the thought of ever being a well man again. To-day I am a well man in every sense of the word, and all through the use of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, of which I am proud to speak and stand ready to give a helping word to suffering humanity. My health is my greatest blessing, and words fail to express the gratitude I feel for Dr. Greene and his wonderful remedy."

No other remedy in the world will do you so much good as Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. It is the true spring medicine, the ideal spring restorative and strength-renewer.

No remedy is so sure to purify the blood and strengthen the nerves, to bring back bloom and color to the wan and faded cheeks, the brilliancy to the hollow and haggard eyes, the lightness and elasticity to the weak and weary steps, the strength, vigor, and vitality to the unstrung, shattered, and worn-out nerves. It is, indeed, the greatest of all spring medicines, for it makes those who use it well and strong.

People have more confidence in Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy than in any other medicine, because it is the prescription of a regular physician and therefore perfectly adapted to cure. Dr. Greene, 34 Temple Place, Boston, Mass., can also be consulted free in regard to any case, personally or by writing to him.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

It is lucky for some candidates that election comes before instead of after town meeting. This is so any year.

Polls certainly should have been opened at six o'clock, instead of seven, when it was so evident that a great vote was to be cast. Opening at seven will deprive nearly fifty citizens who have to go to work and take trains of an opportunity to vote.

The death knell of the caucus has been rung.

A campaign of slander is something new for Winchester and is not relished or welcomed. Remember what Grover Cleveland said, "Tell the truth."

A lie will travel forty leagues while truth is pulling on its boot, but truth always runs it down.

The caucus may have been legal, but nobody would chance it.

If we are going to steal let us at least emulate the robbers of old and take it from the rich but never from three minor orphan children, two of them girls who have but a little property at best and whose parents, dead several years, were both born and always lived in this town. The heavens would cry out against it and so will the town meeting.

The town meeting warrant looks harmless enough doesn't it? What is concealed in those innocent looking articles however will shake this old town mightily.

The ledge question seems to have been lost in the shuffle but it is important and should have attention.

We ought to have photos taken of some of our wretched town buildings to humble ourselves with during Lent, or any other time in fact. The stable would wrench a stone image.

The street department outdid itself on the last snow storm and should have recognition for its extremely efficient work.

Of course we want another policeman, because we need him, even if the Selectmen say we don't. Cannot you see the town is growing fast? Yes, we must keep the tax rate down and it can be done, but let us have a reasonable amount of protection.

The fight over Selectmen and Auditor is hot, red hot, and if next Monday is pleasant over a thousand votes will be cast. Many citizens are not going to vote for or against candidates themselves but in protest. Well the votes count just the same.

Any crime, the perpetrator of which has not yet been discovered, it is fair to assume, was committed by some candidate, and base and start your "trail of the serpent" upon that assumption. Don't forget though that slander is a punishable crime and warrants can be quickly got. Verbum sap.

Fred Joy Against McCall.

After months of talk, one man has been found who says he is against the return of Cong. McCall. He is Fred Joy of Winchester. Two years ago, when in the senate, he made a little move which went to show that he was ready to call McCall to book. He is reasoning that Dallinger and Champlin and Glines have ruled themselves out, and for that reason a new man must come up. He does not think it will be Lawrence of Medford, but when asked if he thought of running himself, he said it would be useless for any Winchester man entering the field. Still he says that there will be a man who will stand up in his place and be counted. —[Practical Politics.

More Officials Suggested.

As fast as the legislature makes a move to abolish a commission or reduce the number of office holders, a new scheme to obtain a living from the state comes into view. It is now proposed that persons engaged in steam and hot water fitting shall be licensed, and that examining boards be established in every town or city in the state. If this measure is enacted, 706 steam or hot water fitters will be eligible for state positions, each of which carries a salary of $5 a day for actual services. Imagine the consequences in a town containing only two firms in this line of business and they engaged in keen, up-to-date competition, both of which are represented on the examining board, and both applying for licenses!—[Practical Politics.

Colds

"I had a terrible cold and could hardly breathe. I then tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and it gave me immediate relief."
W. C. Layton, Sidell, Ill.

How will your cough be tonight? Worse, probably. For it's first a cold, then a cough, then bronchitis or pneumonia, and at last consumption. Coughs always tend downward. Stop this downward tendency by taking Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

Three sizes: 25c., 50c., $1. All druggists.

Consult your doctor. If he says take it, then do as he says. If he tells you not to take it, then don't take it. He knows. Leave it with him. We are willing.

Mr. George R. Brine Was an Alderman.

An article in a recent issue of your paper suggested, "as the writer says," by the death of ex-Mayor Saunders, and referring to the city council of 1868 and 1869, and the the few members that are left, includes my name as one of those surviving members of the common council of 1869. I was thus reminded of the unusual mortality among the board of aldermen of 1880, upon which I had the honor to serve until my resignation, owing to my removal from the city of Cambridge.

Upon the wall of my library, and, I believe, there is a copy in the mayor's office at city hall, hangs a photograph of the above officials and as one after another of them has taken his departure from this vale of tears I have many times in recent years been reminded of the uncertainties of life as I recalled the pleasant relations which I held with these gentlemen in days gone by. I have also been impressed with the significance of the fact that the three members of that group who were placed side by side upon the extreme right of Mayor Hall are the only ones now living, while all the others have been called to their reward some time since, and as I remember it, I think we were the three youngest members. The following were the members of the board under Mayor Hall: Dan'l R. Sortwell, F. L. Chapman, H. H. Gilmore, Ed. T. Nichols, George D. Chamberlin, Moses G. Howe, N. G. Gooch, Michael Corcoran, Benj. F. Davies, George R. Brine. The surviving members are Messrs. Gooch, Corcoran and Brine, all being side by side in the picture, as stated above, also Mayor Hall. As I write I am also reminded of the fact that I was a member of the board of alderman in 1873, the first year of Mayor Bradford's administration, and during those strenuous days of the Millers River nuisance, and if my memory serves me right there are four members of this board still living, although antedating the other some seven years. The board consisted of Mayor Bradford, Isaac S. Morse, Hamblin R. Harding, Curtis Davis, Samuel Snow, James H. Collins Daniel H Thurston, Samuel Woodbridge, Robert L. Sawin, Edward Kendall, George R. Brine, all of whom have passed away excepting Messrs. Woodbridge, Sawin, Kendall and Brine. Thinking that this might be of interest to some of your readers I gladly contribute it to your valuable columns as another chapter in the past history of Cambridge and Cambridge officials of a quarter of a century or more ago.

Very respectfully,
George R. Brine.

Had To Conquer Or Die.

"I was just about gone," writes Mrs. Rosa Richardson, of Laurel Springs, N. C. "I had consumption so bad that the best doctors said I could not live more than a month, but I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery and was wholly cured by seven bottles and am now stout and well." Value of Land Taken.

A bill relative to evidence as to the value of land taken under eminent domain is attracting some attention. The provision is that in any action to determine the damages of the land taken by eminent domain either party may introduce as evidence of the fair market value the last three valuations of the city or or town assessors. The main contention was that the present system, which demands the employment of experts, bears too hard on the poorer owners.

What all Women Wish to Attain

in home life, is to keep the house in such a healthy, sanitary condition that disease germs will be unable to find a lodgement there and attack the health of its members. This may easily be attained by using some article adapted to the daily cleaning of those places where germ life is most readily developed, and which in the act of cleaning exercises a positive germicidal action. The fact that such an article exists in Cabot's Sulpho-Napthol constitutes the great and most important advancement in house-cleaning.

The Massachusetts Total Abstinence Society is just commencing the thirty-second consecutive year of its work. By strong yet conservative methods, and by an unceasing activity, it has made friends throughout the commonwealth and beyond. With a valuable experience and a technical knowledge of local conditions, it is now fitted for its best year of service. The policy is to urge activity in all the months, and not merely just before an election.

Besides the three special lines of regular work, which are publication, circulating the pledge and collating practical statistics, the society is opening a department of information on law enforcement has appointed four district agents for continuous canvass, is planning for illustrated out-door lectures, is instituting a cheme of public pledge signing, and is fostering local organizations. These newer lines of service will require money, and with the good will of the press and the people, without doubt the susbcriptions will continue to increase.

Star Desires to be Fair to All.

We have received this week a number of political communications in connection with which the writers do not care to disclose their names. To print these anonymous articles on the last publication day previous to election would not be fair to the other candidates for the reason that there would be no opportunity to reply. Under the circumstances everyone will recognize the desire of the STAR to be fair to all in thus withholding them.

A Frank Statement.

The letter of Mr. F. F. Carpenter, printed in the STAR two weeks ago, in which his position on the school question was most frankly stated, won many votes for him at the caucus last week. It was a straightforward and manly statement of his views concerning the schools that left no doubt in the minds of the citizens how he stood in the matter of education. If all candidates for office were so frank and outspoken as he has been, there would be but little occasion for fault-finding after election.

Should Be More Interest.

It is a little singular that there should be such a lack of interest among the voters regarding town affairs. At the caucus of last week only about 250 voters took the trouble to attend and give expression to their desires as to who should be nominated for the various offices. A similar disregard of duty is manifested in the refusal of many of the ablest our citizens to accept office. Everyone should be willing to give a little of their time for the benefit of the town.

Taking the Educational Bull by the Horns.

The special committee on appropriations is made up of well known and discreet gentlemen who are perfectly familiar with the needs and wants of all that concerns the best interests of this town. Usually this local committee has been wisely governed by a spirit of prudence and conservatism in recommending the various sums needed for the several departments. We would not hint that in past years they have occasionally leaned a trifle too much in favor of economy. No doubt they have acted wisely, for such has been the respect for this committee's recommendations that they have met the approval of our best people at the annual March meetings.

This year the several members of this committee have maintained a most discreet silence respecting their special recommendations. Perhaps it is because good news, as well as bad, is apt to spread rapidly, or perhaps it is because so many of our most thoughtful citizens have been stirred to think about our educational needs from reading recent numbers of the STAR; at all events, some people who ought to know, claim that this committee propose to take the educational bull by the horns. In plain English, it is rumored that they propose boldly to take the position that it is high time to recommend that the town proceed at once to build a suitable high school building on the Howe lot during the next year. It is enough to make the average tax payer feel for the moment that he has taken an educational shower bath with the mercury below zero. We wish we could vouch for the truth of this rumor, but we feel as if it was too good to be true.

In the discussion of this question, we claimed that it was an urgent makeshift to patch up the old high school building to accommodate its pupils for a few years until the town felt it could afford to erect that $100,000 building which is bound to come in the near future. We thought our position was well in advance of public opinion when we advised the appointment of a special committee at the coming March meeting.

If this appropriations committee really propose to swing entirely free from all this patching up business and make a bold push for building a new high school building next year, we are only too glad to acknowledge our mistake. No one could be mistaken in a better cause. This truly representative committee well know that this condition of affairs must be met in a broad, level-headed and yet conservative manner. The question cannot be dodged or postponed for even three years—it must be met. How shall our people face the condition next week? With little or no information we are inclined to believe that this rumor is true. If it proves so, and these men of sound sense, wide experience and staunch integrity cut the Gordian knot and recommend that the town straightway proceeds to solve the problem at once, we feel doubly assured that the wisdom and foresighted economy of their recommendation will meet the approval of every citizen who has at heart the best interests of our rapidly increasing and prosperous high school. Give our school with its nearly 300 pupils a convenient and suitable building and it need not be surpassed by that of any other secondary school of its size in the Commonwealth.

Calumet Club Notes.

GILT EDGE LEAGUE.

ROBERT D. McFARLAND. New honor man for high single in the "Swell" League.

The Calumets took one from the Newtowne Club at North Cambridge Monday night. They selected the last string as the one wanted, and after letting Newtowne take the first two by bunching in the last boxes, they took the third by 170 pins. It would not have been a Calumet match if a record had not been broken, and McFarland, after getting nine strikes without bunching in the first two strings, started in in the second box of the third and bunched nine more, getting 267 for the string. Mr. McFarland now occupies the honor place for high single, he beating Grover's 256 by just eleven pins. Upon the finish of the string the large crowd of "rooters" of the Newtowne Club, of which McFarland is a member, gave him an ovation that was most generous.

In the first game Calumet led by a score of 452 to 429 on the half, but the Newtownes rallied and won out. Hales and Skinner doubled and Small bunched three strikes. Wilson made four successive strikes. Newtowne had the luck of bunching in the second game, Calumet failing to get even one double. At the half Newtowne led 414 to 396. It was all Calumet in the third game. The Winchester lads started at such a hot pace that even at the half way they led by 113 pins. Besides McFarland's bunch of nine strikes, Littlefield started off with four and Richardson doubled.

McFarland was high roller, with a three string total of 603, while Richardson was next with 540.

MYSTIC VALLEY LEAGUE.

The candlepin tournament in the Mystic Valley League opened this week and once again the Calumet team started the season clean by taking three straight from Charlestown. They had to fight hard for all three, and won the first by three, the second by five and the third by two pins. Littlefield was high man with total of 276. The score:

In the home tournament this week both the Lily Valleys and the Bucks dropped one game each, which leaves the former still in the lead. The Bucks rolled very poorly in their game with the Farmers, two of the latter team being absent. The Tigers expect to take three straight from the Bucks in their coming game, which may close them out of second place. The scores:

Mr. Charles Mills, of the Appropriations Committee, had an expert here looking at the ledge on the school lot, corner of Highland avenue and Eaton street, Monday. The ledge has long been an eyesore to the neighborhood, and there is an article in the warrant for the coming town meeting looking to its removal. The expert will probably give the cost of removal.

Next Tuesday evening Aberjona Council, Royal Arcanum, will hold a smoke talk in the lodge room, Brown-Stanton Block. In the language of the notice sent out. "The punch bowl will begin to flow at 8 p. m. Smokes and grub will follow. Short addresses will be made by prominent members of the order." This tells the whole story as regards the program for a most delightful evening. If you are an Arcanumite, don't miss it.

Next Tuesday, March 4, is pension day. Always bring certificate as well as voucher. A. Wm. Rooney, Notary Public and Justice of the Peace, 181 Main street, "The Paper Store."

The town is not liable for accidents caused by snow and ice on sidewalks, but abuttors are. If this was more generally understood the walks would receive more attention.

Mr. Arthur H. Russell makes an ideal presiding officer, and this was never more apparent than at the caucus last week. He is graceful, allows speakers to depart a little from the subject, and is quick to bring them back to the point if necessary. It is believed he could handle a Boston Democratic caucus so effectively that at the close the participants would depart as brothers.

Even the temporary loss to the town of Mr. T. B. Cotter is to be regretted. His connection with the Co-operative Bank, as secretary and treasurer, has given the town one of the best managed and most sucessful banks in the State, while his brief term of only one year as an engineer of the fire department has brought about reforms that will always be found of great advantage to the department and the men. He is a thorough business man, fair to all, and his word is as good as his bond. A plain spoken man and a despiser of shams.

A picked team of the Winchester Y. M. C. A. went to Stoneham last week Thursday night and defeated the second team of Co. H, 6th Reg. M. V. M. at basket ball by a score of 15 to 9.

The town has another amateur paper—The Winchester Times—published by Walter Claflin of Clematis street. The size of its four pages is 4x6, but this does not give any kind of an idea of the time consumed in printing the paper which is done with a rubber stamp. However it is good practice for the young man.

Mr. W. L. Tuck and the editor of the STAR are to have banquest at a leading Boston hotel after the election. It is not to be a two-dollar-a-plate affair but something out of the ordinary to these two old epicurians. It all came about this way: Mr. Tuck said Dr. Blaisdell would not be returned to the School Board, while the editor insisted that he would. There was no hard feeling over the matter, other than that Mr. Tuck expressed a desire to banquet at the editor's expense, while the latter was perfectly willing to do so at the expense of the former. So it was agreed, and Monday will settle the question as to who will do the honors.

The lecture was beautifully illustrated from pictures and rare prints acquired by him while in England.

Newsy Paragraphs.

Scholars attending the Rumford school and likewise the teachers got their feet wet in reaching the building Tuesday. A more disgraceful condition as regards mud and water does not exist in the neighborhood of any schoolhouse in town than prevails at certain times in the year in the vicinity of the Rumford, and it is downright too bad to compel the children to wade through it. This building runs through from Salem to Richardson streets, neither of which have ever been accepted, (although the town has been often asked to,) because of their wretched condition. The streets are flat, made of loam and but little chance for drainage except at a large expense. When one of the School Committee was made aware Tuesday of the state of affairs prevailing, he exclaimed, "Why did the town ever build a schoolhouse in this locality amid such conditions." Either these streets should be accepted and built, or else another location should be procured. The health of the children demand that some action be taken.

Mr. Andrew M. Fitz, who has gained quite a reputation in town as a singer, will assist at the musicale given by the Winchester Boat Club, March 19th.

Mr. R. D. McFarland will take part in the Minstrel show to be given by the Newtowne Club of Cambridge next month.

Besides leading to sobreity and good living, Wedgemere Lodge of Good Templars has other missions to perform, and one is the watchful care over its members that they may not want in times of misfortune. There is a present illustration of this in the case of a young man, a member, who is now at a hospital, leaving in Winchester a mother and younger children for whom he was the breadwinner. Mr. T. P. Dotten, who is always striving to ameliorate the sufferings of others, learning the facts in the case from personal investigation, met the brother members of the Lodge at the meeting of last week, and in a few minutes collected a sufficient amount of money to send to the mother and her children a good supply of groceries and provisions. It is such acts as this that takes off the rough edges of distress and privation.

Miss Bessie Berry and Miss Laura Tolman of Bridgewater Normal School have been spending a short vacation at their homes.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Tyler who have been boarding with Mrs. Tyler's sister, Mrs. Smith of Clematis street, will begin housekeeping in one of Mr. Dotten's houses on Alben street the first of next month.

Mr. John Gill "the Scotchman" was at the Highland chapel last Sunday evening. Mr. Gill has been at the chapel before and is always appreciated by the Highland people.

Mrs. Brainerd Coffin is suffering from a severe fall on the ice and will enter a Boston hospital for treatment in a few days.

The two dozen caucus reform measures before the Legislature will be heard by the Committee on Election Laws next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, March 4, 5 and 6, in the largest committee room at the State House, No. 240, beginning at 10.30 each day. The formal assignments put down the direct nomination measures for Tuesday, the party enrollment measures for Wednesday, and the primary election bills for Thursday, but the whole subject is likely to be canvassed without strict regard to assignment. It is expected that these will be the most important committee hearings of the session, and whoever takes an interest in things political should attend one or all of them, whether for the purpose of helping to enlighten the Committee as to public sentiment, or of getting enlightened. Everybody says something must be done. These hearing are held to give the public the chance to tell what it should be.

Newsy Paragraphs.

In last week's STAR, in writing of Miss Barker's excellent concert, allusion was made in the closing paragraph in the article to the delay in opening the concert. It has been ascertained since that the weather and the cars were responsible and not the management. It was known that a number of people were expected to arrive here from Cambridge on the 8 o'clock electric, and as an act of courtesy it was decided to await their arrival—the car being 15 minutes late.

Mr. W. H. Marson of Crescent Beach, well remembered as a dealer in fish in Winchester, is hopelessly ill at his home with heart disease. He is about 70 years of age and has a wife and one daughter.

School Notes.

Miss Wiswell of Lexington has been appointed kindergarten assistant at the Washington school, to take the place of Miss Keene who resigned recently.

No action has yet been taken on the one session petition from the Wyman district; the subject will come before the School Committee at its next meeting for further consideration.

It has been decided to introduce the medial system of penmanship into the schools, in place of the vertical now in use.

At the meeting of the School Committee Tuesday evening the following minute was adopted and ordered entered in the records:

In view of the approaching retirement of Mr. Samuel S. Symmes from the School Committee after a membership of fourteen years, his associates on the board desire to put on record their appreciation of his constant and hearty interest in the welfare of the schools, and of his faithful service in striving to aid in their advancement. In the somewhat onerous and often misunderstood performance of duty which falls to the lot of a member of the School Committee, Mr. Symmes has through all these years commanded the full and unabated confidence of his colleagues, and has contributed to the improvement of the school system in many ways which will, as time goes on, be more and more realized by the community at large.

The Brown-tail Moth.

MOTH

CHERRY TREE DEFOLIATED IN FIVE DAYS BY CATERPILLARS OF THE BROWN-TAIL MOTH

A BARBED HAIR FROM THE CATERPILLAR (MAGNIFIED)

SAVE THE TREES.

Take the nests of the brown-tail moth from the trees and BURN AT ONCE. They will be easily seen on the ends of the twigs. (See cut of nest.) The caterpillars will begin to crawl soon, and it will then cost ten times as much to save your trees. Trees that lose their foliage three years in succession usually die. Property is depreciated by loss of trees. Many people are poisoned by the minute, barbed hairs of the caterpillars, which fly in the air and penetrate the skin like fish-hooks. Dr. E. H. Stevens of Cambridge says: "In my whole experience I have never known so great an amount of suffering from a cause which was preventable." The person who neglects to remove the nests of the brown-tail moth from property which he owns, keeps what is a menace to the health of the neighborhood. Will you remove the nests from the trees at your home and burn them?

The above cut was kindly loaned by the Philanthropy Section of the Cantabrigia Club of Cambridge, which is doing splendid work in rousing the people of that city to the danger that is so imminent. That the citizens may realize how badly infested our near neighbor Cambridge is, I would state that from one large elm there, nine hundred and ninety-one nests were taken a few days ago. It is most earnestly hoped that each citizen will make this a personal and IMMEDIATE matter. The best tool for doing this work is the Waters Tree Pruner, which is a long pole with pruning shears on the end.

W. H. S. Notes.

One of the most interesting debates which has been held this year by the junior class, took place last Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the high school building. Resolved, "That full, unrestricted suffrage should be given to women," was the live and interesting subject that was presented. The principal disputants on the negative were, Trevor A. Cushman, Sydney C. Blanchard, Webster W. Wyman; rebuttal, William M. Little. Trevor Cushman took the place of and read the speech of Maxwell Ferguson who was ill. Marie Kreutz, Bessie Kelley, Emma Punchard; rebuttal, Agnes O'Leary, were the principle disputants on the affirmative. The speeches of both sides were well presented and showed much thought and careful preparation. The rebuttals, both on the affirmative and negative side, were especially spirited and incited great applause from the audience. Arthur Holcombe acted as chairman of the debate. The judges were Mrs. S. W. Adriance, Mrs. G. H. Gutterson and Rev. Mr. Suter. The decision of the debate was given to the affirmative by the judges. Among those present were: Prof. Charles F. A. Currier, Dr. Albert F. Blaisdell, Rev. George H. Gutterson, Mrs. S. W. Adriance, Rev Mr. Suter, Mrs. George H. Gutterson, Mrs. Edward O. Punchard, Mrs. Arthur L. Wyman, Mrs. M. Kelley, Mrs. Carl Kreutz, Mr. Gay.

The February issue of the High School Recorder, which came out last Friday, is in the form of an alumni number. Guernsey; College Life at Amherst by Harry G. Gray; Life at Smith College, by Helen A. Hall; Second Letter from Smith, by Alice L. Hopkins. Much praise is due the editors.

The anniversary of Henry W. Longfellow's birthday was celebrated by the fifth English class last Thursday afternoon at the high school building. The program was as follows:

Observations.

[Written by N. A. Richardson.]

Winchester is getting to be a prolific field for newspaper enterprise. Two papers have been started at the Highlands, one the "Winchester Gazette," edited by Belville & Parker, and the other the "Winchester Times," edited by Walter Claflin. Both are four page sheets, full of meat, sharp editorials, general news and local incidents. Business advertisements with special notices, one cent a line. As yet, the STAR's strong hold upon the reading and business public has not been invaded.

For the last 36 years Observations has never failed to be present at the yearly spring caucus until the present year. Indisposition prevented. But peace prevailed and good order reigned, while most of the nominees are first class and will be re-elected for faithful service. Great neglect was manifest by some one in not nominating C. W. Swett as a candidate for School Committee. If it had been done he would have had a handsome vote. His friends went to sleep while he rests upon laurels of fitness, faithfully won in years of past good service.

One of the canditates nominated for the School Board adopted the "English Hustings" plan, by stating in the STAR his desire (if nominated) to run—a very sensible way to open a canvass. Some of the candidates remind me of what a candidate said out west who was up for office. He took a seat in the convention with this motto on his forehead:

"I am up for offce tonight,
And I am going to stick until every other one is out of sight."

John Carter made a good showing at the caucus, considering his bold front to straighten out all departments of the town, to kill cliques and official deals. John's time will come, when he will ride on the crest of the wave.

Auditor Newell has put a vast amount of work in his report, with more figures than Sir Isaac Newton used in tracing the movements of the solar system around the sun.

Elect the nominees of the caucus. If they do wrong, "turn the rascals out" next year. Too much piping, too much log rolling is on tap. The time to do business is at the caucus, not after it is all over, when sore heads turn up and begin to bark.

The west side will have three of the Selectmen, if all win, nominated; enough to keep that part of the town in apple pie order. But the three are discreet and considerate men who will look well after the whole town. Three eggs out of one nest are as fresh and nourishing as three selected from three opposite points; the dividing line is an imaginary one.

The town has modified its views on the kindergarten question and are agreed to give it proper assistance, based upon a just scale of age and a somewhat restricted expenditure from the past. Two of the committee can be safely trusted, and I have no doubt but what the third one will be wise and economical in official action.

Don't do everything for the benefit of those who come after us. Make ourselves comfortable and pay for it as we go. Great improvments to help the unborn should be laid on the shelf, to come up and be paid for by those who will utilize them.

Andrew Jackson came to Boston in the fore part of his second term, 1833. Held by my fathers hand, I saw him honored and cheered through the streets. His long face and grey hair is in my memory still, although the light of his countenance has gone out more than half a century. A hero brave, a president of high character.

Charles Dickens, whose dazzling genius is cherished by millions of readers, came to Boston in 1842. He came up to the House of Representatives, then in session, and by the speaker was introduced to many of the members. As one, I clasped his hand. He was slight of build, dark complexion, black hair parted in the middle of his head and curled in long ringlets that hung down and covered his shoulders. The marvel of his pen and brain, shone in his face as a mirror of intellect and born genius. Who has not read his masterly works, where life is mirthful, and deeply shaded.

Of all men of great renown that I have met, in sadness of look, buried in a deep cloud of wearing thought, Abraham Lincoln was the most impressive. A heart of melancholy and pleading anxiety for the folly of the Rebellion; his soul swelled to bursting in the impulse of humanity. With no revenge for the South in the great crime against the Union, he helped and prayed for their return to the fold. The agony of his mind was to restore the South, and save unimpared the honor of the North and glory of the flag. I saw him in Washington coming out of the office of the Secretary of War, when the battle of Fredericksburg was going on, and victory for the North was unassured, great drops like sweat were standing on his cheek, not the flush of triumph, but the ooze of a chill of woe and grief at impending defeat. Could General Burnside have then been present and seen the agony of Lincoln's countenance, he would have laid down his life to have retrieved the ill result of that battle and restored a smile on the Presidents brow.

Mr Wheeler Got Rid of His Rheumatism.

"During the winter of 1898 I was so lame in my joints, in fact all over my body, that I could hardly hobble around, when I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. From the first application I began to get well, and was cured and have worked steadily all the year." R. WHEELER, Northwood, N. Y. For sale by Young & Brown, druggists.

"I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for a number of years and have no hesitancy in saying that it is the best remedy for coughs, colds and croup I have ever used in my family. I have not words to express my confidence in this remedy.—Mrs. J. A. MOORE, North Star, Mich. For sale by Young & Brown, druggists.

WINCHESTER NEEDS

For the coming year an efficient, aggressive and harmonious Board of Selectmen. The policy of recent years should be continued, keeping to the front all those features that add to the attractiveness and dignity of the town. Important matters of development in road-building, surface drainage and administrative work will come up during the next year, and they should all be dealt with by men who possess experience, efficiency and the desire to serve their town faithfully.

We believe that a vote cast for the following names will do much to ensure the above, and be in the interest and welfare of the town: James P. Boutwell, Charles W. Bradstreet, Edward F. Jones, James J. Fitzgerald, John Challis.

Previous to the Election.

Monday afternoon witnessed a scene of unusual activity at the town hall building, because of the candidates who were nominated at the caucus last week, fortifying themselves by taking out nomination papers. The question had arisen since last week as to the legality of the call for the caucus, and that there might be no question regarding the matter after the election, candidates deemed it best to take out papers. The Registrars of Voters were on hand to assist in receiving the papers and to see that they contained the requisite number of endorsers, who must be legal voters, and also to see that they were made out according to law.

John H. Carter will run on nomination papers for Selectmen, W. H. Herrick for Auditor and W. L. Tuck for Assessor. These were the only additions to the list nominated last week. It was said last week that Frank W. Philbrick would take out papers for one of the vacancies on the School Board, but in all probability Mr. Tuck decided not to do so.

The fight on election day has boiled down to Selectmen and Auditor, and for these offices the contest promises to be hot.

There appears to be no opposition to the election to Board of Selectmen of Messrs. Jones, Bradstreet, Fitzgerald and Challis, the real fight coming between the friends of J. P. Boutwell and J. H. Carter, who both claim victories for their respective candidates.

The contest for Auditor will not be so sharp, with a good prospect of the return of the present incumbent, William C. Newell, the originator of the present splendid system of auditing that prevails in Winchester today and which is being copied by many towns.

Edwin Robinson felt very well satisfied over the vote accorded him at the caucus. He is in line for a nomination next year.

W. L. Tuck has courage to run against the chairman of the Board of Assessors.

A great deal is being heard in certain quarters about a "Town Hall Ring." This cry first started up about a year ago, and about this same time, from a certain place by parties who were desperately disgruntled because they could not make things at the Town Hall shape themselves to their selfish ends. Voters should take no stock in this cry, or at least, if they are inclined to believe it to be true, they should raise the cover and ascertain what is under it. The town officers, at least nine-tenths of them, are elected annually by the voters, and it is a libel on their intelligence to say that it is done by a "ring."

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

As a candidate for Selectman I have been asked at various times by different people what my position was on certain matters and will mention how I stand on the following: Main street and bridge at Whitney's mill should be built this year as it has been delayed too long now; a plan should be arranged to care for surface water all over the town, the same as the sewer system was planned out; Eaton street lot should be cleared and graded; street railway company should be forced to fix up track from centre to Stoneham line soon as weather will permit; a reasonable amount of macadam streets should be built this year, but more attention should be paid to side streets and sidewalks and maintenance of all streets; there should be one more policeman put on this year; "Street across the pond" should be considered differently than in the past, but unless expense can be got below figures submitted, we cannot afford to build it at present; continue the policy of present board in putting in more arc lamps and fewer incandescents; town stable should be built this year, and with yard and buildings for all outdoor departments, should be located near a freight yard in vicinity of Swanton street near Main; I know of no appointee who should not be retained; town hall building should have some slight repairs; if cost will permit, contract should be made with street railways to water streets and they should pay a fair share of the costs; eight hour law should be lived up to and no contract work should be done when town departments are competent; all citizens should be treated exactly alike by the board and it should not be paid until other boards are; board should go over town frequently and have a clerk and outside agent.

I have made no pledges or promises, and shall not if elected run again unless nomination papers are got out entirely without my solicitation.

JOHN H. CARTER.

Men's Supper at the Unitarian Church—A Notable Event.

The above annual supper was held Friday evening, February 21st. A reception was first held from 6.30 to 7 in the ladies' parlor to the out of town speakers. Following the reception the company to the number of about 250 proceeded to Metcalf Hall where a bountiful and elegant supper had been prepared by Caterer Dill. After a blessing invoked by the Rev. Charles E. St. John, the company and guests were served to four or five courses of fish and meats, supplemented by fruits, cakes and ices of various kinds. After coffee had been served and Havanas lighted, the inner man perfectly satisfied, the after dinner exercises began by singing, a gentlemen's quartet from Boston furnishing the music. The first number was so well received that another followed, equally as pleasing as the first. During the evening the quartet sang several times, and it is safe to say that better music of this kind was never listened to in Winchester. The voices blended perfectly and the selections were very pleasing and appropriate to the occasion.

The toast master of the evening was Mr. Howard D. Nash, who presided with much aptness and dignity. He opened his brief introductory remarks by expressing the keen regret of the committee that the Rev. Mr. Lawrance, the Rev. Mr. Van Ness and the Rev. Dr. Samuel Elliott were prevented from taking part by sudden sickness. The place of the first speaker was filled by one of Winchester's favorite after dinner speakers, Mr. Robert Metcalf, and the Rev. Mr. St John appeared as a pleasing substitute for Mr. Elliott, the first being secretary and the latter president of the American Unitarian Association. The opening speaker was Arthur Lord, Esq., of Plymouth, a leading member of the bar, now residing for the winter in Winchester. This address was full of thought, pleasingly and wittily expressed, the dominant idea being, that the American people are more deeply and truly religious now than ever, that the observance of religious duties at present were strictly voluntary and meant religion in the heart of the people, whereas in former times such observances were a matter of law and many were forced to comply with them whether they were believers or not. Even in numbers of churches and attendance upon them Mr. Lord proved by figures that this is much, or more, a God-fearing, religious age than any which has preceded it.

Dr. Perin followed in much the same strain as Mr. Lord, not quite agreeing with him in a few minor conclusions however. He said that religion was older than Moses, St. Paul or Jesus Christ because God planned at the creation that man could not get along without it. The time comes in every man's life when he can turn no where else except to God for help, comfort and strength. The Dr. told some of the reasons why some people seemed to get along without much religion, showing that it is usually in the days thoughtless of their youth, or the summer days of commercial prosperity that unthinking people say "there is no God." They have no use for religion then, but when the evil days come, the winter of their discontent with earthly things, then they desire to cling to something stronger and higher than themselves and they find themselves unused to companionship with God and more or less unfit to understand at first the meaning of a loving Father's care over his children. This address was listened to with marked attention and interest and this comparatively new speaker will have a warm reception whenever he speaks in Winchester again. He closed his speech with a witty story at the expense of the lawyers, many of whom were present, which will not soon be forgotten.

Robert Metcalf, the Rev. Mr. St. John and Mr Edmund Garrett followed the last speaker, Mr. Metcalf's speech being exceedingly pleasant and witty. He has a most happy faculty of inculcating good common sense ideas and spiritual truth in a very happy manner. Mr. St. John followed with an inspiring address foretelling that a great revival of every-day practical religion would soon appear and revive the religious life of the whole world. This would be a better awakening than preceding revivals, much as they have helped the world in their time. It would be non-sectarian and would show its good effects in the every day life of all interested in it and influenced by it. He urged all to put their minds and hearts into the work of better, nobler living, thus bringing on the happy day of simple, pure, undenominational religion in all the people.

Mr. Garrett closed the speaking by calling attention to the different styles of architecture in church building and the effect such artitecture has on human lives. By happy coincidence, he expressed the same idea as was alluded to by one speaker at the late Congregational supper, that the architectural style of a church building, its religious symbols, the strength and stability of its construction had much to do with its religious character, especially influencing the passer-by and those who do not regularly attend church. A beautiful church, built "in the beauty of holiness," representing the sacrifice of money in honor of God, is a help to any community to a degree which can not be estimated by the number of people who frequent it.

After Mr. Garrett's address, followed by singing, the company broke up, satisfied that this was the best Men's Supper ever held by the Unitarian society. The committee in charge of the arrangements were: Howard N. Nash, David N. Skillings, John L. Ayer, Edgar Metcalf, Charles E. L. Wingate, Arthur H. Richardson, all of whom exerted themselves to make the occasion a profitable and happy one. Many were present from other denominations as invited guests and enjoyed the entertainment fully as much as their hosts, the only regretful thing in the minds of all being the disappointment at not listening to Mr. Lawrance and the other expected speakers.

Engineer Cotter Resigns.

TO THE SELECTMEN OF THE TOWN OF WINCHESTER:—

I tender my resignation as engineer of the Fire Department of the Town of Winchester, to take effect on appointment of a successor. While I was very much averse to accepting such a position at the time you were pleased to make the appointment, many things have occurred since that time to enlist my interest, and I would have liked very much to remain on the Board until some special things are brought to a conclusion. New business engagements, however, will prevent this.

My relations with the other members of the Board have been of the most pleasant character, and I desire to express the opinion, that in Mr. Fitzgerald, and Mr. Symmes, the town secures the services of two very efficient men in the work of this very important Department. On those occasions I have had opportunity to be a witness, I have found them to exercise most excellent judgement in discharge of their duties. They have also been very careful and conservative in expending the Town's money. I sincerely hope that my successor will be one who will heartily co-operate with them in promoting the best interests of the Department, as that naturally reflects on the welfare of the Town.

The discipline of the Department is at present very good, and nothing is known to me to suggest that the men as a whole have not the most lively interest in maintaining the efficiency of the Department. Of course you will readily understand that a genuine fireman is born, not made to order. It may therefore be that the greatest degree of proficiency does not pertain to every man in the Department, but I incline to the belief that even where it does not, it is occasioned by natural short comings only.

Thanking you for the opportunity of serving the town in this way, I am,

Very truly yours,
THOMAS B. COTTER.

The committee held its seventh session Monday evening and its final one Thursday evening and will report in print at the town meeting next Monday night. Costume Party in Honor of Washington's Birthday.

Washington's Birthday was celebrated last Friday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Parker on Main street by a charming costume party, given in honor of their daughter Miss Constance Parker. In accordance with the invitations issued, a goodly number of friends and relatives assembled, dressed for the most part in the costumes of Washington and the Revolution. As the guests were dressed in the charming and brilliant colored costumes of that period, a beautiful effect was witnessed as the gay party assembled in the parlors, which had been decorated for the occasion, and entered heartily into the festivities of the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Parker personated the tory general Bodfish and his wife; Miss Constance Parker, a colonial lady; Miss Esther Parker, her maid; Mr. Lefavour and Mr. Merrick Parker, colonial butlers; Mrs. Lefavour, Nellie Curtis; Mr. Herbert Dutch, Gen. Parke Curtis; Mr. Ernest L. Collins, Thomas, his colored valet. The following ladies and gentlemen were dressed to represent George and Martha Washington: Miss Emma Punchard; Miss Mildred Gutterson, Miss Marie Kreutz, Miss Sadie Mills, Miss Sadie Fisher, Miss Helen Heath, Miss Elizabeth Kendall; Mr. Robert Adriance, Mr. Howard Newton, Mr. Harper Blaisdell, Mr. Charles Main, Mr. Wilder Parkhurst, Mr. Trevor A. Cushman, Mr. Harold Hovey and Mr. Philip Webber.

The musical part of the reception won hearty applause for the skill and good taste with which it was carried out. Solos were rendered by Mr. Herbert Dutch, Mr. Merrick Parker, Mr. Lefavour and a mandolin solo was given by Mr. Charles Main. The old fashioned but ever popular dance, known as the "Virginia Reel" in which all took part, closed this most enjoyable and successful celebration of the birthday of the Father of His Country.

Brown-Tail Moths in Winchester

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

A fortnight ago, acting on a suggestion from Tree Warden Nowell, I examined the trees on my place on Winthrop street, merely to satisfy myself that there were no nests there. Imagine my surprise in finding no less than six nests of the pests, ready to do their work of destruction as soon as the warm days come. The STAR speaks of nests found on Church street. I know of others on the same street; on Washington street; on the Parkway, and elsewhere. Only by vigorous action can we preserve the beauty of our trees or make it a comfortable place of residence next summer. A real estate agent told me the other day that people inquiring of him about Winchester property usually ask if we have the brown-tail moth.

Every citizen should look sharply after his trees, and the town should see to those upon the highways, and it should be done at once.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper.

THEY CRUSH THE POWERS

This is written in mid-October. The long, oppressive summer is quite gone. Fading leaf, withering tree and the rustling corn in the fields are signs of the season. Fog, frost, rain, snow,—they are coming. You remember last winter; of 1900 and 1901. The weather was cruel. Ah! the thousands it killed, and the hundreds of thousands it maimed and crippled. Oh, the rough grasp it laid on men at work, women at home, and children in cribs and cradles. Coughs that began before Thanksgiving Day are racking and tearing them still; yes, and growing worse as they dig deeper into the poor, tired throat and lungs. Many were cured by using Benson's Porous Plasters. For the soothing and healing power of these Plasters is wonderful. They conquer the complaints

THAT ARE KILLING THE PEOPLE.

No other plaster, no other medicine or application, can compare with them. Coughs, colds, backache, rheumatism, lumbago, kidney and liver troubles, asthma, influenza,—they all go down before Benson's Plasters like a snow image in the sun. You can't throw money away on a Benson's Plaster. Everybody is going to use them this season. But make certain you get the genuine. All druggists, or we will prepay postage on any number ordered in the United States on receipt of 25c. each.

LESSON IX, FIRST QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, MARCH 2.

Text of the Lesson, Acts vii, 54 to viii, 2—Memory Verses, 59, 60—Golden Text, Matt. v, 44—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1902, by American Press Association.]

54, 55. "But he, being full of the Holy Ghost, looked up steadfastly into heaven." With great power and boldness, being filled with the Spirit, Stephen had spoken the truth and, like Peter, had accused the council of being the murderers of Jesus Christ. They were so cut to the heart that they were filled with fury and gnashed their teeth at him. How suggestive was their conduct of the place to which they were journeying, where there is weeping and gnashing of teeth not against others so much as because of their own torment! (Matt. xiii, 42, 50; xxii, 13.)

56. "And said, Behold, I see the heavens opened and the Son of Man standing on the right hand of God." This is one of the seven times that we find the phrase in Scripture "heaven opened." The passages are Ezek. i, 1; Matt. iii, 16; John i, 51; Acts vii, 56; x, 11; Rev. iv, 1; xix, 11, and they well repay a careful study, for the Lord Jesus is always the central person, and the more we look into heaven the more heavenly we become, and there is so much room for improvement in that direction.

57, 58. "Then they cried out with a loud voice and stopped their ears and ran upon him with one accord." This is the first of the four "one accords" of the devil's followers in this book of the Acts, the others being xii, 20; xviii, 12; xix, 29. The number four suggests the four corners of the earth (Rev. vii, 1), or the whole earth, and reminds us that the whole world lieth in the wicked one (I John v, 19, R. V.), and the wicked one will never cease his hatred of God or of the people of God. We are wise when we stop our ears as David did and refuse to hear the mischievous things that evil people speak (Ps. xxxviii, 12, 13), but to stop one's ears from hearing the things of God is truly the devil's work. Refusing the truth, they were believing a lie (II Thess. ii, 10, 11), and, believing that Jesus of Nazareth was an impostor, they judged Stephen to be guilty of blasphemy, and in stoning him thought they were obeying their law (Lev. xxiv, 16), while they themselves were, before God, the blasphemers and the guilty ones, but they were blinded by the god of this world (II Cor. iv, 3, 4). This is our first introduction to the young man named Saul, unless, as some think, he is the same young man who went away from Jesus one day sorrowfully because he loved his possessions.

59. "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit." Thus said Stephen as they were stoning him to death, for he knew whom he believed and saw Him even before he went out to be with Him. When our Lord Himself was dying, He said, "Father, into Thine hands I commend My spirit." And similar words came from David by the same spirit long before (Luke xxiii, 46; Ps. xxxi, 5), for he also could truly say: "I trusted in Thee, O Lord." "My times are in Thy hand" (Ps. xxxi, 14, 15). These dying words of Stephen and of the Lord Jesus give no encouragement to the belief that between death and resurrection the spirit is asleep and unconscious. If any are not fully persuaded concerning the life and bliss of the believer apart from the body, let them read and believe Luke xvi, 22; xxiii, 43; II Cor. v, 8; Phil. i, 21, 23; Rev. vi, 9-11.

60. "Lord, lay not this sin to their charge." Like his adorable Lord and Master he prayed for his murderers (Luke xxiii, 34). Our instructions are, "Love your enemies; bless them that curse you; do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you and persecute you" (Matt. v, 44). And while this is impossible to the natural man, if any man be in Christ he is a new creature, born from above, a temple of the Holy Spirit, a mansion in which the Father and the Son have come to dwell (II Cor. v, 17; I Cor. vi, 19, 20; John xiv, 23), and Christ in us can do what He did when here on earth in the body prepared for Him. It is our privilege to yield fully to Him and take as our motto, "Not I, but Christ" (Gal. ii, 20).

viii, 1. "And Saul was consenting unto his death." Hear his own account of what he said to the Lord Jesus long afterward, "And I said, Lord, they know that I imprisoned and beat in every synagogue them that believed on Thee, and when the blood of Thy martyr Stephen was shed I also was standing by and consenting unto his death and kept the raiment of them that slew him" (Acts xxii, 19, 20). Before Agrippa he said, "I verily thought with myself that I ought to do many things contrary to the name of Jesus of Nazareth, which thing I also did in Jerusalem" (Acts xxvi, 9, 10). And then he went on to tell how not only in Jerusalem, but in other cities, being exceedingly mad against the saints, he was the means of their imprisonment, punishment and death. Our lesson tells of the greatness of the persecution in Jerusalem after the death of Stephen and how all the believers except the apostles were scattered through Judæa and Samaria. The Lord's command was to "go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature," "To be His witnesses unto the uttermost parts of the earth" (Mark xvi, 15; Acts i, 8), but up to this time they seem to have confined their testimony to Jerusalem, and it required a persecution to scatter them that they might obey His command. Thus He maketh the wrath of man to praise Him and restrains what He does not see fit to use (Ps. lxxvi, 10).

2. "And devout men carried Stephen to his burial and made great lamentation over him." Well, they did not bury Stephen, but they buried all that was left of him on the earth, the house in which he had sojourned. Stephen himself was "absent from the body, present with the Lord," but his body was asleep, even as Jesus had said of Lazarus when speaking of his death, "Our friend Lazarus sleepeth" (John xi, 11-14). There was no occasion to lament for Stephen, for to him it was a great gain, but it seemed that the church could ill afford to lose such a witness. We still think when the faithful witnesses are called home that it is strange when there seems to be such great need of them here and there are seemingly so few, but we must remember that the work is His who, in undisturbed majesty, is at God's right hand.

AGAINST WOMEN

MR. HENRY T. FINCK GOES ON AN ANTI-WOMAN CRUSADE.

He Prophesies That Equal Rights Will Have Dire Results on Both Men and Women—A Woman Makes a Reply.

Another eruption by Mr. Henry T. Finck has taken place in the N. Y. independent. It is even more lurid, if possible, than his previous utterances on the woman question. This particular article is called out by the coming National Suffrage Convention at Washington. Mr. Finck sounds the note of alarm, and sets forth that "it is the urgent duty of manly men to combine and save womanly woman from her female enemies."

Whenever Mr Finck goes on the warpath against the modern woman, the equal suffragists rejoice; for his views are so extreme, and his way of stating them so discourteous, that his articles always react in favor of the other side. In this latest effusion he spends a great deal of time in proving what everybody already knows—that women may be made rough and coarse by following certain rough and coarse employments. But what he needs to prove is that they will be made rough and coarse by exercising the suffrage. Mr. Finck ransacks the world to find instances of unsexed women and effeminate men, but, curiously enough, not one of his many illustrations is taken from a place where equal suffrage prevails. He assures us that the fighting women of Dahomey have become monsters because they have been forced to act as the king's warriors and to chop off heads. But what he ought to prove is that the women of England, Scotland, and Ireland have become monsters because they are allowed to vote for all officers except members of Parliament. Mr. Finck says that among the Beni-Amer and the Hottentots the men have lost their manly qualities in consequence of being henpecked; but what he needs to show is that the men of our own Western States have "degenerated into loathsome and unnatural effeminacy" because they have given the ballot to their mothers and wives. Any one who has seen the tall and stalwart men of Colorado must smile at such an insinuation. Mr. Finck quotes Parkman to the effect that in the Huron villages there were Indian women who "in vindictiveness, ferocity, and cruelty far excelled the men." But what he needs to prove is that the women of Australia and New Zealand have developed ferocity and cruelty far in excess of the men, in consequence of being allowed to vote as to the expenditure of their taxes. He says that in the Old World the employment of women in "mining, building railways and houses, plowing and harvesting, makes them unpleasantly mannish in appearance." But to prove his claim that it is impossible for a woman "to engage in politics and remain a lady," he ought rather to show that the New York women who took part in the campaign against Tammany have lost all their natural graces.

Mr. Finck, of course, may say that it will take many years of participation in public affairs to produce these disastrous effects. But in Wyoming, where women have had full suffrage for more than a generation, there is no sign of them. Mrs. Mary A. Livermore says she never saw so many beautiful young women as on a trip that she made through Wyoming. A few years ago the youngest member of the Massachusetts Legislature said he understood that the young women of Wyoming were growing up "without womanly graces," because of equal suffrage. A letter asking if this were true was addressed to every editor in Wyoming, and they denied it, to a man—the tone of their denials ranging all the way from red-hot indignation to calm and amused contempt.

Mr. Finck is exceedingly disturbed for fear that women's beauty will suffer, and that they will cease to pay sufficient attention to dress. But is there really any danger of women's caring too little about their beauty, or devoting too little time and thought to clothes? The peril does not seem to be imminent. An Australian correspondent, describing the keen feeling aroused by a recent campaign, says: "Even for woman it has eclipsed all else—or at least has been of equal interest with her clothes." He could find no stronger expression.

Mr. Finck does not need to go to the Beni-Amer and the Hottentots to prove that men who engage in unmanly occupations may lose their masculine qualities. He furnishes a striking illustration in his own article. When he engages in the unmanly occupation of arguing against equal rights for women, he loses all the clear logic and dispassionate judgment that are supposed to belong especially to men, without acquiring the gentleness and delicacy that are attributed particularly to women. As this disastrous loss of logic befalls almost every man who undertakes to argue on that side of the question we must conclude that running down women is one of the most unmanly of all possible occupations.—Alice Stone Blackwell.

Rev. Anna H. Shaw, while conducting the "question box" at a recent equal suffrage meeting, was asked, "How can women be prevailed upon to overcome petty jealousies?" "As long as the Schley matter is on the docket," she answered, "I wouldn't say anything about jealousies among women, if I were you. Pettiness is not a matter of sex, but of temperament and environment. Get out of the petty environment as fast as you can."

The work for equal suffrage is a Christian work, and I seek to aid it because I am a Christian minister. I always enjoy reminding people that the first woman's rights convention in this country was held in a Methodist church.—Bishop J. W. Hamilton.

Something That Will Do You Good.

We know of no way in which we can be of more service to our readers than to tell them of something that will be of real good to them. For this reason we want to acquaint them with what we consider one of the very best remedies on the market for coughs, colds and that alarming complaint, croup. We refer to Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. We have used it with such good results in our family so long that it has become a household necessity. By its prompt use we haven't any doubt but that it has time and again prevented croup. The testimony is given upon our own experiences and we suggest that our readers, especially those who have small children, always keep it in their homes as a safe guard against croup. Camden (S.C.) THE LATE REV. E. HOPPER.

Sketch of His Life: Funeral Service at Hapmton.

The following was taken from the Semi-Weekly Times of Moncton, N. B. and gives a sketch of the life and the funeral services of the late Rev. Ezekiel Hopper, who passed away in Winchester, Feb. 20, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Joseph Mitton.

HAMPTON, Kings Co., Feb. 25.—The remains of the late Rev. Ezekiel Hopper, former pastor of the station Baptist church, arrived here yesterday. The body was accompanied by the widow and Mrs. M. C. Hopper of Woburn, Mass., her daughter-in-law. It was ticketed for Hillsboro, Albert Co., but a general desire to show the esteem in which the deceased gentleman was held in this community caused a change in plan, and the body was taken from the train and carried to the residence of William H. March, whose wife is a daughter of the deceased minister. In the evening a service was held at the house, in which members of the family and a large company of friends participated. The service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Shaw, Baptist, and Rev. W. W. Lodge, Methodist, the latter reading appropriate selections of Scripture and offering prayer, and the former delivering a feeling and comforting address. The hymns, Nearer My God to Thee, Asleep in Jesus and Sweet By and By were sung by a choir and taken up by all present. At the close the friends surrounded the coffin and took a last look at the calm and placid face of him who in life always had a kindly word and a pleasant smile for all who came in his path.

The Rev. Ezekiel Hopper, who came of good, sturdy stock, was born at Salem, Albert Co., in 1837, and was sixty-five years old at the time of his death. He was converted at an early age, and on attaining his majority began to preach, visiting the scattered and destitute parts of Albert and Westmorland counties, until in 1875 he was ordained at Dawson Settlement, continuing in the active ministry up to a couple of years ago, when he was laid aside by a severe attack of rheumatism, superinduced by exposure during a year's labor at Margaret's Bay, Nova Scotia, where his preaching stations were scattered and rendered it necessary for him to be constantly exposed in all weathers. He returned to Hampton and for some months was with his daughter, Mrs. W. H. March.

About a year ago, having recovered the use of his limbs, he and Mrs. Hopper went to Boston and have been in that vicinity ever since. He leaves beside his widow, three sons, E. Seth Hopper of Dawson Settlement, M. C. Hopper of Woburn, Mass.; S. S. Hopper of Dorchester, Mass.; Mrs. J. Mitton of Winchester Mass.; Mrs. W. H. March, of Hampton, N. B., and Mrs. B. H. Webb of Shediac, N. B.

This morning the remains, accompanied by members of the family, were taken to Dawson Settlement, where the funeral obsequies were held this afternoon. Mr. Hopper was a member of the Independent Order of Foresters here, and a beautiful wreath of flowers, bearing the letters I. O. F., was placed on the coffin by the officers of the local lodge. Deceased was one of the most genial of men, and won the testimony of people of every denomination, and he was a gentleman in the truest and fullest sense of the word.

A Breeze from the South.

Warrenton, N. C.
Feb. 28, 1902.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Dear Sir: Some of your readers may be interested and encouraged by a warm breeze from the South this time of year.

North Carolina is only about half way down South from Massachusetts but it is a typical Southern state. Last week we had nearly two feet of snow all over the state, but now "the last long streak of snow" has faded and we have two feet of mud. But the sun is shining and the birds are singing, and buds are bursting from under the ground. This land is greatly favored by Providence, but only man is vile.

Warren County is peculiarly favored with rich soil and capable of bearing any kind of crops. The people easily raise large quantities of sweet potatoes, tobacco cotton, peanuts, figs, grapes, watermelons, strawberries, and a hundred other things. Warren county used to be owned by large slave-holders, and now the negro voters outnumber the whites 2 to 1. When the disfranchise law is in force next fall the whites will out vote the blacks 2 to 1. This is the great black belt of North Carolina. Education among the colored people is sadly behind. A goodly number have been saved, but the great mass are still rolling in ignorance, and is a prey for the hardly less ignorant whites.

I was called from the little Colored Church last fall to become principal of the Warrenton Normal and Industrial school, situated in Warrenton the County seat of Warren County. I am now breat to breast with thousands of colored people who but for me and my school would have no training. If any reader of this communication feels interested enough to write me I will be glad to tell them more about my school and work here. Yours truly,

THOS. S. BRUCE.
Warrenton, North Carolina.

Reporter's First Anniversary.

The first anniversary number of the Winchester Reporter made its appearance last week printed in blue ink. The editors, Messrs. Hovey & Fernald, give a brief and interesting resume of their years' work, which we reproduce: "This is the first anniversary of the Reporter. The Reporter was started just a year ago. It began with two small toy typewriters, one costing $1.00 and the other $1.50. When we first thought of printing a paper we thought of naming it the Daisy, but we changed it to the Reporter. We printed the first four issues with a typewriter and of course everybody knows that is very slow work. We used a very small printing press because the one that we use now had not come from the factory. The first time we printed with the small press we did not have enough type of the same size, so we had to fill up with all sizes. The first paper with the big press was printed May 13, 1901. We had in November 85 subscribers and now our circulation is from 150 to 170. We have done some job printing. Once we printed tickets and programmes for an entertainment. At first we had one advertisment and now we have as you see more than a page full."

Good for these two boys! They are made of the right metal.

The State fish hatchery is preparing for the coming season's work. Have you ever visited this building and have you ever seen how the fishes grow? If not, then when leisure affords take a trip to the building at the head of Mt. Vernon street. If Mr. Brackett is there he will make the visit interesting and memorable.

Working 24 Hours a Day.

There's no rest for those tireless little workers—Dr. King's New Life Pills. Millions are always busy, curing torpid liver, jaundice, biliousness, fever and ague. They banish sick headache, drive out malaria. Never gripe or weaken. Small, taste nice, work wonders. Try them. 25c at Grover's.

NOW BUILD YOURSELF UP.

Your Blood is Poor and Thin, Your Nerves Weak, You Are Run Down in Health.

Take Dr. Greene's Nervura, Best of All Spring Medicines, Most Wonderful Restorative and Strengthener Known to Science—Makes Pure Blood, Strong Nerves, Vigorous Bodies.

Spring finds you with thin, poor, impoverished blood, weak, relaxed, and unstrung nerves. You are without your usual strength, energy, and vim; you feel that you are out of order, without being exactly sick. The cold wind seems to blow clear through you, a storm chills your marrow, and you perhaps have rheumatism, neuralgia, biliousness or kidney disease because of your disordered condition. You must take the best medicine to give you renewed strength and vitality, the best blood builder and purifier, the best nerve strengthener and invigorator. Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is the best medicine in the world to do all this. It purifies and enriches the blood, feeds, strengthens, and invigorates the nerves—in fact, it makes the weak strong, the sick well, and will cure your stomach trouble, your biliousness, your kidney trouble, rheumatism, or neuralgia.

Dr. Orlando Kiser, 954 Reese Ave., Lima, Ohio, writes:

"Many years ago I was unfortunate enough to lose my health, and, while endeavoring to regain the same, gradually grew worse, until I became a complete wreck in every respect. My nervous system was entirely shattered, the nerves controlling the heart became weak and the heart's action irregular, which was a source of great alarm to me. I was unable to sleep, digestion was interfered with, and, generally speaking, I considered my time short for this earth. I became discouraged and gave up the thought of ever being a well man again. To-day I am a well man in every sense of the word, and all through the use of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, of which I am proud to speak and stand ready to give a helping word to suffering humanity. My health is my greatest blessing, and words fail to express the gratitude I feel for Dr. Greene and his wonderful remedy."

Take Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy now for your spring medicine. This grand remedy has the confidence of the people as no other remedy has, because it is the prescription of a regular physician, Dr. Greene, 34 Temple Place, Boston, Mass., who has the largest practice and makes the most cures of any physician in the world, and who can be consulted without charge by anybody, personally, or by writing about your case.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union will meet in the vestry of the Congregational church Friday, March 14th, at 3.

The Middlesex Co. Convention of the W. C. T. U. was held in the Congregational church on Thursday Feb. 20. The day was one of the finest, and there was a large delegation from out of town. The Convention was opened at 10 a. m. by the Co. Pres. Mrs. A. L. Rolfe of Concord. A hymn was sung, and prayer offered. Committees were appointed, and records of the last meeting read and approved. Department reports were then presented. Flower Mission by Miss Loring, Sabbath Schools, Miss Streeter; Franchise, Mrs. Blood; Anti-narcotics, Mrs. Fletcher. Mrs. Nash read her poem, 'In the realm of Narcotics', Mrs. Saxe, of Medford gave a review of the past, and Mrs. Rolfe a glimpse of the future work of the union. She showed the losses in membership by deaths, etc., within the last 10 years and the urgent necessity that each local union should increase its membership by individual effort.

The devotional service at 11.30 was conducted by Mrs. Martin. Her theme was, Faith in God, and courage to go forward, for He leads and guards His people, and "God is the one Reality." This was a very impressive and helpful service. The 'Noontide Prayer' was observed at 12. Miss Caswell then spoke on the Y Settlement, and its great helpfulness to young women. Rev. D. A. Newton gave the address of welcome, which was responded to by Mrs. Campbell, Mrs. Fletcher then made a few remarks on Scientific Temperance Instruction. At 12.30 the Convention adjourned till 2, and all present repaired to the vestry, where a good collation had been provided by the Winchester union.

The afternoon session began promptly at 2. A hymn was sung, and prayer offered. The report of the treasurer was given, followed by the roll call of delegates from the cities and towns represented. Other department reports were presented, Mrs. Norton on the Press, Mrs. Cheney on the "Union Signal" and "Our Message" Mrs. Saunders sang a solo, "Light in Darkness."

Mrs. Kidder spoke on Physical Culture, illustrating by general exercises, the audience rising and going through the motions as if accustomed to them.

After the offering was taken, a short talk from Mrs. Howe on Foreigners, and another solo sung by Mrs. Saunders, the address of Mrs. K. L. Stevenson was listened to with great pleasure. Her theme: Does the 20th Century need the W. C. T. U. She showed that it does, because of the power of the liquor traffic, the danger to our youth, the larger population and the fact that although there are many women's clubs, etc., there is no other society of women organized to fight this deadly foe. Then, what do we as a union need? We need to have a broader conception of our work, and of its relation to the largest and best development of the human race. It was a very interesting address, but space will not permit a fuller account of it.

In the evening a public meeting was held, addressed by Mrs. Stevenson. Her subject was, "The Bright Side of the Temperance Reform." This address was also enjoyed by all who were present.

The thanks of the union is gratefully extended to all who assisted in any way to make the Convention and the Public meeting a success—to the Congregational Parish Committee, who so kindly gave the use of the church building, all day and evening, to the organist and singers who rendered such acceptable service, to the ministers who assisted in the evening meeting, to the ushers, and to all other helpers their kindly aid will not be forgotten.

Coughs

The medicine that has been curing the worst of deep coughs for sixty years is Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

The Brown Tail Moth—A Suggestion to Our Tree Warden.

We received a call this week from Rufus Kendricks of Wakefield, the well known insect destroyer, who called to ask the STAR to start a movement here for the destruction of the brown tail moth. In his town the work is carried on through contributions of money by the citizens, and he suggests the same be done here. In all the surrounding cities and towns the moth is looked after. On interviewing him he said:

I employ two expert tree climbers and furnish them with a light ladder, climbing spurs, a 10-foot pole arranged with shears for cutting branches, a light saw, a 20-foot section pole with shears. The men are paid $3 per day. They cut an average of 15,000 nests a day after learning the work. This is 20 cents per 100 nests.

The rate of 20 cents per 100 was offered to anyone bringing in nests and was quickly taken up by over 100 boys. Nothing arouses quicker enthusiasm than a chance for boys and girls to earn a little spending money. They responded like magic and in 9 days after offering the prizes I received from school children, 9 to 17 years old, 84,681 nests for which I paid $181.08. The lowest amount paid to any one boy was 1 cent for five nests and the highest $21.55 for 10,875 nests. There are hundreds of boys in other towns who would like to earn such money. The pest is too numerous for a few to handle.

The final work is to have an expect hunter go to every street, yard and orchard and clear away every nest that is left so far as possible.

My plan for suppression of the moths is to pay 20 cents per 100 to boys or anyone who brings in nests taken in Wakefield and one or more expert climbers and cutters to go through all the streets and clean them up as they go as far as they can. I then go through all the streets and examine closely all trees in streets, grounds, fields and gardens and tag every tree that has a nest left, as a mark for the men to do further work if needed.

85 parties have subscribed towards a subscription for the suppression of the brown tail moth on their own premises in Wakefield.

Trees known to be destroyed by moths in Wakefield:

Pear, apple, hawthorne, hedges, oak trees, elm trees, maple trees, cherry trees.

Strikes A Rich Find.

"I was troubled for several years with chronic indigestion and nervous debility," writes F. J. Green of Lancaster, N. H. "No remedy helped me until I began using Electric Bitters, which did me more good than all the medicines I ever used. They have also kept my wife in excellent health for years. She says Electric Bitters are just splendid for female troubles; that they are a grand tonic and invigorator for weak, run down women. No other medicine can take its place in our family." Try them. Only 50c. Satisfaction guaranteed by Grover.

Rev. H. P. Rankin addressed the Epworth League of the Hillside M. E. Church, Medford this week.

Winchester is Looking in the Same Direction.

There is no more important matter before the city government than that of surface drainage. The recent storms and slush has called the attention of every one to its importance. We may get along with poor streets, but side-walks and drainage are absolutely neccessary to the people. The 3000 school children forced to attend the public schools need side-walks and crossings and drainage. The plans adopted by the city are comprehensive and ought to be forwarded year by year.—[Melrose Journal.

Danger of Colds and La Grippe.

The greatest danger from colds and la-grippe is their resulting in pneumonia. If reasonable care is used, however, and Chamberlain's Cough Remedy taken, all danger will be avoided. Among the tens of thousands who have used this remedy for these diseases, we have yet to learn of a single case having resulted in pneumonia, which shows conclusively that it is a certain preventive of that dangerous malady. It will cure a cold or an attack of la grippe in less time than any other treatment. It is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by Young & Brown.

Praise of Winchester's Streets.

Supt. of Streets Spates must be an uncommonly good road builder judging from the praise given the condition of the streets of Winchester by our exchanges. There is no longer a noticeable difference at the boundary line of Arlington and Winchester that we used to hear so much about.

Sidewalks Neglected.

The rebuilding of streets during the past few years has been of signal benefit to the town, but we think this has been done to the neglect of the sidewalks. Indeed on many of the principal thoroughfares of the town the street affords the only means of avoiding the mud and water of the sidewalks. This is particularly noticable on Washington street, the most traveiled thoroughfare in town, where the conditions are extremely disagreeable for pedestrians from a point near Ridge way extending the entire length of the sidewalk to the Highlands. Crushed stone has been used sparingly at intervals, but this soon sinks into the mud, when previous conditions again prevail.

As concrete is universally used for walks, and will be for many years to come, it seems a little singular that the street department has not done this work itself instead of having it attended to by outside parties. A necessary plant would be of trifling cost, and we think it just as important a part of the town's highway equipment as the stone crushing machine or the steam road roller. In their plans for the coming year the Selectmen should consider this, also a more general improvement of the sidewalks. Concrete is the only construction work that is done by outside parties, and if there is a profit in it for contractors, there surely is for the town, besides getting more durable work done.

Winchester Co-operative Bank—Mr. T. B. Cotter.

At a special meeting of the Directors of the Winchester Co-operative Bank Wednesday evening, February 26th, the resignation of Mr. T. B. Cotter as Secretary and Treasurer was presented and duly accepted. Mr. Thomas S. Spurr was elected as his successor. After many complimentary remarks by different members of the Board, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted.

The officers of the Winchester Co-operative Bank, in accepting the resignation of Mr. T. B. Cotter as Director, Secretary and Treasurer desire to place on record their appreciation of his services to the corporation. It was largely due to his efforts that the Bank was established. He has been the Secretary and Treasurer since its organization. He proposed the system of book-keeping and accounts which is noted for its comprehensive simplicity. Under his intelligent administration, the Bank now has assets of nearly $150,000. It has become a beneficent factor in the community, teaching habits of thrift and saving, and has enabled many men of moderate means to become the owners of homes. While regretting his resignation as a great loss to the bank, we wish him the largest measure of success in the new field upon which he is to enter.

Smoke Talk.

There was an exceedingly social time at the smoke talk given by the members of that hustling organization, Aberjona Council, Royal Arcanum, in their lodge room Tuesday evening. After a short session the lodge adjourned when the doors were thrown open and the "outsiders" invited in. Refreshments were served in the banquet hall and after cigars had been lighted Mr. George Bartlett Cutter, of Somerville gave a number of the best descriptive songs ever listened to in this town. G. V. R. Joseph B. Robson in an interesting way told of the benefits of being a member of the order. At the conclusion of his remarks a number of those present signified their intention of joining the council.

The Royal Arcanum stands in the front rank of social insurance orders, and Aberjona Council at the head for sociability and whole souled hospitality. If you are not insured you should look into what the Royal Arcanum has to offer for the benefit of yourself and family. There will be a class initiation March 18.

High School Accommodations.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

While there is apparently need of serious consideration by the citizens of the subject of school house accommodations for the children of school age in our town, it has occurred to the writer that the lack of school rooms which gives rise in the minds of our intelligent citizens to much anxiety concerning our condition next September is more apparent than real. Before going into a serious consideration of the immediate necessity for erecting a costly High School building, would it not be well to consider whether we shall actually need much greater accommodations in the near future and also as to whether we are actually utilizing to their full capacity the present school rooms.

From time to time rumors are circulated that there is a strong probability that the McKay Works will leave Winchester. Without having at hand exact figures, the writer believes that the removal of these works from the town would tend to relieve the pressure for additional school accommodations for several years. Another point that most of our citizens do not consider is, that the present High School is amply large enough for the four regular grades of the High School, viz. the Xth, XIth, XIIth and XIIIth. Several years ago when there was a lack of school room for the grammar grades, the ninth grade, the highest grade in the Grammar School, was transferred to the High School Building. There is today no reason why that grade could not have accommodations in the regular home of the ninth grade, the Wadleigh building.

This disposition of this grammar grade would at once relieve the High School building.

This rearrangement would also call for other changes and it is necessary to show where additional accommodations could be found for the children crowded back from the Wadleigh building. There is not the least doubt in the writer's mind that two rooms could be obtained by a radical change in the kindergarten work. There is no insurmountable obstacle to having morning and afternoon sessions of the kindergarten classes. For instance one room at either the Wyman or Wadleigh could be used for kindergarten purposes as at present, for children living in the southern half of the town, and the other room could then be devoted to a regular grade. A similar arrangement could be made at the Rumford or Washington building for the northern half of the town and another room thus be gained for grade purposes. The writer does not suggest that the same children who went to the morning session attend the afternoon session of the kindergarten, but that one class go in the morning and another in the afternoon. By this arrangement a saving of two school rooms could be effected and four teachers attending both morning and afternoon sessions could accomplish the work which now requires eight. There is at present one room at the Mystic school which is not in us, and is available for school purposes. I feel the above stated rearrangements would solve for at least one year and possibly for two years or longer, the problem of school rooms, for there would be available enough room for one hundred and twenty additional pupils.

W. H. S. Notes.

During the coming week, a debate will be held by the Junior class upon the subject: Resolved: "that the peaceable annexation of Canada to the United States would be for the best interests of both governments." The principal disputants on the affirmative will be Frank Hudson and Marguerite Barr; on the negative, James Newman and Bessie Hopkins. The judges are, Roy Pratt, Elizabeth Kendall and Helen Thompson.

The regular monthly meeting of the class of 1903 was held at the home of George K. Guernsey of Eaton street.

The last class meeting of 1902 took place at the home of Elsie Enman, Tuesday evening. The principal business of the evening was what to do in the way of graduation exercises; finally the class voted to leave this to the discretion of the Executive Committee. When this matter had been decided upon, the business meeting adjourned and the rest of the evening was spent in playing games.

Winthrop Barta will entertain the class of 1904 at their next monthly meeting which will take place tomorrow evening.

Violating Tree Law.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The Tree Warden will be grateful at all times for any report of violation of the tree law such as horses gnawing trees or unauthorized cutting or trimming. No one is permitted to fasten anything to a public shade tree, and anyone may remove anything so fastened at any time. Wires sometimes burn the street trees. Notice of such burning, if promptly telephoned to the police, or direct to the Woburn Light, Heat & Power Co., will bring men at once to remedy the trouble. The Warden especially requests information as to the location of trees whose branches hang so low as to interfere with the free passage of carriages or pedestrians carrying raised umbrellas.

Newsy Paragraphs

George E. Morrill, the grocer, has a cat in his store named Tom, which he thinks a great deal of. Last Christmas Tom disappeared. The police were notified and everyone in the neighborhood who would be likely to harbor a cat. Time wore on and Tom was not found. Then Mr. Morrill put an ad. in the STAR, but even this failed to restore him, so he was given up as lost or dead, and was sincerely mourned for. Last week Thursday much to the surprise and delight of Mr. Morrill, Tom was found in the storage room where he had been in hiding since Christmas. Hereafter Tom will receive his Christmas present the same as all other good cats, and this being understood he basks in the sunshine as of yore secure in the freedom of the establishment. How the cat managed to live and still remain in hiding is what Mr. Morril would like to know.

There are seven articles to be acted on at the meeting Monday evening.

The bill before the Legislature that the treasurer of any town shall not be eligible for re-election within three years after the expiration of five consecutive years of service, will be as dead as a door nail after the Legislature gets hold of it. It is a most senseless affair, and one that should be left for the towns to decide.

A Vesper Service of unusual interest is to be given at the Unitarian Church Sunday evening. Three quartettes sing the chorus parts of the "Stabat Mater," and the members of the regular church quartette take the solo parts,—the whole being sung in Latin.

It will be welcome news to the many members of the Boat Club to learn that James Morris will probably be re-engaged as steward for the coming year.

"Do you know," says the Rockland Free Press, "that a newspaper man on his rounds may stop and ask a hundred persons 'What's the news?' and ninety out of one hundred will reply 'nothing special,' and yet fifty out of that number know something, which if not found in the next paper, will astonish them greatly and disappoint more. Don't be afraid to let the newspaper man know of every item."

The Ladies' Western Missionary Society of the Congregational church had an all day meeting Thursday.

One of the principal reasons for Mr. J. F. Dorsey refusing to longer serve as a trustee of the town library was because of the time required in reading the new books seeking a place on the shelves. It must be a severe tax to read all these books and pass judgment upon their fitness to be circulated among readers.

The Ladies' Friendly society will hold its regular meeting in the parlor of the Unitarian church on Thursday Mar. 13th, at half past one. At three o'clock Mrs. Robert H. Mr. Edwin C. Fisher of Highland avenue is not only a believer in good sidewalks, but he also gives practical illustration as to what their condition should be after a snow storm. He caused the concrete walk to be laid on Lebanon street largely by contributions supplemented by a generous gift, and Thursday he took his shovel and cleared off the snow from a portion of the walk, so that pedestrians could reach Washington street. He is a man that any neighborhood should be proud of.

As a result of the storm last Friday there was a flood on Cross street at the Highlands depot, the water spreading and completely surrounding the house occupied by Mr. Allen, which seemed to have a Venetian aspect. It is understood that the Station Master telephoned to the Town Hall for a wagon to carry people to the depot, but no response was made, so that a great many walked down to the Centre for a train. It seems as if some co-operation on the part of railroad and town is necessary to obviate this state of affairs.

He was turning the corner at Grover's drug store when an immense mass of snow on Brown and Stanton's block worked loose and began to descend and would have struck Mr. McNelly squarely but for the presence of mind of a clerk who was passing and attracted his attention to it. Mr. McNelly dodged the greater part of it but enough struck him to throw him to the ground.

Ham-Wilson.

The marriage of Mr. Fred Ham and Miss Pleasantine Wilson, both well known in this town, took place at San Juan, P. R., on Sunday morning, Feb. 23, at eight o'clock. Miss Wilson wore white muslin and satin with real orange blossoms, and Mr. Ham was attired in a white linen suit. The couple were married in the Episcopal church, a new building which was used for the first time. Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the Club, after which Mr. and Mrs. Ham left on their wedding trip, which included a tour of the island, visiting the DeFord sugar plantation, the property of a member of the firm by whom Mr. Ham is employed, Ponce, and other places.

Both Mr. Ham and Miss Wilson are well known here where they have lived many years. The many friends of the couple remembered them generously and they were the recipients of many gifts, including two one hundred dollar bills to defray the expenses of their wedding journey, being the gift of DeFord & Co. Mr. and Mrs. Ham will reside at San Juan, P. R.

The bride was prettily attired in lavender and carried a bouquet of roses, and the maid of honor carried a bouquet of pinks.

After an evening spent with music and refreshments the happy couple drove to Stoneham, where they will reside. They received many useful presents.

Echoes.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The candidate's popularity is often measured by the number of blank ballots thrown for him and it is a good measure, too.

Less than 60 per cent. of the registered vote was thrown, which is not the interest that should be shown. It is surprising how lightly our people consider political duties, and it is not a healthy sign.

It looks as if Mr. Whitney could not have hit upon a more propitious time for his article in the warrant in regard to completion of Main street and bridge, but why should not the town build it instead of the county.

The appropriations committee got on swimmingly until it struck water, and as it got hung up there, it later on provided for instruction in locomotion in that element so as to be able to swim out of its predicament at the brook and reservoir.

Speaking of water, two of our town meeting orators appear to have it on the brain and it don't seem to make much difference whether it is pond, river, reservoir or brook water, either, it affects them just the same, and one of the strangest features of their malady is that they forget past action that has been taken on such matters, at least they did Monday night.

It is interesting to analyze the election figures, although in some cases it is impossible for anyone outside of the tellers who saw the ballots to tell or estimate how they were marked. On Selectmen 202 ballots were not marked for Mr. Fitzgerald, 218 for Mr. Bradstreet 267 for Mr. Jones, 292 for Mr. Challis, 362 for Mr. Carter, and 375 for Mr. Boutwell, but the different combinations on these six names were too numerous to mention, even if you knew. There was pretty good evidence that the friends of any of the candidates were ready and willing to slaughter any or all of the others to get their man in.

It was very evident Monday night that the ex-officio members of the appropriation Committee did not consider themselves as members of the committee proper.

The Appropriations Committee's recommendations went through too easily and the danger is that this committee may become too powerful and usurp the functions of the town meeting.

The music and fireworks of the meeting will come when article three is reached Monday night. There is going to be some very plain talk. Did you read what the committee said about assessing? "Our only asset."

Why is it that men get up and object to the actions proposed and yet do not offer any motion? It looks as if all they wanted was a chance to "kick."

We may get along without another night patrolman until the first of May, but when license goes into effect in Woburn we will need another man sure.

One of the hustlers at the polls paid especial attention to the French voters and argued with them in that tongue. He was very active, and as his side won was happy after the count was announced.

The objection that the Appropriations Committee's report should have been out earlier has force and it should be another year it possible but the form of vote appointing the committee must be different to bring it about.

It is safe to say that no information got out from behind the rail at this election although there never was one where the friends of the candidates were so anxious to know who was being cut and how the "bullets" were being cast. The Moderator held up jail as the penalty and that tellers lips were sealed. This was as it should be.

The South Middlesex Conference.

The one hundred and eighth session of the South Middlesex Conference will be held in the Unitarian church, Winchester, Wednesday, March 12, 1902. Following will be the order of exercises:

10.30 a. m. Devotional service, conducted by Rev. W. H. Pierson, Somerville.

12.20 p. m. Collection for current expenses of the Conference.

12.30 p. m. Collation, provided by the Winchester society.

2.00 p. m. Roll-call of the churches. Address by Rev. A. F. Bailey, of Barre on "The Expression of our Missionary Motive in Country Life." Discussion.

Before deciding on a wheel for this year call at "The Paper Store" and inspect the Lovell Diamonds. New model, fully guaranteed, $25; medium grade, $15. Best values for the money. A. Wm. Rooney, 181 Main street.

Will There be a Scramble Next Year?

The Appropriations Committee recommended in their report that here after the Selectmen serve without pay. The town, apparently feels in regard to this matter the same as the committee, for at the town meeting of Monday evening, salaries for the Selectmen were not included in the regular appropriations. Whether this will make a difference in the number of aspirants for these offices, next year will tell. The committee in their report said:

At various times citizens, acting as Moderator, have explained to the town that it was their preference to serve the town in this capacity without a salary. The nominee of the citizens' caucus expressed himself in the same manner before this committee. The small amount heretofore paid is no equivalent for the service rendered by the incumbent of the office. Therefore we recommend that the position hereafter be considered purely an honorary one.

The office of Selectman in Massachusetts has always been considered next to the Representative to the General Court; the highest within the gift of a town. Our very ablest men throughout the Commonwealth have again and again been elected to this position, in one instance an ex-president of the United States serving in this capacity for several years. In almost all cases this service has been rendered without pecuniary compensation, with the feeling that men competent to fill this position should be willing to contribute their services for the general welfare, fully repaid by the honor which goes with the office and the satisfaction of having served their time and generation in accordance with the wishes of their fellow citizens.

In our own town the members of the Water Board, the Sewer Board, the School Committee and many special committees have rendered valuable service and given freely of their time and strength without remuneration, and we believe this is as it should be. Everyone owes a duty to the community in which he lives, and the greater his qualifications, the greater the obligation. The successful administration of the affairs of our town depends chiefly upon the character and ability of our town officers, and, in general, we believe that abler and more successful and practical men will be willing to serve on this Board if there is no salary attached than if there is one.

We make this recommendation on general principles, without any reference to the men who have held the office in the past or are to hold it for the coming year.

In considering the salaries of town officers, your committee, while it does not recommend any change the present year, is of the opinion that the salary of the Board of Assessors is too small to secure the services of men who have the peculiar qualifications necessary for this work. While recognizing with appreciation the services of the members of this Board in years past, we think that in future it should be composed of men thoroughly acquainted with real estate values and of keen business ability. They should be furnished as soon as possible with complete plans and plots of the parcels of real estate in the town, a portion of the expense to be met each year by a special appropriation, and should be paid a salary in proportion to their services. By this means we feel sure that the property both real and personal would receive intelligent and conservative attention, enabling the town to raise sufficient money for its needs and still maintain a reasonable rate of taxation.

Town Meeting.

The annual town meeting opened shortly before seven o'clock Monday morning by the choice of Mr. Edgar J. Rich as Moderator, after which action on the articles in the warrant was postponed to 7.30 o'clock in the evening. The election of town officers was then proceeded with.

At 7.30 p. m. Moderator Rich called the meeting to order. There was a large attendance of citizens, while the fair sex filled the south gallery and the boys and young men the north gallery.

Under article 4 it was voted that the Treasurer be authorized under the direction of the Selectmen to borrow $50,000 in anticipation of taxes.

The Selectmen according to the vote passed under article 5 were instructed to fix the number of measurers of wood and bark at five.

Article 7, relating to appropriations was then considered, when the recommendations of the Appropriations Committee were adopted almost in their entirety. It was a remarkable compliment to the work of this committee in accepting their findings without hardly any comment and with practically no opposition. This report was given to the citizens in printed form and proved a pleasing innovation over the system of past years, and is one that bids fair to be adopted hereafter by this Committee. As Mr. John T. Wilson said, he did not remember of a meeting in 15 years when appropriations were agreed to so unanimously and passed so expeditiously as at the present. The gentlemen who composed the committee numbered some of the best informed men regarding the affairs of the town, and they are deserving of much praise for the conscientious and painstaking work necessary in making so complete and comprehensive a report. Mr. Lewis Parkhurst, chairman of the committee, was the spokesman and presented the votes for different appropriations. The list was as follows:

ENGINE HOUSE AND TOWN STABLE.

The subject matter of the following articles were referred to a committee of five to report to the town at the earliest possible date:

To see if the Town will authorize a loan by the issue of the notes or bonds of the Town, appropriate the proceeds of the sale thereof to buy or take a lot of land, on which to build an engine house, build and furnish such an engine house.

To see if the Town will appropriate a sum of money for building of a new town stable, or for altering or repairing of the present one.

NEW HIGH SCHOOL BUILDING.

The following articles referred to a commmittee of seven, consisting of the School Board and four citizens, to report to the town at the earliest possible date:

To see if the Town will raise a sum of money by a loan to enlarge the present High School building, and to furnish such addition to the building.

To see if the Town will authorize the appointment of a committee to consider the question of additional school accommodations.

DRAINAGE.

Voted to raise $5000 by issuing bonds of the town to be expended by the highway surveyors in improving the surface drainage of Church street and other streets adjacent thereto.

BLANK AND PERRY CASES.

Under article 19, to see if the Town will appropriate a sum of money to pay Philip J. Blank and Franklin W. Perry, guardian, for land taken for the widening of Highland avenue and not heretofore paid for, it was voted to refer the matter to the Selectmen with a request that they report to a future town meeting.

EATON STREET LOT.

It was voted that $1500 be appropriated to clear up and grade the town lot at the corner of Eaton street and Highland avenue.

BATH HOUSE.

It was voted to accept sections twenty and twenty-one of Chapter twenty-five of the Revised Laws, the same relating to public bath-houses and swimming instruction. Also it was voted that $1500 be appropriated as follows: $1,200 for the construction and furnishing of a bath-house; $300 for maintenance of same; all to be expended under the direction of the Park Commissioners.

The meeting then adjourned to Monday evening.

NOTES.

Mr. H. F. Johnson claimed an additional police officer was needed.

Mr. F F. Carpenter believed that in the Blank and Perry matter that the town had no moral right to take advantage over a technical question in settling these land damage cases.

Mr. John Blank, a large taxpayer, believes when possible, to raise money by direct taxation.

Tree Warden Chamberlain proposes to get after the insect pests whether they are on the highways or private property, and he is right.

Mr. H. F. Johnson thought that $4500 was needed for the poor department. So, too, did Overseer of Poor, Carter, who said he would be obliged to have that sum, $4000 was too little.

Mr. Johnson believed that no board had a moral right to go before the Legislature and ask to increase its indebtedness by $50,000 without the consent of the town. He referred particularly to the Water Board.

Mr. N. A. Richardson believed that the town did not understand the matter in procuring rights of way in order to drain Dike's meadow so that it would not flow into the North Reservoir. One man who had been paid damages told him, "They offered me money and I thought I would take it." The water, he claimed, had run down this right of way from time immemorial. There appears to be a misunderstanding on this whole matter and the question will receive full discussion Monday evening when it will be taken from the table.

Monday evening will finish up the articles in the warrant.

Observations.

[Written by N. A. Richardson.]

A few days ago an old citizen of Winchester, Alfred Norton, about 88 years old, was in town. He is an inspector in the Boston Custom House, and has a strong backing to keep him there by the influence of Francis Peabody, the banker. He came here fifty years ago and bought the Woodman place, formerly the "Sam Thompson" farm, joining the Black Horse Tavern estate, and extending from Prospect to Elmwood streets, running back and embracing the Herrick farm. Mr. Norton took down the old Thompson house and built what is now known as the Tyler house. Mr. Norton had a superior wife in domestic and social life. She was the daughter of Benjamin Abrahams, a wholesale fish dealer in Boston, who lived in what is the Dwinell house, on Main street. Mr. Norton has been an active man; was a twin brother to Albert Norton, both of whom for many years were engaged in the paper trade, Boston. Alfred, was Commissary of Subsistence in the civil war, with a good record. He is of pleasing manners and social intercourse; was quite prominent at one time in politics, and was a candidate for representative. He is a good public speaker, well read in ancient and modern history. 64 years ago when a citizen of Boston he gave a public address in the vestry of the Baptist church Winburn, on the subject: "The joys and sorrows of life." Mr. Norton's wife passed away a few years ago, also a son, he having one son now living, engaged in mercantile business. Some prominent men have lived on Main street near the top of Black Horse Hill, all but one or two now gone. Josiah F. Stone, Joseph H. Tyler, Aaron D. Weld, James F. Dwinell, Bard Plummer, Mr. Boone, Deacon Lampson, Dr. A. F. Bellows, Samuel Grafton, Lawyer Chandler, Wm. Boynton, T. W. Lawson, Marcus Cook, Charles MacIntire, Harvy Wilbur, B. F. Holbrook, J. W. Lufkin, Emmons Hamlin, Lewis Parkhurst.

Town meeting passed off lovely. "Order reigned in Warsaw." The new moderator presided with ease and dignity. No apple of discord was bounced around the hall. The new selectmen came in kiting. Mr. Carter won, he has eclipsed the "labor of Sysohus, and rolled the stone to the top of the hill." Now let him keep it there; not let it roll back upon himself. He may give us something as good as "King John's Magna Charta." Office mellows men's hearts. Mr. Carter has natural and acquired abilities that the town may more fully appreciate in his official life.

One mistake some of our town officers fell into, is going beyond the line of duty (with good intention). Let them consult the votes and be directed by them. Some of our votes are too loose, and give too much latitude. The sick town ledge looks as if it would be convalescent, with $1500 dollars to hold an inquest on its decaying vitality, and plant a beauty spot on its gloomy face. A hundred years ago from this lofty knoll was a sightly view, from which the Aberjona could be seen, winding its way through green meadows, its banks alluring with nature's gems, cowslips and lillies, tinted with a divine pencil.

The short discussion Monday night on town drainage opened a broad subject, on which there is much local feeling. It should not be hastily acted upon; our town has some flat territory which has got to be improved by very nice and well considered engineering.

Mr. Boutwell has many friends who feel keenly his defeat, and say he holds their esteem and will to the last. Politics and town office is an excrescence that comes upon the surface of life, and must be expected when one has an itching for office, but it ought not to eat deep into the joys of existence.

Many were astonished at the vote for Auditor. Victory comes like a rainbow when the storm has passed away. All wonder why the clouds lifted so easily and so fatally. The retiring Auditor has left his mark deeply cut upon the records of the town, which will stand not unrecognized.

The new Auditor has a host of friends who believe he, too, will make a painstaking and faithful officer, in whom will be found no mistake of duty, or figures.

The Town Clerk, Treasurer and Tax Collector reached the goal of victory with supreme delight. Paul my plant, Apollo's water, but God giveth the increase.

Pneumonia Can be Prevented.

This disease always results from a cold or an attack of the grip and may be prevented by the timely use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This remedy was extensively used during the epidemics of la grippe of the past few years, and not a single case has ever been reported that did not recover or that resulted in pneumonia, which shows it to be a certain preventive of that dangerous disease. Y. M. C. A. Notes.

Tonight is the time of the entertainment in the Association Hall by Mr. F. O. Harrell, the magician and musician A first class entertainment is assured. Beside magic Mr. Harrell is expert on a chronatic set of crystal glasses, illuminated with over 100 candle power minature electric lights, on which he plays with wonderful skill. A set of imported silver bells is also used during the evening. A new feature of Mr. Harrell's performance will be solos upon the saxophone. It will all make a most pleasant evening and all for 15 cents. Come yourself and invite your friends.

Mr. S. B. Carter of Boston will speak to the men at the Men's meeting next Sunday at 4 o'clock. Mr. Carter is a successful business man, a good speaker and a fine man to know. Plan to hear him. Another treat for Sunday afternoon will be vocal solos by Mr. A. M. Fitz, who is well known among musicians. Mr. Ralph Abercrombie, a "Harvard" student, is expected to speak to the boys at 3 o'clock Sunday. Most of the boys know Abercrombie. A full meeting should result.

The junior Bible class and Durrell Brotherhood meet as usual this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The junior indoor meet held last Saturday was a great success. The events were run off in good time and in excellent order by the committee in charge. The winners in the various events were. In Class A, Hovey, Sullivan and Cushman, Class B, Bergstrom, Chesley, and Cosgrove. Some very good records were made for juniors.

The senior gymnasium class meets Saturday night instead of tonight as usual. Special athletic events will be held in place of the regular work.

The basket ball team play the Malden Association team on the Winchester floor Monday night. A very good game is expected.

The mechanical drawing class closes its term next Tuesday, it being the twentieth lesson. The photographer will be on hand to make pictures of this class and of the gymnasium classes. Every one should be in the picture.

The junior supper held last Friday was a great success in spite of the rain. Thirty-five boys were present. After supper speeches were from about half the boys present. At the close of the evening the General Secretary spoke on the Association's foreign work and pledges of five cent per week were secured which amount in a year to some $35. The Association believes in educating boys up to give of their little, systematically.

More boys will attend the Conference at Haverhill the last week in March than ever went from Winchester before.

The regular meeting of the Auxiliary to the Y. M. C. A. will be held Tuesday, March 11, at 3 o'clock.

The Election.

The election of Monday for town officers was full of ginger, so far as the positions on the Board of Selectmen were concerned. It was a fight to a finish between Messrs. Boutwell and Carter with the result that the latter won out by just 13 votes over the ex-chairman of the Board—a very narrow margin indeed. So much in earnest was this fight that barges, carriages and even a brake were put into commission to bring voters to the polls.

And, would you believe it, a nice collation and a smoke were given the noon voters in the basement of the Town Hall, so that these men would not lose their dinners because of going to the polls. The defeat of Selectman Boutwell came as a surprise to many.

Another surprise was the defeat of Auditor Newell by a small margin. His successor, Mr. W. H. Herrick, like his predecessor, is an accountant and has served the town in years gone by as an auditor under the old system of auditing.

For Assessor, Mr. Carter had a big lead over Mr. Tuck—the vote being 527 to 188. There being no other contests, the caucus nominees were elected by large votes. The total number of votes cast was 821, while there were eight women who exercised their right to vote for members of the School Board. Last year the vote was 514 men and 12 women.

The license vote was, Yes 134, No 536, last year Yes 86, No 373

NOTES.

Selectman Boutwell accepts defeat philosophically, but it is said he does so with a knife up his sleeve.

Ex-Auditor Newell will be a candidate next year when there will be considerable hustling.

The polls closed at 6.36, and an hour after the vote was announced.

Mr. Boutwell's defeat causes a loss to the Selectmen of perhaps the best informed man on the Board.

Selectman Carter, the citizens will watch your career on the Board with a great deal of interest. After all that has been said and done, the voters while they will not expect to have existing conditions turned upside down, will nevertheless look for a very clever administration on your part.

Moderator Rich must have been a tired man after the town meeting adjourned. He was at the polls all day long from about half-past six in the morning. No doubt he believes that every citizen should give of his time for the good of the town. He sets a good example.

Help... Nature

Babies and children need proper food, rarely ever medicine. If they do not thrive on their food something is wrong. They need a little help to get their digestive machinery working properly.

SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL

will generally correct this difficulty.

If you will put from one-fourth to half a teaspoonful in baby's bottle three or four times a day you will soon see a marked improvement. For larger children, from half to a teaspoonful, according to age, dissolved in their milk, if you so desire, will very soon show its great nourishing power. If the mother's milk does not nourish the baby, she needs the emulsion. It will show an effect at once both upon mother and child.

DAVID KENNEDY CORPORATION, Rondout, N. Y., and mentioning this paper, the publishers, of which guarantee the genuineness of this liberal offer.

Of course this involves enormous expense to the manufacturers, but they have received so many grateful letters from those who have been benefited and cured of the various diseases of the kidneys, Liver, Bladder and Blood, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, and Chronic Constipation, and all weaknesses peculiar to women, that they willingly send trial bottles to all sufferers.

Upon investigation it was found that 91 per cent. of those who had used the trial bottle had received such benefit from it that they purchased large sized bottles of their druggists.

It matters not how sick you are or how many physicians have failed to help you, send for a trial bottle of this great medicine, it costs you but a postal card and benefit and cure will most certainly be the result.

Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy speedily cures such dangerous symptoms as pain in the back, inability to hold urine, a burning, scalding pain in passing it, frequent desire to urinate, epsecially at night, the staining of linen by your urine and all the unpleasant and dangerous effects on the system produced by the use of whiskey, wine or beer. Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is sold by all drug stores or direct at $1.00 for a large bottle; six bottles for $5.00.

A Freshet.

The town awoke Saturday morning with a realization on its hands that it had a veritable freshet, almost as dangerous as that of some fourteen years ago when the bridges on Main and Pleasant streets were partially wrecked. The advantage the town had Saturday over the historical one was that the town employees had daylight in which to smash the huge cakes of ice as they crashed against the Main street bridge. At times it looked as if the supports would go and allow the street to tumble into the raging torrent. When an unusually large piece of ice went through the street could be seen rising in the centre, but happily everything held. The police had the north sidewalk closed to travel during the worst of the danger. After the ice had gone down all trouble was at an end. Friday the snow was melting fast and in the evening one of the hardest rainstorms set in, which continued throughout the night, so that in the morning the ground was almost entirely free from snow.

The town suffered heavily from washouts, many of the streets getting a bad shaking up, while the gutters on some were almost entirely demolished — this being particularly noticeable on Prince avenue.

Saturday morning patrons of the Highland station were confronted with a foot or more of water in order to reach the station, and they were compelled to come down to the Centre. A few people, however, reached the platform by being ferried over in wagons.

Much damage was caused by water entering cellars in the lower parts of the town. Many of the cellars of the business buildings had to be pumped free from a foot or more of water, while the first floor of Blank Bros. tannery was submerged.

The old Bacon street bridge held the water back to a considerable extent because of its narrow channel. This bridge, which has been pronounced unsafe for travel, should be replaced as soon as possible by one more adequate to its uses and requirements.

The club lost two games to Old Dorchester Wednesday night. Richardson was the only man of the Calumet's to get over five hundred.

The Dignitaries defeated the Lily Valleys two games out of three Thursday night. The Lily Valleys rolled a very poor game and the Diginitaries put up their best game so far this season. For the latter team strikes were bunched by Sanborn, Kelley, Cap. P. A. Nickerson, and H. H. Nickerson. This places the Lily Valleys in second place, with a prospect of a tie with the Bucks.

The town of Scituate has invented something new in the way of a caucus. It is to be held by mail. Slips containing a list of candidates for Selectmen, Town Treasurer, Collector, Auditor, School Committee, Constable, Tree Warden and Surveyor of Highways were mailed to 650 voters of the town, with a request that they mark with a cross the candidates they favor, and return the list to the committee. Stamped and addressed envelopes were provided, and it is estimated that a majority will answer. No voter can excuse himself from "attending" this caucus, for no matter how long the road may be or how inclement the weather the postman will receive his vote, and the committee will sort and count the votes, and announce the returns.

A BURNING QUESTION

At this time is: "Are you getting the best out of your coal?" If not, perhaps you are wasting Heat in the cellar which is needed elsewhere. It has been shown that a single foot of naked two-inch pipe carrying high pressure steam all the year round will condense more steam than a dollar's worth of coal will make, and the loss is in proportion for lower pressure and shorter time. Do you wish to stop this loss? If so, now is the time when it can best be done. Perhaps it will cost less than you think. At any rate it will cost you nothing to get figures.

Over-Work Weakens Your Kidneys.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes.

The kidneys are your blood purifiers, they filter out the waste or impurities in the blood.

If they are sick or out of order, they fail to do their work.

Pains, aches and rheumatism come from excess of uric acid in the blood, due to neglected kidney trouble.

Kidney trouble causes quick or unsteady heart beats, and makes one feel as though they had heart trouble, because the heart is over-working in pumping thick, kidney-poisoned blood through veins and arteries.

It used to be considered that only urinary troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all constitutional diseases have their beginning in kidney trouble.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

NOW LOOK OUT!

"Take care of yourself," say our friends. "I'll try to," we answer. We do take a little care, yet in spite of warm clothes, rubbers and mackintoshes, an army of people were bowled out by pneumonia and other lung and chest diseases last winter. They caught cold, neglected it, let it fix upon them, were torn by coughs, choked by inflammations and congestions, wasted by fever, tired out by pain and then gave up the fight. The hour you realize that you have a cold on the chest, place a Benson's Porous Plaster where the pain or oppression is felt. If you think two are needed make it two. No harm if you were covered with them. They act quickly and prevent the engorgment of blood in the organs. In this way—with ordinary caution as to exposure—you will break up the cold and avoid a serious sickness. No other applications, or any other form of treatment, will accomplish this as certainly and speedily. Benson's Plasters have a distinct and positive action and are curative to the highest degree. Use them with the same confidence for coughs, muscular rheumatism, the grip (back and chest) and all similar ailments. Women, who are chief sufferers from cold weather complaints, should keep these plasters always within reach. Get the genuine. All druggists, or we will prepay postage on any number ordered in the United States on receipt of 25c. each.

WITH THE DOCTORS

Men are less subject to seasickness than women, according to an old sea captain, but when attacked by it make more fuss. They take immediately to their berths, where they grumble and groan until they are well enough to go on deck again. A woman fights the unpleasant malady until she can fight no longer. Then she becomes maudlin and pathetic. She retires to her room and invariably asks three questions—first, whether people die of seasickness; then, how many miles we are from shore and when we shall get there.

Professor Heinz of the University of Erlangen claims to have discovered an infallible and very simple antidote against seasickness.

"Draw a long and vigorous breath at frequent intervals," he says, "and you will never suffer from this malady."

The reason, he explains, is because the initial cause of seasickness is to be found in a lobe of the brain, the sensitiveness of which reacts on the stomach, and that when fresh air is breathed at frequent intervals the blood becomes charged with oxygen, and thus the offending lobe loses its sensitiveness.

He adds that he has made several experiments on himself for the purpose of proving the efficacy of this novel remedy and has also completely cured several persons who used to be seasick whenever they went on the water. Finally he points out that the antidote costs nothing and can be tested by any one.

The Magnet In Surgery.

Dr. Garel of Lyons has drawn a French nail about two inches long from the bronchial tube of a boy of eighteen months from Buenos Ayres. The nail had been there for some time, causing the child to cough much. Roentgen rays showed the position of it, and an electro magnet drew it out. Another successful operation of the same kind has been performed by Dr. Piechaud of Bordeaux on a child of three years. In this case the trachea was opened to get a projection from the pole of the magnet near the nail. These experiments are well worth the attention of surgeons everywhere.

METALS AND MINERALS

"Metals may be burned for the sake of the heat and light they produce, just as ordinary fuels are burned," said Professor Roberts-Austen in a recent discourse at the Royal Institution in London, but the burning of metals, he proceeded to show, differs from that of ordinary fuels in that the products of combustion are not gaseous, but solid. "The burning of aluminium gives sapphires and rubies in the place of ashes." An instance of burning metal for the sake of light is furnished by the magnesium star, says The Youth's Companion, a contrivance by which a shell packed with magnesium and attached to a parachute is fired electrically high in the air, thus producing an illumination of the ground beneath at night.

Galvanic Coloring of Metal.

In an abstract by Lightning of an article in L'Electrochemie on the coloration and protection of metals a large number of recipes are given. Gilding on steel is imitated by galvanically coating with copper from a cyanide bath, then with a thin film of zinc. After drying and polishing the article is heated in linseed oil to 160 degrees C., when, it is stated, the surface becomes of a red brass color, as if there had been a real alloying of the copper and the zinc.

New Coalfield In Belgium.

Consul Winslow of Liege reports the discovery of a soft coal basin at Asch, in the province of Limbourg, a few miles to the north of Liege. The coal much resembles that found in Westphalia, Germany. It contains from 18 to 20 per cent of volatile matter. The first vein was discovered at a depth of about 1,640 feet, and between this and 1,968 feet five veins have been discovered, ranging from 2.6 to 6.6 feet. It is thought this basin covers about 24,700 acres.

Talks Hole Through a Plank.

Thomas A. Edison's latest invention is a machine for talking a hole through a plank. This sounds like a joke, but it is nothing of the kind. The apparatus consists primarily of a diaphragm, a ratchet and a toothed wheel. The operator talks into the diaphragm, its vibrations cause the wheel to revolve, and by means of the familiar mechanical contrivance called a "worm gear" an auger is worked. By slightly altering the mechanism a saw can be substituted for the auger. This makes the proverbial expression, "to talk the hind leg off a donkey," no longer a mere figure of speech. It can be done.

Metal Eggs For Cooling Drinks.

One of the oddest of recent inventions is a refrigerating egg, as it might be called. It is an ovoid capsule of nickel plated copper about the size of a hen's egg, hollow and nearly filled with water. For use it is frozen, so that its contents become ice. If you have a glass of milk that is not cold enough, you do not like to put ice into it, because dilution with water spoils the beverage, but if you have one of these eggs handy you may drop it into the glass, and in a few moments the liquid is reduced to the desired temperature.

To accommodate those who are partial to the use of atomizers in applying liquids into the nasal passages for catarrhal troubles, the proprietors prepare Ely's Liquid Cream Balm. Price including the spraying tube is 75 cents. Druggists or by mail. The liquid embodies the medicinal properties of the solid preparation. Cream Balm is quickly absorbed by the membrane and does not dry up the secretions, but changes them to a natural and healthy character. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., N. Y.

LESSON X, FIRST QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, MARCH 9.

Text of the Lesson, Acts viii, 3-17. Memory Verses, 3-5—Golden Text, Acts viii, 4—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1902, by American Press Association.]

3. "As for Saul, he made havoc of the church." The Revised Version says that he laid waste the church, but our Lord had said, "The gates of hell shall not prevail against it" (Matt. xvi, 18). So that this imprisonment of Christians and power of Saul and the authorities over them did not really hurt the church any more than the fiery furnace or the lions hurt Daniel and his friends.

4. "Therefore they that were scattered abroad went everywhere preaching the word." So the disciples could say to Saul and his company as Joseph said to his brethren, "Ye thought evil against me, but God meant it unto good to save much people alive" (Gen. l, 20). When we are persecuted and in the midst of trial, it seems very difficult to see any good in it, and not to see our persecutors, but faith sees only God and is quiet because He controls all people and all events. These scattered preachers of good tidings were not the apostles, but all except the apostles (verse 1), and they were just the Lord's messengers with the Lord's message (Hag. i, 13). If all believers now were ready to tell to others the love and grace of God, telling His salvation from day to day (Ps. lxxi, 15, 24), how soon the gospel might be preached to every creature!

5-8. "Then Philip went down to the city of Samaria and preached Christ unto them." Philip was the second of the seven who had been appointed to minister to the needy in things temporal, and now that Stephen had been so honored and promoted he is also honored as the Lord's messenger. If we are content to do the ordinary work of the daily life, the Lord will in His own time lead us into greater service. Very helpful words on this are found in II Sam. xv, 15; I Chron. xxviii, 21. In verses 4, 12, 25 we get a good idea of the preaching of those days. They preached Christ; they preached the word of the Lord and the things concerning the kingdom of God. As Philip preached the Lord wrought with and through him, confirming the word with signs following (Mark xvi, 20), and, seeing the miracles and hearing the message, the people with one accord gave heed, and there was great joy in that city. Whether the messenger be the woman of Samaria or Philip the evangelist, if Christ is preached the Spirit works, and whenever Christ is truly received there follows joy and peace (Ps. xv, 13).

9, 10. The adversary who opposes God and exalts himself is always to the front ever since he slandered God to Eve in Eden. He is seen in the willfulness and self assertion of Cain, in the endeavor of the Babel builders to make themselves a name and in all who oppose themselves to God and His truth from Cain to the one who shall exalt himself and magnify himself above every god, so that he, as God, shall sit in the temple of God showing himself that he is God (Dan. xi, 36; II Thess. ii, 4). This Simon, like Theudas of chapter v, 36, was just one of the great host who magnify themselves and always find a following. As I write a man in Chicago, whom many follow and who seems to preach the gospel, has just given out that he is Elijah. And so it goes and will till Jesus comes.

11, 12. Bewitching people with sorcery might possibly describe many of the teachings of today which captivate such multitudes. A great following is not sufficient proof that the leader is right, nor are few followers necessarily an evidence that the leader is wrong.

13. "Simon himself believed also, was baptized, continued with Philip and wondered, beholding the miracles and signs." The power of God is able to break the hardest heart, and the fact that Simon was baptized and continued with Philip after he believed would seem to indicate a real conversion. The sequel in verses 18 to 24 may indicate, however, that Simon had not truly received the Lord Jesus, or they may mean that he was not right in the matter of the gift of the Spirit. If he had no part in Christ, he certainly was not saved, but if Peter meant that he had no part in this gift of the Holy Spirit he was just in the condition in which most church members are, and it may have been in reference to serving God that his heart was not right. Simon the sorcerer is not a comfortable study. There is much of himself from first to last and little, if any, of Christ even after he believed.

14. "Now, when the apostles which were at Jerusalem heard that Samaria had received the word of God, they sent unto them Peter and John." These two who are so prominent in the early chapters are still evidently the foremost among the apostles and specially honored by the others. Notice what it was the people of Samaria had received. They had received the word of God, and, like the Thessalonians, they doubtless received it, not as the word of men, but as it is in truth, the word of God, which effectually worketh in those who believe (I Thess. ii, 13). Our Lord Himself said to His Father on the night before His crucifixion, "I have given unto them the words which Thou gavest Me, and they have received them" (John xvii, 8). We give our Lord pleasure when we receive His word. It is to be received with meekness and then held fast and held forth (Jas. i, 21; Tit. i, 9; Phil. ii, 16).

15, 16. "Who, when they were come down, prayed for them that they might receive the Holy Ghost." They were somewhat like the apostles and other believers before Pentecost. They had believed, were baptized and had become children of God and temples of the Holy Ghost, but they had not been endued with the power which all believers need to enable them to serve the living and true God. All who truly receive Christ are saved and have become children of God (John i, 12) and temples of the Holy Spirit, who dwells in every believer, but it is possible for such to be only babes and carnal (I Cor. vi, 19, 20; iii, 1, 2), and therefore the necessity of being filled with the Spirit and endued with power to live the life of faithful testimony.

17. "Then laid they their hands on them, and they received the Holy Ghost." Having prayed (verse 15), they now with expectation lay hands on them, and the special gift of the Spirit is received. So also did Paul at Ephesus (chapter xix, 5, 6). Our Lord's words, "Ask, and it shall be given you," are in connection with these others, "How much more shall your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to them that ask Him" (Luke xi, 9, 13).

METHODIST WOMEN'S VICTORY.

They are Now Eligible to Seats in the General Conference.

The decision of the Methodist Episcopal Church making women eligible to seats in the General Conference has been hailed with almost universal satisfaction. The press comments show a pretty general conviction that the step was inevitable, and was in fact only a simple matter of justice and common sense. The wide-spread public approval is a strong testimony to the love of fair play inherent in the American people.

This victory will also add an impetus to the growing movement that seeks to give women equal opportunities in the State as well as in the church. Every argument that can be urged against letting a woman vote applies with tenfold force against letting her be a delegate to the General Conference. Is it said that she would be exposed to too much excitement? Religious controversies are notoriously hotter and more bitter than political ones. Is it said that she would be brought into too great publicity? The casting of a simple ballot does not require a tithe of the publicity involved in taking part as a delegate in a great ecclesiastical assembly. Is it urged that she would have to give too much time? A woman who attends the General Conference may have to spend weeks away from home; whereas she could cast her ballot in half an hour.

It is worthy of note that the men who have fought most stubbornly against equal rights for women in the General Conference are almost all of them, like Dr. Buckly, opposed also to equal rights for women at the ballot box. A defeat for them at one point presages their ultimate defeat all along the line.

The vote was overwhelming. Out of 120 conferences that voted on the question, only twenty voted against the women. Of these twenty, all but four were German, Swiss or Danish. The four were Baltimore, New York East (Dr. Buckley's conference), Southern California and Washington. Nineteen conferences recorded themselves in favor of the women by a unanimous vote, and there were eleven others in each of which only one vote was cast in the negative.—Ethel C. Avery.

Cardinal Gibbons on the Home.

Cardinal Gibbons says:

"I hope the day will never come when in this land all women will be allowed to register their votes, save, perhaps, in municipal elections, which come near to the home, and might, therefore, properly be influenced by those who should be responsible for the home."

This is a noteworthy concession, and shows a growth in liberality. A few years ago Cardinal Gibbons could see no possible good in any form of suffrage for women. But State and national elections often affect the home as much as municipal elections. Sometimes they affect it even more, as in Pennsylvania, where a Quay-ridden Legislature has lately passed the "ripper bill," taking away from several cities the right to elect their own chief magistrates in order that creatures of the machine may be imposed upon them as mayors against their will. Congress passes laws that determine whether the country shall have peace or war, prosperity or panic. And the character of the President influences the characters of mothers' sons all over the land. If women may properly take part in all elections the results of which affect the home, they must be allowed to vote for all officers, even up to the President of the United States.—Woman's Journal.

A Progressive Minister.

The Rev. Dr. Herbert Foss, successor of Bishop Simpson of the Arch Street Methodist Church of Philadelphia, lately closed his series of sermons on "The Woman of the Future" with a discussion of the question, "Ought woman have the full suffrage?" In a most public spirited address he said: "It is those women who are fighting the evils of society, the devoted Christians, that favor the right to cast the ballot. They are doing it not because of notoriety, but because they see in it the only way to solve the great moral questions of the day. It is those women who devote their time to frivolities that manifest no interest in woman suffrage.

"The woman of the future will be a citizen with full suffrage, because it is just and right. England cut no sorrier figure in taxing her colonies without giving them a voice in the management of their own affairs than we do in taxing women and then withholding the franchise from them.

"If woman is fitted for the high duties of motherhood and wifehood she can be trusted with the ballot."

A Standing Army of Teachers.

In recent studies of the race problem my attention has been called to the proportion of the literate and illiterate in several sections of the country, and to the lack or adequacy of common school instruction. In the States in which violence, lynching the denial of human rights exist, we find the maximum of ignorance and illiteracy among whites as well as blacks. This is coupled with the lowest ratable expenditure for common schools. The only sure remedy for these wrongs is in the extension of the common schools by which the rest of the country has been redeemed and partially civilized. Now, who have been the principal agents in laying the foundations of good government in these common schools? The true standing army upon whom rests the safety of this nation consists of the four hundred and odd thousand teachers in our common schools; 70 per cent. women, 30 per cent. men. If women may rightly be charged with the duty of preparing voters to vote with intelligence in the ratio of two to one, cannot they be trusted to vote themselves on equal terms with those whom they themselves have instructed?

La Grippe Quickly Cured.

"In the winter of 1898 and 1899 I was taken down with a severe attack of what is called la grippe," says F. L. Hewett, a prominent druggist of Winfield, Ill. "The only medicine I used was two bottles of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It broke up the cold and stopped the coughing like magic, and I have never since been troubled with Grippe." Chamberlain's Cough Remedy can always be depended upon to break up a severe cold and ward off any threatened attack of pneumonia. It is pleasant to take, too, which makes it the most desirable and one of the most popular preparations in use for these ailments. For sale by Young & Brown.

Greek Marriage Customs.

The marriage in Constantinople of an Englishman and a Greek woman entails three wedding ceremonies. To be legal it must be performed at the consulate. The couple are legally married there the first day, and on the next a church ceremony is performed in the English church, while the Greek religious ceremony which follows is celebrated at the bride's home. The last is the only legal form of marriage as far as the bride is concerned.

In the Greek ceremony no ring is used, but the best man places a wreath bound with white satin ribbons on the heads of bride and bridegroom. Then, while the priest is pronouncing the words of the service, the couple walk around him in a circle three times, holding candles, the best man at intervals changing the wreaths from one to the other. When all is over, the friends throw small coins or tokens of gold and silver over the wedded pair, and a general scramble ensues among those present to secure the tokens.

Why a Horse Eats Often.

The horse can conveniently eat for twenty hours out of the twenty-four. A horse which is in good health has a good appetite at all times and is able to stand plenty of work and is rarely on the sick list. To be a good feeder, especially on a journey, is a great recommendation in the opinion of every good judge of horseflesh. The reason of a horse being such a constant eater is that its stomach is really small in proportion to the size of its body, and therefore it requires feeding often, not less than four times a day, two of which should be early in the morning and at night, while hay should in the stall be always within its reach.—London Tit-Bits.

Eat Live Fish.

The Japanese practice refined cruelty to delight their palates. They believe that the fish called the dai is most delicious when eaten alive. An expert Japanese carver can dexterously remove five-sixths of the edible matter from its bones without touching a vital part. During this cruel operation the fish is kept alive by wet seaweed which, being placed over its gills, enables it to breathe.

A Simple Disinfectant.

A simple disinfectant to use in a sickroom or in any room where a close, musty or sewer smell is noticed is to put some ground coffee on a shovel, a bit of camphor gum in the middle of it. Light the gum, which is nonexplosive and easily ignited, with a match and allow the coffee to burn with the gum. A refreshing and sanitary perfume is the result.

The Tobacco Habit.

Chewing tobacco is a filthy habit. Smoking makes you so foul that you can smell yourself. Tobacco is very injurious to health. Every user of tobacco tries to quit it and finds it very difficult. Boys see their elders trying to quit, yet boys make themselves sick in acquiring the tobacco habit.—Atchison Globe.

How Gas Eats Up Our Oxygen.

Some interesting calculations have been made to show why extra ventilation is necessary at night when the rooms are lighted. A man may exist for an hour in a fair sized room hermetically sealed if he has no light burning. Place a lighted candle in that room with him, and his existence will be shortened by fifteen minutes. If he had a lamp instead of a candle, he would live only half an hour. If he had two good gas burners, he would scarcely have time to make his will, for he would not live more than five minutes.

To discover whether or not there is arsenic in your wall paper take a fragment of it and put it in a solution of ammonia. If arsenic is present, the liquid will assume a bluish tint.

Guarantees the payment of

5% Interest Per Annum in Gold Coin, Payable Quarterly, on the

BONDS OF THE

West Virginia Coal, Gas, Oil & Lumber Co.

A Corporation formed for the purpose of operating Coal Mines and working up the vast forest of Virginia timber which is now standing on the 24,000 acres of land controlled by this Company located in Kanawha and Clay Counties, W. Virginia, and various other objects, which have been thoroughly outlined and explained in their prospectus.

These securities, which are a 5 per cent. twenty year gold coupon bond, will afford those investors who wish a safe, conservative and an immediate interest bearing security an excellent opportunity to make a first class investment. The terms under which these bonds are offered will net the holders an immediate 6 per cent on the investment, to say nothing of the bonus of common stock which has been offered, and which we are confident will prove to be in a very short time worth more alone than the price asked for the bonds.

The property owned and controlled by the Company is one which is in no sense of the word a gamble or a speculation, and is not a mere prospect on which they ask you to furnish the money in order to find out whether they have got anything below the surface or not, but, on the other hand, they have three coal veins which will aggregate 15 feet 11 inches in thickness, and millions of feet of lumber right in sight, which is the actual commercial product, and all that is necessary is to put a force of men at work in order to get the goods on the market and the actual immediate returns.

They have planned, in addition to the development of their Coal and Lumber properties, the laying out and building of as large a city as possible on their town site, the erection of a Mammoth Furniture Factory, the completion of their arrangements for retail Coal Agencies, and numerous other objects which will be explained in the prospectus.

The Company is officered and controlled by Boston and New York business men, whose names alone are a sufficient guarantee that the Company's financial and business affairs will be conducted on absolutely sound and safe business principles. These names will be given you in the prospectus of the Company, and we know upon your thorough investigation you will be fully convinced that this is a bona fide business proposition worthy of your immediate attention.

Another striking feature of the Company's business methods is a proposed excursion of business men, bond and stock holders, which they are at this time organizing. They intend in the early spring to take down a train load of those who are interested and desire to go, free of charge, so that they may see for themselves the broad expanse of undeveloped possibilities, which it is next to impossible for us to explain through the medium of prospectuses, advertising, etc.

The capitalization of the Company is a very small one, $500,000 in common stock and $250,000 in bonds, and if you are desirous of investigating this in time to secure a portion of these securities, it will be necessary for you to see us or write us at once, as we are confident that the securities will only be offered to the general public for a very short time.

It is our business to study conditions existing or possible in the various corporations that we represent as fiscal agents, and we have no hesitancy in recommending to our customers the West Virginia Coal, Gas, Oil and Lumber Company Bonds. Our advice is to buy them immediately.

This advertisement is written to you, and we hope you will thoroughly investigate the same immediately, in order to satisfy yourself that we are either right or wrong.

A BIG SCHEME

That Will Benefit the Town—Purchase the Whitney Mill Rights.

The town is confronted with the question of a new location for an engine house, a town stable and a storage yard for the street, sewer and water department—the most difficult proposition, it is believed, the town has yet been confronted with, and one that will call for a large expenditure of money to properly carry out. The engine house and town stable are worn out, and in their condition to attempt renovation would be a waste of money.

These two departments are not in advantageous locations. That there has not been serious accidents from the fire apparatus coming out of Winchester place onto Pleasant street, is singular. How long this immunity will continue is a matter for speculation.

The stone crushing plant is a disagreeable nuisance and a drawback to property in the centre and unsightly to large numbers of people who pass through the town and a blemish to the Town Hall and the Episcopal church. This yard should be far removed from the centre, situated close to the railroad and adequate for the above mentioned apartments. The engine house should be on a main thoroughfare and of easy and quick access to all parts of the town.

When Mr. T. B. Cotter was first elected a member of the Board of Fire Engineers, he gave much thought and time to discovering a solution for the whole question, one that would be broad and lasting for all time. The conclusion tha the came to was far reaching, and one that would in time make a great change in the appearance of the centre, and that was for the town to buy out the interests of the Whitney estate—mill privileges, ponds and machine shop and other buildings on Main and Walnut streets. Mr. Cotter was hard at work on this scheme, when called away to accept a position of rust at Pinehurst, N. C.

His idea was to have the new engine house fronting on the parkway, fill in a portion of the pond adjoining the railroad for a storage yard, the town stable and the stone crushing plant. Also to utilize the pond as a town dumping place, there being none at present. Taken altogether it was a bold sheme, but all who have looked into it pronounce it not only feasible but a most happy solution of a vexed question.

It will cost considerable money to make these changes, but it can be brought about and in the end the town will more than get its money back through the sale of land reclaimed from the pond and which can be filled in without any expense or effort on its part. Again, this scheme solves the problem of a street across the pond to Swanton street. Supt. of Streets Spates is throwing away each year a thousand dollars' worth of material taken from the streets, and the Board of Health is urging that the town collect the ashes, and the necessity of a suitable dumping place. Put this material into the pond and in a short time the street would be made at no expense except building the culverts for the water to pass through. The sale of the land on which are the present town stables and engine house and the yard ought to realize a good sum of money which could go toward the equipment of the new yard.

Then take the river as it runs south. There is that objectionable piece of land adjoining the Town Hall lot and which ought to belong to the town in order to give the building a good setting off. This piece of land can be built upon at any time the trustees of the Whitney estate see fit to do so, and no one can stop them, although no one thinks they will. Going on down to Mystic Lake conditions there will be different this coming summer than they were last year. Established and proven rights connected with the mill privileges are that the water in the lake shall not exceed a certain height at the sill of the old dam where the river enters the lake near Bacon's mill. This height is six feet, but last summer the water was kept much higher with the result that there was sufficient water to flood all parts of the pond and give ample depth for the sailing of boats and canoes. The increase of the water caused a backing up at the machine shop, with the result that a complaint was made to the Water Board of the city of Boston late last summer. The Board sent out engineers who made careful soundings over the ancient mud sill, which completely substantiated the contentions of the trustees of the Whitney estate that the water was being kept too high, consequently the flash boards at the dam at the gate house were lowered so as to reduce the height of the water.

The lowering of the water in the lake by a foot or more presents a serious outlook for the general appearance of this beautiful pond, also for the future of the boat house and the proposed bath house. It means that during the dry weather that that portion of the lake near Wedgemere will become pestilential mud flats and an eye sore and that boating will be seriously interfered with. Therefore it will be seen that there are other interests involved in the scheme of buying out the rights of the Whitney estate besides Winchester, and that the Metropolitan Park Commission is, or ought to be deeply concerned in the project.

The mill rights belonging to the Whitney estate are established facts and they cannot be set aside. Therefore the only thing to be done is for the town and the Metropolitan Park Commissioners to get together and buy up these rights. It will certainly have to be done some time, and the sooner the better. The scheme has the endorsement of a number of prominent citizens, including the suggestions of Mr. Cotter.

Complimentary Dinner to Edward S. Barker.

Mr. Edward S. Barker the well known genial and persuasive insurance manager, was tendered a dinner at Young's Hotel, Boston, last week Thursday evening by the executive officers of the Home Life Insurance Company of New York. Mr. Barker is the manager of the company for this district, and the dinner was given in recognition of his valuable services. About 60 of the agents were present, and like the dinner of a year ago, enthusiasm and good fellowship abounded.

George E. Ide, president, was toastmaster, and among those who accompanied him from New York were E. W. Gladdin secretary, D. W. Chapin, medical director, and G. Wellwood Murray, superintendent of agencies. A feature of the evening was the presentation of accepted policies aggregating $207,000 of insurance from the agency force under Mr. Barker. Mr. F. V. Wooster, Dr. J. I. French, and Dr. G. N. P. Mead of Winchester were present as guests.

WHY MEN GROW WEAK.

Dr. Greene's Nervura Makes Men Healthy, Strong, Vigorous, Powerful.

'Tis indeed the pace which kills. It is not work which injures, it is overwork, worry, confinement, over-taxing the strength, strain upon nerve and body, dissipation or spring debility, which breaks down the health, weakens the nerves, exhausts the body. You become weak, nervous, restless, or fretful; have dizziness, bad-feeling head and unsteady and trembling nerves, strange sensations, a feeling of anxiety, gloom, and discouragement; you are sleepless, and wake tired and unrefreshed; appetite and digestion fail, and you have kidney and liver complaint, constipation, rheumatism—and finally nervous prostration, heart failure, paralysis, insanity—death.

Now, what is the remedy? Obviously something which will rebuild the shattered nerves, restore tone and vitality to the blood, brain, and nerves, and strengthen and invigorate all the organs of the body. There is nothing else known which will so completely and perfectly do this as Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, that grandest of medicines, which is restoring the health of the people, recognized at the present day as the master remedy of the world.

The well-known druggist, Charles W. Eggleston, Esq., 329 Park Ave., Worcester, Mass., says:

"Some time ago I was taken with nervous prostration. I suffered terribly with my nerves and could get no sleep at all. I became fearfully exhausted, my stomach was in a terrible condition from dyspepsia, and I could eat hardly anything.

"I used several medicines, but without benefit. Being in the drug business myself, and having had many customers speak in the highest terms of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, I determined to try it. After taking only one-half bottle I began to feel much better. I slept soundly all night, and my appetite was splendid. After taking three bottles, I ate three square meals a day and had not the slightest distress. My nerves were perfectly strong and I felt like a new man, being completely cured of all my troubles. Out of the respect I bear the manufacturers of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and my desire to have the sick and suffering made well and strong, I heartily recommend it to people who are sick, and especially to people who are the same as I was, nervous and inclined toward dyspepsia and indigestion, and suffering from not being able to sleep well at night."

Especially do men grow weak in spring from the change of season, and every one needs a spring medicine and should take this best of spring remedies, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. It is not a patent medicine, but the prescription of a famous physician, and is therefore exactly adapted to cure. It has standing behind it the most famous and successful specialist in curing nervous, chronic, or lingering diseases, Dr. Greene, 34 Temple Place, Boston, Mass., and an added value and assurance of cure is given to this wonderful remedy because the Doctor can be consulted, without charge, about your case, personally or by writing to him.

"He Loveth Our Nation."

Last Sabbath morning, March 9th, Rev. George A. Hood of Boston, New England Field Secretary of the Congregational Church Building Society, spoke of the work of the Society in the Lexington Congregational church, and in the evening at the Winchester Congregational church.

His text was Luke 7: 5: "He loveth our nation and himself hath built us a synagogue." He said that lovers of our nation must help build sanctuaries. Ever since God built the tabernacle in the wilderness all forms of the true religion must have their churches, and, indeed, all false religions must have their temples. Congregationalists are the only ones who organize 200 churches, more or less, and build only a few more than 100 per year.

Our young men developing the new towns are equipped with docks, elevators, mills, machinery, and every improvement for doing their work six days of the week; will they go to church the first day of the week in an abandoned saloon, or a dance hall, carpenter shop, or the loft of a livery stable? No, it makes them home-sick; they have no respect for a church which cannot build, and they cannot afford $25 or $50 to help it build. The church, like any other line of business, needs an equipment to succeed. If we can aid the young church to build, the new settlers will attend, will give 50 cents or $1 or $2 a week to make it self-supporting; and the future character of the new town can be moulded by the church. Thus the Congregational Church Building Society helps the young churches of the Congregational Home Missionary Society, and of the American Missionary Association among the dark races.

We aid them by three funds; the grant fund, the loan fund, and the parsonage loan fund. The money is paid back to be used over and over, the loans every five years, the grant irregularly by contributions. Every dollar is secured by first mortgage and insurance policy, therefore there will be no loss. The aid pays only last bills, therefore the missionary church will be out of debt. The Society has always paid every dollar when due, therefore donors to the annuity fund may be sure of their interest money and yet execute their own wills.

Why do they need help? Because a church building costs for or five times as much as the missionary's salary. Where the Home Missionary Society helps pay the minister, economy and success demand that the Church Building Society should be able to give much larger aid on the building. Because to convert open praries or empty woods into a town is hard for the first settlers; with farms and homes mortgaged, interest and taxes high, shanties to live in, usually at first no partitions, no plaster or paint, no cellar or well; snow drifts inside when there are snowstorms outside, and food frozen solid in the morning; the people cannot build churches without help. But they give wonderfully. A carpenter trying to get a home for his wife and two children gave $175 out of $2 a day wages; a laborer earning $400 a year gave $150 and a note for $100 more. A minister living in a dugout had saved money for a new roof, but afraid of losing the new church for lack of Church Building Society money, he gave his roof money and kept an umbrella beside the bed in case of rain.

A missionary church has no hope of success till it gets a church building, and it cannot build without aid. If not aided, the churches will die, or if they live it will be only by taking continued Home Missionary aid. One Home Missionary Superintendent said his churches would live only two years without a building. Large numbers of churches have died from this cause, for a church without a building is like an egg without a shell, the more it is brooded the worse condition it is in. When a church dies, it damages the moral future of the new town and loses the Christian workers and riches of the future.

If we aid a church to build, a revival soon follows and many Eastern young men are saved in this way in the new town, new life, new habits. A Minnesota church took Home Missionary aid for thirteen years without a sign of success; but when the Church Building Society gave it $500 to pay last bills on a $1600 church, a revival began with the dedication, and fourteen young men were converted.

Then comes self-support. One Minnesota church expected every year for five years to throw off Home Missionary aid; the sixth year it had $500 aid from the Church Building Society on a $5,000 church, and has been self-supporting ever since. A good way to save Home Missionary money; but why couldn't the Church Building Society have aided the church five years before and saved $1,500 Home Missionary money? For lack of money. In North Wisconsin, of the new churches aided to build about the same time, all of them were self-supporting in four years except one and that was soon.

Often the Church Building Society has to cut down the application of a church forcing it to a hard struggle to pay up; then the church must have more Home Missionary money the next year, because they emptied their pockets on the building; and the extra expense to the Home Missionary Society proves to be more than the amount the Church Building Society cut them down. The greatest trouble a home missionary has is in the struggle to pay for a church building when the Church Building Society cannot aid him promptly and sufficiently. Worry, over-work, sickness follow, and often he leaves, broken down.

Thus by prompt payment of bills, revival and self-support, we see that every $1000 given to the Congregational Church Building Society will save $1000 to the Congregational Home Missionary Society in about three years.

The Society should have nearly twice its present income in order to help the Home Missionary Society and the American Missionary Association do their work with economy and efficiency.

Asthma

"One of my daughters had a terrible case of asthma. We tried almost everything, but without relief. We then tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and three and one-half bottles cured her."—Emma Jane Entsminger, Langsville. O.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral certainly cures many cases of asthma.

And it cures bronchitis, hoarseness, weak lungs, whooping-cough, croup, winter coughs, night coughs, and hard colds.

Only A Groceryman's Clerk.

What jolly good times a grocers' clerk has!
Such fun driving 'round with a team;
Taking the orders, delivering the goods;
A life like a sweet summer's dream.
You are always so happy, in all kinds of weather;
You never play or shirk;
If customers scold, you smile in return,
For you are only a groceryman's clerk.

You call on customer number one;
"Why, what made you come so soon?
I hav'nt had time to think what I want.
Can you get my goods here before noon?"
"Oh, certainly, ma'am," you smiling reply,
"Without trouble or extra work."
You copy her order and bow yourself out,
Like a good natured groceryman's clerk.

The next call you make, the lady's up stairs,
"Grocer, grocer," you call at the door.
"Just wait a moment, I'll be right down."
You sigh, for you've been there before.
"Well, what have you got that's easy to cook?
I'm rushed halt to death with my work."
You name everything that comes to your mind;
That's your duty as a groceryman's clerk.

"Would you like some apples, peaches or plums,
Canned goods, spices, coffee or cheese?
Anything in the cereal line?
Let me sell you some oranges, please."
"I'll just take a yeast cake today, I guess."
[You inwardly swear like a Turk]
"And please bring it early, I need it soon."
Well, you are only a groceryman's clerk.

The next one gives you a letter to mail
And asks you to get her some thread.
"And please bring a bottle of soothing syrup,
For babe has a cold in its head."
Of course it's no trouble, you've plenty of time,
And you are certainly paid for such work;
So you tell her you're pleased to favor her thus,
For you are only a groceryman's clerk.

You hurry and drive to get back on time;
Some will scold you for driving so fast,
Others will say, "well where have you been?
You don't say you've got here at last."
You tell them the wagon broke down on the road,
Or the help in the store's not at work,
Just any old thing that comes to your mind,
Such is life for a groceryman's clerk.

It's early and late in all kinds of weather,
In sunshine, in rain or in snow,
The people must eat whether you do or not;
So you've nothing else but to go.
You get wet to your hide, and a cold in your head,
And you feel like quitting such work;
But there's nothing else for you to do,
You were born a groceryman's clerk.

So you keep right on in the same old way,
For days and weeks and years.
You're a happy-go-lucky sort of a crank,
With no thought of sighs or tears.
Yet you often hope for better days,
For easier and better paid work,
But you'll live in hope and die in despair,
For 'tis fate, you're a groceryman's clerk.

—Willis S. Wentworth, New London, Ct.

More Power Coming.

The Boston & Northern St. Railway Co. has purchased six or eight acres of land in Danversport on the Danvers river, and will shortly begin the erection of a mammoth central power plant there, the cost of which, it is said, will be in the vicinity of $1,000,000.

The erection of this new station will not mean the discontinuance of the comparatively new power plant on Mason street, Salem. It is planned, however, to do away with several smaller power houses about the country, among them probably the plants at Essex Falls, Wakefield and possibly the one at Lawrence.

The new power house will supply electricity for the Essex and Gloucester lines, the Middlesex and Lawrence and through Peabody to those in Wakefield and beyond.—Wakefield Item.

Danger of Colds and La Grippe.

The greatest danger from colds and la-grippe is their resulting in pneumonia. If reasonable care is used, however, and Chamberlain's Cough Remedy taken, all danger will be avoided. Among the tens of thousands who have used this remedy for these diseases, we have yet to learn of a single case having resulted in pneumonia, which shows conclusively that it is a certain preventive of that dangerous malady. It will cure a cold or an attack of la grippe in less time than any other treatment. It is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by Young & Brown.

The School Committee.

The following is the bill in the Legislature upon petition of Mrs. Alice Parker Lesser for the legislative committee of the Massachusetts Federation of Women's Clubs, for legislation to allow women to participate in primaries and caucuses for school committees:

Women who are registered to vote for members of school committees, shall be entitled to vote at primaries and at caucuses in cities and towns at which members of school committees are selected: provided, that such vote shall be applicable only to members of school committees voted for directly, or by delegates to a convention: and proper ballots to be used by women shall be furnished as other ballots are furnished.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Winde's Narrow Escape.

The Parkersburg, W. Va., Enquirer of March 4, contained the following:

William Ball, while going to work this morning along the Baltimore and Ohio track east of this city, discovered a large rock on the track. No sooner did he make the discovery than he heard a train coming. It was train No. 1 and it was six hours late. Two engines were attached, and the speed was 45 miles an hour, in order to make up some lost time.

Ball, realizing the awful situation, tore a red handkerchief from around his throat and started toward the train waving it frantically. The engineer saw it and reversed, stopping the train just as the cowcatcher rubbed the rock.

No. 1 is a passenger train and was loaded with passengers, and there is no doubt but this timely action prevented a bad wreck.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Winde were passengers on the train and he writes:

"The scene was a deep cut on a single track, and a sharp curve and the space completely filled. A wrecking crew was summoned and it consumed six hours to clear the track by the use of dynamite. A closer call I never had while railroading. We are well and thankful that we are living.

Having purchased the business of the late J. C. Stanton, I am prepared to keep a full line of fancy and staple groceries. By prompt attention and courteous treatment I hope to merit a share of your patronage.

Strikes A Rich Find.

"I was troubled for several years with chronic indigestion and nervous debility," writes F. J. Green of Lancaster, N. H. "No remedy helped me until I began using Electric Bitters, which did me more good than all the medicines I ever used. They have also kept my wife in excellent health for years. She says Electric Bitters are just splendid for female troubles; that they are a grand tonic and invigorator for weak, run down women. No other medicine can take its place in our family." Try them. Appropriations Committee.

The vote passed at the town meeting of this week that hereafter the report of the Appropriations Committee be given to the voters at the time the town warrant is distributed is most correct. Time should be given for a consideration of the report, which cannot be done if it is given to the citizens at the time of the meeting. As Mr. John T. Wilson truly says, — if this should become the practice, then the functions of the good old fashioned town meeting are certain to be usurped.

The Mill Rights.

The time is fast approaching when the town should buy out the mill rights of the Whitney estate in this town. These rights cover a great deal of territory and it is impossible these days to bring about many improvements without infringing on those rights. We believe that the trustees will be fair to the town, if approached, and backed by authority from the citizens looking to a purchase. The owners of this property are deserving of thanks for preventing buildings being erected on the borders of the pond. They have had many tempting offers, but have refused them all in order to preserve the good looks of the centre of the town, so far as it laid in their power.

A Word for the Moderator.

The citizens of our town may well feel themselves under deep obligations to its new Moderator, Mr. Edgar J. Rich, for the skilful and dignified manner with which he discharged the onerous and difficult duties of the office. That a gentleman should be willing to remain at his post of duty at the Town Hall from sunrise until sunset as the statutes direct, is irksome enough, but when we add to this the long and tedious service of two evenings, it speaks volumes for the self-sacrifice and local patriotism of a citizen whose time is valuable. Mr. Rich made an ideal Moderator, dignified, impartial and rigidly precise in parliamentary usage. The business of the town was thus transacted in a dignified and prompt manner which rejoices the hearts of citizens who enjoy going to the March meetings and yet are anxious to reach their respective homes on the same day. Even certain orators, long accustomed to air their eloquence on these occasions, were a trifle shy of the new Moderator and were forced to wait for a more auspicious time to let the citizens know what they were spared on this occasion.

Words Well Put and Fitly Spoken.

When we expressed the hope in a recent number of the STAR that the worthy seventeen gentlemen who made up our Committee on Appropriations for this year would take the educational bull by the horns, we naturally supposed that they would do so with a very gentle hand. But that they should actually grab the taurine quadruped by the horns and knock him off his feet, did not occur to us. They did it, however, in good shape as the following vigorous and well put language gives ample proof that in considering the present educational situation they fairly outdid themselves. These are their words:

The town is now brought face to face with the question: Shall we proceed at once to build a new High School House?

To do this will require one of the largest appropriations of money that we have ever been called upon to expend, probably not less than $100,000. The report of the School Committee shows that the capacity of the present high school is already reached, and some relief must be afforded at an early date. Your committee do not feel like recommending another addition to the present building, except as a last resort, and feel that on the whole it is best to take the necessary steps to erect a building commensurate with the probable demands of the Town.

If this is to be done, some legislative action will be required, as the borrowing capacity of the Town will not permit of so large an expenditure. It is believed by those conversant with such matters that authority would be readily granted by the legislature for this particular purpose.

A Strong Committee and Well Equipped for the Work.

In accordance with the motion presented by the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations in connection with the consideration of articles 15 and 16 in the town warrant for the town meeting on March 3, the Moderator, Mr. Edgar J. Rich, announced at the adjourned town meeting last Monday evening the names of the four gentlemen chosen by him for this committee. This committee as now made up consists of the members of the School Committee, Charles F. A. Currier, Albert F. Blaisdell and Frank F. Carpenter, and in addition Samuel J. Elder, Preston Pond, Arthur H. Russell and Charles E. L. Wingate. To borrow a word from our athletic friends, this is indeed a "strong team." The Moderator assured the assembled citizens that each one of these gentlemen had been consulted and had agreed to give his best efforts to a thorough and prompt consideration of the motion as unanimously passed at the annual meeting. This assurance was needed only as a matter of courtesy. The make up of this committee speaks for itself. Each and every member is strong along certain lines of action absolutely needed to handle in proper shape at this particular time this question of additional school accommodations. If these seven citizens, figuratively speaking, will pull off their coats, roll up their sleeves, and take a broad and level-headed view of the whole educational situation, they are sure to recommend the right sort of policy. We even venture to predict that they will. Undoubtedly, they will take the same broad-minded and liberal view of the subject as was expressed in the printed report of the committee on appropriations, the text of which we print elsewhere. These certainly are not the men to shirk or dodge either the work or responsibility of their important task. We would not venture to suggest what this committee may or may not recommend to the town for a line of action to meet the present educational condition, but we sincerely hope, and have every reason to assure the readers of the STAR, that they will not rest satisfied until they have recommended something less conservative and parsimonious than patching up the antiquated and over-crowded building now used for high school purposes. The position taken by the STAR in its recent discussions of this question, we are confident, reflects the opinion of many of our most thoughtful property holders who have at heart the best interests of our educational service. From all sorts of tax-paying citizens, we are assured that the time has now come to face the music. We shall be disappointed if these seven gentlemen do not do it.

Rossini's Stabat Mater at the Unitarian Church.

The Latin hymn, Stabat Mater, was composed by the Franciscan, Jacopone, in the 13th century. It was set to music in 1832 by the great Italian composer, Gioachimo Antonio Rossini. At the Unitarian church Sunday evening this ancient, classical music was finely rendered by the regular choir of the church assisted by a double quartet chorus of concert artists, the whole being under the direction of the church organist, Mrs. George Lochman.

The accompaniments were beautifully brought out by Mrs. Lochman, who interpreted the music with much feeling and delicate expression. All of the singers acquitted themselves with much credit and it is doubtful if a more dignified, reverential vesper service was ever held in Winchester. The address, or short sermon, on the "House and its Foundation," was very appropriate to the occasion. The only regret over this effort to give the public a taste of beautiful, classic church music, is the fact that the evening was so stormy that all could not attend that wished to. Such a genuine treat of religious musical worship should be repeated, as it must have been the result of much practice and labor to have produced it so successfully. Such music is not tiresome, but restful, and it would please many who heard the Stabat Mater for the first time last Sunday to listen to it again. Mrs. Lochman and the other artists all deserve much credit for their ambitious performance so successfully carried out.

A LOVER OF GOOD MUSIC.

Honors to Winchester's King Edward.

On Thursday evening, March 6th, the Home Life Insurance Co., of New York, gave a birthday dinner complimentary to Mr. E. S. Barker, at Young's, to which all the agents of the company in the vicinity of Boston were invited. Pres. Ide, Secretary Gladwin, Dr. Chapin and Supt. Murray, of the New York office, were present and made addresses, as did also Mr. Barker and others.

The dinner, the flowers, the service and the speeches were all pleasing and thoroughly enjoyed. Letters of regret were read from King Edward, Prince Henry and Pres. Roosevelt, the king referring to his coming coronation and Winchester's Edward's recent one. If all the complimentary things said about Mr. Barker on this occasion were to be repeated here he would blush for the next three months, and he does not blush easily, either.

In closing his speech he presented Pres. Ide with one hundred applications obtained just previous to the dinner, amounting to $207,000.00.

The Home Life Co. has the reputation of being one of the best managed and most successful of all the companies and justly popular with Winchester men who have over one half a million of life insurance placed with this company.

Organization of Board of Trustees of Town Library.

The above Board met on Tuesday evening, and after the newly elected member was introduced into the methods and the work of the Board, it was organized as follows: E. N. Lovering, chairman; G. W. Davenport, treasurer, with authority to approve bills; Arthur E. Whitney, secretary and prudential committee.

It was voted to hereafter hold regular meetings of the Trustees on the first Monday evening of each month, except in the case of a holiday, when the meeting will be held on the succeeding evening. It was also voted to prepare a new supplement to library catalogue, to include all additions made to the library since the original catalogue, under the present system, was issued. After a free exchange of opinions regarding the best methods to increase the usefulness of the library, the meeting adjourned.

Mr. Charles T. Main, chairman of the Water Board, is not a town meeting orator yet he has a pretty clear idea of what his Board wants, and he has a plain way of stating that fact. Newsy Paragraphs.

If all the colored people in Winchester would only for a short time lay aside their prejudices and join in the movement recently organized to establish a Baptist church here the matter would quickly be settled, and the new church might and would be a success. Rev. Mr. Mitchell has been holding meetings regularly every Sunday in Waterfield Hall, which have been well attended. It is quite evident that the colored population of the town is not large enough to support two churches, each with the expense of a separate minister, and this really seems unnecessary if those who are now holding aloof would only join with the present congregation.

A State inspector of steam boilers was in town Monday and practically condemned the steam fire engine. He pronounced it as being worn out and dangerous, and recommended that its use be discontinued as soon as possible. This will necessitate the town buying a new engine. Had this been known previous to the town meeting, the citizens would have then been called on to make an appropriation for a new one. As the matter now rests there may be a special town meeting called to purchase an engine.

Carroll Newell, son of William C. Newell of Main street, our former auditor, while playing with a 32 calibre revolver last Monday afternoon, accidently discharged it into the forefinger of his left hand. Dr. D. C. Dennett, who dressed the painful wound, hopes to save the finger from amputation.

A rather sad case was the sickness with diptheria, the first of the week, of three members of the Deloria family, residing on Spruce street,—the father and two children, one of the latter dying. What made the conditions particularly painful was the destitute condition of the family. The father is industrious, but only receives in wages $9 a week, so it is seen that not much was laid away when this sickness came. The Overseers of the Poor were appealed to, but declined to do anything at first, because they did not want to pauperize the family. Later they assisted the afflicted ones, who were utterly destitute of food.

A large elm tree, one of the biggest in town, was removed from the lot on Walnut street near the bridge Wednesday. Metropolitan Park Tax.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The Legislature authorized assessments in the Metropolitan district for parks and boulevards to begin in 1900. Some municipalities raised questions of law in the court as to its legality, so that the assessments have not been levied. Recently all these objections have been swept aside by the Court so that this year we shall have three assessments to pay, namely, for 1900, 1901 and 1902. The state authorities suggested to the assessors that they raise by taxation the limit of the law (five per cent. on amount raised) for overlay which would provide for the first year's assessment and thereby save raising so much by taxation all in one year. Our assessors complied with this suggestion as most of the other towns and cities did. Those places that did not thus comply are at the doors of the Legislature asking for authority to borrow so as to distribute this three years' assessment which comes all at one time. The first assessment, which is for the year 1900, has been made up, but not levied, and will not be levied until the others have been calculated, which will be about four months hence. The first assessment will be $5,271.11, and out of the overlay tax there was transferred $5,271.47 to meet it. The second and third assessments will be larger, probably about $5,800.00, but there is an unexpended balance in overlay account of $6,126.24, from which the second assessment may be taken. The third assessment, the one for 1902, will probably be larger yet, and will be about $6,000, which will have to be raised by taxation this year, which will add about 66 cents to the tax rate.

Echoes.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The Appropriations Committee's report might have been successfully attacked on one or two items, but apparently nobody outside of committee members saw it, or if they did, had courage to assail these items, on some of which the majority was very small. The report, as a whole, was very strong, and another thing that added strength was the fact that so many of the usual town meeting debators were members of the committee and preferred to support the report as a whole, and therefore attacked none of the items in the town meeting.

Uncle Nat began dealing the Water Board hard blows more than a quarter of a century ago, and he was just as vigorous Monday night as ever. Some of the blundering about Dyke's brook was pretty bad, but the heated argument was so hot and personal that the speakers, at least the opposition one, forgot his facts, and stated some things that should not have been said.

The citizen who is not on some committee is the exception, and they are important committees too, but if they are not alive and ready to report within a reasonable time they should be called to account, for they should either serve or resign. In the past too many matters have been referred to boards and committees and never heard from afterwards.

Talk about transferring the money from Highland avenue extension account; why there are five claims yet unsettled. Nuf sed.

The committee on Manchester field, etc., ought to accomplish a good deal for the town and straighten out this long drawn out matter. Under the vote its authority covers about everything affecting this most important question.

It is evident that the incidental account is not to be the free milch cow it has been in the past, and other departments will not be able to work it as formerly.

Orders and vouchers for all stuff ordered by the various boards and officials is the proper caper, and the ex-Auditor's motion was a good one.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

The address next Sunday afternoon at the Men's meeting will be by Rev. D. E. Croft of Boston. Mr. Croft is a lecturer of note, a brilliant and magnetic speaker and a thoughtful student. The association is especially fortunate in securing him for its Sunday afternoon meeting. A large audience of men should greet him. Another attraction will be the male quartett of the Stoneham Baptist church who sang a few weeks ago so acceptably, altogether a very strong service. Plan to attend.

Mr. E. J. Reynolds, the boys' secretary at Melrose will speak to the boys' at 3 o'clock. All the boys who have attended camp the past season know "Ned' Reynolds. Be sure and hear him.

The mechanical drawing class which has been watched with a great deal of interest on the part of many men outside the association as well as the management, closed under very pleasing auspices on Tuesday night.

Two terms of ten weeks each complete the course in the first years' work. The teacher was a man of long experience and a success with the men from the first session. The men were all but two of the 15 enrolled from the McKay factory. Two have left town during the course leaving a possible attendance of 13. During the entire 20 lessons the average has been 11 1-2 never going below 9. The men with one accord are highly satisfied with what they have received and regret the end of the term coming so soon. Ice cream and cake were furnished by the instructor and a photograph of the class in operation was taken Tuesday night. All in all the class has been a great seccess of much gratification to the management.

The basket ball season is nearly over only one more game is scheduled and that with the Boston Y. M. C. A., next Thursday night. It will be a fitting wind up as the Boston team will give the Winchester team a hard game to win. The game last Monday night with Malden was classed by the many as the best game of the season. It was certainly a very fast and interesting game to watch. At no time were the visitors nearer to winning than 18 to 25, which was the final score, but they had the Winchester boys on the ragged edge several times in the second half. This would be a hard team to beat on their own floor and should be winners next season.

The monthly meeting of the Womens Auxiliary was held Tuesday afternoon. Good reports were rendered from all departments and $136 reported in the treasury. The April meeting will be addressed by Mrs. James C. Macy of Somerville. Subject, "The boy of today the man of tomorrow.

Next week Friday afternoon the boys conference at Haverhill opens. All the boys who are to attend should decide at once as the Haverhill people want to know how many to provide for.

The last of the Bible lectures will be on Wednesday evening at 8 at the Rector's. The topic will be "Savonarola."

The Choir Guild will have their monthly meeting at the Rector's house on next Thursday evening at 7.30. The speaker will be the Rev. J. R. Jenkins.

Holy Week begins on Palm Sunday, March 23, a week from next Sunday. The arrangement of the services during the week and of the Easter services will be found on the Lenten Cards.

There is to be an illustrated lecture given in Waterfield Hall, Friday evening, Mar. 21, by the Rev. Joseph Cullen Ayer, on the "History of Church Architecture." This lecture is given under the auspices of the Guild of St. Cross. The topic is of immediate interest to the parish, and a large attendance is hoped for. The tickets are to be 25 cts.

Observations.

[Written by N. A. Richardson.]

The Prince has come and gone, a scion of royal stock, feasted and feted with splended fawning. Soon in the world calendar of departed greatness will his living form be moulding in the tomb of mortality. While all the honors of born renown flash from his brow and culminate in meritricious show, with formality stalking before and behind his trail, he comes and goes, only flesh and blood, with the same stamp of death that the poor plebian wears in his daily toil. With his appetite toned with the luxuries of the earth, and his lips quaffing the red wine, with a monarchs crown in view, the sorrows of his soul and the pains of his body are increased by the poignant thorns of family rule. His teutonic neighbor, in simplicity, eats his bread, sips his beer, lays his head to rest and in quiet dreams of the morrow; both hastening to the same judgment seat, bearing the image of the same God; the record of their lives a pasport for reward or punishment.

Last Saturday, when in Boston, I met Horace Nelson, of Waterville, Maine, a world wide horse man, the owner of "Nelson," "Dictator Chief," and "Nelson's Wilkes'" by George Wilkes. Nelson's Wilkes sired George H. Gilbert's horse "Glimmer," record 2.23 1-2. Mr. Nelson told me of Glimmer's great race, in which he got his record. Nelson said that after the race was over a gentleman stepped up to him and asked the price of the horse. He replied he did not care to sell. The gentleman put his hand into his pocket, pulled out a roll of bills, and began to count them out, until he had counted out ten one hundred dollar bills, and said, "take them and give me a bill of sale of the horse," which Mr. Nelson concluded to do, and Glimmer was sold on the spot for one thousand dollars.

It is an interesting fact that the first high school house (now standing) was built on land once owned by Edward Converse, and the new high school house, when built on the Howe lot, will be built on land once owned by the same Edward Converse.

The first school house ever built in Woburn stood near the junction of Montvale avenue and the common. The second one ever built, was just south of Prince avenue, on Washington street, So. Woburn, now Winchester.

A great deal of feeling is expressed about the cutting up of the Sanborn estate on Washington street and the class of houses being erected there. This is a beautiful part of the town, fitly located for fine residences.

At the adjourned meeting Monday night, the friends of Mr. Carter, the new selectman, were highly pleased at the clear and forceful manner in which he presented town business. He has already made his mark as a discreet and able officer.

Henry Johnson showed his old time familiarity with town business, and that he is the best posted man in town on official obligations.

Only one, of the three first selectmen of Winchester was born within the limits of Woburn or Winchester.

A great deal has been written recently about the early and late history of senator and vice-president Henry Wilson, which has been misleading, and at variance with the facts. Early in life I became acquainted with Henry Wilson, and had from his own lips some statements that would make interesting reading. I received many favors from his influence in Washington, for which I shall ever be grateful.

Representative McCall can say in the language of Thomas H. Benton, "Solitary and alone, I put this ball in motion."

Who cannot remember the fierce opposition of Tom Corwin (" the wagoner boy" of Ohio) to the Mexican war, when he declared if he was of that nation, "he would meet the North with bloody hands and hospitable graves." Tom Corwin was a great power in Ohio politics, and of eminence in Congress; few could excel him on the stump. In brilliant oratory and sparkling wit he could not stand by the side of S. S. Prentice of Mississippi, who on the forum, could melt to tears a heart of stone, or raise a tempest of indignation to slaughter his opponents. Who has forgotten John C. Freemont and the excitement of his explorations across the continent to the Pacific slope with the devotion of his heroic wife, Jessie Benton, who in all the ups and downs of his political and military career stood by him to avenge neglect, encourage and stimulate his waning star. Had he been elected president, his charming wife would have graced the White House with an ease and dignity of talent and manners, the admiration of the world.

A Delightful Pen Picture of an Aged and Respected Citizen.

From the columns of the "Boston Evening Herald" of March 10, devoted to "Stories of the town," we clip the following charming pen picture of an aged and highly honored citizen of this town:

Col. Nathaniel A. Richardson of Winchester, who, during his 80 odd years of residence in that charming community, has held all manner of public office, and who served his country during the civil war mourns because one of his proud records has been shattered by a temporary illness. "Col." Richardson, as some of his neighbors love to call him, is a familiar figure in town meeting and, as for attendance at caucuses, he has never failed during 36 years to be present till sickness held him in bed the other night.

Col. Richardson never lets a town meeting pass without making a more or less extended address. More than that, he always comes early and occupies the same relative position in the town hall during such meetings. Folks say he invariably selects a seat on the left side of the hall, just under the balcony and about four rows down from the front. This is no whim, but a carefully devised scheme on the part of the colonel. He settles himself just under the balcony because it serves as a sounding board, and by securing a seat close to the aisle he may jump promptly to his feet and catch the eye of the moderator long before some other would-be talker can extricate his laggard feet and legs from an inside seat in a more crowded part of the hall. In recent years Col. Richardson has made some extended speeches and he has also attempted to make speeches that have been nipped into percussion-like brevity on the expiration of the time limit by the moderator's gavel. He says the longer he lives the more he has in mind to tell the town as to how this and that measure should be handled.

Col. Richardson is a remarkable man, measuring memory. He is a record of events that transpired before most of us glanced over the green, fair field of nature. More than that, the "Sage" of Winchester is reliable when he goes back into the doubtful realm of things and men that were. He has written miles and miles of newspaper matter, and has a fine fund of recollection about prominent officials long since dead. But he is quiet in conversation, modest in demeanor and a great reader. His recovery from illness will be in season for the annual meeting.

The Fortnightly.

At the regular meeting of the Club on Monday afternoon, the Education Committee, Mrs. Lizzie A. Pratt, chairman, presented an enjoyable program. A soprano singer from Cambridge gave two charming selections. Mrs. Heloise E. Hersey lectured upon the "Modern Novel and its Relation to the Modern Woman." A large audience followed Miss Hersey's lecture closely, and showed their appreciation and enjoyment at the close, by a rising vote.

The Fortnightly Shakespeare Class will meet with Mrs. Benj. Blank, Highland avenue, Monday, March 17, at 2.30 o'clock. Reading, "The Tempest."

Any Old Time.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Running the cars on the Arlington and Winchester line on any old time must cut into the receipts of the road, likewise the patience of the traveling public. What is the trouble, Mr. Editor.

PATRON.

TOWN MEETING.

Business Quickly Transacted and Meeting Dissolved.

The second and last session of the annual town meeting was held Monday evening. Moderator Rich was promptly on hand and when he called the citizens to order, there was not a large attendance, but before the meeting got down to the real business there was the usual attendance on the floor and in the galleries. The session would have been exceedingly tame but for a wordy warfare between Town Counsel Joy and Mr. N. A. Richardson in regard to diverting the water of Dykes meadow from the North Reservoir. This happily passed off without bloodshed and with but slightly injured feelings.

The first article to be taken up was No. 13, and under it Chairman, Charles T. Main of the Water Board offered the following:

Voted, That the Town Treasurer be and is authorized and directed to issue and sell bonds of the town to be denominated "Winchester Water Fund Bonds," amounting to $12,000, payable to bearer as follows: $6000 becoming due Nov. 1, 1929, $6000 becoming due Nov. 1, 1930, with interest at the rate of 3 1-2 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annualy, upon presentation of the cupons attached to the said bonds, the said bonds to be signed by the Town Treasurer and countersigned by the Water Board bearing the corporate seal of the town, and being issued for the purpose of paying for laying water mains and further completing and renewing the water system in accordance with provisions of chapter 82 of the acts of the Legislature in the year 1900, to be expended under the direction of Water Board.

He said at the meeting of a week ago the Board had been found fault with because it had not informed the citizens as to what was being done in regard to diverting the water from Dyke's Meadow and also because the Board had asked the Legislature for leave to increase the water indebtedness by $50,000. In relation to former, he read from the Town Reports of the past few years reports of the Board wherein he showed conclusively that the town had been kept informed of every move about to be made in diverting the impure water of the meadow from the North Reservoir supply. In regard to asking the Legislature for leave to issue $50,000 of bonds, he expected Mr. Huntress would be present to reply. But the facts in the case as it stood was that no bonds could be issued without the consent of the town.

Mr. N. A. Richardson said it was not necessary to go before the Legislature to ask for a right of way to drain the meadow when the town already had a legal right over two ways.

Mr. Joy then gave a detailed account of what had been done in regard to investigating the town's rights in the matter. He claimed there was no legal rights, and all that could be done was to purchase rights of way for the water over private lands, and this had been done to the advantage of the town. The water had never run, as Mr. Richardson claimed, for time immemorial over the route purchased by the town. If so it would not have been necessary to blast out ledges for the new brook. The land was taken by right of eminent domain because of the exorbitant prices asked by the owners.

The motion offered by Mr. Main was then passed unanimously.

MANCHESTER FIELD.

On motion of Selectman Carter, article 3 was taken up, when he offered the following:

Moved, That a Committee of five, of which the Chairman shall be one, be appointed by the Moderator to confer with the Metropolitan Park Commission regarding Manchester Field and adjacent territory, Bacon street bridge and any other properties affecting same and report in print at the next town meeting.

Selectman Carter said it was high time the town knew how matters stood in regard to the playground, and when it was to be made available. This committee, while it was not intended to usurp the functions of the local park board, could accomplish more through a conference with the Metropolitan Board and find out how matters stood and let the citizens know at a future meeting.

The motion was carried.

The Moderator then appointed the following committee: Messrs. Joseph S. Nowell, Lewis Parkhurst, James F. Dorsey, Arthur E. Whitney, Edgar J. Rich ex-officio.

MAIN STREET BRIDGE.

Under article 12, Mr. A. E. Whitney offered the following:

Voted, That the Board of Selectmen are hereby requested to petition the Board of County Commissioners to complete the rebuilding of Main street between Converse place and Walnut street to the full width of 60 feet as laid out by said commissioners, charging the expense therefor to the town and other interested parties as their interests may appear. The Selectmen are also requested to secure to the fullest possible extent, the co-operation of the State and County in the work of rebuilding this expensive piece of County road connecting directly with a state parkway.

Mr. Whitney in offering this motion said there was no reason why this part of Main street should not receive the same benefits as the other portion of the street from the widening. Large taxes were paid here, and the claim that there was a cat in the meal was unfounded. If the Selectmen and the trustees of the Whitney estate will only get together the matter can be amicably settled to the satisfaction of the interested parties. Raising the grade of the street, had damaged the abutting property by forcing the street water onto it.

Mr. J. P. Boutwell hoped the citizens would do nothing in regard to the matter, if they did they would find in the end that the town would be put to great expense and a serious future responsiblity.

Selectman Fitzgerald did not favor doing anything at present, as there was a prospect that this whole mill property might be purchased by the town and the State Park Board. However, if the vote was passed, he would recognize the fact that he was a servant of the town and do as instructed.

Mr. H. F. Johnson claimed that the motion was illegal as the citizens had no right to request the Selectmen to do this work.

In reply to Mr. Boutwell, Mr. Whitney said the work could be done for a few hundred dollars and disclaimed that the town was being led into a trap, as the Selectmen could do as they pleased in regard to the matter.

The motion was then passed.

TOWN ENGINEERS.

Mr. F. V. Wooster offered the following vote which was carried:

That the Town of Winchester employ a competent civil engineer to be chosen by the members of the following Boards: Selectmen, Water, Park, Cemetery and Assessors, acting jointly, the expense incurred to be charged to highways and bridges account, each of the other departments to reimburse the Highway Department for its proportional part of the total engineering expenses, the amount of said proportional part to be determined by the joint committee. Said appointed engineer shall have charge of all plans and of the entire engineering work of the town under the direction of the above mentioned boards.

TOWN PURCHASES.

On motion of Mr. William C. Newell the following was passed:

That, hereafter all purchases on behalf of the town shall be made upon an order signed by a person designated by each department, board or committee, or any person or persons authorized by the town to expend its money and that such order or a duplicate, so marked, shall accompany each bill presented to the Auditor for examination and approval.

TOWN CLERK NOT TO CALL CAUCUSES.

On motion of Mr. H. F. Johnson it was voted, "that the Town Clerk is hereby directed not to call any caucuses or participate in any caucuses, officially, in the town."

APPROPRIATIONS COMMITTEE.

The following motion offered by Mr. George C. Coit was passed:

That the Treasurer and Auditor ex-officio and fifteen registered voters (none of whom shall be town officials) appointed by the Moderator of the meeting, be a committee to consider appropriations proposed to be acted upon at all town meetings held during the ensuing year, except as to such matters as may be referred by the town to special committees and to report at all such meetings the report on the appropriations proposed to be acted upon at the annual town meeting to be in print and to be distributed not later than five days before the distribution of the town warrants.

The moderator appointed the following to serve on this committee:

Messrs. Louis Barta, James P. Boutwell, George C. Coit, Frank A. Cutting, William J. Daly, William H. Goodwin, Francis J. O'Hara, Charles Mills, Lewis Parkhurst, Handel Pond, Charles E. Redfern, Frank L. Ripley, D. Nelson Skillings, John T. Wilson, George A. Woods, and Treasurer Spurr and Auditor Herrick ex officio.

WEDGE POND LANE.

Mr. Whitney, under article 12, offered the following which was carried:

Moved, under report of Committee on Wedge Pond way, Page 126 of printed town reports, it is voted: That the report of the committee be accepted and adopted and that the Board of Selectmen are hereby requested to carry out the recommendations of the report, also to place suitable stone bounds to define the 1860 lay out in the manner now required by statute law.

TOWN COUNSEL.

On motion of Selectman Carter it was voted:

Moved, That the Selectmen be and hereby are authorized to appoint a Town Counsel for Consultation by all town officials, the expense to be apportioned and charged to the different accounts according to the amounts of business done for each by said counsel, and no other counsel shall be consulted or employed at the expense of the town excepting by such town officials as may have such authority under the statutes, without authority from the town.

TRANSPORTING SCHOOL CHILDREN.

Mr. Currier of the School Board offered the following which was passed:

Voted, That the School Committee be authorized to spend a sum not exceeding $950 in transporting children residing in the Hill District and other remote points to and from the public schools, and that the amount so expended be taken from the appropriation for support of schools.

OTHER VOTES PASSED.

To instruct the Collector of Taxes to charge interest on unpaid taxes after November 1st at the rate of five per cent. per annum.

That the list of jurors as printed in the Town Report be accepted as a whole.

To accept the provisions of Chapter 42 of Section 36 of the Revised Laws relating to the text books in the public schools.

REFUSED TO RECEDE.

Mr. Johnson moved to reconsider the question of appropriations for bath house, clearing the Eaton street lot and highways. He proposed to show that by a judicious curtailing of these appropriations a saving could be made whereby the tax rate for the present year could be reduced.

The town refused reconsideration.

TWO COMMITTEES.

As per vote passed at the last meeting the Moderator gave out the following committees:

Additional school accommodation: Messrs. C. F. A. Currier, A. F. Blaisdell, P. F. Carpenter members ex officio, S. J. Elder, Preston Pond, A. H. Russell, C. E. L. Wingate.

On new engine house and town stable: Messrs. D. B. Badger, Frank Barr, J. J. Fitzgerald, C. T. Main, D. W. Pratt.

The meeting dissolved at about 9.30.

Night Was Her Terror.

"I would cough nearly all night long," writes Mrs. Chas. Applegate, of Alexandria, Ind., "and could hardly get any sleep. I had consumption so bad that if I walked a block, I would cough frightfully and spit blood, but, when all other medicines failed, three $1.00 bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery wholly cured me and I gained 58 pounds." It's absolutely guaranteed to cure coughs, colds, lagrippe, bronchitis and throat and lung troubles. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Grover's drug store.

Stop That Dumping.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

On the land at the corner of Everett avenue and Stratford road are two signs, "No Dumping Allowed Here." In spite of this someone has started in again dumping ashes and rubbish, spoiling the appearance of the entire neighborhood. If the dumpers are so devoid of decency as not to respect the desires of the people then the police ought to take a hand,—at least, to the extent of finding out the men who do the dumping and restraining them from trespass. If left clear, the corner will look well with the coming grass, but if spoiled by rubbish it will become an eyesore to all who pass.

Getting Thin

is all right, if you are too fat; and all wrong, if too thin already.

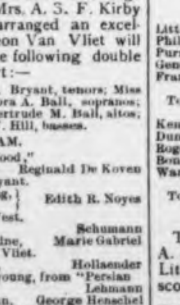

Fat, enough for your habit, is healthy; a little more, or less, is no great harm. Too fat, consult a doctor; too thin, persistently thin, no matter what cause, take Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil.

There are many causes of getting too thin; they all come under these two heads: overwork and under-digestion.

Stop over-work, if you can; but, whether you can or not, take Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, to balance yourself with your work. You can't live on it—true—but, by it, you can. There's a limit, however; you'll pay for it.

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil is the readiest cure for "can't eat," unless it comes of your doing no work--you can't long be well and strong, without some sort of activity.

The genuine has this picture on it, take no other. If you have not tried it, send for free sample, its agreeable taste will surprise you. SCOTT & BOWNE Chemists, 409 Pearl Street, New York.

Town Meeting Comments.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The wonderful Appropriations Committee which recently served the town, apparently did not compass the whole amount of the expenditures, nor think how they were to be provided for.

They set down the valuation of the coming year at $9,500,000, an increase of $562,346 over last year. This increase may or may not materialize, and it is unwise to base the tax rate for 1902 on these figures.

They made no provision for a $1000 note coming due Dec. 1, 1902, which, with $2000 due in 1904, has been authorized, but not borrowed. This debt was for widening Main street opposite Whitney's mill. The town practically reappropriated this at the last meeting, when the vote was passed to have the County Commissioners do this job, and the Town Treasurer called attention of the meeting to the fact, but this committee did not compass the situation.

When the water rates were reduced, the saving was for the large middle class of tax payers, and not for the rich, as it was so stated at the time. The rich of this committee undertook to punish the town by a vote that hereafter all money needed for construction of water works be raised by borrowing, but the town refused to pass such a vote. Another thing this committee undertook was to have the interest on the notes issued this year payable on one month and the principal payable on another. On motion of the Town Treasurer this bull was corrected. They recommended that $6000 be raised by taxation for maintenance of water works. The town corrected the vote by transferring this amount from the water rates, as is usually done.

This committee kept back their printed report until the opening of the evening session of the town meeting, so that the voters had practically no time to read it. This was wrong, and the town meeting voted that hereafter the appropriation committee's report be distributed throughout the town at the same time that the town warrants were circulated, four days at least before the day of the town meeting. If we do not have better service from the appropriation committee next year, I think we shall have no more appropriation committees thereafter.

Pneumonia Can be Prevented.

This disease always results from a cold or an attack of the grip and may be prevented by the timely use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This remedy was extensively used during the epidemics of la grippe of the past few years, and not a single case has ever been reported that did not recover or that resulted in pneumonia, which shows it to be a certain preventive of that dangerous disease. A Thoughtful and Suggestive Town Meeting.

Winchester is to be congratulated on the character of its recent town meeting. The appropriations were well thought out by the committee and promptly passed as soon as the voters comprehended why and wherefore they were necessary to the different departments. Live and intelligent committees were appointed to investigate the important subjects of a new High School building, town stable, and central engine house. A specially good committee was chosen to consider the Bacon street bridge problem in connection with its relation to the State parkway and the Winchester play ground. It is very evident this matter has got to be overhauled, and when the bridge is rebuilt it will be built after plans which will create a new bridge more beautiful as an adjunct to the parkway and which will better serve its purpose as a bridge than the present structure.

The plan adopted in regard to finishing Main street and building a new bridge next to the Mill pond, requesting the County Commissioners to aid the town by taking charge of the work, seems to be the best one to adopt under the circumstances. From all the evidence it seems the town is under an agreement made as a court decision and agreed to by a former board of selectmen, defining somewhat how this bridge shall be built in relation to the neighboring water power. It is to the credit of the town that it does not wish to repudiate this agreement or ignore it (even if it could do so), just as if it had never been made. Perhaps the present selectmen think they could have made a better bargain for the town, but the selectmen who were on the stage when the court settlement was made were honest men and no doubt the County Commissioners will interpret the agreement fairly to both the town and mill owners.

Winchester indicates its advanced position in voting to build and maintain a public bath house. We are ahead of our neighbors in this matter, but no doubt they will follow us and have no "unwashed" class in their respective towns or cities when they find out we have none. Winchester likes to set a good example to her neighbors.

The west side drainage scheme was opposed as a local measure, but when explained as the beginning of a drainage system for the whole town, all voted for it.

Many citizens think that the town should join with the State and purchase the extensive water rights which control so much of the centre of our town. The present owners have ever opposed the building of small buildings and refused to sell any of their pond land for cheap structures such as hurt the centers of many places. But should the estate fall into other hands what a difference it might make to Winchester. For this reason the STAR proposes that some time in the future these important water and mill rights should belong to the public and be controlled by it. One of the selectmen alluded to this idea in relation to the Main street bridge, but the mill owners say they know nothing about it and never had any communication of any kind looking to the matter from the Park Commissioners, the public seeming to know more about it than they do. For all this the STAR recommends the project as a desirable one although it may be afar off. We offer it as a suggestive thought for future town meetings.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know it.

How To Find Out.

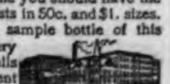

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What to Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in 50c. and $1. sizes.

You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful discovery and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail, address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper.

HE FEARED HE HAD LOST

When Wu Ting Fang, the famous Chinese Minister to Washington, irritable and somewhat forgetful from a severe cold, missed one day from the front of his cap the immense diamond he always wears there, he was dreadfully frightened. A friend pointed out that the statesman had inadvertently donned his turban wrong side before, and that the diamond was safe in the rear. Had Wu Ting Fang been wearing a Benson's Porous Plaster on his chest or back to cure his cold, he never would have doubted its location. He would have felt it doing its work,—warming and making flexible the torpid muscles, extracting the pain and soreness, promoting the free circulation of the blood, stimulating the skin and lungs to proper action, and so dissolving and banishing the malady. Thus we perceive, beloved friends, that while a pretty thing to look upon, was of no practical use. But Benson's Plasters are supremely useful. They relieve and cure gout, rheumatism, neuralgia, colds on the chest, lame back, etc., so quickly and completely as to make you wonder how it can be. Better now,—well to-morrow; that's the way they work. Get the genuine. All druggists, or we will prepay postage on any number ordered in the United States on receipt of 25c. each.

THE BIG DIAMOND ON HIS HAT

UTILIZATION OF COAL ASHES

Discovery That Fireproof Mortar Can Be Made Therefrom.

George F. Averill of Arverne, N. Y., says that he has discovered a means of using the waste coal ash cinders that will make that hitherto useless material of great commercial value. The use which Mr. Averill has found for these coal ashes is in a new kind of fireproof mortar, 90 per cent of which is made up of coal ashes and the rest double hydraulic cement.

Mr. Averill has had tests made under the supervision of the department of buildings in Manhattan which show that the insulating properties of a block constructed according to Mr. Averill's specifications are very great. In fact, Mr. Averill says that with over 1,700 degrees F. hardly any perceptible heat could be felt by the hand on the other side of the block. Matches which had been laid on the block were not ignited, and some white pine and oak splinters showed no signs of charring. A thermometer on the upper side of the block during the whole time of the test registered only 116 degrees.

Mr. Averill also proposes, according to the Brooklyn Eagle, to make a fireproof concrete from the waste ashes, which can be used in ceilings and can be made into blocks for partitions. It has been estimated that the amount of waste coal ashes in Manhattan and Brooklyn aggregates 6,000,000 cubic yards yearly, the greater portion of which is now dumped into the ocean.

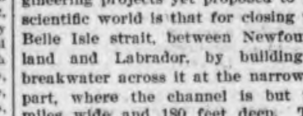

Sir Norman Lockyer publishes an article in Nature in which he says that it seems difficult to imagine that most new stars are not at a distance from the milky way as well as in its plane.

If this is so, says the London correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, then the distance is enormous, as the Novi Persel is situated at such a distance that one minute of its arc represents about 120 times the distance of the sun from the earth. The apparent movement of the condensations is stated to have been one and one-half minutes in forty-eight days, or approximately four times the distance to the sun in one day.

But Sir Norman Lockyer suggests that the apparent change of position of these condensations can be explained otherwise than by movement. The meteoric theory explains the appearance of a new star by the interpenetration of two or more swarms of meteorites, a nebula being the representative of an ordinary great swarm, a comet near the sun being the representative of a small one disturbed by tidal action.

The appearance of a new star is produced by luminosity depending on celestial clashing. It is not difficult to conceive a system of several swarms of meteorites all performing in their individual orbits and the whole remaining invisible provided no two collide, but if there is a collision they immediately become visible, and the more violent the collision the brighter will be the light and the greater the luminosity of the "new star" which appears to chronicle the event.

One of the most extraordinary engineering projects yet proposed to the scientific world is that for closing the Belle Isle strait, between Newfoundland and Labrador, by building a breakwater across it at the narrowest part, where the channel is but ten miles wide and 180 feet deep. The benefits to be derived from such a scheme are that the shores of Quebec, Anticosta, Cape Breton, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island would become veritable gardens, in which semitropical fruits and vegetables would flourish, and that the portion of Labrador west of the causeway would have a climate as salubrious as that of France, being in about the same latitude.

It is estimated that the work proposed would cost $30,000,000. This is a formidable sum, but in view of the demands just now that Canada spend $5,000,000 in improving the St. Lawrence route the larger sum seems less appalling to the projectors of the plan. Nor is the undertaking so formidable as might appear from a superficial view. It presents no engineering difficulties such as have beset many projects already carried to a successful issue.

What would have to be done under the plan would be to start a dump and carry it across the strait, with a convex curve toward the Atlantic so as to better resist the chafing and pressure from the floes and bergs. The causeway would have to be built of rock, as earth would be washed out, but Labrador and northern Newfoundland abound in rock. Hills, mountain ranges and bowlders innumerable are to be found in abundance, and it would be simply a case of blowing down the hills and carting the debris to the dam and dumping it in. The structure would have to be wide and high—wide to prevent the waves forcing through the interstices and high to prevent them sweeping over the parapet and washing across the roadway. But this would only be a matter of expense—the more money the better the dam.

LESSON XI, FIRST QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, MARCH 16.

Text of the Lesson, Acts viii, 26-40. Memory Verses, 34, 35—Golden Text, Rom. x, 10—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1902, by American Press Association.]

26. "And the angel of the Lord spake unto Philip, saying, Arise and go toward the south." The previous verse says that Peter and John preached the word of the Lord in Samaria, and then, on their way back to Jerusalem, preached the gospel in many villages of the Samaritans. They evidently left Philip busy in the midst of a great work in Samaria, and while continuing faithfully to preach Christ a messenger from heaven is sent to him commanding him to leave Samaria and go down to the desert way, which was between Jerusalem and Gaza. It may have seemed a strange and unreasonable thing to leave a great work and go to a desert road without being told why or wherefore, but the great motto of a true worker with God must be "willing and obedient."

27, 28. "And he arose and went, and, behold, a man of Ethiopia, who had come to Jerusalem for to worship, was returning and, sitting in his chariot, read Esaias, the prophet." Here, then, is the reason of the angel's visit to Philip. God saw the hungering soul of this man of great authority under the queen of Ethiopia, and He would satisfy that longing soul, and Philip, the faithful messenger in Samaria, was the chosen vessel. God knew that He had a prompt and obedient servant in Philip.

29, 30. "Then the spirit said unto Philip, Go near and join thyself to this chariot." At Samaria an angel spoke to him; now the Holy Spirit tells him what to do. As to the Spirit speaking to believers see chapters x, 19; xi, 12; xiii, 2; xvi, 6, 7, and consider the promises in John xiv, 26; xv, 26; xvi, 13. It is possible for us to hear the voice of the Spirit and be guided by Him. See also Isa. xxx, 21. God has promised that He will surely guide His people (Ps. xxxii, 8), and I believe He guides in one or other of three ways—by His Spirit through His word, if necessary by His Spirit apart from His word, but never contrary to it, and by His providences or the events of daily life. A believer ought to be a Spirit filled and Spirit controlled person, and since God desires it what can hinder but our unwillingness? Prompt and obedient, Philip ran to the chariot, and, hearing the eunuch reading in the prophecy of Isaiah, he said, "Understandest thou what thou readest?" See what pains God will take to cause one to understand His word when He sees that desire in the heart, and remember how the Lord Jesus on the resurrection day took two or three hours to open the Scriptures to those two who were slow of heart to believe (Luke xxiv, 32). May His patience be ours.

31. "He desired Philip that he would come up and sit with him." The treasurer of the queen was a great man and at this time riding in his chariot, while Philip was poor and probably had the appearance of a wayworn traveler, yet see how cordially he is received by the man of authority. Many messages have been unspoken and letters unwritten which the Spirit has whispered because some timid soul has feared rebuke. It is ours to obey; results are the Lord's. See Jer. i, 7-9.

32, 33. He was reading of some one who had been cruelly ill treated, but, like a lamb or a sheep, was dumb before his persecutors—one from whom all justice was taken away and who was finally slain. The story is so familiar to us that it does not affect us. We have heard it from the prophets who foretold it and in the gospels from those who actually witnessed the fulfillment of the prophecies. We know, or profess to know, Him of whom the prophets spake, who fulfilled every prophecy concerning His humiliation, but how much do we care? This man read with interest and astonishment, perhaps for the first time. There are many who have never read of Him because those put in trust with the gospel have not been faithful to their trust. Contrast Rom. i, 14-16; I Thess. ii, 4.

34, 35. "Then Philip opened his mouth and began at the same Scripture and preached unto him Jesus." This he did in reply to the eunuch's question, "Of whom speaketh the prophet this?" Philip did not waste any time on the style of the prophet or on the possibility of there being two Isaiahs, each of whom wrote part of the book, neither did he so much as hint at the impossibility of any one writing of things 700 years before they happened, but from this and other Scriptures he made plain the truth concerning Jesus.

36, 37. "I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God." Compare the confessions of Peter and Martha in Matt. xvi, 16; John xi, 27, and note I John v, 1, "Whosoever believeth that Jesus is the Christ is born of God." Unless you have ever talked with and led to Christ a soul really hungry for the truth you cannot understand Philip's joy as he, by the Spirit, opened the Scriptures and saw this man drink it all in and then ask to be baptized. Truly the Lord Himself was with them (Matt. xviii, 20), and the Spirit wrought gloriously. "With the heart man believeth unto righteousness and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation" (Rom. x, 10). The eunuch had believed in his heart and confessed with his mouth and was quite ready for a further public confession before all his servants, for doubtless there were many with him.

38, 39. "The Spirit of the Lord caught away Philip, that the eunuch saw him no more, and he went on his way rejoicing." How strange the whole thing must have seemed to the driver of the chariot and the rest of the company—the stranger invited to ride with their master, the earnest conversation, the baptism, the sudden disappearance of the stranger and their master's new joy, which no doubt he told them all about, and the queen, too, when he arrived home! The Lord by Philip wrought a great work that day, and some time we may hear the sequel to this story from the lips of the eunuch himself. I am sure that Philip was and has been many a time glad that he was so prompt and obedient. How the Spirit of the Lord caught him away I know not, but I believe that, having finished his work, he supernaturally disappeared.

40. "Philip was found at Azotus, and, passing through, he preached in all the cities till he came to Cesarea." This last place seems to have been Philip's home, and a church was gathered there (Acts xxi, 8; xviii, 22). It matters not whether we find Philip in Samaria or in the chariot or going from place to place, he is ever preaching Christ.

AUSTRALIAN WOMEN.

The Bush Women Go Many Miles to Attend a Political Meeting.

In Australia, as in the other places where women have been granted equal suffrage, they are proving the fallacy of the prediction that women could not be induced to take an interest in public affairs. Marcus Malcolm writes in "The Co-operator:"

"So absorbing and general has been the theme of politics during the past few weeks that even for woman it has eclipsed all else—or at least has been of equal interest with her clothes.

"In this connection there is little doubt that the country mouse is going to get ahead of the town mouse, though this aspect of the woman elector was very surprising to the writer on a recent tour round the bush. I had, it must be confessed, rather dreaded the first few years of woman's political freedom, recognizing that a large new body of voters, ignorant of the science of government, was suddenly to grasp a sharp weapon in its inexperienced hands; and amongst the most untrained of the band would be, I considered, from the circumstances of their isolation, the bush women.

"How different is the reality! The general and intelligent appreciation of political matters among the bush women was strongly evidenced during the contest just ended. The majority of country candidates have remarked on the large attendance of women at their meetings, as well as on the amount of actual canvassing undertaken by them.

The country woman goes to a political meeting as to a function of the deepest interest; the local matters touched on are vital to her, and entirely within her comprehension.

"Whether the candidate speaks of the road vote, how it has so often been 'starved' for the city's benefit, or of the necessity for rabbit legislation, or improved land laws, or light railways to the interior, she can supply him with facts for his argument, or instances to point his moral. Just as often as her male relations does she go over those neglected, dangerous roads. Just as much as they does she suffer from the absence of railway communication when the stores are weeks behindhand, owing to the teams being bogged on the track. The eaten-out paddocks that result from the devastation of the all-conquering rabbit, that make the bread-winner's wool cheque pitifully small, mean to her no summer holiday, no break in the year's dull round, perhaps no college for the boys and girls, a further unneeded training in the art of 'doing without.' Perhaps she is a selector's daughter, and has taken up land herself, and is thus personally interested in the question of re-appraisement, lengths of tenure, and timber reserves.

"One campaigner told me he had frequently as many women as men at his meetings, and that they had no consciousness of there being anything surprising in it, but regarded it quite as a matter of course. An instance that came under my own notice in a particularly wild and desolate part of the bush, sixty miles from a railway station, was of a young woman, whose brothers were away droving. She rode alone, on a cold, moonless night seven miles to hear the speaker. Rain fell during the meeting, and she had no neighbor going her way, but that was of no moment in her eye. She rode solitarily away at half-past ten, quite unconcerned, and quite unaware that she was doing anything remarkable."

Woman's Work in Municipal Reform

Of late some of those ultra conservatives who profess to fear dreadful things if women should get mixed up in politics have been praising these same women for the part they have taken in promoting and actually bringing about various municipal reforms. Unquestionably the praise is entirely deserved; but it ought to occur to these level-headed opponents of woman suffrage that praise, even when merited, may be accompanied with some inconveniences. Suppose, for example, the women of New York, after working for reform in that city, and after contributing in no small degree to the success of the movement, should take it into their heads that they might vote for what they want as well as to work for it?

To give women credit for raising money, making speeches and drumming up voters on election day, is to make ridiculous any professed fear of what may happen when they "get into politics," for plainly they are there already. Of course this evident inconsistency has nothing to do with the practical question of woman suffrage, but it may have not a little to do with raising a laugh at somebody's expense. At any rate, the possible effect of so much praise of the women for their part in the New York election is worthy of consideration by the timorous.—Manchester (N. H.) Union.

Not long ago the editor of the "Christian Endeavor World" wrote to twenty-five ministers of different denominations in the enfranchised States, choosing their names at random, and asked them whether equal suffrage was working well, fairly well, or badly. One of the twenty-five answered that it worked badly, and three that it worked fairly well, while the twenty-one others were positive and enthusiastic in saying that it worked well. This is about the average ratio of opinion in the suffrage States among people of the better sort.

Miss Augusta A. Connor of Minneapolis has secured the names of President Northrup, Dean Pattee and Professors Haynes and Hortvet of the University of Minnesota as members of the Political Equality Club. At the National Suffrage Convention held in Minneapolis last summer, Miss Connor pledged herself to get a hundred new members. She has already secured about half the number, and she is evidently looking out for quality as well as quantity in obtaining them.

La Grippe Quickly Cured.

"In the winter of 1898 and 1899 I was taken down with a severe attack of what is called la grippe," says F. L. Hewett, a prominent druggist of Winfield, Ill. "The only medicine I used was two bottles of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It broke up the cold and stopped the coughing like magic, and I have never since been troubled with Grippe." Chamberlain's Cough Remedy can always be depended upon to break up a severe cold and ward off any threatened attack of pneumonia. It is pleasant to take, too, which makes it the most desirable and one of the most popular preparations in use for these ailments. For sale by Young & Brown.

Lobsters' Eggs.

A fair sized female lobster carries 20,000 eggs at a time. The eggs, when extruded, are covered with a viscid matter which, drawn out into threads, attaches them to the long hairs that fringe the fanlike taft of the mother. These threads quickly become hard and strong, the eggs waving about in the water and being thus aerated. When they are ready to be hatched, the mother lobster oscillates her tail so as to assist the offspring to escape.

The young at first resemble shrimps, being about one-third of an inch in length. They have bright blue eyes. After a few days they desert the mother and swim out into deep water, where they rise to the surface and lead a vagabond sort of existence for thirty or forty days.

During this time the young ones change their shells four times. On the fourth occasion they shed their swimming organs and fall to the bottom, where they remain for the rest of their lives. During their existence as swimmers most of them are gobbled up by fishes, for which they afford a favorite food.

How Things Grow In Hawaii.

How great are the possibilities of Hawaii as a fruit and vegetable growing country will be understood when it becomes known that four crops of potatoes have been produced in succession on the same piece of land within twelve months. Radishes become edible in ten days after sowing. Strawberry vines bear fruit all the year. The berries are of the finest flavor.

Cabbage grows all the year, and it apparently makes no difference whether it is planted in the spring, summer, autumn or winter. Parsley once sown grows forever apparently. Lima beans continue to grow and bear for over a year, and they have to be gathered every week after starting to bear. Cucumbers bear the entire year, and so do tomatoes, which, with proper attention, bear for years. Raspberries bear for six months.

Pineapples come into bearing when the plants are four months old and bear in abundance for years. Lettuce can be planted at any time, and it develops quickly. The same is true of celery.—Fruit Trade Journal.

BONDS OF THE

West Virginia Coal, Gas, Oil & Lumber Co.

A Corporation formed for the purpose of operating Coal Mines and working up the vast forest of Virginia timber which is now standing on the 24,000 acres of land controlled by this Company located in Kanawha and Clay Counties, W. Virginia, and various other objects, which have been thoroughly outlined and explained in their prospectus.

These securities, which are a 5 per cent. twenty year gold coupon bond, will afford those investors who wish a safe, conservative and an immediate interest bearing security an excellent opportunity to make a first class investment. The terms under which these bonds are offered will net the holders an immediate 6 per cent on the investment, to say nothing of the bonus of common stock which has been offered, and which we are confident will prove to be in a very short time worth more alone than the price asked for the bonds.

The property owned and controlled by the Company is one which is in no sense of the word a gamble or a speculation, and is not a mere prospect on which they ask you to furnish the money in order to find out whether they have got anything below the surface or not, but, on the other hand, they have three coal veins which will aggregate 15 feet 11 inches in thickness, and millions of feet of lumber right in sight, which is the actual commercial product, and all that is necessary is to put a force of men at work in order to get the goods on the market and the actual immediate returns.

They have planned, in addition to the development of their Coal and Lumber properties, the laying out and building of as large a city as possible on their town site, the erection of a Mammoth Furniture Factory, the completion of their arrangements for retail Coal Agencies, and numerous other objects which will be explained in the prospectus.

The Company is officered and controlled by Boston and New York business men, whose names alone are a sufficient guarantee that the Company's financial and business affairs will be conducted on absolutely sound and safe business principles. These names will be given you in the prospectus of the Company, and we know upon your thorough investigation you will be fully convinced that this is a bona fide business proposition worthy of your immediate attention.

Another striking feature of the Company's business methods is a proposed excursion of business men, bond and stock holders, which they are at this time organizing. They intend in the early spring to take down a train load of those who are interested and desire to go, free of charge, so that they may see for themselves the broad expanse of undeveloped possibilities, which it is next to impossible for us to explain through the medium of prospectuses, advertising, etc.

The capitalization of the Company is a very small one, $500,000 in common stock and $250,000 in bonds, and if you are desirous of investigating this in time to secure a portion of these securities, it will be necessary for you to see us or write us at once, as we are confident that the securities will only be offered to the general public for a very short time.

It is our business to study conditions existing or possible in the various corporations that we represent as fiscal agents, and we have no hesitancy in recommending to our customers the West Virginia Coal, Gas, Oil and Lumber Company Bonds. Our advice is to buy them immediately.

This advertisement is written to you, and we hope you will thoroughly investigate the same immediately, in order to satisfy yourself that we are either right or wrong.

FLOWER AND TREE.

Plants cannot live if deprived of their leaves.

Tea plants at the age of 7 years yield 700 pounds of tea to the acre.

The date palm requires a hot, dry air, but moisture about the roots and plenty of it.

Palms never live more than 250 years. Ivy has been known to live 450, chestnut 860, oak 1,600 and yew 2,880.

An oak tree of average size, with 700,000 leaves, lifts from the earth about 123 tons of water during the five months it is in leaf.

Jasmine is an Indian shrub. Its starry, wax white blossoms are indescribably sweet. All the burning pain and passion and pathos and mystery of the Hindoo race seem to rise up to you in its breath.

There is a rose tree with a trunk 2 feet 9 inches in circumference in a Ventura garden in California. It is a Lamarque, has been growing a quarter of a century and yielded over 21,000 blooms in 1895.

Cents East and West.

"There is always a scarcity of pennies in the west," says an official of the Philadelphia mint, "and a superabundance of them in the east. Every little while the banks out there set up a hoot and cry for pennies, but our banks here are ever glad to rid themselves of their surplusage in these coins. It is difficult to see why such a state of things should be. I'm sure a penny is just as dear to the easterner's heart as to the westerner's. One would no more throw a penny away than would the other, yet here we always have too many pennies. There they never seem to have enough."

THE CONGRESS OF MOTHERS.

There is probably no form of woman's organized work which the W. C. T. U. can more heartily endorse than that of the National Mothers' Congress, which has just concluded its sixth annual session in Washington. This congress has made for itself a most acceptable and valuable field of service, embodying, as it does, a plan of work which includes so broad and practical a scheme. The Mothers' Congress is not simply a convocation of mothers to discuss the relative value of nursery appliances and the important minor details of child rearing, but also includes a comprehensive outlook and effort directed towards everything that conduces to the physical, intellectual and spiritual development of the child in the home and also of the homeless delinquent and defective children in charge of the community. The labors of the Mothers' Clubs, which are affiliated in the National Mothers' Congress, are aimed to give father and mother equal rights of guardianship over children, to elevate moral conditions among the young, to promote the better comprehension of the nature of children, to uphold a single moral standard, to raise the age of consent to that of legal majority, to find homes for homeless children, to promote self-culture to found a national training school for women, to establish chairs of paidology, or the science of the child, in universities and normal schools, to teach domestic science in public and state universities, to further physical education, humane education and the introduction of a more artistic and hygenic dress for women,—certainly an inclusive program.

The reports gave encouraging accounts of work done, in establishing mothers' clubs in connection with the public school; public playgrounds, free kindergartens, in promoting teacher, and parent co operation, better sanitation in schools; and countless other ways that suggest themto the alert mother minded woman.

Strikes A Rich Find.

"I was troubled for several years with chronic indigestion and nervous debilty," writes F. J. Green of Lancaster, N. H. "No remedy helped me until I began using Electric Bitters, which did me more good than all the medicines I ever used. They have also kept my wife in excellent health for years. She says Electric Bitters are just splendid for female troubles; that they are a grand tonic and invigorator for weak, run down women. No other medicine can take its place in our family." Try them. Only 50c. Satisfaction guaranteed by Grover.

The Tree Pests.

Over in Cambridge last week the men engaged in removing the nests of brown tail moths from the public trees found a monster nest containing by actual count 2002 moths—something never met before in this vicinity. Tree Warden Chamberlain is giving the town trees a thorough overhauling and is making good progress and it is though when he gets through there will be but few nests left— not enough to be noticeable when the trees leaf out. Stoneham is doing nothing to keep down the pest and as a result it is believed there will be but little foliage on the trees the coming summer.

Woburn has appropriated $500 to keep them down in that city. So far as known nothing is being done by the State Park Commissioners in the Fells. Of course if the moth is allowed full swing in one place it will be impossible for him to do so and that they ought to take care of them themselves. He has, however, the right to enter private grounds when he deems necessary and hunt the moth, as per the vote passed at the late town meeting.

WILL LEAVE WINCHESTER.

The McKay Company to go to the City of Beverly.

Some two years ago the STAR was authority for the statement that a large tract of land had been bonded at Beverly as the site for the proposed new buildings of the United Shoe Machinery Co. of which the McKay factory in this town is a branch. At that time it was stated that it was the intention of the company to concentrate its entire plant at one place. As it is now, the works are scattered in nearly half a dozen cities and towns. Shortly after making the statement of the bonding of land at Beverly, came the great strike in the iron industry in Pennsylvania with the result that it was practically impossible to purchase structural iron.

This was followed later by the strike of workmen at the Goodyear branch of the concern, and then followed a period of inactivity in regard to the erection of new buildings with the prevaling opinion that the company had found it more advantageous to have its plant scattered, as strikes could then be handled better, and therefore had abandoned the idea of one central plant. The options on the land at Beverly were suffered to lapse, and as far as the public was concerned everything was quiescent until about a year ago, when stories began to be circulated again that the factory was to leave Winchester and go elsewhere. The location was said to be Quincy where the company could have a water frontage. It was known and printed in these columns some weeks ago that plans for buildings were being prepared, and that the superintendent, Mr. S. D. Leland, was examining buildings in different parts of the country so as to embody in the new shops the lastest improvements.

We can now state on reliable authority that the new plant will be located at Beverly, the home of President Winslow and several of the directors. Some 150 acres have been bonded on Bass river in that city and here will be the scene of bustling activity when the buildings are erected, the machinery set up and the 3000 or more workmen arrive, which will not be for a year or more, however. The site is commanding, and a gentleman who has looked the ground over pronounces it as a most excellent one. On the opposite side of the river runs the railroad, and from it spur tracks will be run over to connect with the factory or shops for receiving and dispatching machinery. There is a depth of 12 feet of water in the river in front of the land selected, which is just inside the harbor. This frontage on the water will enable vessels to come up to the wharf. The land is a mile distant from the business centre of the city. It is estimated that the combined works will give employment to over 3000 hands and increase the population of the city by nearly 10,000.

It is intended to copy the style of buildings used by the National Cash Register Co. at Dayton, O. These buildings are one story high, with monitor roofs, thus giving an abundance of light. For the comfort of the men there is to be a library, gymnasium, baths, etc., also the company is to erect large numbers of houses for the workmen.

The directors of the company have not yet voted to purchase the land, but this will undoubtedly be done in a few days. The Beverly Board of Trade held a meeting Wednesday evening to take action regarding the coming of the plant, and to assist the project in every way possible.

At the factory here in Winchester there are employed at the present time some 750 workmen, a number of whom own homes here, while many rent houses, the single men boarding in different parts of the town. Woburn, Stoneham and other places provide homes for a number more. Many of the men are active in the church and social life of Winchester, are excellent and interested citizens, and their leaving here can not but be felt in many ways—in a social and business sense. Also their going will lead to a noticeable decrease in the population, but at the rate new families are coming here, the decline will only be temporary. The section of the town that will be hardest hit will be the locality embraced by Harvard and Irving streets, and also Winchester Highlands. There is no reason to doubt that property will depreciate to quite an extent and that there will be many vacant houses that will be a long time without tenants, provided some other new concern does not occupy the plant. So that there is a liability of loss to owners of real estate.

It has been reported that a large shoe manufacturing concern is to take possession of the buildings when the McKay Company moves out. But this is not known for a fact. However, it is hardly possible that this modern and massive structure will long be without a tenant of some kind. From the time the company first talked of concentrating its plant, Winchester was not even considered as the location. A director was asked some time ago the reason for this and he replied by saying that the concern never met with encouragement, only cold water in Winchester and that many of the influential citizens did not want the plant here, as they preferred a residential to a business community.

As to whether Winchester would be as well off as at present if this immense industry was to be located here in its entirety is a question likely to lead to a great deal of discussion. One thing is certain, a great many families have made their homes here, because it was not a manufacturing community and because they preferred a village with its open spaces and quietness after an active day amid the bustling life of Boston. There is no great objection to the size of the present plant, or whatever there was has long since passed away, but there is no desire among the influential men to have the combined industry here and they have been outspoken in this regard. It would mean, positively, a great change in existing conditions—an increase of about 10,000 in population and the town becoming a city.

The only thing that can be hoped for is, that when the McKay Company leaves town, that the buildings will be occupied by as intelligent, public spirited and as good citizens as the men now employed there and known as friends, neighbors and workers in the church and social life of Winchester.

Problem of a Steady Job.

Edjar J. Rich makes an interesting Address — Advice to Wage Workers.

Edjar J. Rich spoke before the Railroad Agents' Association of New England at the Copley Square Hotel last Saturday evening on "The Problem of a Steady Job." The affair was a smoke talk and was attended by about 100 members. Mr. Rich said, in part:

During the past few years we have attained such skill in the production of articles of almost any kind that we can undersell any country in the world, and our large surplus stocks have been finding, and are finding, markets throughout the world. So long as we can command the markets of the world, we will be prosperous— that is, our factories and mills will be fully employed, and the employment will be steady.

The problem of a steady job becomes the great problem of statesmanship. When Richard Olney emphasized the Munroe doctrine in connection with the Veuezuelan episode, he prevented, probably for all time, the acquisition of vast areas of South America by European countries, who eventually would exploit them for their own advantage, and perhaps shut out the products of other countries.

In the present industrial situation, while we can command the markets of the world by careful attention to the principles of production, it behooves labor to go slowly on the question of the reduction of the hours of labor and not insist upon any radical changes.

Through the continued improvement in methods of production, and through the gradual narrowing of the available markets by reason, perhaps, of the erection of tariff barriers by other countries, the time may come when the only way that we can escape depression is by reducing, radically and uniformly, the hours of labor. While the markets of the world are ours, every man should be willing to work resonable hours, and thereby get a greater share in the comforts of life.

Furthermore, in times of depression, municipalities, instead of supporting the unemployed out of its public treasury by pauperizing the unfortunate, should undertake the construction of great public works, men should be paid wages, perhaps less than the ruling rate, but by this method the manhood of the unfortunate would be maintained and the public would profit.

The problem of a steady job, therefore, is a problem which each individual cannot work out entirely for himself, for any man, no matter how deserving or how competent, may find that industrial conditions are such that there is no demand for his services.

The solution of the problem lies, therefore in the hands, ultimately, of the voters, who must see to it that they send to the legislative halls men who are not demagogues, but who are alive to the tremendous problem which confronts every community at the present time. They must also see to it that their labor leaders are far-sighted men, and they must not begrudge a man's wealth, if he makes such use of it as Carnegie is making of his.

Danger of Colds and La Grippe.

The greatest danger from colds and la grippe is their resulting in pneumonia. If reasonable care is used, however, and Chamberlain's Cough Remedy taken, all danger will be avoided. Among the tens of thousands who have used this remedy for these diseases, we have yet to learn of a single case having resulted in pneumonia, which shows conclusively that it is a certain preventive of that dangerous malady. It will cure a cold or an attack of la grippe in less time than any other treatment. It is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by Young & Brown.

Mr. Edwin Robinson of the local G. A. R. Post has been designated by the department to assist in bring about exercises of a patriotic nature among the school children on April 18, Patriot's Day. He will ask the co-operation of the School Board.

"The Convention of the Old Maids' Matrimonial Club" at the Congregational Vestry.

The vestry of the Congregational church was crowded to its utmost last Friday evening, March 14, to listen to a play entitled "The Convention of the Old Maids' Matrimonial Club." This play was given by the Young Peoples' Society of Christian Endeavor of the Congregational church, and the Highland Christian Endeavor, to raise money for the Christian Endeavor convention, to be held at Medford, in April. The members of the social committee, who had charge of this laughable entertainment were: Lorenzo E. Waite, chairman; Margaret Sands, Gertrude B. Carter, Esther Barnard, Edith Browning, Mr. Francis P. R. Hill and Mr. Herbert L. Vose. The play itself tells of the convention of twenty old maids, who, for a time, discuss the matrimsnial prospects. Professor Pinkerton, the great inventor of the electric "transform(h)er," the hit of the play, comes to the convention with his machine and proceeds to make most wonderful transformations. The cast of the play was as follows:—

Maribal Lovejoy, the president of the convention,	Miss Viola McClellan
Amarilla Heyward, the secretary of the convention,	Miss Gertrude Carter
Priscilla Hope, the treasurer of the convention,	Miss Daisie McClellan
Anxiety Doherty,	Miss Bessie Luce
Augusta Prim,	Miss Marion Simonds
Frodora Bobkins,	Miss Christine Nickerson
Rhoda Larkin,	Miss Augusta Lawson
Selina Baxter,	Miss Edith Wilcox
Susannah Smith,	Miss Florence Parks
Miranda Price,	Miss Mary Beehner
Mary Ann Borneo,	Miss Edith Richardson
Sarah Jane Sprigster,	Miss Amy E. White
The Darkey,	Miss Helen Stinson
Eliza Hooker,	Miss Florence Richardson
Esther Snyde,	Miss Marion Sinclair
Marion Perkins,	Miss Margaret Sands
Asenath Baker,	Miss Florence Plummer
Amanda Horn,	Miss Flora Shafer
Amy Little,	Miss Cassie Sands
Sophia Patter,	Mrs. Carl J. Dane
Professor Pinkerton,	Mr. Thurston Hall

Before being transformed, a song entitled "I'm Glad I'm an Old Maid," was given by Mary Ann Borneo. The old maids also sang most touchingly in a chorus "I'm Dying for Some One to Love Me." Those who were transformed into "young and beautiful ladies of marriageable age," as all desired, were: Priscilla Hope, Anxiety Doherty, Rhoda Larkin, Sarah Jane Sprigster, The Darkey, Esther Snyde, Asenath Baker and Amy Little. Several of these ladies after their transformation contributed to the musical part of the program. A song, "Priscilla at her Spinning," by Priscilla Hope; a song, "Take Grandma's Advice," by Asenath Baker; a mandolin solo by Sarah Jane Sprigster. These young ladies deserve great credit for the skillful way in which they rendered these pieces which added much to the entertainment. Mr. Charles Main and Mr. Erastus Badger, the well known mandolin players, accompanied by Mr Gardner Pond on the piano, furnished the music for the evening. Miss Hattie Snow was the pianist who accompanied the singers during the evening.

The hit of the evening was Professor Pinkerton, as played by Thurston Hall. This well known gentleman has already had considerable experience in theatricals and his skill was well shown, both in the make up and the portrayal of this character. Great praise is due to the twenty young ladies who played in such an acceptable manner the part of the old maids. Almost 400 people were present, so the entertainment proved a great success, not only from a social point of view, but also from a financial view, as about $65 were cleared.

A Wild Cat Scheme.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The wild cat scheme in your last issue, namely, the purchase of the Whitney shops, with privileges and ponds, is one of the fads that has come to the surface. And yet the town may do it. The town did as foolish a thing when it tore down the wooden Wadleigh school house, which had modern plumbing, ventilation and sanitation, and in which all the timbers were sound and worth $20,000 to the town. An expert said if the town had money to burn it might well pull down that wooden school house and build a new one in its place, and so if the town has money to burn we might acquire the Whitney property, first getting legislative authority.

We need a new town highway stable, as the present one is very old and rotten. There is plenty of room to build a new wooden town highway stable and sheds on the old Adams school house lot on Swanton street. We do not need a new engine house, it is not rotten or in an inconvenient place. The hook and ladder truck is rather heavy for two horses, but if the town stable were removed an extension to the engine house could be made so that another stall could be had beside a present stall. We can, however, get along with but two horses on the hook and ladder truck for a few years longer. The stone crushing plant is an objectionable thing and would be equally so if moved from its present location to the rear of the Whitney shop. It ought never to have been erected in the centre of the town, but at a ledge; but it is where it is, and there let it set until the town owns a ledge situated several hundred feet from any houses. Between 1896 and 1900 there were constructed many miles of macadam streets in Winchester, but for the next few years we shall use several thousand tons less of crushed stone than we did in the previous time, and most of the stone will, as it has been, be crushed by our portable stone crusher, which is moved from place to place as its name indicates. The water works and the sewers are practically completed. Of course, if the town grows there will be need of new construction from time to time, but there is not as much need of a large storage yard for these two departments as there was ten years ago and will not probably be in the future.

If, as stated, the Supt. of Streets throws away $1,000 worth of material each year taken from the streets, he ought to be discharged. I do not believe he does. I never noticed an objectionable piece of land adjoining the town hall lot. There is a piece of land adjoining the town hall lot which the town thought they owned, but by certain manipulation they do not. The town ought to enlarge its town hall lot by the purchase of this little lot, and and if a definite price, which would be reasonable, could be had, the town ought to make an appropriation for the enlargment of the town hall lot at the next annual meeting.

In regard to a partnership purchase with the Metropolitan Park Commissioners, the two members of the Board that I know I have entire confidence in, but I would not accept the verbal statement or promises of that Board as a basis of business calcualtions. The town has had its experience with that Board. It is a long story, but enough for now. H. F. J.

Mr. Roscoe Plummer, long connected with the Winchester News Agency, has accepted a position with McKay company.

SICK, WEAK, AILING WIFE

Dr. Greene's Nervura is the Remedy Sure to Make Her Well.

The man who has a sick wife has a great burden upon him, but his burden is light compared to that of his sick wife. She may not be sick abed, but she is ailing all the time; she is weak, nervous, irritable, and tired out. She is sleepless nights and wakes mornings feeling tired, without energy or ambition, discouraged, dragged out, and indescribably miserable. Her head aches, her back aches, she cannot eat, is constipated, melancholy, and so nervous at times that she feels as if she should fly. She feels just good for nothing and is tired all the time.

How quickly will the weight of her burden of disease be lifted if she will use that greatest boon to womankind, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy! How quickly it will relieve her weakness, her nervousness, her pains and aches, her hopeless depression of mind and heart, and how speedily it will restore her strength, renew her vitality, vigor, energy, power, and the pulsing life which means happiness for women! Dr. Greene's Nervura is indeed a blessing for weak, nervous, and despairing women, for its use means to them health, strength, hope, happiness, and life itself!

Mrs. James Reake, a well-known lady living at 145 Washington Street, Peekskill, N. Y., says:

"About fifteen years ago I was taken very sick. After seven months I got over that, but have never been well since. I have suffered terribly with pains in the chest, back, kidneys, and head. There was a disagreeable feeling in the eyes and I would be very sick in the morning. My mind was always gloomy and I felt very low-spirited. I had terrible numb spells, and would have to be rubbed some time before I could get around. Some of these numb spells were so severe my friends thought I would not recover from them.

"I tried doctors and medicines, but got no better. Finally I began the use of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, as my husband had been most miraculously cured by it. After using it a short time there was a most wonderful improvement.

"I continued to steadily gain in every respect until I was cured of all these terrible ailings. This wonderful medicine had now cured my husband and myself of the most fearful suffering, but this was not all. I now want to tell about my little girl.

"She has never been well since she was born. No doctors have known just what ailed her. She was out of her mind most of the time and had constant pain in her side. She has had spasms continually, from six to seven a month.

"She is the smallest child for her age that can be found. All medicines could do nothing for her until I gave her Dr Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and then she was cured in a short time. I cannot say enough in praise of this wonderful medicine, it has done so much for me and my family. I heartily advise everybody to take it."

Do not fail to try this wonderful Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. You should specially take it now, for everybody needs at this season this grandest of spring medicines. People have more confidence in it than in any and all other remedies, because it is the prescription of a famous regular physician and therefore perfectly adapted to cure, and because Dr. Greene, 34 Temple Place, Boston, Mass., can be consulted at any time free of charge in regard to any case, whether you call or write.

Have You Been Vaccinated?

Dr. Church, Chairman of the Board of Health, informs the STAR that there are many persons, especially children, who have not yet been vaccinated. In view of the fact that there is a case of small pox in town and that many people have been exposed to it, it would seem to be an act of prudence on the part of those who have not been vaccinated to do so at once; also parents should not neglect their children in this matter.

Double Tracks on Main Street.

In all probability the Selectmen will be asked to grant permission to the Woburn Division of the Boston & Northern St. Ry. Co. to lay a second track on Main street, from the Woburn to the Medford line. Already the question is before the former city. The reason for this is the great increase of traffic over the Woburn line since the new cars were put on. The big cars are now run on fifteen-minute time, but this being found insufficient to accommodate the public, two cars are being run together. With a double track, more frequent trips can be made, the public better catered to, and with no delays at turnouts. So far as granting this request is concerned, our town is better prepared for this change than is Woburn, where Main street would have to be widened at great expense.

The great increase of business over this line is an example of how quickly the public respond to good service.

Case of Small Pox.

Winchester has its first case of small pox, but it is not so very serious nor is the danger of cases from contagion great. It was expected the disease would reach here, when all the surrounding cities have or have had it. The only cause for surprise is that the town has been kept so free from the disease.

Mrs. Paul Winston of 8 Salem street had been sick for a few days, and the case was diagnosed late Tuesday night to be small pox. Dr. Church, the Chairman of the Board of Health, immediately took steps to prevent the spread of the disease. The house was quarantined and a policeman stationed outside to keep people away. Two children attended the Wadleigh school Tuesday.

Wednesday the school was closed and will remain so until Monday. In the meantime the entire building has been fumigated and every room, the halls and entries thoroughly scrubbed and washed, and this will remove most effectively all danger.

The case is considered to be of the light kind and the patient is reported to be comfortable and in no danger. Dr. Church long ago made ample provisions in case of smallpox breaking out here, even to securing an isolated house for patients. There is no cause for alarm, and it is confidently believed that the disease will never go beyond the house where the present case is.

Forty-seventh Anniversery.

Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Davis observed their 47th wedding anniversary Thursday, March 13th, at their home on Church street. Children and grand children were present in goodly numbers to help make the occasion memorable. And they did so, much to the "surprise" and pleasure of the worthy couple, especially Mr. Davis, who will recline hereafter in a handsome and costly morris chair at the conclusion of his days work. The evening was a most pleasant one for all present, the time being passed in congratulations and well wishes and games, and in the enjoyment of toothsome refreshments, consisting of ice cream, cake, etc.

Mr. Samuel H. Davis, who is in his 74th year, in point of service, is the oldest merchant in Winchester, having carried on the the boot and shoe business since 1852, in which he is engaged at the present time. He a thorough going and interested citizen and is seldom absent from town meeting. He is genial and companionable, likewise too is his good wife, and they make an ideal couple.

A Surprise to the Friendship Club

The members of the Friendship Club were surprised by something out of the ordinary line of their meetings when they met with Mrs. H. C. Blood of Vine street Thursday. Each invitation read:

There will be a meeting of the members of the Cabinet at the Executive Mansion, 24 Vine street.

(Signed) President Roosevelt.

As there are just eight members to the club besides President Roosevelt, the secretary of each of our national departments was present. Lunch was served, and the menus, one for each secretary under his official name, were very unique. There was the navy course, the army course, with small shot, etc., diplomatic pudding, and many other mysterious things, all good to eat. The meeting was much enjoyed by the secretaries.

Second Baptist Church Organized

The Rev. Mr. Mitchell who came here a few weeks ago at the call of the colored people in town has succeeded in his endeavors to form a church.

At a meeting of the Monumental Baptist Mission held last Friday evening it was decided to organize with letters from the First Baptist church. Rev. J. L. Marable, of Haverhill, was chosen as moderator and the Second Baptist church was formed with Rev. Mitchell as pastor and Mr. John Birch as secretary. The church after its organization extended a call to Rev. Mr. Mitchell for three years, which he has accepted. Twenty members have joined this church and many more are coming in. Meetings will be held in Waterfield Hall each Sunday. Among those who took their letters from the first Baptist church in order to become members of the new church were: Miss Gertrude Guy, Mr. Joseph Whitlock and Mrs. Matilda Whitlock.

Death of Mrs. Wm. P. Greeley.

A Royal Good Time.

Tuesday was Royal Arcanum night in Winchester it being a special union meeting and class installation in the rooms of Aberjona council. There was a big turn out of the members of this successful and popular social insurance order, not alone from this town but also from the Medford Council, C. F. Loring and Roger Wolcott and other councils. Excellent degree work was performed on the 22 candidates initiated into the order by the degree staff of Palladium Council of Everett. The work was much enjoyed by the large audience. Three members were initiated from Medford Council, seven from C. F. Loring, five from Roger Walcott, and seven from Aberjona.

After the interesting exercises, the company adjourned to the banquet hall where refreshments were served. After cigars had been lighted, there were remarks by Daniel R. Beckford, G. R.; Joseph B. Robson, G. V. R.; Herbert A. Boynton, G. Sec.; Charles E. Stumcke, P. G. R.; Merrett S. Foye, G. Chap.—altogether the largest assembly of Grand Officers ever held in this town.

Newsy Paragraphs.

An agent of a bridge building concern was in town last Saturday soliciting bridge work for Winchester. As a stone arch bridge has always been considered as the most appropriate for Bacon street, it is not now supposed that iron will be substituted.

From the number of requests real estate agents are receiving for houses from people who are inclined to take up their residence here, there will not be many vacant houses in town when the spring opens. The town is growing rapidly and real estate offers a good investment, as a great many people are pushing out into the country to get away from the crowded cities.

Blanchard, Kendall & Co. have a large supply of wood ashes for lawns. This fertilizer is the best thing that can be used on lawns, as it does not bring forth a crop of weeds and other foreign plants that cause so much annoyance and damage to lawns, as is the case with the common stable manure.

It seems a pity that such a nice house as that on the corner of Marion road and Washington street, Highlands, should be allowed to become a refuge for all the cats of the neighborhood, but as several windows are broken including a cellar window the cats can be seen going out and in at all times of day and probably at night. Perhaps the owner would like to know.

Monday a 20 ton coal car started "wild" from the trestle in Blanchard, Kendall & Co's coal yard, and did not come to a standstill until it reached Wedgemere. It is said that the parting of a brake chain was the cause of the car's mad flight. Luckily no one was injured and no damage was done. The men in the switch tower saw the car coming and shouted to the gatemen to lower the gates which they did in short order, and in time to warn pedestrians and teams from the tracks. The runaway car was later brought back by a switching engine, no delay to passenger trains being caused. It was a lucky accident.

Newsy Paragraphs.

When the large elm tree on the site of the "hustling plumber's" new shop, corner of Walnut and Thompson streets, was lately cut down, it fell across the river and took with it a fine elm tree situated on the Whitney property. The Whitney tree was a foot in diameter at the butt end and of perfect proportion. This tree was set out centennial year, 1876, by Arthur E. Whitney, personally. It was about four feet high and easily transplanted from the bank of the river, which was all bushes at that time. Mr. Whitney feels badly the loss of his tree although it was the result of an accident. A new tree will be set out in place of the one broken down. A few years ago a beautifully shaped horse chestnut tree near the Whitney dam and belonging to that property was mutilated by cutting off the top to accommodate the telephone company. This tree, or the remains of it, is about forty-two years old. More care should be taken not to injure private shade trees near the highway.

In 1838 Mr. Holland assisted in laying the second set of rails between Boston and Lowell. When the work was completed he was appointed a section hand, and for 30 years thereafter looked after the stretch of track between what is now Wedgemere and East Woburn. Retiring in 1888, it was announced that he had never been absent a day from work except when he was laid up as the result of an accident, which very nearly resulted fatally.

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

Ignorance of the law impels one to seek the services of a lawyer, and yet it is a wise man who ignores guess-work and accepts the protection of certainty. Some people are pianowise and some are otherwise. It is the wisdom in the selection of a just-right instrument which Frank A. Locke of 146 Boylston street, Boston, expert tuner and piano specialist, extends to any one having a purchase in view. A wisdom acquired by hard study and long experience in tuning and construction—a service absolutely free.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Talk about being jarred by statements, why the "Town Meeting Comments" in last week's issue of the STAR, signed by the gentleman of whom there is a play which says there is too much of him, would almost paralyze you. Let us analyze his "queerings." He says the Appropriations Committee made no provision to take up certain notes; they were not notes but bonds and as they had not been issued there was nothing to provide for; the town did not vote to have the County Commissioners complete Main street and the gentleman knows it cannot be done that way; the town Treasurer did not call attention of the meeting to bonds as there was nothing to be said about them; his comments on water bonds shows that he needs to take some memory cure, for on page 198 of town report for 1900, he says, "We believe that future construction should be provided for by loans," etc., and he wrote those words himself; the report under the vote of the town could not have been circulated earlier than the morning of election day and the committee thought circulating it then would amount to little, and so decided to have it distributed at the evening session. Judged by his performance at the second session of the meeting, after having the report a week, the more he studied it the less he knew about it.

Our Counsel fees have become such an item that it would seem as if we should establish a separate account and not have the charges slid into the various accounts and therefore not show plainly to the average citizen what this department is costing. In 1899 Counsel fees were $299, in 1900 they were $602.50, and last year $1200. What will they be this year?

The town meeting apparently forgot to discharge any of the committees.

When the location of the new High Schoolhouse on the Howe lot is considered, the question of locating a public library there should be remembered also.

In the last seven years water works construction account has had from water receipts account $27,354.42. This was an entirely wrong transfer, as all authorities agree that money for construction should be raised by loans. $2000 was also transferred to general interest account in 1900, $6500 in 1901, and all town departments have been furnished with water free since 1894, which at the rates the Water Board used to charge, $15 a hydrant, would amount to about $20,000. It would look as if the water takers stood even up with the cost of water now. Receipts will show a balance this year, too, over interest on water bonds and maintenance.

According to the report of the Metropolitan Park Commission just issued their has been expended upon Manchester Field by this board $13,890.24, this leaves $36,190.76 for further work on and near to this locality.

Any balance from water receipts for this year beyond maintenance and interest on water bonds has been voted to interest account, but certainly one third of the interest charges is for things outside of water bonds, so that next year we should see to it that a less amount is transferred from water receipts to general interest account. Water receipts should not be diverted this way.

Night Was Her Terror.

"I would cough nearly all night long," writes Mrs. Chas. Applegate, of Alexandria, Ind., "and could hardly get any sleep. I had consumption so bad that if I walked a block, I would cough frightfully and spit blood, but, when all other medicines failed, three $1.00 bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery wholly cured me and I gained 58 pounds." It's absolutely guaranteed to cure coughs, colds, lagrippe, bronchitis and throat and lung troubles. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Grover's drug store.

On Thursday night, next week, the March social will be held. The committee have made very extensive arrangements for a good time. Members are invited to bring a lady friend.

*Estimated.

1. The Sewer Commissioners are allowed to spend from the former sale of Sewer Bonds and from the Sewer Assessments received each year, without a vote of the town each year as the Water Board are required to have.

2. In the appropriation for Town Hall there is spent about $1,000.00 for light, heat and janitor service for the Library.

3. The Overseers of the Poor have spent from $500 to $1000 each year out of the income of the Asa Fletcher Fund for aid, which should have been charged to the appropriation for support of the poor. The Asa Fletcher Fund was not given to save the town taxes.

4. The town is reimbursed for its payments for State Aid by the State, but of course the town is again charged with its proportion of State Aid in the State tax.

5. The Metropolitan Sewer Tax assessed by the State was $556.03 more in 1901 than 1900; and $150.32 more in 1900 than 1899. The amount of tax for 1902 is estimated.

6. The overlay tax for abatements for 1901 was 7483.73, and was made larger than usual to cover the probable Metropolitan Park Tax. $6000 estimated for Park Tax and $1483.73 for Overlay for abatements. The second and third assessments, which will be for 1901 and 1902 respectively, will be larger than the first assessment, which will be namely, $5271.11. The Metropolitan Park Tax for 1902 is estimated at $6000. The average amount of abatements for the last two years was $2,236.79. The estimated overlay tax for abatements for 1902 is estimated at $2,483.73.

7. A portion of the appropriation for interest is the balance of water rates not otherwise appropriated. Taking the estimate of the Water Board of what the water rates will be this year, and not taking into account the unpaid water rates of $204.74, the amount appropriated for interest in 1902 was $19,079.80, but the water rates will probably exceed the estimate of the Water Board, in which case the appropriation for interest will be made larger.

8. The State Tax was $1,088.00 larger for 1901 than for 1900. The State Tax for 1902 is estimated at $6,183.00.

9. The County Tax was $1,954.74 larger for 1901 than for 1900. The County Tax for 1902 is estimated at $11,261.72.

A Little Correction.

"Twinkle, twinkle little star,
How I wonder what you are,
Up above the world so high,
Like a diamond in the sky."

The above classic quotation, expressive of surprise and wonderment, instinctively came to my mind when I first discerned the brilliant diamond-thought in the mind of the Winchester STAR, in proposing that the town of Winchester and the State of Massachusetts should jointly swallow, or dry up, the old ancient mill privilege, situated in the centre of Winchester. None but a Star of the first magnitude, a fixed Star in the lofty firmament of Winchester ideas could have illuminated this question so brightly as to discover its possibility and have faith in its probability. It is not my purpose to discuss the whole of this magnificent scheme at such short notice. The STAR states that master minds connected with the Winchester Fire Department, engineers of great repute in handling water, have been "hard at work" on the proposed improvement scheme for a long time. They have got used to the brilliancy of the idea, while citizens at large, in "outer darkness" in the matter, are simply confused and blinded by the brilliant X rays the STAR has suddenly turned upon the subject. Neither am I, in my present bat-like state of mind, to attempt to throw cold water or mud upon, or belittle in any way, the STAR's enthusiasm in favor of turning the water of Winchester into dry land, as Moses did of old. I leave the "road across the pond," made of the ancient ash piles of Winchester, where the STAR dumped the project in its last issue, in the hands of the people. This beautiful country lane, with its rustic bridges across the Aberjona, is a favorite picture in the "mind's eye" of the STAR, and I would not mar its beauty by the rough handling of those of not enough aesthetic taste or imagination to see its glorious future. The wish is father to the thought in all new projects, and the STAR is undoubtedly the legitimate parent of the infant idea under discussion. No one thinks for a moment that the STAR will abandon its offspring, but will nurse it and care for it until it is old enough to "star" for itself.

Since the world began, hope has been the lamp lighting the way to better things. At present, the STAR has brilliant hopes and great expectations of the future of its infant prodigy. It has rubbed its Alladin's lamp and the genii has come forth and made the STAR happy with presents of beautiful rainbows (composed of wind and water in proper proportions), concerning the future of its idea. Engine houses, town stables, sewer yards and costly public buildings of all kinds rise up before its imagination, and Winchester Centre becomes the most beautiful spot in the world to the STAR.

"What we long for, that we have for one transcendant moment, Before the present, poor and bare can make its sneering comment," says the poet. It would be wicked to disturb the STAR in its present dream by making any discouraging comment whatever of any bread and butter nature. This is not wholly a world of dollars and cents and it is not left exclusively to the money brokers and town treasurers to decide whether a new and shining light in the heavens is a fixed star of great magnitude, or a brilliant meteor flashing across the sky only to sink into midnight darkness as soon as discerned. At least give the STAR the credit of arousing Winchester to a state of wonder, love and praise over what might be, if not over what can be done for Winchester.

One little correction should be made in the STAR's last week's article concerning the flowage height of Mystic Lake. The height of the water in the lake during last August, September and October did not exceed the legal height to which it can be flowed, that is, "the level of the top of Bacon's dam," as it existed in 1860. No authority was ever given by the legislature to build or maintain Mystic dam at any particular height. Whatever the height of the dam, the level of the water must not exceed, as far as the dam flows it, the level of the top of Bacon's dam. If that level is exceeded at the tail of the mill, then the river, which is flowed by the Mystic dam, should be cleaned out so as to prevent such flowage. If the state prefers to lower the Mystic dam instead of keeping the stream, which is a part of their storage basin, clean and low enough to take away promptly the water from the mill, it certainly can do so. The whole question is more a matter of having a sufficiently deep clean river bed between Winchester Centre and the lake than it is a question of such low flowage at Mystic lake, as the STAR is afraid of. The City of Boston kept the river very clean and did not allow it to fill up. The State of Massachusetts has not spent one cent on the river bed, but actually has allowed the bed of the stream to be filled up and closed in since it has had control of the Mystic water works. The large street sewer from Main street, in the rear of the Gifford school lot, is pouring in loads of street washings into the stream at every storm. This sewer was extended to the stream by the state. The state, through the Metropolitan Park Commission, also changed the channel of the river, not digging out the new channel nearly as deep as the old one. If the state prefers to lower the level of the lake, instead of properly caring for the stream, thus properly taking away the water from the mill, it can do so.

As to the mill owners causing "pestilential mud-flats" to be established near Wedgemere, on account of their rights being trespassed upon, the statement is all moonshine, not starlight, and the STAR has been misinformed in the matter. The level of the lake is some two feet lower at the present time than its legal height. Its legal height, five and one-half or six feet above the mud sill of the old Bacon dam, is high enough for all purposes, and it is about the height of the water in the lake last fall. The water was lowered during the present winter months, it is presumed, so as not to flow back on land not owned by the state, in season of high water.

I would say in closing that the Metropolitan Water Board and the mill owners have very amicably exchanged information and facts regarding the legal height of the water in the lake and stream. Each has informed the other of what it knows about the matter. The Board has given the mill owners every facility to get at the truth, and has spent considerable money getting levels, contour plans of the present state of the old mud sill, etc. The mill owners have also exhibited many documents, records of old controversies regarding the height of the Bacon, formerly Sullivan & Symmes dam, which the state now controls. There is no suit between the parties, each endeavoring to truthfully inform the other of the true state of affairs. On the contrary, the Metropolitan Park Commission do not care to receive any information from others and make no use of it if it is given to them. My experience with this Board is that it is better to save your breath or your ink than to try to inform them about anything you ought to specially know about.

ARTHUR E. WHITNEY.

[The STAR is always willing to "twinkle" or "shoot" across the heavens for the good of Winchester. We are glad to perceive from the tone of the above article that the writer does not oppose the STAR's plan for beautifying the centre of Winchester.—EDITOR.]

Boating News.

The Medford Boat Club held its annual meeting Tuesday evening. The following officers and committees were elected: President, F. J. Teel; Vice-President, "Jack" Howard; Secretary, Harold C. Boardman; Treasurer, W. E. Crosby; Captain, "Ben" Jacobs. Executive Committee: P. J. Teel, C. L. Baxter, "Jack" Howard, H. E. Boardman, Gilbert Hodges, R. B. Lawrence. Regatta Committee: "Ben" Jacobs, Corliss Wadleigh, Lyman Sise, J. W. Rice, (of Winchester). House Committee: C. A. F. Emery, Oscar C. Cunningham, H. L. Vose, (of Winchester) A. G. Mather.

The club recommended the building of a pavilion on the lake situated on the right of the annex upon the foundations of the old pumping station. They also recommended strengthening and enlarging the float, introducing a telephone and running water, etc. The question of moving the old house or erecting a new one was left to a building committee to report upon. The war canoe at present being built for the club is expected next month.

Accident at Winchester Laundry

Mr. A. T. Downer, proprietor of the Winchester Laundry, met with a painful accident Thursday morning. While adjusting the machinery he got one of his arms caught in the gearing with the result that he arm was broken in two places.

A number of new machines have been put into this laundry recently in order to keep up with the great increase in business, and it was while a huge two and a half ton machine was being set up and adjusted for the purpose of ironing family clothing that the accident occurred through the thoughtless starting of the machinery by the expert who had been sent from the factory to put it in running order. The Winchester Laundry is now thoroughly equipped with the latest and most up-to-date facilities for successfully handling any amount of laundry work, and this accident happens, fortunately, at the completion of the installation of a series of new machines.

Comments.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The town meetings slid through so quickly and others talked so much that I did not have time to speak, even if I had dared to do so.

May I not echo a few observations of town affairs relating to town government with reference to the last town meeting and the actions of the town officers?

And may I do this in two or three separate articles rather than one long article which would tire the type-setters and the readers of the STAR?

I shall not claim to be original but shall copy from others.

The Selectmen should furnish the STAR with a copy of the proceedings of their meetings previous to March 11th.

Perhaps Chairman Bradstreet voted for himself for chairman of the Board as another man did a few years ago, or perhaps he voted for Mr. Fitzgerald. Politics is being played in the Board which is bad stuff for business.

I believe the clerk elect was not present at the first two or three meetings and that no clerk pro tem was elected. If so the records and the meetings are no good.

The proper clerk of the Selectmen, if they have no one of their own number who is competent, is the Town Clerk without any regard to the personel, but the Town Clerk should not be one of the Selectmen or Town Treasurer, as in such a case he has to certify certain papers to himself, a condition that is not contemplated in the statute. For the convenience of the public the Town Clerk should be Water Registrar. And the present Town Clerk should hold less number of other offices than he now does.

The Selectmen on March 11th voted to have their clerk request the County Commissioners to define the lines of Forest street. Neither the clerk or the Selectmen can petition for such things, but the Selectmen as individuals to the number of five can. The result of the clerk's petition was, that the commissioners informed the selectmen that their petition was no good, and prepared a proper petition to be signed by the Selectmen individualy and to be sent to the Commissioners.

The Selectmen have elected an Inspector of Animals but did not fix his salary. It is usual to fix the pay in such cases. According to the printed records no town bills were paid last week. This is a thing unheard of before, or else no record of this trifling matter was made.

Ice is Out of Mystic.

This means that the canoeing and boating season will soon be at hand. The successful season of the Winchester Boat Club last year augers well for an increase in the number of devotees of this delightful form of recreation the coming season. Canoes and boats will soon be overhauled and put in commission by the fortunate ones who possess them. For those who contemplate purchasing anything in this line the proper place to go is to "The Paper Store," 181 Main street. This has long been the recognized headquarters for everything in the line of athletic and sporting goods, and this year will be the agency for the Morris, Spaulding and other standard canoes. Sundries of every kind may be had here. By buying at home you are guaranteed satisfaction by a responsible dealer and avoid any possibility of disappointment. Goods are always as represented and prices as low if not lower, than elsewhere. Jerseys, rowing shirts and sweaters always in stock.—A. Wm. Rooney.

New and Old Ideas.

Tenacious clinging to old ideas, when it means such a saving in health, wealth and contentment to accept new ones, is a sure sign of one's "losing their grip on things." With this in mind it is pleasing to see how the housekeeper is finding out and appreciating the many sterling qualities of Sulpho-Napthol.

Sulpho-Napthol takes the place of many articles of diversified uses, and in its use it is as practical and economical as the cheapest, and far more so than them all combined. Cleansing, purifying, antiseptic and germicidal qualities combined are alone found in Sulpho-Napthol.

Observations.

[Written by N. A. Richardson.]

Last week I took a little journey to Dover, N. H., and spent a few days with my late wife's sister, a much loved lady, who has borne the burden of a long life, adorned with many Christian virtues. My heart is sad with grief — sixty years ago the present month for the first time I met my beloved and faithful wife, who lived with me, where I now live, for fifty six years, dying a year ago. Dover, N. H., the shire town of Strafford County, is on both sides of the Cocheco river, which finds the ocean at Portsmouth. It is a large cotton cloth manufacturing city, also the home of the Sawyer woolen mills, known world wide as producing fine goods. Dover has extended its outline, but the heart of the city has changed but little for fifty years. The city has a large and fine edifice as a home for the poor, built and endowed by Arioch Wentworth of Boston, the marble king, who was born here. Fifty-eight years ago I spent a week here listening to the famous criminal trial of one Howard, tried for murdering Phebe Hanson. He was convicted and executed. At this trial, for the first time I saw and listened to John P. Hale, one of the counsel in the case, afterwards representative and senator in Congress from New Hampshire. As your readers know, he was originally a Democrat, but left his party and became a pioneer in the anti-slavery cause. He was a very able lawyer, orator and politician, with many qualities of statesmanship, united with progressive ideas. He was of impressive personality, stout frame, with a large head, full of sensible brain, magnetic in manners, with a voice clear and far reaching; a man if you met on the street you would turn to look at again. In statue quite like James G. Blaine, but less polished and captivating; not as brilliant in style or so schooled in diplomacy. Hale and Blaine were both held in high regard in Congress and admired by their constituency. John P. Hale had reached the meridian of his power and fame before the lustre of Blaine's great renown had reflected its full culmination. Hale's popularity at the north rested largely in his efforts to confront the slave power of the south and overthrow its purposes, to mould the laws and interpret the constitution for its continuance. He had a noble heart that throbbed for freedom. A strong friend of President Lincoln who in the last days of his life appointed him minister to Spain.

In political science, wearing a helmet to challenge every opponent, stand bold and defiant against assault, with resolution and nerve to thrill with amazement his friends and disarm his enemies, James G. Blaine was without a rival. As an artist on the floor of the house, the skill he exhibited to teach and lead others had the magic of forensic charm and the glow of a smelting fire. In debate in Congress the genius and height of his power was like the eyrie of the eagle above the cote of the dove. It could be said of him, as Thomas Jefferson said of John Adams, "he was the Colossus on the floor." James G. Blaine ought to have been elected president; he had the "presidential malady," which Clay and Webster had badly, before him. As Secretary of State under Garfield he had a commanding future, but Garfield's untimely death chilled the hopes of many years. His great work, "Twenty Years in Congress," is a text and review that should be read by old and young — the Ultima Thule of political life and statecraft.

The old home of John P. Hale stands in Dover, quite as it did half a century ago, I think, one daughter lives in it; another daughter married ex-senator Chandler of N. H. This State within the last sixty years has had three men of Democratic faith through life and of national significence. Governor Isaac Hill, homely in looks, who could not speak a word in public, but whose pen and influence kept the State in line to Democratic music for twenty-five years; he was law and prophet; as an editor, organizer and manager of political forces he never had an equal in the State. The second of this trio, Senator Atherton, known in the north as "gag law Atherton," who introduced into the U. S. Senate one of the most offensive measures against free speech and slave discussion that ever interferred with debate. In after years it buried its author in political infamy. The third of this trio was President Franklin Pierce, a dyed-in-the-wool Democrat, who to the day of his death, clung to the traditions of Jefferson and Jackson. Half a century ago New Hampshire and South Carolina stood guard upon the outer wall of the Democratic citadel, worshipping the Sub-Treasury system of finance, and loathing the U. S. bank and all its paper promises.

If the Dyke's meadow question ever comes up in town meeting again I will show to the town how the whole matter stands, and what it has lost and gained in the operation. I say emphatically I believe the water commissioners have tried to do right and do their duty, but have been misled and gone astray by false light.

In looking over the town reports for the last fifteen years, I find that from 1887 to 1899 (thirteen years) the town has paid for counsel fees $3,238.64, an average of $249.11 a year; and that for two years, 1900 and 1901, it has paid and owes for counsel fees $1,877.50, or an average of $938.75 a year.

The drainage on Church street, if rightly constructed will be the opening of a system of drainage that will accommodate the whole west side. The water can flow into Mystic pond by the line of the Gardner lock, Middlesex canal route.

Pneumonia Can be Prevented.

This disease always results from a cold or an attack of the grip and may be prevented by the timely use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This remedy was extensively used during the epidemics of la grippe of the past few years, and not a single case has ever been reported that did not recover or that resulted in pneumonia, which shows it to be a certain preventive of that dangerous disease. Concert in Aid of a Good Cause.

The Winchester Branch of the Hospital Aid Society was responsible for another most enjoyable evening, Monday, which was a concert given in the Town Hall. As usual the attendance was large and the affair successful in every sense of the word. Many people were present from surrounding cities and towns. The program was as follows:

Piano solo, Miss Emily Dowd; solo, George Kingsley; violin solo, Master James McNulty, Boston; comic solo, M. Cary; dancing, Messrs. Horne and Doyle; reading, Miss Agnes O'Leary; mandolin solo, John S. Dunn, Boston; song, Alberte Horne, La Diel and Winslow, singers and comedians; cornet solo, Mr. Earl, Boston; solo, Miss Cusack; piano solo, Miss M. Rice, Boston; buck and wing dancing, Jerry Callahan, Boston; monologue comedian and mimic, Al Coleman; reading, Charles J. Harrold; song, James Hammond, Woburn; coon song, John J. Cadigan; black-face comedian, Phillip Markel, Boston; duet, Mr. Kelley and Mrs. Beauchemin, Arlington; banjo solo, Miss Leahy, Medford; song, James Spellman, Medford; comic song, Thomas W. Maroney, Boston; song, Miss Florence Barstow. The entertainment concluded with the farce, "Baby Elephant," participated in by Phillip A. Hendricks, Thomas F. Meagher, John Donaghey and Charles J. Harrold.

Boston expended eighteen dollars a minute for its recent entertainment of the Prince. Prince Henry's stay in Boston was 17 hours, or 1020 minutes, while the total expense of dinner, menus, decorations, wines, cigars, flowers, street cleaning, carriages, police and military was $18,300. And all this, be it remembered, in a city where many a poor family is suffering for the comforts of life.—[Arlington Enterprise.

Calumet Club Notes.

The most interesting game thus far rolled in the home tournament took place last Friday night between the Bucks, who led the tournament, and the Tigers, who are an exceptionally strong team. There was a large turnout of club-men and bowlers to witness the game, and they were fully repaid by the large amount of fun, if not by the excellent bowling. The first and second strings were won by the Bucks, although both teams alternated in the lead at different stages and at times were very wild, some of the best bowlers rolling off the alleys. The Bucks fairly ran away from their opponents the first string, although Woods and Fitch of the Tigers put up a strong fight. The second string was close up to the last box, when the Tigers got three breaks and two miss spares, while Greeley and Kendall of the Bucks bunched. The last string was the Tigers' from the start, they leading by a hundred pins on the third frame. For the Tigers, Woods and Fitch rolled an excellent game, while for the Bucks, Kendall, Corey, and Greeley did good work, as did Philbrick in the first, when he helped them out with a quad. At the commencement of the week the Calumet candlepin team was tied for first place with 999th A. A., with six games won and three lost. The team will roll with the 999th A. A. this evening at Charlestown.

The Gilt Edge team defeated the A. B. C. two out of three games Thursday night.

Frank Richardson stands in tenth position in the individual average in the Gilt Edge League.

Mr. John Caldwell captured first prize at the whist tournament held at the club house Saturday evening. He and Mr. Geo. Carter were tied for first place at 44 points each. The two gentlemen guessed the date of a coin held by a third gentleman and both were two years out of the way. Another coin was produced and Mr. Caldwell was the nearest to the correct date. First prize was a handsome silver paper cutter.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know it.

How To Find Out.

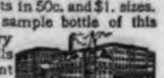

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What to Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in 50c. and $1. sizes.

You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful discovery and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail, address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper.

WORTH $300,000,000.

The President of a certain big Oil Company is said to be worth $300,000,000. A tidy bit of money and no mistake. And yet he isn't happy. In an address to a Bible class he spoke of trials and troubles of the rich and the loads they have to carry. A young lady whispered to a friend that he might wear a Benson's Porous Plaster on his back or, better still, divide the money among the members of the class. I don't know why her idea about the plaster makes me want to laugh, but it does. All the same I have seen plenty of people laugh after putting Benson's Plasters on their backs or chests, or on any other spot where there was weight, heaviness, weakness or pain. It may be the sharp stabs of neuralgia, the aches and wrenches of rheumatism; it may be colds in muscles or bones; it may be those kidney or lumbago thrusts that make you yell as at a dog bite; or it may be a strain or cramp, anything that wants quieting and comforting. Dont bother with salves, liniments, lotions, etc., or with any of the stupid and useless old style plasters. Clap on a Benson's. It relieves at once and cures quickly. It stops the pain and makes you laugh for the very ease and good feeling of it. But watch out against imitations and substitutes. All druggists, or we will prepay postage on any number ordered in the United States on receipt of 25c. each.

LESSON XII, FIRST QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, MARCH 23.

Text of the Lesson, Eph. v, 11-21. Memory Verses, 15-18—Golden Text, Eph. v, 18—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1902, by American Press Association.]

11, 12. "Have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness." This week's study in this epistle and the next on the resurrection need not necessarily break the continuity of our study of the acts of the apostles, for in all the Scriptures we have the things concerning Him of whom Philip spake to the eunuch and whom we must see as the center of every lesson. In this epistle we are, as one has said, taken into the presence chamber of the King and made acquainted with His secret counsels and purposes concerning us. Only as we by faith enter into His love and purposes will we be delivered from the works of darkness mentioned in chapter iv, 31; I Cor. vi, 9, 10; Gal. v, 19-21. Intemperance, as generally understood, is one of the many works of darkness, but the child of God should be free from all if he would know the joy of being a child of the Lord Almighty (II Cor. vi, 14-18).

13, 14. "Awake thou that sleepest and arise from the dead and Christ shall give thee light." The three favored apostles, heavy with sleep on the Mount of Transfiguration and actually sleeping in Gethsemane, show us how the most highly favored believers may be indifferent to the great things of God and how this cry, "Awake thou that sleepest," may apply to us all.

15, 16. "See, then, that ye walk circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise, redeeming the time, because the days are evil." The Revised Version has on these two verses either in the text or the margin "Look therefore carefully how ye walk," "buying up the opportunity." The life of the believer is spoken of as a continual dying to self, an overcoming, a conflict, a race (II Cor. iv, 11; I John v, 4, 5; Eph. vi, 12; Heb. xii, 1), but in this epistle and elsewhere it is also called "a walk." In the climax in Isa. xl, 31, the walking—that is, the steady plodding—is more difficult than the mounting on wings or the running. We are entreated to walk worthy of our vocation, not as other gentiles walk, to walk in love, as children of light, to walk worthy of God, who hath called us unto His kingdom and glory (Eph. iv, 1, 17; v, 2, 8; I Thess. ii, 12). As to buying up the opportunities, if we had the zeal of unscrupulous business men, who for their own gain make corners in even the necessaries of life, how much might be accomplished in the service of Christ? If we walked as Christ walked (I John ii, 6), all would be well, but who is sufficient? Our sufficiency is of God (II Cor. iii, 5).

17. "Wherefore be ye not unwise, but understanding what the will of the Lord is." It is not the will of God that any should perish, for He will have all to be saved and has made full provision for the same (II Pet. iii, 9; I Tim. ii, 4; John iii, 16). When sinners are saved, He desires that they should be holy and so fully yield to Him that they may prove in daily life how good and acceptable and perfect His will is (I Thess. iv, 3; Rom. xii, 1, 2). Our blessed Lord could truly say "I seek not mine own will." "I delight to do thy will, O my God" (John iv, 34; v, 30; vi, 38; Ps. xl, 8).

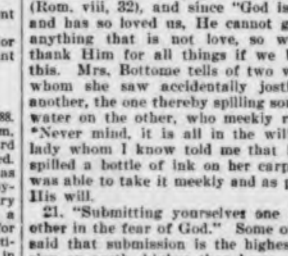

18. "Be not drunk with wine, wherein is excess, but be filled with the Spirit." Drunkenness belongs to the unfruitful works of darkness; to be filled with the Spirit is the privilege of every child of light. Wine stimulates and exhilarates unnaturally, but the Holy Spirit stimulates supernaturally; the one is for self, the other for God. There is a drunkenness that does not come from wine or strong drink (Isa. xxix, 9), but is just as much the work of the adversary. Only that which is of God through Christ gives light and life; all that is not of God causes stupor and drunkenness, and the manifestation of the flesh as God only can give life, so God only can live in us the life He desires, and He is pleased to do this by His Spirit, therefore the necessity of being filled with the Spirit by whom alone the life can be lived.

19. "Speaking to yourselves in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing and making melody in your heart to the Lord." A drunken man is apt to make himself known by his noisy talk or ribald song, but a Spirit filled person, having true melody in his heart, will sing unto the Lord. Each proclaims his master by that which comes from the abundance of his heart. In Col. iii, 16, we have the same result from the word of Christ dwelling richly in us; therefore, according to an axiom which says that things that are equal to the same thing are equal to one another, there is probably some connection between being filled with the Spirit and filled with the word of God. We know that the Spirit has written the word, and the Spirit is the word, and the word of God, the Lord Jesus, is the embodiment and manifestation of the written word. If we would be filled by the Spirit and used by the Spirit, let us lay up His word diligently in our hearts (Ezek. iii, 10, 11).

20. "Giving thanks always for all things unto God and the Father in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ." In I Thess. v, 18, it is written "In everything give thanks; for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you." How earnestly we should covet to be filled with the Spirit since He alone can live this holy and beautiful life in us! "He who spared not His own Son, but delivered Him up for us all, how shall He not, with Him, also freely give us all things" (Rom. viii, 32), and since "God is love" and has so loved us, He cannot give us anything that is not love, so we will thank Him for all things if we believe this. Mrs. Bottome tells of two waiters whom she saw accidentally jostle one another, the one thereby spilling some hot water on the other, who meekly replied, "Never mind, it is all in the will." A lady whom I know told me that having spilled a bottle of ink on her carpet she was able to take it meekly and as part of His will.

21. "Submitting yourselves one to another in the fear of God." Some one has said that submission is the highest mission on earth, higher than home or foreign missions, and that unless one has learned it he is not fit for missionary service anywhere. In His life at Nazareth, in His baptism, in His public ministry and in His sufferings our Lord fully manifested this grace of the Spirit. As we can only show our love to God by our love to others, so we can only manifest true submission to God by submission to others.

MOTHERS AND CHILDREN.

A Bill Introduced Making Fathers and Mothers Joint Guardians.

A bill has been introduced in the Massachusetts Legislature to make fathers and mothers joint guardians of their children. Massachusetts suffragists have been asking for this measure for fifty-five years. Last year attention was strongly called to the need of it by the case of Mrs. Naramore, a tender-hearted and hardworking young mother who killed her six children in a fit of distraction caused by her shiftless husband's determination to separate them from her. The question has been taken up by the women's clubs and this year strong influence will be brought to bear on the Legislature to secure equal guardianship. The only society of women to range itself definitely on the wrong side of this question, so far as known, is the "Massachusetts Association Opposed to the Further Extension of Suffrage to Women." It has published over its official imprint a leaflet in defence of the present law, which excludes the mother from any voice in the control of the children, so long as she and her husband are living together.—Woman's Journal.

Women's Duty to the City.

By Rev. R. H. Heber Newton.

Every woman owes a duty to the city in which she lives. She should interest herself in its government. If she did there would be less sin, less crime, and more happiness in the great centres of population.

She should be given the right to vote. Her responsibilities of citizenship should be recognized. Some say that it would unsex her. There is no danger of anything unsexing a woman. When I hear women decrying the mannishness of those who are striving for the emancipation of their sex, I grow sick at heart. For I know there is more mannishness in society than in those who are termed the 'new' women.

Here and there you might find an isolated case of a neglected home by the latter, but where you show me one such I will show you a thousand where the women have been weaned away from the home by the demands of society.

From earliest history man has reserved the sphere of the State unto himself, and he always has relegated woman to the home and the church, which he has neglected himself. Can you give any sensible reason why these things should be?

Equal Pay for Women.

A man who deserves the gratitude of women is Director of Charities Cooley of the Cleveland O., Workhouse. The principal industry in that institution is broom making, and the custom has been to pay the women just half as much for their labor as the men, although the records showed that their work averaged the same. Thus it took a woman twice as long as a man to work out her fine. The present director sensibly declared this discrimination "a rank injustice." and he has abolished it.

Mrs. Ida H. Harper says in the N. Y. Sun: "Some reforms have to begin at the bottom and work up. Perhaps this one in time may reach the public schools, where the same practice is followed."

Where women vote, the public schools quickly feel the influence of it. In Wyoming, it has for many years been the law that men and women in the employ of the State (including teachers) shall receive equal pay for equal work. In Utah, the news that suffrage had been granted to women was quickly followed by the news that the Legislature had passed a bill whereby female teachers in the public schools were to receive the same pay as male teachers, provided they held certificates of the same grade. These are among the practical results of equal suffrage.—Mary C. Hogarth.

Wanted, Pure Milk.

After a tour of inspection among the dairies that supply Chicago with milk and butter, Food Commissioner Patterson pronounces fourteen out of fifteen he visited to be "filthy and absolutely unfit for the purposes used, and a menace to the public health." His description of them is enough to make any person of sensitive nerves feel ill, even without drinking the milk or eating the butter. From many other cities come similar complaints. Whether the pure food law shall be enforced or not depends upon politics, A witty writer has well said that the influence of politics is "not 'outside the home,' but inside the baby.' Give the mothers of America a vote, and officials who want to be re-elected will at least see that wholesome milk is provided for the children.—Alice Stone Blackwell.

Woman as a Political Factor

The newspapers are discussing with a good deal of earnestness the value of women in political campaigns. Many of the journals which are opposed to woman suffrage, do not hesitate to praise the women, and tell them how they contribute to the success of municipal reform by their addresses and other political labors. But these newspapers are simply putting weapons into the hands of the suffragists. It will not be long before the ladies will not be satisfied with doing much of the hard work, and at the same time being denied the privileges of citizens.

If women may raise the sinews of war, make speeches, and drum up the derelict on election day, all the horrible talk of the "antis" about the women going into politics goes into thin air. If women may do everything in politics but vote, without being unsexed, or upsetting the social order having the suffrage would produce none of the prophesied calamities.

Surely all of the logic is with the suffragists, and they will not be slow to use it.—New York Defender.

La Grippe Quickly Cured.

"In the winter of 1898 and 1899 I was taken down with a severe attack of what is called la grippe," says F. L. Hewett, a prominent druggist of Winfield, Ill. "The only medicine I used was two bottles of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It broke up the cold and stopped the coughing like magic, and I have never since been troubled with Grippe." Chamberlain's Cough Remedy can always be depended upon to break up a severe cold and ward off any threatened attack of pneumonia. It is pleasant to take, too, which makes it the most desirable and one of the most popular preparations in use for these ailments. For sale by Young & Brown.

A WONDERFUL PEARL.

Ball of Beeswax Converted Into Jewel by a Mollusk.

The Smithsonian institution has recently acquired the most remarkable artificial pearl in existence. It is about an inch and a half in length, oval in form and an exquisite pink in color. If it were not flawed, it would be worth an enormous sum of money, but even in its present condition it is priceless as a curiosity.

The pearl was made by introducing a ball of beeswax into the shell of a living fresh water mussel, one of those bivalves common in many rivers of the United States which frequently yield fine pearls, occasionally producing a gem of this kind worth many thousands of dollars. The nacre secreted by mollusks of this genus is pink, often bordering on salmon, and the pearls obtained from them are among the most beautiful in the world.

The ball of wax was placed near the hinge of the bivalve, which, being kept in a tank of fresh water, was carefully watched. Under such circumstances of course a mollusk tries to protect itself from irritation by covering the foreign object with a smooth coating of pearl stuff, the same material as that which it uses for lining its own shell.

This is exactly what the mussel did in the case described, and the result was an enormous pearl. Owing to pressure, however, the waxen ball lost its spherical shape, and the pearl became oval in form.

To Prevent Collisions at Sea.

Captain Brinkworth of Gloucester, England, has designed a card which is to be used in connection with fog signals. His idea is to have a schedule of signals which will indicate the way a vessel is moving. He has compiled a list of these signals corresponding to the various points of the compass, to which the card answers as a key, so that when a vessel blows a certain signal a glance at the card will give her direction, and the commander of a vessel hearing it can act accordingly. The system now in use of simply blowing long blasts is very unsatisfactory and confusing, since it gives no indication of the course of the approaching vessel.

Nernst Lamp Activity.

The Nernst lamp is active in the patent office at present, and many electricians are working on the principle. Seven patents relating to details of the lamp were granted in one week, and the end is not yet. Two of the patents were granted to M. W. Hanks. One describes a glower, the working part of which is deeply grooved, thereby giving the largest practical amount of light emitting surface without any sacrifice of strength in the glower. The other relates to making electrical connection with the ends of the glower.

Steamboat Propelled by Air.

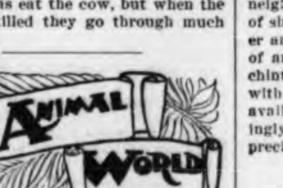

A new method of marine propulsion by pneumatic ejection was tried recently at the Carpenter company's baths at Stratford. The steam is generated in a boiler of special pattern, and by means of a patent steam jet induction apparatus atmospheric air is propelled along tubes running to the stern of the vessel. The force of the air against the water propels the boat. Reversing is effected by diverting the steam into tubes running to the bow and steering by stopping the ejection of steam on one side.

A Live Fish Car.

A live fish car has recently been put into service on the Grand Trunk railway of Canada. It is intended for the distribution of fish to the waters along its lines. The car was built by the company shops at Point St. Charles. It is made up of a series of tanks so constructed and arranged as to provide for a proper circulation of air and to enable attendants to keep the water always at an equal temperature. The tanks are made of galvanized iron and hold from 1,000 to 1,500 fish.

Cow Worship In Africa.

A branch of the Magois call themselves Katua. These people are cow worshipers and indulge in certain rites which were supposed to be peculiar to the Hindoo religion. The origin of this cow worship is presumably the same with the Katua as with the Hindoo, traceable to the great dependence placed upon the animal for sustenance. The Katuas eat the cow, but when the beast is killed they go through much ceremony.

That animals like to hear a violin played seems to be clearly proved. Herr F. C. Baier, a German zoologist, played in their presence many times and found that the music pleased them. A puma at the first sound of the violin stretched himself at full length in his cage and listened quietly as long as the music was soft and low, but the moment it became loud and fast he sprang to his feet, lashed his sides with his tail and began to pace nervously up and down his narrow inclosure. A jaguar at the sound of lively music showed great uneasiness, but became quiet when soft music was played and even further manifested his pleasure by thrusting his paws through the bars of his cage, so as to detain the violinist, who was passing on in order to play for another animal.

On leopards the violin made hardly any impression. A lioness and three cubs seemed somewhat disturbed, but as soon as the player started to go on to the next cage they came forward and lay down.

Deathbed Flattery.

Almost every dying person is liable to be allured by the solemn attitude of the company and the restrained or flowing torrents of tears and emotions to an alternating conscious and unconscious comedy of conceitedness. The seriousness with which every dying person is treated has undoubtedly been the very finest enjoyment of his life to many a poor despised devil and a sort of indemnification and partial payment for much privation.—Works of Nietzsche.

Paper Quilts.

In some parts of England there is quite a trade carried on by poor people in making paper quilts for their poorer neighbors. They are simply composed of sheets of brown paper sewed together and perforated all over at distances of an inch or two apart, covered with chintz or cretonne on one side and lined with patchwork or old sheets—anything available, in fact. They make surprisingly warm covers and are much appreciated.—London Tit-Bits.

When I began taking Jaynes' Blood and Nerve Tonic my condition was something terrible. For five years I have taken liver and constipation medicines continuously, and in spite of this fact, Constipation—Indigestion and numbness would cause spells about once a week, so that I would have to apply hot mustard and be rubbed until I was black and blue. For four years I have kept my electric battery where I could use it any minute. Doctors and Medicines did me no good, and finally the doctor said I was on the verge of Nervous Prostration, and he at his wit's end to even relieve me. After three days' treatment with Jaynes' Blood and Nerve Tonic my bowels moved regularly, my meals did not distress me and I slept. I could actually work without sitting down and crying. The change was wonderful. All my friends speak of it. They say I talk of nothing but Jaynes' wonderful medicine. I never can express to you my gratitude and thanks.

Two School Sessions Preferable.

In the report of the Brookline school committee, one of the most important subjects considered is that of school sessions; and the practice inaugurated some years ago of having one daily session instead of two, because of the fact that schoolhouses were so far apart and ministered to so wide a territory that pupils could not conveniently go to their homes at noon for dinner and return after the intermission is likely to be done away with soon. While this practice is usual almost everywhere in the case of high schools, it is almost unknown in grammar and primary grades, Brookline being almost alone in this particular. But now with the increase in population and in the number of school houses there is no longer the necessity for this system and the committee have been seriously considering changing to the two-session system five days in the week. Some years ago a committee consisting of Dr. Channing, Mr. Driscoll and Mr. Walker sent letters of inquiry to a number of noted educators and physicians to get their opinion as to the relative merits of the two systems, and the weight of opinion was found to be decidedly in favor of two sessions, both as affecting the health and the proficiency of school children. The committee further discusses the subject as follows:

"It is clear upon a moment's reflection that five hours' continuous mental work as strenuous as is necessary to secure the greatest efficiency in the schools, would be a severe strain for a healthy man, and is still less suited to the still immature child in the grammar and primary grades. It is a provision of nature for their safety that the mind is apt to become dull and listless during the last hour or two of the session, and thus health is preserved at the expense of progress. Moreover, the sessions in Brookline begin at half-past eight in the morning and continue to half-past one—and it is hardly practicable to begin earlier—with the result that children cannot take the noon meal with the family, and are about equally injured whether they go without a lunch, or take such a lunch as is practicable in school hours, thus preventing a healthy appetite when they reach their homes at about two o'clock. On the other hand, the morning session so shortened that the pupil could take the noon meal at home and a sufficient intermission for out-of door air, exercise and change of scene, the afternoon session would involve no serious tension of the mind, and would be as profitable as the morning session. A mere statement of the facts leads almost inevitably to the conclusion that, considered merely as a school question, two sessions for children of the intermediate grades are preferable."—[Boston Transcript.

Work in the Fells.

The report of the park commissioners as to the Middlesex Fells reservation, states that during the past year good progress has been made toward putting both town and interior roads in good condition. The Bear Hill reservation will be finished this year, and thereafter it believes it should be possible with a small appropriation to have the existing roads in good condition by next summer. It will not be many years, however, the secretary says, before the location of permanent roads in the Fells will have to be determined and the commission have made considerable progress, in accumulating data for the proper consideration of this problem when it arises.

The secretary says that a number of laborers familar with the gypsy moth work has been employed at different seasons in destroying caterpillars, puppae, and egg-clusters. A record has been kept of the destruction of 44,534 egg-clusters and much more work of this kind can be done at a later season. In the line of forestry, rescue work has been carried on along the Medford-Winchester border road, Quarry road, Rifle pond, and in the Malden section. The landscape architect in his report states that the commissioners have under consideration a project to pasture sheep on some of the lands in the areas near Bear Hill and the Chandler Farm, which will secure their permanent maintenance in grass, the fields forming an agreeable contrast to the surrounding forest, and being available for athletic sports.

Wagon Thieves Again Raid Cotting's Express.

Only a few weeks ago the STAR chronicled the stealing of goods from Cotting's express wagon while on a trip out from Boston. Saturday evening an attempt was made by thieves to again raid the wagon, while it was standing at Symmes Corner. Three men in a buggy drove up, when one of them took a chest of tea from the wagon. A little later, when the wagon was on Main, near Herrick street, they again approached it. One of the men alighted from the buggy, and was taking a number of packages when Henry J. Lyons happened along. He demanded an explanation. A struggle on a nearby lawn attracted the attention of the other men who forced Lyons to give up his hold on the one he had tackled.

The three men then climbed into the buggy and were hurrying away when one of the wheels caught in the street car tracks. They were thrown to the ground, and the buggy partically wrecked.

The horse freed himself and was later caught at West Medford, where it was called for by the thieves, while the buggy was taken to a livery stable here. The three men escaped in the dark.

James A. Woodbury Meets With an Accident.

While attempting to get onto a Woburn electric car Monday evening at six o'clock at the centre, Mr. James A. Woodbury was thrown to the street by the sudden starting up of the car before he had fairly got onto it. Mr. Woodbury struck on his head and side, and on being assisted to his feet appeared to be dazed and badly shaken up, his head being bruised and his fingers cut. Mr. John T. Cosgrove who was driving past in his carriage shortly after the accident, took him to his home on Herrick street the unfortunate gentleman being accompanied thereto by Mr. S. D. Leland. As soon as possible the car was stopped, and after the conductor had ascertained Mr. Woodbury's name, and seen that he was being looked after, started his car up again Mr. Woodbury who is 82 years of age was at one time an active leader in town affairs, and is loved and respected, and it is hoped that he will suffer no after effects from his fall.

Evening Schools.

"A subscriber" in the Arlington Advocate has the following to say of the benefits of evening schools:

We are informed on good authority that last year twenty-seven new evening school were started in this state. Last year the School Committee of Winchester took upon themselves the responsibility of beginning an evening school and the result is that not only were there those who wished to go, but when it was opened it was found that more wanted to go than was expected, and this year they laid broader and better plans.

Our neighbor Wakefield has also given her young men and women an evening school and they are taking advantage of it and are grateful for the privilege.

One town in our state, with only a population of 1,631, has had an evening school for a number of years, with the best results, and we trust Arlington will be in line like the neighboring towns and cities on this important work. For, why should not the young men and women who are compelled by circumstances beyond their control, to leave school, even before graduating from the grammar grades, have a chance to make up, in some measure, at least, their loss? Otherwise they are handicapped for their work in life by the want of an education along certain practical lines, such as arithmetic, drawing, bookkeeping and stenography.

We know that each year many go to work with vague ideas of what they are fitted for or what they want to do until they are on the ground, when they realize the fact, and a little help along practical lines would be a blessing to them.

Appended are the number of evening schools supported by neighboring cities and towns:

Brookline 6, Brockton 12, Cambridge 31, Chelsea 7. Chicopee 19, Clinton 5, Dudley 2, Everett 5, Hyde Park 3, Haverhill 15, Gardner 3, Lawrence 38, Lowell 81, Malden 9, Marlboro 6, Medford 6, Newton 3, Peabody 6, Pittsfield 6, Somerville 12, Quincy 7, Southboro 4, Northampton 5, Taunton 9 Waltham 6, Westfield 4, Woburn 4, Spencer 4.

Home Week.

Massachusettts has ample material to draw upon for an "Old Home Week." A writer has computed that the great wave of western emigration has swept more than 25,000 from Massachusetts over the crest of the Rocky mountains and carried them to the shores of the Pacific. California has received 20,000 of these. Washington nearly 4000 and Oregon 2000; 6000 have made homes in San Francisco and 12,000 in Seattle. Fifteen hundred have gone to Montana, while of the 4500 who have sought the altitudes of Colorado 2000 have settled in Denver. The middle west has received almost 67,000 of its population from Massachusetts. Ten of the states in this group have a Massachusetts born population ranging from 2500 to 18,000. Illinois easily leads with 18,000, of which 10,000 live in Chicago. Ohio and Minnesota come next with more than 7,000 each, while Michigan, Wisconsin and Iowa have each about 6,000. And these states are but specimens of all the others in the Union where thousands look back to the Old Bay State as their homes.

Cars in the Park System.

The park system in Boston and the metropolitan district is probably the finest in the world in extent and variety, says the Wakefield Item. Besides the reservations at Revere and Nantasket beaches, there are miles and miles of magnificent boulevards and driveways and great stretches of woodland with splendid scenery in the Middlesex Fells and elsewhere under the control of the metropolitan park commisioners. The people of the state pay the enormous expense of acquiring and maintaining the parks, driveways and boulevards. But what chance has the ordinary man who does not own a horse or an automobile or ride a bicycle have to enjoy these splendid public grounds? There are thousands in the metropolitan district who have never seen them. It is to give a means for these thousands to have an easy and inexpensive access to the parks which they are helping to pay for, that a petition and bill have been introduced in the legislature as follows:

The board of metropolitan park commissioners shall report to the next legislature a route for a metropolitan park railway, to be operated by an underground trolley through portions of the metropolitan parks and other parks in the cities and towns within the metropolitan park district, with an estimate of the probable cost of the construction and operation of the railway.

Danger of Colds and La Grippe.

The greatest danger from colds and la-grippe is their resulting in pneumonia. If reasonable care is used, however, and Chamberlain's Cough Remedy taken, all danger will be avoided. Among the tens of thousands who have used this remedy for these diseases, we have yet to learn of a single case having resulted in pneumonia, which shows conclusively that it is a certain preventive of that dangerous malady. It will cure a cold or an attack of la grippe in less time than any other treatment. It is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by Young & Brown.

It is an innocent looking clause in the insurance policy which requires under penalty that property shall be insured up to eighty per cent. of its value, but it cost the town of Wakefield dearly. Instead of receiving about $1500 on the recent almshouse fire, only $871 was allowed by the companies. The total insurance on the building was but $2200.

The Twenty-First Exhibition.

At the age of "twenty-one" the youth of the race pass into the domain of manhood; and thereafter take their places with mature men everywhere. In this year of our Lord 1902, the Twenty-First Exhibition of the Old Massachusetts Charitable Mechanic Association takes place. It will indeed exemplify the change from old time methods, inventions and devices, and enter the realm of mature manhood, with "up-to-date" exhibits; in this, the one hundred and eight year of its existence.

Sixty five years ago it heldits First Exhibition of Science, Art and Industry, in the city of Boston. Nearly twenty years earlier it had given prizes for mechanical excellence: but not until 1837, 32 years after its organization, did it hold a regular Exhibition; gathering many hundreds of exhibits from all over New England, and covering nearly every branch of productive industry — with boards of judges upon whose awards medals and deplomas were first given. Since that time at intervals of about three years, it has repeated its labors and efforts to encourage and stimulate new inventions— improve old processes —and thus advance the general prosperity and welfare of the people.

On the 22d day of September next, the doors of the huge "Mechanics Building," will open to receive the influx of the multitudes who will go there to be entertained, instructed and amused.

At this early day it would not be possible to decend to particulars, which, if told, might be forgotten before the day fixed for the opening. It is enough to know that the management of this Association, numbering some of the leading mechanics and business men of Boston in their ranks are deeply interested in planning and carrying out the work to be performed in so many directions within the next seven months, before their big engines will turn the ponderous wheels to set this huge hive of busy bees in motion.

Meanwhile our readers will not forget the "good time coming" and be prepared for the final announcement.

In the nature of the case this Exhibition cannot be a duplicate in detail of any of its predecessors, for the world of invention and improvement moves on so fast that the fabrications of yesterday give place of necessity to the newer born ideas, devices and constructions of to-day. As an illustration of the changing character of the times in the mechanical world, it may be mentioned that when this great building was erected, only twenty years ago, it was provided with long lines of shafting thousands of feet in length, running the entire length, of the building, with all the necessary complement of belting, hangers and pulleys.

To-day this is taken down and sold for "junk," the electric motor wholly superseding this "old fashioned" method of transmitting power. To such as can command a spare moment to think seriously of this, these wholesale changes in the means of accomplishing work of this nature in so short a time, are furnished with an object lesson in evolution of the most striking kind. So in this Twenty-first Exhibition, floor after floor will see machinery in motion doing its appointed work with no sign of where the mighty giant is located who is turning those wheels. Thus one of the many marvels of electrical development will be well illustrated. From time to time, as the multitude of devices are installed in their places, more of detail will be given.

Fred Joy Has a Man in Mind.

Even the companionship of Littlefield of Maine, which Cong. McCall had in voting against the republican Philippine tarriff bill, is not saving him from the talk of trouble in his district. Republicans who have been smarting under what they consider the misrepresentation of McCall, say that if Maine people care to have Littlefield vote in that way, it is purely their concern, but that they are determined not to stand longer such voting by McCall.

It is the younger element which is bringing this sort of talk about it, and it rages hardest in Cambridge. The Colonial club is apparently content to stand by McCall, and though that has been a staff of strenght to Speaker Myers, it is a question if it will not fail in trying to dictate further for an entire congressional district. Yet it must be confessed that ex-Sen. Joy's announcement that he was out against McCall, has not brought any flood of supporters around him, neither has it encouraged others to place themselves in the field. Some have misunderstood his expression as meaning that he was a candidate himself for congress, which is not so.

Joy is not the man to tire himself in trying for something past and beyond him. As McCall is a Winchester man, he well knows that he would not have any chance in the district, directly following. He has a man in mind, nevertheless, who has not been talked about, so far.—[Practical Politics.

The Last Alarm.

The following taken from the Wakefield Item, was read at a firemans banquet given in that town recently:

The fireman stood hat in hand
Before St. Peter's gate,
And asked that he admitted be
As the hour was growing late.

St. Peter frowned. Said he "What ground
Have you for coming here?
The road you go is down below,
Your record is not clear."

The fireman shook. Said he, "Your book
Must be a trifle wrong,
My story here and if sincere
Please let me join the throng."

St. Peter smiled. Said he, "My child,
Have you lived good and pious?
'Tis known afar that firemen are Disciples of Ananias."

"Hast never been so full of gin
Thy name thou coulds't not utter?"
"Alas! 'tis so, I have I know."
St. Peter heard him mutter.

"Hast poker played and stayed and stayed
All thro' the night and Sunday?"
"Ah yes! tis so, I have I know,
And even up to Monday."

The fireman sighed and then he cried
"I'm guilty I'll admit
But I'll tell you my story through
And trust I'll make a hit."

"I'm a fireman from Wakefield, Mass.,
A type that's far superior,
All others are a lower grade
And of quality inferior."

"We have Co. called the 'Volunteers.'
Who all get out and rustle.
When they hear the bell they let out a yell
And for Montrose they hustle."

"How often on a stormy night
Out of bed I had to route
To find some chump with a Johnson pump
Had put the fire out."

St. Peter gasped and then he grasped
The hand that held the hose,
He rang the bell and "Front" did yell
"Here take this gentleman's clothes."

"Give him the best cloud in the place
Take him to eighty-seven,
The man who humps against those pumps
Deserves the best in Heaven."

A Lynn millionaire, Isaac C. Wyman, was fined in court the other day, $5 for neglect to clean his sidewalk, as required by the city by-laws.

Mr. Wyman addressed the court. He is worth several million dollars, and he objected to paying a fine, not because it hurt his pocketbook, but because he thought he was being discriminated against.

Credit Doomed.

The Arlington Traders' association has taken steps toward relieving the loose system of credit which has caused business men so much trouble and loss of money during the past few years. Unfair advantage has been taken of the storekeepers, so it is claimed, and the move is believed to be a wise one. The matter was throughly discussed at the meeting last week, and a committee of five was chosen to formulate a plan. By concentrated action, it is believed the system of long credits may be done away with, and as the Traders' manifest a spirit of absolute fairness in the matter, it is believed the people will respond to the change in good part. When the plan is put in operation it is expected to prevent any long accounts from being run, and by co-operation any and all "dead-beats" will be refused any credit at all. The plan is worked in many places to advantage, and the association believes it can be worked in Arlington. The officers of the association as recently elected are: President, J. O. Holt; vice-president, N. J. Hardy; secretary, George Lowe; treasurer, W. D. Higgins.—[Arlington Enterprise.

For some years past there has been talk of forming a like association in Winchester.

BOARD OF HEALTH meets last Friday of each month at Town House.

Ponds Will be Filled in Sometime

In all probability Mr. A. E. Whitney will live to see the time when the ponds in the centre will be filled in, if not by the town then by private individuals. Considering the uses to which the new land could be put by the town, it would seem as if it ought to acquire the right and do the filling.

Town Should do its own Concreting.

The suggestion advanced in these columns recently, that the town do its own concreting, is meeting with the approval of the Selectmen and many citizens. The cost of the needed outfit to do the work would be less than $100, and Supt. of Streets Spates is confident he can do better work than has heretofore been done, and at a less cost. The town should have this necessary adjunct to its street equipment. In this connection there is a feeling that the town should do the concreting of sidewalks the same as the streets are macadamized, without cost to abuttors. These persons say, and with reason, that an abuttor who can, under the present system, pay one-half the cost can have the concrete, while the person who can not afford to do so is obliged to get along without it. Then, too, there is the great inconvenience to the public from muddy walks.

One More Step in the Right Direction.

To our mind the School Committee, in consultation with the corps of High School teachers, has taken a step in the right direction. As our readers already know, the annual graduating exercises of the high and grammar schools, for a number of years past, have been a combined affair. To those who have been accustomed to witness the somewhat dignified and impressive exercises pertaining to the annual graduation which obtain in the larger high schools in New England, this sort of mixed affair in this town seemed to be neither flesh or fowl. Additional hardship was added to the experience of those who attended this exercise, by being obliged to listen to the perfunctory address of some worthy gentleman. We would not find any special fault with these addresses. They were well enough in their place, but surely it was no place for such discourses. They are a thing of the past, as we understand, and for this we are grateful.

This year the graduating class of the High School will celebrate the event with their own literary and musical program. Most of the leading parts have already been assigned, especially those who will have original pieces to prepare. Both teachers and pupils have entered heartily into the new order of things and are now busily engaged in working out the necessary details. Such a program as has been arranged will be sure to fill the town hall to overflowing with an admiring and attentive audience of our best people.

The graduating exercises of the Wadleigh School will take place in the town hall during the week preceeding the High School exercises. The graduating class, as we understand, will follow the example of the High School and will depend upon themselves to furnish their audience with an attractive and interesting program. All this is as it should be. There is evidence that the educational leaven in this town is "working."

Competitive Examination at High School for a Cadetship at Annapolis.

The time for Hon. Samuel W. McCall, the member of the national House of Representives from this district, to appoint a cadet to the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis has come and he decided to hold a competitive examination in order that all the boys of this district may have a chance. This examination will take place tomorrow morning at the high school building, at eight o'clock. It is expected that a number of young men from the surrounding towns will enter, and Winchester will be represented by two, William Little and Timothy O'Neil, who have great hopes to be able to enter the navy.

Each member of the House of Representatives has the right to appoint a cadet to fill a vacancy which may occur in his district, also ten other cadets are appointed at large by the President from any district in the United States. It has been the custom of Congressman McCall to hold a competitive examination in order that no partiality may be shown and that all may have a chance. All candidates must be actual residents of the district from which they are nominated, be between the ages of fifteen and twenty years, physically sound, well formed and of robust constitution. Of those entering the examination tomorrow the two who have the highest per cent. are chosen. Of the two who are chosen the young man who gets the highest per cent. reports at Annapolis on May 15 or September 1 to take the physical examination. Should he fail, the second, or his alternate, then takes his place. The mental examination is of such a character as to ascertain the candidate's proficiency in English, history, arithmetic geography, algebra and plane geometry.

The English part of the examination consists of reading, writing, spelling, punctuation, capitals and grammar. The candidate must be able to read understandingly and to write a neat and legible hand. He must be familiar with common words, the rules for punctuation and the use of capitals. The candidate must show an understanding of English grammar and be able to analyze and parse any sentence given.

The history examination consists of two parts, the United States history and the world's history. The examination in the former branch will include questions concerning the early settlements in this country, the forms of government in the colonies, leading events and results of wars and prominent events in the history of our government since its foundation. On the latter topic the candidate is required to be familiar with the general history of the world, such as may be found in ordinary general histories.

In arithmetic, he is required to possess such a complete knowledge as will enable him to proceed at once to the higher branches of mathematics without further study of arithmetic.

The examination in algebra will include questions and problems upon the fundamental rules, factoring, algebraic fractions, equations with one or more unknown quantities and solution and theory of quadratic equations.

In geometry, the candidate will be required to give accurate definitions of terms used in plane geometry and to solve simple geometrical problems.

After the candidate has passed both the physical and mental examinations he receives an appointment as a naval cadet and becomes a student at the academy. The course of a cadet is six years; four at the academy and two at sea, at the end of which time he returns to Annapolis for final graduation. Before entering he must sign articles which bind him to serve the United States navy for eight years. The pay of a naval cadet is $500 a year, but as over $200 must be spent for clothes, etc., the gain is not great from a financial point of view.

Thanks the Author and the Star.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I think the thanks of the people should be given to you for publishing in last week's STAR the list of town approprations this year and last, and the increase or decrease respectively. It must be some trouble to break colums and set up a lot of figures, but it is very interesting to tax payers. I think that thanks should be given to Mr. Johnson for preparing it, which, I suppose, was done gratuitiously. To me the job would have been like climbing a mountain, but I suppose it was not much work for him as he is so familiar with town figures. I think it would have been better to have reconsidered some of the votes for appropriations and saved the amount of increase of money to be raised by taxation the coming year.

I think that the Appropriations Committee should make a similar table in their report next March, but have this year's actual appropriations, and also what they recommend, and make an estimate of the state's assessments, which, of course, is added to what the town votes, the state assessment estimate to be based on the average for the three preceding years; but in addition I would have the committee state just what amount of transfers from income and from what accounts they are to be taken, and all in one table, to be distributed before the town meeting, so that any one could tell the sum total to be raised and the increase or decrease over this year's appropriations.

Reading of Comus.

The people of Winchester will have an opportunity, on the ninth of April, to listen to a reading of Milton's Comus, by Professor Whittemore of Tufts College. The poem is interpreted with great charm and the reading will be interspersed with songs in the quaint musical setting, which accompanied the original production of the poem in 1634. The proceeds of the entertainment will be given to the Visiting Nurse Association, which will ensure a liberal patronage.

The dam at J. H. Winn's cranberry bog at Wilmington was washed away at the time of the recent flood. Its replacement will be not only troublesome but expensive.

Newsy Paragraphs.

A good many people at the Highlands would respectfully suggest to the Selectmen the need of a watering-trough on Washington street. There is a granite basin at the corner of Fairview Place always empty, more the pity. Why could not the same be put at the corner of Lebanon street and a pipe be carried from the spring above? There would then be a never failing supply of pure water and many a man and beast would be thankful, and perhaps some women too. Consider it, oh ye powers! consider it!

The meeting of Wedgemere Lodge of Good Templars held on Thursday evening March 20, was a notable event in the history of this prosperous and growing lodge. Grand Chief Templar Newburgh of Maine and Grand Chief Templar Hutchings of Massachusetts, were present, and these dignitaries made most interesting addresses that were closely listened to by the large number present. This was followed by an entertainment consisting of songs, piano solos, etc., in which Mr. Geo. A. Arnold and others took part. The two visiting Grand Chief Templars were much pleased with the large membership of Wedgemere Lodge, its activity and general prosperous condition. The Lodge is one of the best in the State and the great amount of good work that it is accomplishing is incalculable. Every officer and member is a worker.

Woburn had its grasp on the goose that laid the golden egg when the McKay Works were planted within gunshot of its centre, but history fails to show any great effort on the part of its Board of Trade to keep the plant here. It couldn't have been the lack of railroads that crowded the McKay Works from Winchester. Any facilities in this line which might have been lacking could have been obtained by proper management, it would seem.—[Woburn Times.

Miss Charlotte Skillings was the victim of a bicycle scorcher in front of her home on Pleasant street shortly after six o'clock last evening. She alighted from a car on the opposite side of the street from her house, and on walking around the rear of the car she had but just stepped from the track when she was run into and knocked down by a young boy who was riding down the street at a swift pace. Miss Skillings must have been severely bruised as it was with a great deal of difficulty and pain that she appeared able to walk or stand. The police should make an example of one of these scorchers, especially those who ride close to the cars when passengers are getting on or off.

Among the April weddings of interest to this region will be that of Miss Blanche Baker, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elbridge Baker of Los Angeles and E. Raymond Buck of this city, which is scheduled to take place in the parlors of the First Congregational church of Los Angeles early next month. After May 1st the young people will be at home to their friends in a very pretty cottage on Golden Hill. The bride is well known in National City, where she lived with her parents for two or three years, having gone there from their old home in Winchester, one of the beautiful suburbs of Boston, Mass. She is a charming young woman of rare personal attractions and sweetness of character, and will be a welcome addition to society circles in this city. Miss Baker is a graduate of the Massachusetts Normal Art school of Boston, and some of her work has been flatteringly received. Mr. Buck is too well known in this city to need any introduction, especially to readers of this paper, as he has been connected with the Sun in various capacities for a large part of the time for several years past, being now the very efficient advertising manager of the paper. He is also prominent in musical circles, having been solo bass in the First Congregational church for many years past. Having the honor of a personal acquaintance with the bride-elect, the society editor extends sincerest congratulations to the groom-to-be, and wishes both young people all possible joy and felicity through life.—[San Diegan (Cal.) Mr. George C. Lawrence of Forest street has just passed his eighty-fifth birthday. He has resided in Winchester for fifty years, coming from Boston, where he was well known as a fashionable hair dresser on School street. Mr. Lawrence, though having attained such a ripe old age has possession of all his faculties. While serving in the army he acquired night blindness from which he never full recovered. He served in the civil war and was wounded in the battle of Antietan. In this same battle his son Joseph Thorne was killed; he was the first man from Winchester to lose his life. Mr. Lawrence can tell many interesting stories of war life and his boyhood days in Boston where he resided next door to the Beecher family and drove cows to pasture across Boston Common. His daughter, Miss Grace Lawrence keeps house for him in his comfortable little home on Forest street where he expects to spend the remainder of his days.

Few people are aware of the amount of artistic press work required to print the cover of a high class magazine. A glimpse in the window of "The Paper Store" will show the process of printing the covers for the April Scribner. It is a work of art and well worth a little study.

The social last night was a very interesting affair and reflects credit upon the committee in charge. After the entertainment which consisted of progressive games of fourteen varieties, ice cream and cake was served at the close.

The glee club met on Monday night and will meet on Monday next week also. There are about 12 members enrolled. Mr. Rowe is getting them together in a way which looks toward some very good results later.

In the absence of the General Secretary three of the older boys took charge of the gymnasium class Tuesday afternoon doing great credit to themselves and being of real value to the members.

The basket ball team won their final game with Boston University with comparative ease, the score being 55 to 17. Next week some facts regarding the team and its season's work will be published in these columns. The team is going to have it's picture taken, Saturday at the Litchfield studio, Arlington.

Professor E. L. Patch of the E. L. Patch Co., Chemists, will give an illustrated lecture Saturday evening on "The Wonderful Chemistry of Bituminous Coal and Coal Tar Products." Professor Patch is thoroughly competent to talk upon this subject, which together with his illustrations will assure a splendid lecture. All men are invited to hear it.

The boys who attended the conference at Haverhill were, Amos Mills, Wilder Gutterson, Walter Kirby, Hiram Farr, Everett Wyman, and Douglas Armstrong besides the General Secretary and Mr. A. M. Parker chairman of the boys work committee. The conference was attended by more than 300 boys from all over Massachusetts and Rhode Island and was a very successful gathering. Winchester's delegates came home with larger and broader ideas of the work and of life, a determination to be of more service at home.

"The Durrell Brotherhood" will meet this afternoon at 3 o'clock for its regular meeting.

Next week occurs the State Indoor Athletic meet at the Cambridge Association. A team of three men will represent Winchester, they are W. H. Connors, P. B. Waters and James Horne. Connors has a good chance to take the broad jumps and the short put. The others will stand good chance of taking places.

A Narrow Escape.

It is extremely doubtful if Mr. Freeland E. Hovey ever again comes as near to being hit by a locomotive as he was Monday morning. The engineer of the fast express that passes through here Bostonward at 8.10 a. m. saw Mr. Hovey running from Walnut street in the direction of the station and sharply blew the whistle. Mr. Hovey slackened his pace and the large number of waiting passengers then supposed he would not attempt to cross in front of the fast approaching train. Much to their surprise he again quickened his pace and by a few inches missed being struck by the cylinder of the engine. Many persons standing on the platform turned their heads away expecting that he would certainly be killed or injured. It was a terribly narrow escape, and should prove a warning to all who may be inclined to cross the tracks in the face of an approaching train.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The section of the town where the express team was robbed last week is the part referred to in the Chief of Police report as "practically unprotected" and where he wants that new patrolman. It would seem to be up to the coming town meeting to act.

If we could only make arrangements with the street railway watering company to water the streets where the tracks are, the problem would be nearly solved. The question is the expense.

The reason the advertizing signs had to come off the pole at the corner of White's block on Pleasant street was because they had no right to be there, as it was violating both a by-law and a statute law.

It would seem to be up to the Selectmen to establish a law account and then fix a lump sum to cover everything, settlements and court work. We don't want this expense distributed about so that it is lost sight of by the citizens and we do want it shown just what the money is spent for. What does the charge of $245 for "legal services" in Incidental account cover?

So the Selectmen are playing politics, are they Henry? Well it would be more startling if it was the first board to do it and would be more important if true, but then you have such a nose for political schemes, undoubtedly you would scent it out before anyone else was aware of it. However it strikes me that there was once a member of a previous board who went so far as to even corral another member and take him off in a close carriage out of a board meeting so that he might not be converted away from said big members support, and the scheme worked and the big man got the office he was after. Oh, you unconscious politician, how innocent you are.

How far the fire department horses should go from the houses with the watering carts is one of the bothersome questions every year. Half a mile seems too far, but it will probably be continued until it has a bearing on some large fire.

Nobody in the employ of the town earns his money any better, or whose work conduces more to the appearance of the town than the old man with the wheelbarrow who sweeps up about the centre. His district should be enlarged and he be kept at work all the time. He is an intelligent man, has been a citizen of the town for thirty-eight years and all he asks is a chance to work and earn his living. He should be given the chance.

If the Editor of the STAR wants to bet as good a dinner as he ever ate or better, that the United Machinery Company will even anrounce this year that it is going to leave Winchester, I will eat at his expense. The treasurer of this company told me awhile ago that any of its employees or the newspapers knew more about its plans than the head men always. The great objection some of its directors have to one plant is the labor question with its strikes, another is fire. Please give this bugaboo a rest.

Just as soon as a new board of Selectmen gets into swing it should hold extra sessions until matters are straightened out. One meeting a week is not enough at first.

Night Was Her Terror.

"I would cough nearly all night long," writes Mrs. Chas. Applegate, of Alexandria, Ind., "and could hardly get any sleep. I had consumption so bad that if I walked a block, I would cough frightfully and spit blood, but, when all other medicines failed, three $1.00 bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery wholly cured me and I gained 58 pounds." It's absolutely guaranteed to cure coughs, colds, lagrippe, bronchitis and throat and lung troubles. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Grover's drug store.

Pneumonia Can be Prevented.

This disease always results from a cold or an attack of the grip and may be prevented by the timely use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This remedy was extensively used during the epidemics of la grippe of the past few years, and not a single case has ever been reported that did not recover or that resulted in pneumonia, which shows it to be a certain preventive of that dangerous disease. For sale by Young & Brown.

The bicycle has entirely gone out of the life of the young people. The park commissioners of the state fitted up a large room at the great bath houses at Revere for the bicycles of the patrons. Last year the room was so little used that the commissioners will turn it into an extension of the rooms for bathers. This action is the most emphatic illustration of the slight use of the wheel for pleasure. No one will now wheel to Revere when the trolley will carry for five cents.

Observations.

[Written by N. A. Richardson.]

Fixed principles, strengthened by experience and observation, are important elements in state or national government. These essentials are quite as necessary in city or town rule. In town elections it is often difficult to get the best men to take office. They do not court the honors or aspire to fulfill the obligations of official life. Inaction and indifference to public duties should be avoided in selecting candidates; weak men should have light support, strong men should win strong support. Fault finding and constant grumbling disgust honest and faithful citizens so they will not take office. In our last town meeting a gentleman was turned down, a good officer and of experience, simply because he had differed with a majority of the town upon the necessity of the present widening of a street. I think he was wrong, also the rest of the board. Why then make one a victim and rehonor the rest. All mistakes may have a recompense. A new man was elected who has fixed ideas of town wants and obligations. The citizens thought it a good opportunity to put some new timber into the board, to stiffen it up, to sail through rough, as well as smooth waters. Not fully believing the promises of the new man would be carried out, but willing to give him a trial, he had been on the anxious seat so long he might become the esprit de corps of the board. He had for some years marked out a path for others to walk in, now let him enter it himself, taste some of the bitter fruit and make it more luscious for public appetite. It is not expected a new man will turn the town over, but it is hoped a new departure (with two new men) will take place in some direction. Do something interesting, suggest something progressive; let jealousy be laid aside, and harmony cultivated. If one takes office he must expect the wheel of fortune will sometime whirl him out. But few men are so stubborn as to continually insist upon their own ways; they will melt away after they have basked in the public sun.

Demosthenes, when asked "what is the great element in oratory," replied "action, action." A live issue (if wrong) is better than a dead do-nothing. For several years there has been a lack of official interest in a full development of Winchester. Look at Main and Bacon street bridges, the play ground, town ledge, drainage, etc. Many out door improvements have been neglected which proper care would have completed. "Compounding for sins you are inclined to, by damning those you have no mind to." Conservatism has held us back; a good point, but too often the result of a faint heart. Great improvements cost great sums of money, for this reason our select men held back, thinking the people would not sustain them.

When a promise is made, fulfill it, not say to A, it shall be done, and to B, it shall not be done. A man of firmness is always respected, a trimmer is at a discount.

Church street needs a new coat of fine stone colored paint, and some holes filled with hard stone putty, sized up with the steam roller.

Some long looking faces are to be seen on Harvard and Irving streets, by those who have got little homes established, in view of the McKay Company leaving town. The houses will stay, but with their value greatly reduced, and one hundred children will be taken from our schools.

The Bacon theory of Shakespeare's works must find comfort to know he could not spell his name right — who could with sixteen different ways of spelling it.

Gen. Miles has a good deal of Gen. Scott's fuss and feathers. Good luck made him fairly great—not of the Sheridan or Grant style.

Beet sugar and Cuba tobacco are making a good deal of smoke for the Republicans to blow off. What a cloud of dust and thunder has been raised in the Philippines, Cuba, Panama and Nicaragua, when a short time ago all was lovely, with the bow of peace in the heavens.

Who would have one of the trees put back on Main street, above Black Horse hill; and how they howled when seventeen of them were taken out, root and branch.

Thirteen owners have held the Lawson house since John H. Coats built it in 1853 and sold it to Bard Plummer of California. Until 1754 Charlestown line came up to Prospect street, 150 feet north of the Lawson place.

In 1808 the Third Orthodox Church of Woburn was burned down, and the next year it was rebuilt. In 1840 this church was taken down and another one erected, since sold to the Unitarian society. In the one built in 1808 (in the year 1835) was held a great political meeting, in which two speeches were delivered from the pulpit of the church. This meeting was a rally in the interests of three representatives of the town—John Wade, Oliver B. Cooledge and Stephen Nichols—who had been sent home from the State House because they had been elected by fraudulent counting of the votes. A precept had been issued for a new election, and they were up to be sent back. The first speaker was Seth Whitmarsh, a representative in the House from Seekonk, Bristol County, who was a Democratic wheel horse. The church and galleries were crowded with listeners, the speaker was bold and boisterous, with a clarion voice that smote right and left. It was the first political speech I ever heard, and it sounds in my ear today most distinctly, after a period of sixty-seven years. He said to his audience, "come to the polls in full force, with banners unfurled, and the opposition will be dead, as if followed by the flash and ball of a pistol." This was followed by shouting and cheers that shook the house from floor to dome. The next speaker was a young man, probably twenty-two years of age, an iron worker from Philadelphia, afterwards for many years a member of Congress from Penn., of great influence and industry—Wm. D. Kelley, called "Pig Iron Kelley," because of his care in looking after the iron interests of that great State—often working against his party in protection of the mining capital. Kelley was a brilliant speaker, forceful in argument, and because of his age and eloquence caused great enthusiasm. The meeting broke up with a spirit of victory that ended in triumph at the polls. Who in Woburn today remembers that Wm. D. Kelley, so prominent and popular in Congress, ever spoke at a political meeting there, so long ago.

Winchester Y. M. C. A. 55, B. U. 17.

The Winchester Y. M. C. A. basket-ball team closed its season Monday evening with a brilliant victory over the Boston university team, winning by a score of 55 to 17. Winchester has played 20 games and has won 16. Harrold especially distinguished himself in throwing nine goals from the floor and one from a foul. Every Winchester man, with the exception of Payne, made goals, while for Boston only Baker and Tucker were able to find the basket. In the second half, Jeeves sprained his ankle, but no substitute was put in his place. The summary:

W., Y. M. C. A.		B. U.
Jeeves	r. f.	Baker
Payne	l. f.	Tucker
Winn	c.	Cary
Mitten	r. g.	Stine
Harrold	l. g.	Merritt

Score, Winchester 55, Boston 17. Goals from floor, Harrold 9, Mitton 4, Tucker 4, Winn 3, Jeeves 2, Baker. Goals from fouls, Tucker 2, Harrold. Umpire, Ayers. Referee, Gay. Timer, Waters. Scorer, Bishop. Time, 20 m halves.

How to Cure the Grippe.

Remain quietly at home and take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as directed and a quick recovery is sure to follow. That remedy counteracts any tendency of the grip to result in pneumonia, which is really the only serious danger. Among the tens of thousands who have used it for the grip, not one case has ever been reported that did not recover. For sale by Young & Brown.

GILT EDGE LEAGUE.

The Calumets lost three games to the Commercial Club Thursday night thereby retaining last place, and the Commercials winning first place in the league for this year, beating B. A. A. by one game. Owing to the inexperience of McCall and Wilson, G. Littlefield and Purrington rolled in their places. McFarland was high for the Calumets with 542, and Purrington came next with 539. The score:

Mr. Geo. S. Rice broke the record for high single string in the home tournament last Friday evening, he bunching five strikes, and then getting a double with a total of 237 for the string.

The Bucks and Lily Valleys will roll their game to decide the winners of the home tournament Thursday evening, April 3rd. A hot game is expected.

A Horrible Outbreak

"Of large sores on my little daughter's head developed into a case of scald head" writes C. D. Isbill of Morganton, Tenn., but Bucklen's Arnica Salve completely cured her. It's a guaranteed cure for eczema, tetters, salt rheum, pimples, sores, ulcers and piles. Only 25 cents a Grover's.

There is no public demand for any Greater Boston scheme. It would merely raise Boston's standing in the lists of the great cities of the land, and would give some of the professional politicians a little more swing, and a few more opportunities to make something, says the Brockton Enterprise. There would be no better government than is the case now, and the chances are that it would not be so good. The nearer government is kept to the people governed, the better for the people. Government in Boston for towns ten miles away would be more or less of a farce, and the people of the real city would allow the suburbanites just as little as possible, and would exact as much as they could get in return.

Peabody has $62,000 of uncollected taxes on its books. This shows slackness on the part of the Collector of that town, and is in striking contrast to the business methods of our collector Bell.

It isn't the plans for the new station that the Winchester Highlanders want to see, but the building itself.

HOME AND CHILD

Does your horse "feel his oats"? What a difference between the grain-fed and the grass-fed horse! The first strong and full of ginger, the second flabby, weak and tired out before he begins. The feeding makes the difference.

Children are not alike either. One is rosy, bright-eyed, full of life and laughter, another is pale, weak and dull. The feeding again is responsible.

Sickly children need special feeding. They don't "feel their oats". Scott's Emulsion adds just the right richness to their diet. It is like grain to the horse. The child gets new appetite and strong digestion.

Scott's Emulsion is more than food. It is a strong medicine. It rouses up dull children, puts new flesh on thin ones and red blood into pale ones. It makes children grow. Scott's Emulsion makes ordinary food do its duty.

This picture represents the Trade Mark of Scott's Emulsion and is on the wrapper of every bottle.

The Annapolis Cadetship.

It is expected two or three Winchester boys will enter the examinations for the cadetship at West Point, which takes place at the High School building tomorrow morning. The competition is open to the entire Eighth Congressional District, which includes Cambridge, Somerville, Medford, Woburn, Arlington and Winchester, the whole making a large field to draw from. As there are a number of young men in the district who have been for some time undergoing special instruction for the purpose of competing for the cadetship, it is not thought the Winchester boys will have much chance of a place anywhere near the top of the list, as they have not been coached and have made no special preparations outside of their regular courses of study.

A cadetship at Annapolis is looked upon at the present time as a sugar-coated plum, and as being far preferable to West Point, and for this reason the boy who has not studied especially with a view to entering the naval academy will stand a poor chance of being successful at the examinations.

W. H. S. Notes.

Trevor A. Cushman and Amos Mills, members of the class of 1903, will leave the first of next month for Phillips Andover Academy where they will fit for Yale and Harvard. Webster W. Wyman has been elected captain of the base ball team on account of the withdrawal of Cushman. The candidates for the team have begun practice this week on Cabot Field, and it is hoped that many boys will come out.

The Athletic Association of the High school will hold an out-door meet sometime during the month of April. The events will be as follows: 40 yard dash, 100 yard dash, 200 yard dash, 440 yard dash, half a mile run, one mile run, running broad jump, running high jump, 16 pound shot put, pole vault and team race —four men of 220 yards each. The entrance fee will be 15 cents.

The junior reception will take place in the Town Hall April 11 at 8 o'clock.

A BURNING QUESTION

At this time is: "Are you getting the best out of your coal?" If not, perhaps you are wasting Heat in the cellar which is needed elsewhere. It has been shown that a single foot of naked two-inch pipe carrying high pressure steam all the year round will condense more steam than a dollar's worth of coal will make, and the loss is in proportion for lower pressure and shorter time. Do you wish to stop this loss? If so, now is the time when it can best be done. Perhaps it will cost less than you think. At any rate it will cost you nothing to get figures.

DO YOU GET UP WITH A LAME BACK?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.

Almost everybody who reads the newspapers is sure to know of the wonderful cures made by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy. It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of scientific research by Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is wonderfully successful in promptly curing lame back, kidney, bladder, uric acid troubles and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work, in private practice, among the helpless too poor to purchase relief and has proved so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty cent and dollar sizes are sold by all good druggists.

ONCE IS ENOUGH TO SEE

Gustave Dore's portrait of Dante is worth seeing—once. But once is enough. Some such look you notice on the faces of those who have suffered, and still suffer, much physical pain; people subject to rheumatism, gout, neuralgia, periodic headache, lumbago, or pain from some old lesion. This pain-habit puts its marks on them, as the custom of handling ropes crooks a sailor's fingers; or as too much riding of a bicycle stamps a worried expression on certain faces. No wonder people said of the Italian poet as he passed along, "There goes

THE MAN WHO NEVER LAUGHS."

The complaints above named all yield to the action of Benson's Porous Plasters, and quickly too. Not only those, but colds and coughs, kidney and liver affections, all congestions and muscular strains, diseases of the chest, asthma and all ailments which are open to external treatment. It is frequently said that Benson's Plaster is Pain's Master. It cures when others are not even able to relieve. For thirty years the leading external remedy. The old-style plasters, as well as salves, liniments, oils, etc., have little or no efficacy as compared with it. Use it. Trust it. Keep it in the house. Ask for Benson's Plaster; take no other. All druggists, or we will prepay postage on any number ordered in the United States on receipt of 25c. each.

HYGIENE

The ptomaine as a menace to health and even to life is obtaining a good deal of attention from physicians, says The Golden Penny. It is a chemical product, formed incidentally to decomposition, and the worst of it is that nobody is safe from its attack, though fatal cases of poisoning by it seem to be rare.

There are many kinds of ptomaines, but some of the most deadly occur in fish that have been too long out of water. Cold retards their formation, but a fish that has come from far away and which has necessarily been on ice for a considerable length of time is said to be an unsafe article of diet. Indeed some experts in such matters have gone so far as to urge that it would be very desirable that fish should be sold only alive in this country, as they are in Germany, where the housewife goes to market and selects her scaly dinner as it swims around in the tank.

It is certain that deaths attributed to acute indigestion or other commonplace causes are often actually due to poisoning by ptomaines. Only the other day a distinguished physician died from such a cause, having partaken of shad roe.

Fish Bites In Submarine Cables.

Interference with submarine cable service due to fish bites occurs from time to time in shallow water, but lines in deep water have not hitherto suffered from this cause. An English telegraph company, however, now reports that in repairing a fault in one of their cables at a depth of 330 fathoms the section removed was found to contain a tooth firmly fixed in the core of the cable, although the core was protected by the usual sheathing of thick iron wires and insulating material. An examination of the tooth showed it to be from some species of shark.

UNIQUE INVENTIONS

A curious violin called the Stroh was used at a special concert given in London recently, and its effect was such as to delight all who heard it. Its appearance is wholly unlike any single musical instrument, and it looks like the combination of an elaborate cornstalk violin and a small megaphone, the latter being the resonator. The principle is very simple. The body or main support of the instrument is in no way employed for sound purposes. It simply holds the various parts of the violin together and sustains the enormous pressure of the strings when tuned. Attached to this body are a vibrating diaphragm and a trumpet shaped resonator. The strings are played upon as in a normal violin, and the vibrations of the strings are conducted by means of an ordinary violin bridge, which rests upon a rocking lever to the diaphragm and resonator. The lever supporting the bridge oscillates laterally upon the body of the instrument, the end being attached to a diaphragm of aluminium by a small connecting link. The diaphragm is held in position between two india rubber cushions by means of a specially designed holder fixed upon the body of the violin by two brackets. Attached to this holder is the trumpet, or resonator.

The disk, or diaphragm, which represents the belly of an ordinary violin, is perfectly free to vibrate, the result being that when the strings are set in motion by the bow the bridge and rocking lever vibrate accordingly, and thus every vibration is transmitted to the diaphragm. The diaphragm sets in motion the air contained in the resonator, the resonator augmenting and distributing the same to the surrounding atmosphere. It is claimed almost any quality of tone can be obtained from one instrument by a simple change of diaphragm. Although the diaphragm is made of the metal aluminium, there is no metallic sound audible even to ears trained by long practice to the tones of the wooden violin. The rich, mellow tones supposed to come only after at least a century's playing of a violin require no forcing, and its admirers say the slightest contact of the bow will bring them forth.

THE STROH VIOLIN.

Ely's Liquid Cream Balm is an old friend in a new form. It is prepared for the particular benefit of sufferers from nasal catarrh who are used to an atomizer in spraying the diseased membranes. All the healing and soothing properties of Cream Balm are retained in the new preparation. It does not dry up the secretions. Price, including spraying tube, 75 cents. At your druggist's or Ely Brothers, 56 Warren street, New York, will mail it.

The fort was captured and five out of six ships destroyed.

MEN AND WOMEN

DO THEY GROW MORE OR LESS ALIKE WITH CIVILIZATION?

The Question is Discussed by Henry T. Finck, Dr. Stanley Hall and Others—A Woman Makes Fun of the Prophecies of Disaster.

A witty Irishman says that Mr. Joseph Chamberlain would probably justify the treatment of the Boer children in the British concentration camps by the text, "Suffer, little children"—that style of mutilated Scripture being about adapted to his kind of Christianity. A Scotch writer tells of a man who used to disturb a prayer-meeting by groans and strange ejaculations while wrestling in the spirit. Upon being remonstrated with by a friend, he defended himself by quoting Romans 8.26: "For we know not what we should pray for as we ought, but the Spirit itself maketh intercession for us with groanings." But the other Scotchman reminded him triumphantly that it was not lawful to "divide a Scripture," and that the full text read "with groanings that cannot be uttered."

One of the worst offences in the way of dividing a quotation is committed by Mr. Henry T. Finck, in his recent philippic in the N. Y. Independent against the modern woman. Mr. Finck affirms that there is sex in mind, which is probably true; and he adds the extraordinary assertion that the state in which the sexes most resemble each other in mind is the state of savagery. Mr. Finck heads his article with Tennyson's lines:

Woman is not undeveloped man,
But diverse; could we make her as the man,
Sweet love were slain.

The advocates of equal suffrage have no fault to find with this sentiment; but the opponents always omit the rest of the quotation:

Yet in the long years liker must they grow,
The man be more of woman, she of man;
He gain in sweetness and in moral height,
Nor lose the wrestling thews that throw the world;
She mental breadth, nor fail in childward care.

The claim of Mr. Finck and Dr. G. Stanley Hall that the minds of men and women grow more and more unlike as civilization advances is contrary to well-known facts.

Will any one say that Turkey is more civilized that the United States? Yet the minds of men and women are certainly more unlike in the Orient, where the women are kept closely shut up in zenanas, excluded from education and from all outside activities, than they are in America, where the boys and girls study the same subjects side by side in the public schools, have access to the same books and papers, pursue many of the same occupations, and mingle freely in social life. In the Orient a woman's mind is as different from a man's as a potato-sprout grown in a cellar is different from a healthy plant raised in the sunlight; and the consequences are bad for all concerned. James Bryce says: "These Mohammedan women are almost mindless; what then can they do for their children?"

In a state of savagery the minds and thoughts of men and women do not greatly differ. In a half-civilized state, the natural difference is abnormally accentuated by the exclusion of women from almost all lines of mental activity. As civilization advances, the difference tends to be reduced to its normal proportions by the gradual removal of the arbitrary restrictions placed upon women, and their admission to equal opportunities for education. A perfect civilization involves the refinement of the minds of men, and the broadening of the minds of women. The ultra-conservatives like Mr. Finck have always been much alarmed lest each successive step tending to broaden women's minds should destroy their beauty and womanliness; but the Turk might as rationally fear that women would develop beards if they were not compelled to keep their faces veiled. The difference between the minds of men and women, so far as it is natural, will be eternal.—Alice Stone Blackwell.

To Educate Mothers.

Nothing tends more markedly to broaden women's minds than their admission to the responsibilities of citizenship. This good effect of equal suffrage in our Western States is conceded even by men who are not enthusiastic over any of its other aspects, like John Cotton Dana. Mr. Amos R. Wells, editor of the Christian Endeavor World, lately addressed a letter to twenty-five ministers of several different denominations, choosing their names at random among his subscribers in the four equal suffrage States. He asked: "Is equal suffrage working well, fairly well or badly?" Of these twenty-five ministers, one answered that it was working badly, and three that it was working fairly well, while the remaining twenty-one were positive and emphatic in declaring that it worked well. In summing up the results of his inquiries, Mr. Wells says:

"One important gain may positively be ascribed to woman suffrage: The increased political intelligence of the women; and this is a great gain, not only as it broadens the women's lives, but in its influence on their children. 'The women want to know what they vote for,' emphatically says an Idaho minister. 'Woman suffrage has been a great educator for all our women,' says a Colorado man. 'They realize their responsibility, and they study. They are better fitted for all their duties than they were ten years ago.' Woman suffrage makes elections more expensive, but it is a grand school for the mothers of the republic."

La Grippe Quickly Cured.

"In the winter of 1898 and 1899 I was taken down with a severe attack of what is called la grippe," says F. L. Hewett, a prominent druggist of Winfield, Ill. "The only medicine I used was two bottles of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It broke up the cold and stopped the coughing like magic, and I have never since been troubled with Grippe." Chamberlain's Cough Remedy can always be depended upon to break up a severe cold and ward off any threatened attack of pneumonia. It is pleasant to take, too, which makes it the most desirable and one of the most popular preparations in use for these ailments. For sale by Young & Brown.

LESSON XIII, FIRST QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, MARCH 30.

Text of the Lesson, John xx, 1-18. Memory Verses, 13, 14—Golden Text, John xi, 25—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1902, by American Press Association.]

1, 2. "They have taken away the Lord out of the sepulcher and we know not where they have laid Him." These were the words of Mary Magdalene to Peter and John on her return from the sepulcher early on the morning of the resurrection day. As all the lessons of the quarter have shown us the power and doings of the risen and ascended Christ, it is not amiss on this review day, which happens to be Easter, to consider again specially His resurrection. We see in these women, as in the apostles, true believers in and followers of the Lord Jesus, with life and the future all dark to them because they knew not the resurrection, and they knew not because they believed not. In the lessons of the quarter we have seen thousands upon thousands of men and women made new creatures in the power of His resurrection. We need to be often reminded that if Christ be not risen all preaching is vain and none has been saved or ever will be, but Christ being raised up from the dead and having all power in heaven and earth every purpose of the Lord shall be performed (I Cor. xv, 12-28).

3-5. The two disciples ran because of Mary's message, and John, the fleetest of the two, arriving first, stooped down and looked in and saw the linen clothes lying, but he did not go in. It may have seemed to him too sacred a thing to step into such a place, or it may be that he feared he might see the precious body, desecrated, lying elsewhere in the tomb. We cannot know fully his thoughts and feelings until he shall some day tell us himself, but this we surely know, that if he had believed his Lord's words he would not have been surprised to find an empty tomb, but might rather have joyfully exclaimed, "He is risen!"

6-8. Peter, more impulsive, when he comes, goes right into the sepulcher, then John follows, and they both see the linen clothes lying and the napkin that was about His head wrapped together in a place by itself and they believed Mary's testimony that the body was not in the tomb, but beyond that, as to what had become of the body, they were wholly in the dark, as the verses following testify.

9. "For as yet they knew not the Scripture, that He must rise again from the dead." Besides His own oft repeated words they might, with anointed eyes, have seen His resurrection in Ps. xvi, 10; Isa. xxvi, 19; liii, 10; Hos. vi, 2, or at least a strong suggestion of it, but their hearts were set upon a kingdom which, according to their way of thinking, was to be established there and then, and being filled with their own thoughts they had no place for His thoughts and purposes.

10, 11. The disciples went to their own home, but Mary remained at the sepulcher weeping. Luke says that Peter departed wondering in himself at that which was come to pass (Luke xxiv, 12), not believing that Christ was risen, but believing simply that His body was not in the tomb and wondering what had become of it and what it all meant. We are reminded by the disciples and Mary of a time when "every man went to his own home. Jesus went unto the Mount of Olives" (John vii, 53; viii, 1). Did you ever see a precious body laid away from your sight, and the friends and relatives all went to their homes, but you, having left that which was the house in which the one who was dearer to you than life had lived in the tomb, felt that you no longer had what could be called home? If so, you can sympathize with Mary.

12, 13. "Woman, why weepest thou?" Thus spake the angels to her, and she answers in about the same words she had used to Peter and John. Words seem idle when there is this aching void in the heart unless they come from those who can truly sympathize, who have themselves experienced our sorrow.

14, 15. "Woman, why weepest thou?" This time the words are from Jesus Himself, and they mean more, for He can be touched with a feeling of our infirmities (Heb. iv, 15, 16). It would seem that as Mary faced the angels and they spoke to her she must have seen them looking at some one behind her, and as she turned to see whom or what they were looking at she, supposing she saw the gardener, speaks to him of the body she cannot find. I imagine her talking to Him whom she so loved and not knowing Him, but see also chapter xxi, 4, and remember the two who walked to Emmaus with Him and knew Him not till they saw His hands as He broke bread in the house. How grief and unbelief do blind us and how much sorrow we might escape if we would only believe God!

16. "Mary!" "Master!" What a heavenly "multum in parvo!" Just one word from each, but heart meets heart in those two words. The heart broken is comforted; the Father of mercies and God of all comfort has spoken. Whether it be as Frederic Whitfield says, the sorrowing, broken hearted Mary, or the tried and terrified disciples in the upper room, or doubting Thomas, or the weary, disappointed toilers on the lake, as Jesus shows Himself, the risen Christ, to each all is made right, and the all sufficiency of Christ for every state of man's heart is made manifest. The heart of man needs only to see Jesus. Let Him present Himself and all will be well, and the heart will be filled with joy and gladness and repose quietly in Him.

17. "I ascend unto my Father and your Father, and to my God and your God." The question is often asked, Why did our Lord not allow Mary to touch Him when just a little later the same morning He allowed the other women to hold Him by the feet and worship Him? (Matt. xxviii, 9.) Why not be content with the Lord's own reason, "For I am not yet ascended to My Father?" The inference is plain and easy that before the other women met Him He had ascended to His Father and returned. During the forty days He evidently ascended and returned many times before the visible ascension, since which he has not yet returned, but He will (Acts i, 11), and soon now.

18. Her tears were dried, her heart was glad and she went as His messenger to comfort others as they mourned and wept, but as she told them the wonderful story they would not believe her (Mark xvi, 9-14). Neither did they at first believe the two who saw Him later on the same day, and when, in the evening, He appeared unto the eleven He upbraided them with their unbelief.

FLOWER AND TREE.

Pruning to excess or too frequent or too long is weakening to the tree.

When a branch is removed, the cutting should be close, leaving no stub.

The apple, pear, quince and thorn can be grafted one on another, with varying success.

Wormy fruit in the orchard is best disposed of by the sheep. They eat all without making any choice, as pigs do.

Planting a few trees every fall or spring, as may be convenient, helps materially to keep up a supply of good fruit.

The cherry, peach, apricot, nectarine and almond require a light, dry and warm soil, but may be grown on loose, sandy soils.

Saltpeter is recommended as a quick acting fertilizer for flower beds that seem to be languishing, especially those that show small and pale leafage.

Peach and plum trees are both less liable to diseases when grown in the poultry yard. The trees will make a better growth and at the same time afford shade for the fowls.

Geraniums that have been used for summer bloomers will not flower again until the late spring months. Geraniums for winter blooming should be grown especially for that purpose by keeping the flower buds nipped off until August.

An Odd Nest.

A correspondent of Cassell's Magazine records a curious freak on the part of some wasps in Gloucester, England.

The wasps were noticed going in and out of a lock which secured a workshop door. The owner of the shop had the lock removed to satisfy his curiosity about the doings of the busy workers. He found a nest inside. The cells were made of mud and were full of larvæ. There were several dead wasps inside the lock.

As the lock was in almost daily use the wasps could not have had a very peaceful home.
